FACTS TO FACE.

Probably the reader will exclaim "First catch your facts!" For never, perhaps, has the public felt so distrustful as to-day of the assertions of its leaders and its would-be leaders, so confused with the vehemence of contradictory statements and proposals, so bored with threats of angry strife after the tension of long hard years. Yet the facts must be faced and dealt with. To ignore them is only to hand over everything to the unbridled energy of a minority of fanatics. We cannot afford such a pusillanimous attitude.

And after all, though details must be questioned, individual assertions discredited, the general broad lines of the situation are clear and undeniable.

First, the world is much poorer than it was five years ago. Productive power has to an enormous extent been concentrated upon destruction instead of creation. Not only have we lost the supply of the commodities to be expected from five years' work of the great industrial nations, but also actual vast destruction of human and material wealth has heavily mortgaged the work of the future.

Secondly, the reaction from the unparalleled strain of the recent years has left the nations nervy and unsettled. We all know that a patient is more querulous and unreasonable in convalescence, than during the dangerous period of his illness. Well, convalescence has begun; but health is not yet. And only reasonableness will avoid the danger of relapse.

But patience is necessary with a convalescent invalid. And we must cultivate patience, even while restraining unwise action. We must condone the grumbles and complaints, while doing all that offers any possibility of surer conditions of health. In the meantime, however, our second fact is that we have a bad tempered world to deal with.

Thirdly, though labour shows signs of a sane recognition of the necessities of the moment and of a growing distrust of unconstitutional actions, it must not be taken as an indication that the working classes have abandoned, or will abandon their claims to better conditions and a fuller share in the management of industry. All but the irresponsible among them recognise the necessity of capital and of the high value of educated and trained management to all grades engaged in any industrial enterprise.

But they also recognise that the absolute basis of all industry is the actual productive labour of the majority. And they demand a system which will guarantee them a voice in the control and interest in the prosperity of their work. To attempt to stem that demand would be as unwise as unjust.

To bring about co-operation and common interest between finance, management and labour is in the clear interests of all engaged, as well as of the community. To such an end, perhaps by a development of the Whitley scheme, our thought and energy must be directed. This is our third fact.

And the fourth fact is that the situation to-day and the plans for to-morrow are the affair of every one of us. Every man must be to-day a thinking man.

We have often spoken in these columns of the pressing duty of each to avoid drifting, to consider the fact of the present day, to avoid being influenced by intemperate extremists, to determine what in the past and present is too valuable (or likely to be) for heedless rejection, and then to make up his mind, as a unit of the nation, regarding the clearly necessary and desirable.

The fifth great general fact to which we shall here call attention is that a vast quantity of mental and physical energy is employed uselessly, while there is unlimited scope for its use in providing things needed for the general betterment of humanity.

Look in the shops—look even round the room—and see how much is unnecessary or over-elaborated. Think of all the work time and money that have gone to making and distributing such things everywhere; and reflect how many good, useful and beautiful things are needed by the mass of the population, how many public facilities could be provided by the work that has been wasted on these millions of useless things.

It has been pointed out that the very fact of the essential life and services of the nations having been carried on for years, while the enormous majority of the population were directly or indirectly engaged on war and its supplies and services, proves that much of the labour performed in peace time is not essential, and could be more usefully employed for the public welfare.

It is then clear that all that is required for a happier and more prosperous world is new, wise, co-operative planning, based upon knowledge and thought. Let each seek the knowledge and plan thoughtfully.

A LOST NAME.

He was particularly careful, when attesting, to explain that his name was William Anstruther-Wilson, and on no account was the hyphen to be omitted. "You see," he said, "mine is a double-name."

The Sergeant in the Recruiting Office had had a heavy day's work, and was now busy with the evening rush of attestors. Hence his rather testy reply: "Don't try the double with me, my man. Two and ninepence is the price, whether you're double or single."

"I only wanted my name entered correctly" grumbled Anstruther-Wilson. Anstruther's my Aunt's name and I promised — — —"

"It's you, not yer Aunt the country wants . . . Willing to be vaccinated and inoculated, or does Auntie object?"

The laughter which this sally provoked, caused Anstruther-Wilson to go through the rest of the formalities in silence. He was glad when they were completed and he could return home.

In due course, or rather a little out of due course, owing to sundry appeals, Anstruther-Wilson or rather 'W.A. Wilson' received his calling-up notice. When answering the call, he lodged a protest against the form of address, but as he had to admit that he was the party named in the notice, his protest was ineffective, and he was advised to hurry up or he'd miss the bally old war entirely.

Had the Sergeant listened to Anstruther-Wilson on the occasion mentioned above, he would have learned the cause of the latter's anxiety in regard to his name. There was a time when the victim of this narrative was plain and unhyphened William Wilson, but those were the days before his Aunt Matilda had provided him with an income rendering him independent of working, conditionally on his associating her name with his own.

This undertaking was, as he explained to his friends, "dirt cheap at the price," and it had been faithfully observed by him in civil life.

But the initial error which started on his attestation was continued during the whole of his subsequent military service. Thus, on his first pay parade which, comprising some 600 men, fell in alphabetical order, he lined up with the "A's," blessing the condition attached to his Aunt's benevolence.

His elation, however, at the prospect of being in the first instead of in the last 20 for pay, was short-lived. As a soldier, no less than as an armleteer, he was "Wilson, William A." He suffered a similar rebuff on letter parade, and generally, got everything in the Army worth having, all but last.

Eventually, he received warning of his impending discharge. But alas! in acquainting his Aunt, so used had he become by this time to his Army name, that he endorsed the envelope "W. A. Wilson."

He could scarcely have made this slip at a more inopportune moment. Aunt Matilda was very proud of her name and desired for it, the widest publicity.

Moreover, the same post that brought her nephew's letter also brought an appeal from a charitable Institution whose objects seemed more worthy of support than a nephew who had forgotten the importance of considering his Aunt's desires.

In the result, the allowance was withdrawn, and William Wilson had to seek work. Sad? Well, views differ on these questions, but even the staunchest Socialist will admit that it was rather galling that William's first job should be in the office of the charitable Institution to which Aunt Matilda now contributes annually the sum which she was accustomed to allow her nephew.

He has only one consolation, which is, that he still draws indirectly on his relative's benevolence, though now he has to earn by labour every year just about half the amount he received for idling before the War.

Perhaps, all things considered, the careless Sergeant has done him a good turn.

E. J. TALLUM.

A RHINELAND MILL.

I came across the mill quite unexpectedly at the foot of a well wooded hill in Rhineland. Wondrously beautiful in its environment with its black and white timbered walls and great water wheel, it awakened memories of the past.

It was in a natural basin of verdant meadow-land. In the background were mighty crags and an ancient castle with ruined ivy-clad walls.

Down from the mountain side a little stream ran which supplied the power. It was sweet to stand awhile and gaze idly as the wheel went round, and pleasant to watch the dripping waters from the mountain stream fall from it and drop into the pool below.

In the far-off days of youth we used to sing a song which had been handed down for generations,

"Splish, splash, click, clack, merrily goes the mill!
The wheel goes round, the corn is ground
The miller is blithe and gay,
So ripple on rill, and grind away, mill!
For we're wanting flour to-day!"

How we loved a mill in those days, and to see one in Rhineland recalled country life, country sounds, and country delights at home!

There are many grand old mills which still beautify the face of England. Lincolnshire, especially is full of them, water mills and wind mills with their quaint sails.

We remember, too, the picturesque mills of France and Flanders, they were great landmarks, wonderful observation posts, and many bloody battles have been fought for the possession of some of them. Alas how many have been blotted out and are now but a heap of stones! But they will live in the memory and figure largely in the pages of history.

In the romance, poetry, music and art of every country right down from Biblical and classical times the mill has loomed largely in national life and work.

All the famous artists of the past and of to-day, Rembrandt, Constable, Morland, Birket, Foster and others, have painted the glories of the mill in their fine landscapes, and as we gaze upon them in our Art Galleries our souls are thrilled.

We remember the famous mills of fiction. We feel the throb of the wheel and the ripple of the water as we follow the fortunes of the Tullivers in George Eliot's incomparable book "The Mill on the Floss."

In "John Halifax, Gentleman" we have been moved to laughter and tears as we have read the scenes which took place at the mill of Abel Fletcher. The whole picture throbs with humanity, and fires the imagination. It reaches its climax when the crowd, in its rage at being denied cheap bread, sets on fire the mill.

Our poetry is full of it. Tennyson, Goldsmith, Wordsworth and a score of others, have immortalised the mill, the miller and his lovely daughter.

In my boyhood's days in Yorkshire we used to play a famous ring game and sing an old folk-song handed down from time immemorial,

"There was a jolly miller, and he lived by himself—
As the wheel went round, he made his wealth
One hand in the hopper and the other in the bag,
As the wheel went round he made his grab!"

It was a fine old country game and full of life.

As I gaze on the Rhineland mill other memories are recalled. I think of the many apt phrases used by our lads in the stern and awful days of warfare. How many have spoken of "Going through the mill" or "Broken on the mill wheel"!

Again in thinking of the past with its joys and sorrows, failures and successes, it is the mill which gives its message to us,

"The mill will never grind with the water that is past."

In the days when Prussian might and greed seemed almost to have conquered the world, our faith in the ultimate triumph of the forces of righteousness was strengthened and sustained by the lesson of the mill, "The mills of God grind slowly, but they grind exceeding small."

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Reader's Varied Views.

VANITY FAIR.

Sir,—I got something like a shock when I saw in your yesterday's issue a column specially for the ladies in our midst. Up to then I had always looked on the "Post" as being purely a man's paper.

One cannot help seeing, of course, to what an extent the other sex has penetrated into the forces and so I suppose you show your wisdom in giving the women and girls some of your space.

Still, I can't help feeling that many of the old school of soldiers must be a little pained at the new order of things and sigh for the good old Army days, when man ruled supreme, and such an innovation would have been unthought of.

MERE MAN.

"ADVERTISEMENTS MISSING."

Sir,—Your correspondent "C.R.S." apparently advocates the hideous system of placarding the interior of tramcars with advertisements, which are a veritable eye sore to anyone with the slightest care for beauty.

I consider that the municipal authorities of Cologne are to be congratulated upon keeping their cars free from these obtrusive monstrosities.

I also think that any traveller who wishes to employ himself on a tram-car journey would provide himself with some reading matter, and not rely upon advertisements of often doubtful literary and artistic merit.

B. M. G.

Sir,—As a student of the psychology of advertising I was extremely interested in the contribution of your correspondent C.R.S. to this most interesting study.

In speaking of the value of advertisements in tramcars to the passengers themselves by providing mental occupation to the welcome relief of one's personal embarrassment—caused by eye-wandering—he voices a new and decidedly interesting argument in favour of passenger vehicle advertisements so often tabooed by would-be civic dignitaries, a false township dignity, by the way, maintained at the expense of the ratepayers.

R. D.

RIDING OVER CROPS.

Sir,—May I appeal to those fortunate individuals who happen to be in possession of horses, not to ride over crops?

Irrespective of the fact that all the land around Cologne is in somebody or other's ownership, and that the ordinary rules of civilisation now apply, it used to be looked upon as a most un-English and unsportsmanlike act to ride down standing croops.

I was shown a field of roots near Ostheim yesterday which had been very seriously damaged by so-called sportsmen on horseback. The owner appealed to me, and asked me if such things could be done with impunity in England. I could only say that it is a few individuals who get everybody into disrepute.

Surely the sense of fair-play and sportmanship has not entirely left us?

TRUE SPORT.

MEMORY AND OBSERVATION.

Sir,—Under this heading in the "Cologne Post" recently W.R.P. pointed out that the systems advertised for the improvement of the memory are practically of no value, as he says it depends upon the individual himself.

It must be admitted that one can improve one's memory by their own efforts, but will W.R.P. kindly say why he furnishes suggestions that are identical to those contained in one of the principal Memory Training Systems of the day?

W. A. F.

THE MUZZLING OF DOGS.

Sir,—I sympathise with X.Y.Z. in his solicitude for muzzled dogs.

If one could only explain to one's canine pet the reason for his having to wear the irritating wire contraption, it might make it easier for him to submit to.

I firmly believe that many dogs are driven to madness by the torture these wretched muzzles give.

But of course there is another side to the question. Rabies is still prevalent and here in Germany I am told it is even worse than at home, so until some better preventative can be thought of, I suppose we must still submit to our pets being worried by those inhuman contrivances.

DOG'S FRIEND.

THE TEN O'CLOCK RULE.

Sir,—I have only recently come to Cologne, but it does seem somewhat strange to me, that although the cafés and cabarets now keep open until eleven at night, and German civilians can sit in them till then, British officers have to leave sharp at ten.

It is not very pleasant to have a waiter come round and ask you to leave. One feels rather like a naughty schoolboy and somewhat foolish before other grown-up people.

Someone has suggested to me that when the hour for closing was recently extended, by some oversight, the regulation as to officers was not altered also by the authorities. I wonder if that is actually the case.

LIEUT.-COLONEL.

WHY NO BRASSARD?

Sir,—I cordially agree with "Brassard" that the wearing of the brassard by the wives of officers and other ranks should be made compulsory.

Verily women are strange beings. As he remarks the wearing of the brassard is popular with wearers of the uniform for the simple reason that it conveys the fact that the wearer is of British birth.

This alone should induce the fair sex to wear the brassard provided. What is their objecton? Will someone enlighten us?

A WHITE ROSE.

The red rose whispers of passion,
And the white rose breathes of love;
O, the red rose is a falcon,
And the white rose is a dove.

But I send you a cream white rosebud
With a flush on its petal tips;
For the love that is purest and sweetest
Has a kiss of desire on the lips.

BIG BOXING PROPOSALS.

Great Fights to be Decided at National Sporting Club.

WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP.

At the National Sporting Club this Winter some of the greatest and most attractive boxing contests ever staged will be decided. Not only is Beckett to meet Carpentier for the championship of Europe, a match which in itself will provoke the greatest excitement and enthusiasm, but Jack Dempsey, the heavy-weight champion of the world, is negotiating for a contest with Carpentier for the world's title. Since Dempsey's defeat of Jess Willard in such convincing style he has been regarded, in America at any rate, as practically invincible and reams have been written about his wonderful cleverness and punching powers; he has even been described as the "greatest ever." Conseqently his appearance at the National Sporting Club in a match against the clever Carpentier is bound to arouse unprecedented interest.

The negotiations have been carried a step further by the receipt in London of a cable from New York, to the effect that Mr. Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manger, has announced Dempsey's decision to fight Carpentier at the National Sporting Club, date and other arrangements to be settled later.

Mr. Bettison, the manager of the National Sporting Club, interviewed a day or so ago said that although negotiations with Dempsey were proceeding, nothing could be done in the matter until the match between Beckett and Carpentier had been decided. Dempsey had written to say he was coming, but the matter would have to stand in abeyance until he arrived. Everything depended on the result of the Beckett match.

Fulton's Challenges.

Fred Fulton, the Kansas giant who knocked out Arthur Townley in the first round in Tuesday evening, has issued challenges offering to meet both Beckett and Carpentier over ten three minutes rounds, each giving 10 per cent of the purse to the fund for wounded ex-service men.

BECKET'T THE BEST.

McGoortys Tribute to his British Conqueror.

Interviewed subsequent to the fight Beckett and McGoorty said:

Joe Beckett.

"Without doubt McGoorty is the cleverest man I have met. He was always on the alert, and I never knew where the next punch would come from. From the second round, however, I felt that if I did my proper boxing I would wear him down. In this I proved correct. I may say that I never want to box a fairer or gamer boxer than McGoorty."

It was interesting to learn that before the contest Beckett was presented with one of George Robey's Dinky Doo lucky mascots of solid 15-carat gold, which he took into the ring with him.

Eddie McGoorty.

McGoorty was slightly dazed when questioned as to the fight, but, like the good sportsman he is, he had only good words for his victorious opponent. "He is a real good man," remarked McGoorty, "and those who say that Beckett cannot box are fools. I have had a rather long experience, and without doubt Beckett is the best man I have ever met."

HOLBORN STADIUM TO RE-OPEN.

Excellent Bill for The Opening Night.

The Holborn Stadium will reopen on September 18, under the management of Major Arnold Wilson, who at one time controlled the destinies of the Liverpool Stadium. Mr. C. B. Cochran, of course, will be the master mind as before.

The chief bout of the reopening will be one of fifteen rounds between Eugene Criqui, of France, and Walter Ross, the English bantam-weight champion. Ross would like Mr. Cochran to increase the number of rounds to twenty, but even if this were done, the European title would not be at stake, as the French Federation have already declared Ledoux to be the French champion at Ross' weight.

Ross is frank in his opinion that Ledoux cannot make the weight, but this, of course, is mere supposition, and, therefore, cannot weigh with the promoter.

On the same night as Ross and Criqui take the square there will be a contest of ten rounds between Tom Berry, of Custom House, and Gunner Rawles, who has just been demobilized. They will box at the cruiser-weight limit. The remaining bouts will be of an interesting character.

OLD SCOUTS CIRCLE.

The usual meeting of the "Old Scouts Circle" was held at Lindenthal Y.M.C.A. Sept. 3rd. Lieut. E. W. B. Parker was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy of chairman, caused by Mr. Jarvis's return to England. Much useful training work was carried out by the Patrols and a new Patrol is being formed.

CROSS COUNTRY RUN.

1/7th Middlesex Win From 9th East Surreys.

The London Divisional Cross Country run took place on Thursday. Starting the Exercier Platz, Kalk, the course of about five miles, ran through Merheim to Bruck and back via Mielenforst finishing at the Fort, Exercier Platz. Maj.-Gen. Sir S. T. B. Lawford, K.C.B. acted as starter and subsequently presented the Divisional Cup to the successful team, the 1/7th Middlesex Regt. Major Needham and Capt. Coatsworth were also officiating on the course.

The result, showing units and numbers of points gained were as follows:—

1. 1/7th Middlesex 411 pts.
2. 9th East Surreys 452 pts.
3. 17th Royal Fus. 697 pts.
4. 1st Inf. Bde H.A. 838 pts.
5. 23rd Middlesex 928 pts.
6. 16th Queen's 956 pts.
7. 41st M.G.C. 1218 pts.

The first five teams will represent the Division in the VI Corps cross country run on the 11th Sept.

LIEUT. A. C. STRAKER INJURED.

Rhine Army Champion Sustains Mishap at Aldershot.

His many friends in Rhineland will hear with regret that Lieut. A. C. Straker of the 17th Lancers, the old Cambridge Blue, and Rhine Army champion, severely strained his back muscles in his fall in the high jump at Aldershot, and also sprained his wrist. He is at present under doctor's orders to lie on his back and not move, and there is not the least possible chance of his being able to compete in the Inter-Services' sports to-day. Had the jump at Aldershot been provided with a pit for the men to land in, Lieut. Straker and possibly some of the other competitors would have suffered less in landing.

GREAT CRICKET TREAT.

C. P. C. Final At Lindenthal on Sunday.

FINALISTS FINE RECORDS.

Do you wish to see the greatest cricket match ever played in the Rhineland? Then a journey to Lindenthal on Sunday, when the great final of the Cologne Post Cup Competition is to be played, is clearly indicated. As announced, the match was originally intended to take place on Sunday; then difficulties arose and a postponement was advertised. Happily, however, the obstacles have now been removed and the original date is being adhered to. This arrangement is far more satisfactory as the 17th Lancers, one of the competing teams, are expected to leave for England almost any day.

The Finalists.

The finalists are the 93rd Bde. R.G.A.

and both teams, naturally, have excellent records in the competition. They headed their respective leagues, the Cologne Southern and Cologne Town and came through the eliminating and semi-fi al rounds without being extended, winning their matches by suostantial margins.

Of the two teams the 93rd Bde. have probably the better record on paper, but as it is quite impossible to guage the relative strength of the teams to which they were opposed in their leagues it would be counting disaster to attempt to prophecy which team will win.

One thing certain is that Sunday's match will be a battle royal in which two stirling teams will strain every nerve and in which no quarter will be given.

Records Compared.

A glance at the records of the finalists will serve to show their worth and leave no doubts as to their qualifications for the final test. The 93rd Bde. R.G.A. are notoriously one of the finest sporting units in the Rhine Army and have an unbeaten record at soccer and rugger as well as in the Cologne Post Competition. They have a well balanced, all round team, their most notable performers being Gnrs. Weight and Smythe both equally successful with bat and ball.

The 17th Lancers are also one of the very finest elevens and although they cannot boast an unbeaten record, theirs is an exceedingly creditable one. When they were beaten early on they were unfortunate in being unsually weak and this defeat must not be taken into too serious account. They also have some really brilliant members who can always be relied upon to make a good show. Their greatest asset is probably Capt. Fowler a well known army cricketer, who has been strikingly successful, while as a batsmen Capt. Boles ranks high. The latter is almost equally good with the ball. The Lancers are exceedingly fortunate, too, in having Capt. Stanyforth behind the wicket; he has little to learn in that department.

To sum up then, the teams are wonderfully well matched and expectations will be cruelly disappointed if the final is not very closely contested. But in cricket, more than in any other sport, perhaps, the element of uncertainty is very prominent and even the best teams have been known to fall to pieces without any apparent reason.

To reach the ground take the No 2 car from the Dom to Lindenthal.

1/6 BN. WEST YORKS.

Averages In Cologne Post Cup Competition.

The 1/6 West Yorks have had a most successful season and are second in the Northern League. Their team has been a most enthusiastic one and they are to be congratulated on the result. Pte. Carr has been the best all round player with a batting average of 25.66 and a bowling average of 3.28.

It is worthy of notice that most of the matches have been played away.

The Battalion averages are as follows:—

Batting.

UNITED SERVICES.

Colonial Cracks Do Well At Stamford Bridge.

THE ARMY WIN.

At Stamford Bridge on Thursday before a large crowd the United Services held their championship meeting. The Navy were poorly represented and did not secure a place. On the other hand, the Army, strongly re-inforced by colonial cracks, did exceedingly well and won comfortably securing 42 points against 37, of the R.A.F. The high position of the R.A.F. was largely due to the fine performance of Sgt. Major Mawby who won both the 100 yards and 220 and Capt. Mitchell who carried off the 440.

Results.

Following are the results:—

100 yards:—1, Sgt. Major Mawby, R.A.F.; 2, Sgt. J. Lindsay, New Zealand; 3, Sgt. Major L. Kessler, R.A.F.; 4, Sgt. W. R. Applegarth, R.A.S.C. (Time 22 secs.)

3 4 mile relay race:—1, R.A.F., 2 min. 20 2/5 secs.; 2, Army, 2 min. 27 1 5 secs.; 3, Navy scratched.

LIGHT DIV. SIGNAL COY.

Lieut. Thorne's fine feat at Athletic Meeting.

The Light Divisional Signal Company R.E. held some very successful Sports at Ohligs on September 1st. Lieut. Thorne won the individual championship being first in the 100 yards, 220 yards, ¼ mile (54 seconds) and 120 yards hurdles (19⅕ secs.) and was 2nd in the long jump. Lieut. Gow. won the Cricket Ball (100 yards 7 inches) and High Jump (5ft 1 in).

Cpl. Field was first in the Long Jump and Spr. Tolson in the Mile (5 minutes 4 seconds) and these two were second in most of the other events.

LIGHT DIVISION.

Inter-Brigade Boxing Championships At Ohligs.

The semi-final, and final for the above provided an excellent and well contested programme at Ohligs on Tuesday.

Teams were as follows:—

1st Light Inf. Bde. Group, 13th K.R.R.C., 26 points.

R. A. Group, 5th R.I. Rgt., 19 points.

2nd Light Inf. Bde. Group, 12th R.I. Rfls., 13½ points.

3rd Light Inf. Bde. Group, 2nd Bn. M.G.C., 5 points.

The winners of the various weight finals were:—

Bantam weight, Rfn. Doe, 13th K.R.R.C.

Feather weight, Rfn. Frogley, 13th K.R.R.C.

Light weight, Pte. McMahon, 5th R.I. Regt.

Welter weight, (officers), Lt. Russell, 2nd Bn. M.G.C.

Welter weight, (O.R.), Cpl. Marshall. 5th R.I. Regt.

Middle weight, (officers), Lt. Cantley, 12th R.I. Rifles.

Middle weight, (O.R.), Sgt. Delaney, 5th R.I. Regt.

Heavy weight, Rfn. Gitana, 13th K.R.R.C.

Contests were very keen, pluck and courage being well to the fore, a fine example being given in the Officers Welter weight by Lieut. Cantley, who had received punishment early in the afternoon.

Thanks to the following officials the meeting was a great success —

Referee. Lt. Col. J. Betts, D.S.O.

Judges. Capt. G. Hibbert and Capt. Murray.

Timekeeper. Major F. A. Cobb, M. C.

M. C. Capt. D. A. Owen.

Whips. Lt. Good and Lt. McLean.

FOR AUSTRALIA.

Team to Represent Britain in Davis Cup Final.

KINGSCOTE CAPTAIN.

At a meeting of the selection committee of the Lawn Tennis Association on Thursday the personnel of the British team which is to meet Australia in the Davis Cup Final at Sidney in December was considered. It was decided to send three players if possible. Col. A. R. Kingscote and Major A. H. Lowe had notified acceptance of invitation and were chosen for the first two places. Col. Kingscote was appointed captain. As regards the third place the Committee decide to invite Mr. A. E. Beamish and failing him Max Woosman.

ENGLISH RACING RESULTS.

The following were the results of the Derby meeting on Thursday:—

Nursery Setting Handicap:—1, South Notts (5—2 on); 2, Badminton (100—30); 3, Scottifer (100—8).

Elvaston Plate:—1, Motor Veil (8—1); 2, Estelle (6—1); 3, Parisian Diamond (2—1).

Burton Plate:—1, Flying Duck (3—1); 2, Monazite (5—2); 3, Daybreak (5—4).

ENGLISH CRICKET RESULTS.

English Cricket details on Thursday were as follows:—

Gentlemen of England 131; Players 165 for one.

South of England 104, Australians 23 for 2.

KING AND QUEEN AT HIGHLAND GATHERING.

There was a record attendance at the Highland gathering at Bremar on Thursday, the function being graced by the presence of the King and Queen, Royal Princess, Princess Mary and the Duke of Connaught. The Royal Party were given an enthusiastic reception.

KALK Y.M.C.A. FOOTBALL SHIELD.

Particulars of Three Weeks Knock-out Competition.

Under the auspices of the Kalk branch of the Y.M.C.A., a football shield Competition lasting only three weeks is being organised. The competition is open to any unit within ten miles of Kalk. All infantry battalions, brigades of artillery, cavalry units, etc., are eligible. Entries should be sent in to Lieut. J. Woods, Sports Officer, 93rd Bde. R.G.A., Kalk, not later than Thursday, September 11th. An entrance fee of 100 Marks, to be remitted before draw takes place, i.e., Friday September 12th, at the Offices of the "Cologne Post," is required. The competition will be run on the knock-out principle and matches will be played on the ground of the first named team. Teams will arrange for neutral referees and will see that the results of games are forwarded to Lieut. Wood.

AN APPRECIATION.

C.P.C. Competition "Full of Delight and Pleasure".

In the following, the 1/6th Bn. West Yorks add their testimony to many others we have received as to the pleasure given by and benefits derived from our Cricket Competition. They say:—

After the Division returns home among our most pleasant memories of Rhineland will be the matches played in the C.P.C. competition. They have been full of delight and pleasure and created a wonderful spirit of good fellowship, besides giving the men an opportunity of seeing the country.

Yet Another Challenge.

Sgt. Rees of "B" Coy, 41st Bn. M. G. C. is prepared to accept L/Cpl. Corbrett's challenge for the 10 stone 10 lbs. Championship (Rhine Army).

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

"The Tabs" on Tour.

"The Tabs" have been playing to audiences outside Cologne of late with their usual success. Jack Knowles, "Bitursbun," is now demobbed and his part is played "straight" but quite interestingly by Lev. Baines.

Some Show.

There is a suggestion abroad that there should be organized later on in London, a great night when there will be present members of all the big army concert parties of the war. Some gathering! And some night!!

Farewell "Starlights."

The Starlights, Light Division, have twinkled merrily and most brilliantly for many many nights and now they are going to join the great majority in Blighty. Bye-bye "Starlights" and many many thanks. We shall always remember your Colognion nights and—yes, your village stormings.

"Rouges et Noires."

I understand "Les Rouges et Noires" First Army Party, will break up after their season at the Savoy Theatre, London. I suspect one or two of the principals have had offers that have tempted them away. Reg. Stone, the excellent female impersonator evidently caught London; his picture has appeared in several of the illustrateds.

"The Rascals."

The Cavalry Division M.T. Coy. Concert Party, "The Rascals" have had quite a successful week at the Palast Theatre and have played to crowded houses. For a small unit party with military duties to perform, theirs is a most creditable show and Lieut. Dobbie is to be congratulated together with his able band of artistes, nearly all of whom are amateurs.

A Versatile Comedian.

Jack Knight can comedé with the best and has much to do throughout the show, indeed, he never seems to be off. The female element is well sustained with two good voices, the dusky dancer is popular with his audience and there are other entertaining turns. The pianist is worthy of special mention, especially for his accompanying of "Lend me your Aid" and "Hong Kong."

"The Wasps" no More.

The Wasps Concert Party has been disbanded owing to the Brigade shortly breaking up. Bert Evans the popular "principal lady" of the show has just returned from England, where he performed for a week at a Birmingham music hall. He presented his own act in male attire, and his songs at the piano proved highly successful. He had several tempting offers for revue and Pantomine and is now awaiting demob.

Colour and Gaiety.

The Burgergesellschaft was, on Thursday evening, the scene of one of the most appreciated dances ever held in Rhineland. Playing throughout the evening the band of the 9th D.L.I., quite surpassed themselves—seldom have I heard dance music rendered so charmingly by a military band. The M.C., was Sgt. Goldie, R.E., who, in conjunction with Sgt.-Major Whittaker, was mainly responsible for the success of the function. The ladies of the organising committee were: Chiefs Wall, Leech, and Day. A number of girls in fancy dress added colour and gaiety to the affair.

Next Week's Happenings.

On Sunday, Sept. 7th the Rev. C. E. Wheeler will talk to the men in the Writing Room from 3 to 6 p.m. and there will be a Concert by the Band of the 17th Lancers at 6.0 p.m. (by kind permission of Lt. Col. Melville, D.S.O.,) On Monday, Sept. 8th, there will be an impromptu Concert in the Writing Room from 5 to 6 p.m. followed by a Dance in the Theatre at 6.30. On Tuesday, Sept. 9th there will be a Dancing Class in the Theatre from 5 to 6 p.m., also an impromptu Concert in the Music Room at the same hour. At 7 p.m. the Green Diamonds will give a Performance in the Theatre. On Wednesday, Sept. 10, an impromptu Concert will be held in the Music Room, and there will be a Dance in the Theatre at 6.30, at which the Band of the 9th Durham Light Infantry will play (By kind permission of the C.O.) On Thursday, Sept. 11th, there will be an impromptu Concert in the Garden, if fine, from 5 to 6, and a Whist Drive in the Music Room at 6.30. On Friday, Sept. 12th, there will be a Dancing Class in the Music Room from 5 to 6, and a Continuous Cinema Performance from 2.30 to 9 p.m. On Saturday, Sept. 12th there will be an impromptu Concert from 5 to 6 in the Music Room, and a Dance in the Theatre at 6.30 p.m.

JACQUES.

LEAVE CLUB WHIST DRIVE.

Owing, no doubt, to the fine evening, the Whist Drive at the Leave Club yesterday was not so crowded as usual. The players however were exceptionally keen and the games were very fast.

The prizes were won by the following:—

Gentlemen's	Score
1st L. W. Johnson	152
2nd E. Girbow	148
3rd Gnr. Manomet	145
Ladies
1st A. Trayling	150
2nd W. Whittock	150
3rd A. E. Trussler	149

Lt. Halley again kindly presided over the Whist Drive and Spr. Duffy acted as M.C.

English Football Result.

On Thursday Fulham defeated Clapton Orient by 1 goal to nil.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Shea for Newport.

Jerry Snea, the well-known Welsh Rugby three-quarter, has definitely decided to play for Newport.

Sensational Defeat.

Liverpool's defeat at Anfield was a sensation, after their fine opening at Bradford, but the Arsenal showed the better staying powers.

A Veteran President.

At the annual meeting of the Birmingham F.A. Mr. O. Crump was re-elected president—a position he has occupied for forty-four years— and Mr. J. Adams was reappointed hon. treasurer, this being his thirty-fourth year of office.

Goalkeeper Drops Dead.

Thomas King, 42, married, acted as substitute for the regular goalkeeper in a football match at Liverpool. He collided with a goal post, and later when taking a goal kick collapsed and died almost immediately.

Price's Misfortune.

On the big occasion of his life the cricketer generally fails and the footballer's cup of happiness may get spilled. Price had this experience at Griffin Park. Webster headed the ball from a corner, and the goalkeeper could not prevent the full back from scoring against his side.

Mike Honeyman Wins.

At the Ring the referee stopped the contest between Honeyman and Hines in favour of the first-named in the twelfth round.

Caretaker of Epsom Course.

Mr. E. J. West, the well-known racing gateman, has been appointed caretaker of Epsom stands and racecourse, with effect from Sept. 13.

Broke a Leather.

Mr Frank Brown, the owner and rider of Pot Herb in the Rothschild Plate at Lewes yesterday, broke a leather below the distance, but for which his five-year-old would have made a race of it with Trench Warfare.

Bedford Rugby.

At Bedford Park the Bedford Rugby Club had their first practice game. The captain Mr. A. V. Manton, stated that he considers there will be no difficulty in selecting a strong side to meet Northampton on Sept. 20.

The Arsenal Gate.

The official figures of the match at Highbury in the Arsenal v. Newcastle United game are an attendance of just under 50,000 and a net gate of £2,100, in addition to which a sum of £700 will be paid to the Government for entertainment tax.

Reeve v. Rolph.

Articles have been signed for Harold Rolph (Canadian heavy-weight champion) and Harry Reeve (ex-light-weight, champion of England) to meet at the Ring on September 22.

A Promising Half.

The Northampton half Tomkins has neither stature nor weight to help him but it is safe to say he will be one of the successes of the season. He knows the game thoroughly, and plays it like a sportsman.

Saintly Maude's Success.

Saintly Maude gained a fourth consecutive winning bracket by taking the Houndean Selling Plate, and Hobbs brought off a double by the success of The Square and Clipstone.

Memphian's Plumes Dead.

Mr. L. Beauchamp's Memphian's Plumes died recently when undergoing an operation. This is a great loss to his owner, as the four-year-old son of Feather Bed would have made a good hurdler.

Aston Weak.

Aston Villa had Hardy and Humphries away for their match at Birmingham while Derby had the same side that drew with Manchester United. Hardy's place was taken by Lee, a young goalkeeper recently secured from Brierley Hill, and he made a creditable debut.

F.A.A.C. Chairman.

Mr. Alfred Davis was appointed chairman of the Football Association Amateur Cup. committee at a meeting held at 42, Russell-square, W.C.

St. Leger Wagering.

A market has at length been formed on the St. Leger, though the business yesterday was confined to a very few horses. Buchan, of course, heads the list.

A Hollow Defeat.

West Ham United met with a hollow defeat in their first away match in the Second League, losing to Barnsley, at Oakwell, by seven goals to nothing.

Autumn Handicaps.

We have to wait but a few days more for the weights for the autumn handicaps, and these are being even more eagerly anticipated than usual.

Nine—Nought.

Not a bad total for two matches. Almost like a sticky wicket cricket score, this return of the Hotspurs, at the expence of Coventry City and Leicester City—formerly Fosse.

Tottenham's Reception.

After being absent from their famous enclosure at Tottenham for the last four years the Spurs turned out to meet the renamed Leicester club—Leicester City. They received a wonderful reception.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Are you Competing?

Readers should not forget that to-day is the closing date for our "Best Books" competition. Everyone is invited to submit a list of the ten books they consider the best. Every book will be counted as receiving one vote each time it figures in the lists sent in and the competitor whose list, according to the books in it, embraces the highest aggregate of votes, will receive a prize of fifty marks. Lists received any time to-day will be eligible to compete and they should be addressed. "Books" c/o "The Cologne Post" A.P.O. S 40 Rhine Army.

The Cult of the Bath.

Almost every town of Germany has its public baths run by the municipality. Besides actual swimming baths, there are electric baths, vapour baths, carbonic acid baths, needle shower, mas age rooms, hot-air baths, steam baths—in fact—a Russo-Turkish establishment with, in addition, massage and every form of hydrotheropy. And all this, with, into the bargain a right to lunch afterwards in a comfortable room, cost, before the war from 2 to 2.50 marks. Attached to the establishment is a doctor, a barber, a foot-specialist and a manicurist, as well as a restaurant.

German "Delikatessen."

Recently a Rhineland soldier was offered by the kind Hausfrau of his billet, a small portion of herring for his tea. On lasting a morsel of this delicacy, he found it to be raw. The Frau was very much surprised on learning that they are not eaten thus in England, adding that even in the highest circles in Germany it is considered a very appetising dish, and greatly preferred to the cooked article. The writer has seen young German lads buy fresh herrings in a shop, and consume them on the spot or walk along the road chewing them with great gusto.

How They Clean.

In most Rhineland towns it is forbidden at any hour to shake tablecloths, bedding, dusters or carpets out of the windows, either into the street or into the courtyard. Curtains and hangings are taken down and beaten in the courtyard, bars of wood being fitted in the wall for the purpose. Vacuum cleaning, obtainable at a reasonable price, is in general use in many towns in all the better class houses.

Night Work.

Generally when there is street work to be done of urgent importance, it is carried out during the night. There is something almost eerie in seeing about two o'clock in the morning, bodies of twenty to fifty workmen toiling in the glare of great acetylene lamps at gas or water mains, repairing tram lines or asphalting a section of the street. Should the work not be finished by the morning, it is patched up provisionally and the next night sees full completion. It is essential that traffic should never be interfered with during the hours important to the life of a great city.

The Master's Home.

There are, no doubt, many music-lovers amongst the Rhine Army who have taken advantage of their stay in Germany to visit the birthplace at Bonn, of that greatest of all composers, Ludwig van Beethoven. Though outwardly an unpretentious looking house, the interior contains many priceless musical treasures. What a history of its master the clavichords could unfold! The easy assurance with which visitors finger the keys reminds one of Padrewski's visit there a few years ago. The famous pianist was asked to play on one of the instruments, but he modestly replied that he was not worthy to touch them. Many of the original scripts of Beethoven's greatest compositions, including the well-known "Moonlight Sonata" may be seen. Altogether, one comes away with pleasant recollections of Germany's greatest genius.

A legend of Cologne.

Our readers are recommended when rambling in the old streets of Cologne to search out the house, No. 10 Neumarkt, at the corner of the Richmondstrasse. Affixed to the upper story are two horse's heads, which are connected by tradition with the miraculous awakening of Richmodis, wife of Knight Mengis von Aducht, from a trance. Her husband declared he would sooner believe that his horses could ascend to the loft of his house, than that his wife should return from the tomb. Scarcely had he said these words, however, when his two white horses rushed out of their stable, run across the courtyard through the door of the house and began to ascend the stairs with a great clatter, so that the whole house was shaking and everybody terribly frightened. Then the heads of his horses were seen looking from the upper window. The story runs that two of the gravediggers wanted to rob his wife of her jewellery and opened the coffin, when the supposed corpse was brought to life again. In all probability the heads formed part of the armorical bearings of Nicasius von Haquenay, who built the house.

Signed his Death Certificate.

An amusing story is going the rounds. An officer was told off to supervise the burial of a man and at the close of the service was approached and asked to sign a formidable document printed in the German language. He did so but later wondering what was the nature of the document, consulted the padre and invited his opinion. The padre having a knowledge of the language was able to enlighten him, but judge of his astonishment when the subaltern found that he had written his signature in the space intended for the name of the dead man.

Re-Echoes.

Someone asked recently for the location of No 15 C.C.S. We are informed that it is now near Barlin, France.

Our new feature for women in Rhineland, "Vanity Fair," is to appear twice weekly, on Tuesdays and Fridays. Many letters of appreciation have already been received from the fair sex in our midst.

The Army rates of exchange for the current month are: 5 francs (French) equal two shillings and elevenpence, 5 francs (Belgian) equal two shillings and tenpence and 10 Marks (German) equal two shillings and a penny.

The stars and medals approved for service during the war, and also their ribands, will be worn in the following order: 1914 Star, 1914—15 Star, British War Medal, Mercantile Marine War Medal, Victory Medal.

This notice in the Band programme of the VI. Corps Club has caused some bewilderment:—"Officers are requested as far as possible to refrain from making unnecessary noise until the orchestra is playing."

Great interest is being evinced by all the troops in Rhineland in the final for the "Cologne Post." Cricket Cup to be played at Lindenthal to-morrow Sunday. Will you be there?

The members of the band at a recent dance in Rhineland complain that after doing their best all the evening their reward in refreshments was only bread and butter washed down with lime juice.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give two prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Gunner J. Morrow, 153 Siege Battery R.G.A., Rhine Army, Pte. R. Hardy 281 Area Employment Rhine Army.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

WHAT INSURANCE COSTS.

It would appear that the National Insurance Act has cost the country during the seven years of its existence somewhere about £167,000,000, nearly £24,000,000 a year. Of the total sum £127,000,000 has been taken from insured persons and their employers, while the National Exchequer has had to provide £40,000,000, a sum which exceeds by £11,000,000 the estimated contribution required to bring up the 4d. to 9d. It would be interesting to know what has happened to the £11,000,000. The Exchequer has had to grant annually a sum of £5,700,000, and the question may be asked, Has this gone to medical or to sickness benefit? If to the former, the thought it at once suggested was that that sum would pay 5,000 whole-time doctors a salary of £1,000 a year each, and leave a balance for administration of £700,000 a year. Is the Act really worth this to the community and to the country? Is the insured community satisfied?

FOR MOTORISTS.

It is puzzling that some simple contrivance has not been devised for putting a motor-car "out of action" when standing unattended. Quite recently, a motor engineer, was of opinion that expert thieves could counter any such precaution, as they had their allies in many workshops, and would not be long in getting over any difficulty with which they were confronted. One London firm has an invention for baffling motor-car thieves. The "Mailoel" steering column lock consists of a collar which fits over and to the fixed tube of the column, which has a box containing a lock of the Yale type operating a hardened steel bar, which passes through a hole drilled through the fixed and revolving tube of the steering columns. When locked the key is removable from the lock; when unlocked, the key is held fast in the lock No two keys alike in 2.000.

ERRORS IN TIMEPIECES.

In the great observatories are the finest timepieces that human ingenuity has been able to devise, but they are not strictly accurate. Their errors, though small, are determined by the only infallible regulator known—the steady sweep of myriad stars across the heavens. This wonderful chronometer is available to anyone for regulation of clocks and watches in the same manner as practised by the astronomers, but without the refinements.

First set the watch to the best time obtainable, preferably a telegraph clock. It can be kept true afterwards by reference to some star. Any star will appear at a precise point just three minutes and 55.91 seconds earlier each night. Fix a range by setting a pin in the jamb of a west window, from which a distant roof-bridge may be seen. A bright star (not a planet) is selected, and the time noted when it disappears below the horizontal line when sighting across the pin.

At any later date the watch may be corrected by observing the same star in the same manner. For example, ten days later the star will be on the range line 39 minutes and 19.2 seconds earlier than before.

AVENGING THE HOGUE.

It was on February 18, 1915. The Grand Fleet was returning from a cruise when a torpedo was seen to approach the Neptune, but just missed her. The Fleet immediately divided, part going one way and part another. After about half an hour the commander of the submarine which fired that torpedo, evidently thinking that all was clear, allowed his periscope to come to the surface, and, seeing battleships away in the distance, must have come to the conclusion that the Fleet was clearing off, not knowing that it had divided, and that there was another half close at hand, just behind him.

The Dreadnought was leading, and the people on her bridge saw the periscope. Speed was increased, and the course slightly altered, and she crashed right into the submarine, which swung round, slewing her bows right up into the air above the deck of the battleship and showing the number U 29, which had been painted over, but was partially revealed again by the action of sea water.

This was the craft commanded by Commander von Weddigen, the man who, the Germans declared, alone had sunk the Hogue, Cressy, and Aboukir in the U 9 in the previous September.

TWO KINGS TO ONE CASTLE.

A quaint comedy is being enacted in Halifax. Two respectable British householders, both occupying the same house, are spending their time writing notes to each other, each demanding that the other clears out. The letters go through the post, and are delivered together again. During the war householder A went away and let the furnished house he was occupying—which did not belong to him—to householder B. While A was away B bought the house. A returned to find B firmly entrenched and refusing to leave. A—who owns the furniture—likewise refuses to leave. So both live in the house and exchange notes.

FIRE FOUNDED SHOREDITCH.

Just over 250 years ago the Great Fire broke out. It began near the Tower, and, driven by a high wind, consumed 89 churches, including St. Paul's Cathedral, the Guildhall, and over 13,000 houses. To quote the concluding words of the inscription on the Monument which commemorates the fire: "In a small space of time the City was seen most flourishing, and reduced to nothing. Three days after, when this fatal fire had baffled all human counsels and endeavours in the opinion of all, it stopped as it were by a command from Heaven, and was on every side extinguished." A result was the populating of the district known as Shoreditch, which until then had been mostly fields. The homeless citizens settled themselves there in tents, with such goods as they could save; gradually shacks and houses replaced the tents.

TO SUPERSEDE COAL.

A Canadian farmer has invented a means of converting straw into gas, thus producing a good coal substitute. The process is cheap. To equip a plant costs about £100. With this plant the farmer may heat his house and his outhouses, thresh his corn, pump his water, and grind his meal. His wife can cook with it and warm her bath water.

The straw is first baled into a size and shape to fit a retort. This makes a seven-foot-long bale with a width of about two feet. The retort consists of three oval cylinders made of highly-refined steel. Then there is a scrubber to remove the tar, and ammonia and a gas-holder.

That is the apparatus. Into each cylinder a little bale of straw is charged. Underneath the retort a fire of straw is started, or if there is gas in the holder the heating may be done with gas.

For every ton of straw the farmer gets six to eight gallons of tar and ammoniacal liquor. This, in its crude state, will pay for baling the straw. When the gas is made there remains in the retort finely divided carbon called char, which is, in effect, lampblack, about 600lb. to the ton of straw.

TAN REGIMENTAL BADGES.

The seaside girl in some popular resorts is said to have started a new fad. With the aid of the friendly sun she brands her pretty arm with the badge of the regiment in which her fiancé served or now is serving. The process is simple. The fair damsel fashions her favourite regimental badge from pieces of court plaster which she presses upon her arm. Then the sun's rays are invited to get busy for a few days. When there is a real deep coat of tan the adhesive plaster is withdrawn, and lo! upon the arm of her ladyship stands out in bold relief the replica of her soldier boy's army emblem.

FORTUNE SMUGGLING.

A little while ago an aeroplane circling over Swedish territory dropped a packet which was found by the police to contain jewellery and valuables. The news caused surprise, but it is only a revealed incident in a vast scheme of smuggling which has been carried on ever since the signing of the armistice.

Ever since last November—and perhaps earlier than that—from Germany to Holland and Scandinavia, from Germania, German-Austria, and Hungary to Switzerland, there has flowed a steady stream of gold, securities, jewels, and all other kinds of valuables, all privately held, their owners being obsessed with but one thought—safety. Fear of confiscation through Bolshevism and fear of confiscation through taxation necessitated by war indemnities furnish the motive power behind this exodus of riches.

Everybody smuggles, and everything has been smuggled, in spite of very severe special legislation in the countries thus being drained.

FROM EVERYWHERE.

Trouble Perhaps!—Large numbers of troops are being sent to Ulster.

Dutch Fruit.—Many tons of fruit are reaching England from Holland.

A Venetian Show.—There is to be an International Exhibition at Venice in 1921.

Waterless.—The industries of the town of Derry in Ireland have been brought to a standstill by water shortage.

G.O.M.—Lord Halsbury who was Lord Chancellor for many years has just reached the ripe age of ninety-six.

Serbia's Needs.—A great many Australian women are going to Serbia for nursing and child welfare.

To Finland.—Lord Acton is to be H. M. Envoy Extraordinary to the Republic of Finland.

A Big Blaze.—Several wharves and factories have been destroyed at Cadiz through an incendiary fire.

Not a Good Crop.—The British hay-crop this year is twenty-five per cent. below the average.

Mad Dogs.—There were three cases of dog madness in England last week. The total for this year is now 139 dogs.

Dame Rumour.—There is a rumour that Sir Hamar Greenwood is to be the next Secretary for War.

Had On Holiday Folk.—Profiteering at the English seaside resorts is rampant and boarding houses far more meagre than ever.

Celtic Village Found.—The remains of a Celtic village have been brought to light on the height of Santa Tecla, near La Guardia, Galicia.

Union is Strength.—The engineers have decided to join forces with the shipbuilders so as to bring their whole strength to bear on the Government to consolidate war wages.

Squire's Daughter Acts.—Miss Evelyn Brooke, who is appearing in "Daddies" the new play at the Haymarket Theatre, is a daughter of Sir George Brooke, the well-known Irish landowner.

Guards Protest.—The Brigade of Guards resent the proposal to continue the temporary buildings at Burton Court, Chelsea for the Ministry of Pensions. The site was their cricket and football ground before the war.

The Way.—"How can I get married?" asks a correspondent in a morning paper. Mate and see!

A Whale Hunt.—A whale weighing over half a ton has been captured in the higher reaches of the Forth.

Not Sports.—Llanelly Corporation has refused the use of the market hall for boxing.

A Fine Haul.—Three Harlesden anglers caught 200 carp in eight days in Saham Mere, Norfolk.

A Distinction.—Toy "scooters" have now been dignified by mention in the "London Gazette."

Trawlers Lack Coal.—Nine steam trawlers are laid up at Ostend and have paid off their crews, the vessels being unable to put to sea for lack of coal.

An Expensive Ram.—At Lincoln the record price of 1,600 guineas has been paid for a ram—the largest amount ever paid in the Lincoln area.

Incendiary Pop-Gun.—Small boys, firing matches out of a pop-gun, were responsible for a dangerous outbreak of fire at Peterborough.

Money in Rabbit Skins.—Five shillings each for rabbit skins is the price which is being offered for first-grade blue Beveren and Havana pelts this winter.

Profits on Golliwogs.—By the sale of sixpenny patterns for golliwogs, Mrs. Alec Tweedie, the writer, has raised £500 for the Navy League.

Rat Slaughter.—Pulling up the floor of a small pigsty, an Egham Hythe, Surrey, resident found a colony of rats, and killed 36 with a stick.

More Boys Than Girls.—There were 3,800 more boys than girls born in England and Wales during the second quarter of the present year, the figures being 76,312 and 72,512 respectively.

A Rare Honour.—Sir E. Moir has received the decoration of Officer of the Legion of Honour, for war services. This distinction has seldom been given to any but French citizens.

Father Hicks.—Mr. Seymour Hicks has written a book which he calls "If I Were Your Father"—a volume of answers by a man of forty-five to unasked questions of a youth of twenty-one.

Medal For a Dog.—The National Canine Defence League is awarding its medal to a retriever dog which rescued two children from drowning in the River Don, at Rotherham.

No Aliens for Fiji. — Fiji has banned enemy aliens for three years.

Proud of Watt. — Greenock the birthplace of James Watt, is to celebrate this week the centenary of his death.

Verboten!—Mixed dances for British soldiers and German civilians in Cologne have been prohibited.

Messengers. — A feature of the Peace Loan campaign at Sydney, was the release of 4,000 pigeons with messages.

For the Hospitals.—The cutting of the grapes of the famous royal vine at Hampton Court Palace has been completed.

Demobilized.—The War Office announces that to date 133,272 officers and 3,033,571 other ranks have been demobilized.

Home again.—The Chilian Government has set free the crews of the German warship Dresden and of the Seeadler.

Sensible.—Epsom is to expend its peace celebration balance in presenting coal to soldiers' and sailors' widows.

Millinery by air.—The air expresses from Paris to London are carrying consignments of millinery from the French capital.

At large.—Lions, monkeys and wild boars at large in Paris woods were recaptured by menagerie keepers.

Dog Sole Survivor. — Only a dog was saved when the barge Atalanta sank in the Thames.

Angler's Grim Find.—When casting his line into the Nene, an angler saw a body in the river.

Hands up.—A Southend farm labourer was fatally shot by a boy who was playing the game of "Hands up!"

No stockings.—The stockingless fashion has made its appearance at Molesey Lock.

The study of English. — The study of the English language is now obligatory in all secondary schools in Rumania.

Revue actress married.—Miss Harrison, the revue actress, has been married to Lieutenant Reaveley, Scots Guards. They met for the first time a month ago.

The Kicking County.—"They come from the right county for kicking," said a woman complainant at the Cockermouth Police Court. "Which county is that?" asked the defending solicitor. "Lancashire," replied the complainant.

Not So Silly.—Lunatics are demanding an eight-hour day. Their complaint is that since the National Union of Asylum Workers has been able to enforce an eight-hour day for its members, working patients have been obliged to labour for much longer hours.

THINGS PEOPLE SAY.

The Indian has a higher regard, perhaps a superstitious regard, for the University than we have in England. —Lord Carmichael.

British engineering works, motor-car manufacturers, and the cinema trade would do well if they started straight away to secure a suitable footing in old Portugal.—President, Portuguese Chamber of Commerce.

It is a bold man who would now prophesy as to the course of politics in South Africa. But it may safely be said that the death of General Botha is of outstanding importance, and creates rather a new situation there.—Sir Lionel Phillips.

It takes all sorts to make a world and it took all sorts to make the tanks. It took invention, management, labour, capital, strategy, tactics, transport, supply, to bring the tanks to the battle. Is there no lesson there? Yes, there is—the great lesson of national unity.—Sir Auckland Geddes.

YEMTSA BATTLE.

HOW THE VILLAGE WAS CAPTURED.

A stirring description of the fighting which resulted in the capture of Yemtsa is furnished by Reuter's correspondent. Telegraphing from Yemtsa on Wednesday he says the original scheme was that the Russian troops should make a frontal attack in the centre, the Australians (200 strong) being on the left flank, and 200 Royal Fusiliers on the right. Before hostilities opened, the Australians crept up in the woods to within seventy yards of the Bolshevist gun positions and lay there unseen all night long in the open. The battle began with an intensive ninety minute bombardment of the Bolshevist lines. The enemy fled to the blockhouses. Their officers had left the line on the previous night and only the rank and file remained.

Immediately the bombardment ceased the Australians opened fire on the gunners, who scattered. A British major, commanding the Australians, leapt up and was followed by an Australian sergeant. The impatient troops and the major and sergeant were held up by wire. The major was shot in the thigh but staggered on and was again hit. The sergeant had an artery severed and bled to death in two minutes. After that the Australians took terrible toll of the enemy throughout the fighting. Very few of the Bolshevist gunners escaped to the woods and these gave themselves up to the Russians. All the guns were captured.

The Fusiliers advanced most swiftly, sweeping all before them. The Russians in the centre were delayed by numerous blockhouses and were unable to keep up with the Australians and Fusiliers. Both flanks of the Bolshevist forces were enveloped and our men advancing further, actually found behind the Bolshevist lines three armoured trains, which were intended for the retaking of Yemtsa. The Russians on reaching the blockhouses found them held by boys. It appears that all the older Bolshevists, who were huddled in the dugouts, had forced the youngsters out to man the blockhouses. When the Russians saw the mangled bodies of children aged fifteen and sixteen they were overcome with horror and rage and threw bombs into the dugouts, sparing none.

LEAN DAYS.

PLIGHT OF GERMAN EX-SOLDIERS.

The special correspondent of the "Daily News," writing on the spectacle of thousands of ex-soldiers making a living by begging in the streets of Berlin, says that "Beggars were not allowed in Berlin before the war and their trade has thus the force of novelty. Germans are very kindhearted people and it is scarcely possible for some women to pass these human remnants without dropping something into their caps.

"Enormous numbers of soldiers, apparently sound, must remain in the once honoured field-grey because they cannot afford to get into civilian clothes. They have the appearance of being de trop, something between the civil population and the well-paid "volunteers" that police Berlin. I suppose if the unemployed were collected in one place, nine-tenths of them would be found to be wearing well brushed uniforms, the garb of their last employment. So, and perhaps because it reminds them too much of the war they have lost, the uniform is resented and in a measure despised by Berliners.

"For my part I have a sort of shame when I see these thin and patient soldiers among the fat population of Berlin. I have seen Fritz come over the top and I am for him, if necessary, at the cost of the war-profiteers as much as though he was my own late comrade in arms walking homeless the streets of London."

AUSTRALIAN NAVAL PROBLEM.

There is reason to believe that Lord Jellicoe's report on Australian naval defence, recommends eight battle cruisers, in addition to an increased number of cruisers, destroyers, and submarines. This would involve an annual expenditure of £5,000,000 by 1923, when the scheme will reach full scope. This expenditure, is worrying the Government, which is looking for economy in all departments.

Another difficulty is the reluctance of young Australians to enlist in the naval forces. It is unlikely that the scheme will be adopted entirely.

AMERICA SHORT OF COAL.

Evidence given before the American Senate on Wednesday indicated a great shortage of coal in America and very little prospect of the export of coal to Europe being maintained.

CREDIT WANTED.

£800,000,000 WANTED TO RE-START EUROPE.

The United States must guarantee credits of between £600,000,000 and £800,000,000 to Europe for a period of from eighteen months to two years in order that the world may recover its normal trade conditions.

This statement was made by Mr. Hoover in Paris to a Committee of American Congressmen which has come to Europe to investigate the question of American war expenditure.

Mr. Hoover spoke of the general economic conditions in Europe. It is his opinion that the world will require at least a year and a half, and probably two years, to recover from the war, and during this time the United States must aid Europe. "If they do not," he said, "the length of time necessary to re-establish pre-war business conditions will be in definitely prolonged."

During the next two years Europe must buy goods to the value of £800,000,000, and in order to handle the situation Mr. Hoover suggests a credit arrangement whereby the American Government could underwrite European credits. The European Governments could endorse purchases by merchants in their respective countries, and Government guarantees would render bills of sale negotiable through the banks.

Mr. Hoover believes that supervision of American foreign trade by the United States Government would result in more equitable distribution of raw materials in Europe.

IRISH OUTRAGE.

SERGEANT KILLED AND CONSTABLE WOUNDED.

On a lonely stretch of road between Lorrha and Borrisokane (County Tipperary) a Sergeant P. Brady, of the Royal Irish Constabulary, was murdered at midnight and one of two constables who were with him was badly wounded. A young man named Madden has been arrested at Portumna (County Galway).

With Constables Foley and McCormack the sergeant was on patrol duty. All three men were armed and were walking towards a neighbouring village when shots suddenly rang out from a hazel wood that adjoins the road. Sergeant Brady fell dead, a charge of buckshot having pierced his heart. Constable Foley was wounded in the hip and shoulder and is in a critical condition. The other policeman, who was uninjured, returned the fire and the assailants ran away.

The murdered man was married and leaves eight children.

GENERAL MANGIN'S VISIT TO COLOGNE.

General Mangin, the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies of Occupation, paid a formal visit to Cologne on Friday. He was received by Lieutenant-General Sir C. W. Jacob, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., Commander-in-Chief of the British Army of the Rhine, and by Major-General G S. Clive, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., the Military Governor.

The 20th Battalion Durham Light Infantry, under Captain Turnbull, was formed up in review order in the Dom Square, and as General Mangin arrived, the band played La Marseillaise and the British National Anthem, the battalion standing smartly at the present arms.

Accompanied by several other distinguished French officers, General Mangin inspected the Durhams, after which he took his stand on the square while the troops marched past.

SOLDIER AND LOST CHEQUES.

At Lancaster County Police Court yesterday, Charles Jones, a soldier, was charged with stealing a bag and contents from Quartermaster-sergeant Taylor at Carnforth railway station.

Superintendent Jackson said that the prisoner had in his possession twelve cheques, representing £1,486, payable to a Cardiff firm. He said that he had found them at the corner of Bute-street, Cardiff. The prisoner had been staying in a Y.M.C.A. hut at Cardiff, and was rejoining the East Lancashire Regiment at Preston.

Jones was remanded for a week.

PRINCE OF WALES' TOUR.

The Prince of Wales continues to experience the unbounded enthusiasm of Canadians. By the time he reached Sudbury, the headquarters of the world's nickel industry, his right arm was put out of action through handshaking and he had to carry on with his left hand.

The Shah of Persia arrived in Switzerland on Thursday.

RUSSIAN AFFAIRS.

JOHN WARD'S ADVICE TO ENGLAND.

Colonel John Ward, the Labour Member of Parliament, who has just returned to England from Russia, is of the emphatic opinion that England ought to assist in the restoration of order in Russia. He said:

"It would be the greatest mistake in the world for the Allies to refuse help to the orderly elements of Russia now, and to find afterwards that neglect to do so had landed Russia in the hands of forces hostile to the Entente nations. England ought to get in quickly. Statesmen must decide upon the nature of the help to be rendere , whether by men, money, munitions or advice, but certainly England ought to give all the help she can to the orderly elements of Russian society.

"Whatever may be the result on my position in the Labour movement of my expressing such an opinion, I cannot alter it without being dishonest to myself. Having reduced their own land to anarchy and ruin, the Bolshevists will attempt by all the means in their power to extend that anarchy and ruin to every civilized country in the world!"

CRIPPLE'S TERRIBLE VENGEANCE.

A crippled munition worker of Saint Fons, near Lyons, returned unexpectedly to his home and surprised his wife with another man. The cripple, despite the fact that he could only walk with the aid of crutches, burst his way in through a shuttered window and cut his rival's throat. The wife, on her knees, pleaded with her husband to spare her own life for the sake of their two children.

The husband decided that the whole family should die together in the river, and, waking the children, he forced them and his wife to accompany him through the dark streets towards the Rhône.

The cripple hobbled on ahead, and the wife followed, weeping and clutching the children to her, until at a bend in the road she darted away with the children and took refuge in a police station.

The cripple's body was later recovered from the water.

ITALIANS MASSACRED.

Semi-official channels at Belgrade give currency to a report from Durazzo of the Albanian Clementi, Castrati, and Boti tribes having risen against the Italian troops occupying their portion of the Albanian plateau. Massacres of Italians are reported from several localities. It is rumoured that the beaten Italian garrisons are retreating towards Elbasan, Durazzo, and Valona.

BRUTAL DOCUMENT.

A callous letter was received by the fiancé of Hans Weiss, a soldier of the National Defence Force, who was killed in the street fighting at Chemnitz, in Saxony. This communication, which was signed "P. R. and M. F. street of criminals, Chemnitz," is as follows:—

"Honoured lady, you need never expect to see Hans Weiss again, because we smashed his skull with our rifle butts. His last exclamation was: 'My dear parents and my beloved Hélène!'

"We found your address in his pocket-book. We further found £7 in cash, twenty cigarettes, five cigars, a watch and chain, a revolver, and a dagger. Finally we pulled the boots from the rascal's feet. They fit one of us admirably. Thus we have rewarded the wretch for his loyal services to the Fatherland."

COLLEGE BOYS' ROBBERIES.

Four Newcastle college boys who had been remanded at Newcastle on charges of housebreaking and receiving stolen property, including jewellery, to the value of £356, have been sentenced.

The boys, whose ages ranged from eighteen to fourteen years, had done considerable damage to furniture in the houses they had entered. They were each sent to prison for a month in the second division, bound over for twelve months, and ordered to pay £10 each towards the damage.

PRISON FOR PROFITEER.

John Reid Proven, coal factor, was sent to prison for six months in the second division at Liverpool for overcharging for coal and coke and supplying short weight in regard to coke.

Out of fifty-eight transactions the correct weight of coke delivered was seventy-six tons, but the amount Proven stated in his notes to purchasers was 116 tons—a shortage of forty tons with an approximate value of £58.

DOUGLAS-PENNANT INQUIRY.

The inquiry into the dismissal of Miss Violet Douglas-Pennant from the position of commandant of the Women's Royal Air Force will be opened at the House of Lords on Oct. 14. The chairman will be Lord Wrenbury, and the proceedings will be open to the public. Miss Douglas-Pennant's statement of the case has been filed at the House of Lords.

Herr von Lersner yesterday presented a note to the Supreme Council endeavouring to justify the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow.

WORK OR GO SHORT.

WHY THERE CAN BE NO CHEAP FOOD THIS WINTER.

Mr. C. A. McCurdy, M.P., Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food, has been telling the Consumers' Council why there can be no cheap food this winter. The causes, as everybody knows, are world wide; a denuded world has no surplus, the demands of neutrals and enemy countries are great and the purchasing power of money is greatly reduced.

"We are taking drastic steps," Mr. McCurdy told his hearers, "mainly by a system of licences in certain trades, which ensure that no person who is not legitimately interested in the trade shall be allowed to come in and make profits. We are trying to eliminate the speculator altogether.

"With regard to the rise in the price of bread, I should like to say most clearly that the price fixed by the Food Controller (9½d. a 4lb. loaf) is not a fixed price, but only a maximum price, and if as I understand, the representatives of the co-operative movement here to-day are not satisfied with the action of the Food Controller they have a simple remedy in their own hands; they can demonstrate to the Food Controller that the maximum price is unnecessarily high by selling their own bread to the public at a price lower than the maximum.

Powerless Archangel.

"If you could obtain an archangel to assume the post of Food Controller in this country he could not obtain any substantial reduction in the price of food next winter. The causes of present prices are, in the main, world causes and not local causes.

"We are living in a very vicious circle in this country, in which continual increases in wages are followed as an inevitable result by increase in cost of production and cost of living.

"If we were to think in terms of commodities instead of in terms of money, I think we should have a much clearer view. If, instead of saying that the railwayman or the coalminer wants another ten shillings a week, we said the railwayman or the coalminer wanted another suit of clothes, a new carpet, an extra pint of beer a day, and a new pair of boots, we should see at once that the first step towards giving him what he wants is that more clothes and boots and beer and carpets must be produced, and produced at once.

"There is only one way out of our present troubles, and that is to increase the world's stocks of all essential commodities, and that can be done only by work."

ENVOY LEAVES FOR ROUMANIA.

Sir George Russel Clerk, the newly appointed British Minister to Czecho-Slovakia, has been appointed the special envoy of the Supreme Allied Council to Roumania. He left Paris for Bukarest on Thursday night, taking with him a copy of the first note which is suposed to have failed to reach the Roumanian Government and also a fresh Note from the Council, which, though milder than the Ultimatum previously decided upon, is couched in stern terms.

PETROGRAD CANARD.

The home papers assert that there is no foundation for the statement that General Gough has issued a proclamation to the People of Petrograd. It appears that this statement originated in German papers at Riga, which added that "an attack is about to be made on Petrograd" and referred to the Kronstadt operations as having opened the way for food ships to the capital.

Another report from Helsingfors was that "Admiral Cowan, commanding the British squadron in the Gulf of Finland, had conferred there with General Gough concerning the prospective offensive against Petrograd."

The fact is that General Gough has not been in Helsingfors for over a fortnight and did not meet Admiral Cowan.

STRIKE OVER ONE MAN.

Willenhall (Staffs) magistrates have given their decision in the case in which the Hollybank Coal Co., Essington, near Wolverhampton, charged a check weighman named Daniel Cartwright, with infringements of the Coal Mines Regulation Act by interfering with the management and inciting miners not to work. They decided that the complaint was proved in respect of six dates, and ordered Cartwright to be removed from his position as check weighman at the colliery. The Bench agreed to state a case. Because of the colliery company's refusal to accept Cartwright 1,300 miners have been on strike since the beginning of August.

HOT BOUILLON.

In yesterday's sitting of the French Chamber, which is discussing the Peace Treaty, M. Franklin-Bouillon declared that "Great Britain did not give up her supremacy on the sea, nor did America renounce the Monroe doctrine. France, on the contrary, has given up all the vital conditions she should have put in the treaty. I refuse to ratify the treaty.

„France's blood has saved the world, France's spirit must lead it."

Quien, the French traitor and denunciator of Nurse Cavell, has been sentenced to death.

WHO'S FOR MEXICO?

RANCHING WITH REBEL-HUNTING AS A DIVERSION.

Brigadier-General Critchley's scheme for colonising a Mexican ranch with ex-Army officers, appears to have "caught on." He has entered into partnership with Senor Del Rio, a Mexican landowner, with an estate of something over a million acres, 400 miles from Mexico City. Until it was overrun in 1913 by rebels, the estate was a paying concern and could be made so again by hard work. Permission had been obtained from the Mexican Government to take sufficient arms for self protection.

"The country is full of possibilities," said Brig.-Gen. Critchley, "with a magnificent climate, and every chance of making good. If you have got anything in you, you can make good, but it is no cotton wool job, and if you haven't—well, you will not."

The cost of passage and living expenses during the first (instructional) year will amount to £200 p r man. At the end of the year a man will be able to lease land from the estate, which will advance money for wages and stock.

The possibility of having forcibly to eject bands of rebels, which a meeting discussed, only added to the enthusiasm aroused by the prospect of a healthy, sporting, and adventurous life.

NEW TERRITORIAL FORCE CONDITIONS.

Brigadier-General R. B. Colvin, M.P., presiding at the quarterly meeting of the Territorial Force Association, Essex County, said that the new conditions of the Territorial Force, which were on the point of being issued, have had to be put back into the melting-pot and recast. The delay was no doubt retarding recruiting, and he thought the new conditions should be out very shortly.

A letter was read from the secretary of the Empire Land Settlement Committee, suggesting that various regimental or divisional Old Comrades' Associations and kindred bodies might like to undertake the work of forming groups from those of their members who wished to settle on the land overseas, and whose qualifications were approved by the overseas representatives. It was pointed out that the overseas authorities were disposed to offer greater facilities for what was known as "group settlement," as against individual settlement. Little capital would be required, as the passage money was secured by the Home Government.

It was resolved that a letter should be sent to all the Associations asking for their views on the subject.

SOLDIERS' CO-OPERATIVE VENTURE.

Discharged sailors, soldiers and airmen who have formed themselves into a limited company are opening at 202, High-street, Hounslow, the first of a number of co-operative storekeeping businesses.

Shares and financial advantages from trading are confined to ex-Service men and their families, and employment will be restricted to men who have served with the Colours.

PEASANT PROFITEERS.

Holiday makers in France, who are getting a good deal of first hand experience about the alleged cupidity of the French peasant, are showing a good deal of feeling.

Newspapers are full of stories of extravagantly high prices being demanded in the provinces for local produce, such as eggs and butter. Wine, which used to be sold at about 12s. 8d. for a barrel of 22 gallons, now fetches as much as £5 4s.

One correspondent maintains that it is a common thing to find peasants making £1,200 a year. They live on small farms and pay no income tax.

CANADIAN PREMIER ON LEAGUE.

Moving the ratification of the Peace Treaty in the Canadian Parliament Sir Robert Borden said that no one could pretend that the League of Nations Covenant was a perfect instrument. It was nevertheless founded on the solemn and unaminous affirmant of thirty-two nations that not force, but right and justice, should be the arbiter in international disputes. He paid a great tribute to the services of Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. A. J. Balfour and Mr. Bonar Law.

MANCHESTER'S LABOUR MAYOR.

For the first time in the city's history Manchester will have a Labour Lord Mayor from November onwards, Alderman Tom Fox having been unanimously selected at the City Council meeting. The post is accompanied by a yearly salary of £2,000.

In Berlin these is such a shortage of coal that electricity may not be used in business houses after 6 p.m. The electric cars stop running at 10 p.m.

Owing to the unsettled condition of Mexico, persons proposing to invest money or to settle on the land in that country are warned to communicate with the British Consul-General at Mexico City before taking any definite steps in the matter.

GERMAN IMPORTS.

CARGOES ARRIVING FROM ENGLAND.

After five years, British mercantile ships are again in German ports on their lawful occasions. The Peveril (1,643 tons) and Patiki (1,518 tons) from London, the Garibaldi from Poole and the Vera from Liverpool have arrived at Bremerhaven during the last few days. They have carried Government food stuffs for Germany and Czecho-Slovakia. These supplies to Germany were sent in accordance with the Peace Treaty and have been paid for in gold by the German Government. They include tinned beef, oats and some oils.

It will be at least a week before the first commercial consignments go out. The actual number of steamers is not yet definitely fixed but there are three arranged for within the next fortnight and others are in negotiation. There are two firms chiefly concerned in this reopening of trade. One of them stated they have begun this work at the request of the Government, for there was urgent need of carrying out the food agreement with Germany, and further such supplies from British docks did something to relieve the congestion. The second firm has announced through rates and bills of lading between London and Hamburg and Antwerp and Cologne. The head of this firm leaves for Hamburg next week to arrange for cargoes in both directions. He expects to send a ship to Hamburg some time next week and the cargo is now being arranged, the firm having received many applications from merchants holding Government licences to export textiles, fibres and certain oils. One ship of 1,800 tons chartered by another house will leave about the end of next week and will be followed by another of 2,000 tons.

DAMAGE BY AIRMEN.

FORCED LANDINGS IN HOLLAND.

The Air Ministry announces that all pilots, both service and civil, who are compelled to effect a forced landing in Holland, should report at once by telegraph or telephone to the Military Attaché, The Hague, who has made every arrangement to render aid as soon as he has proper details.

Pilots should not leave the neighbourhood before they have made a written statement of the extent of the damage done to private property in the landing, one copy of which must be handed to the owner or the local authority and one to the Military Attaché.

OYSTERS ARE IN SEASON.

There is an "r" in the month and it follows that oysters are in season. In the course of a leading article on the subject the "Times" says:—

The oyster lends itself to an infinite variety of dishes. In happy America, where the vast beds of the Atlantic and the Pacific still yield tens of millions of bushels, there is justification even for decorative treatment. But in Great Britain and Ireland, where the natural beds have been ruined by over-fishing, and where sedulous culture produces a miserable hundred thousand odd bushels a year, we have lost the right to gild the lily. To cook a good oyster is as to mull a vintage port. To admit the existence of a class of "cooking oysters," like that of "cooking eggs," is to explain why cookery is a lost art in England. And yet there are temptations to which even the most resolute may succumb. Amongst these is the "angel-on-horseback," a fitting destiny even for a Royal Native.

DESERTED ENGLISH WIVES.

At the last meeting of the Board of Lambeth Guardians (S. London) on Thursday, Mr. Frank Briant, M.P., drew the attention of the Board to the long list of desertions of English girls by Australian soldiers, a matter which he feared would ultimately develop into a grave scandal. Many of the men were leaving dependents behind them, the majority of whom he feared would ultimately become chargeable to the rates. It was urged that the matter should be raised in Parliament immediately the House reassembles.

IRISH GUN-RUNNING.

The authorities are now satisfied that the Hampshire Coast is not the ship for which they have been looking. No trace of arms or ammunition has been found among the cargo. It is now reported that another ship resembling the Hampshire Coast has been captured off the South coast. It was boarded by naval men and escorted to Bristol by two destroyers. It is now known that the mystery ship wanted by the authorities had thirty-six cases of ammunition on board.

SENSIBLE WORKMEN.

Representatives of the railroad shopmen have given assurances to the United States authorities that there will be no strike, the workmen having agreed to give the Government a fair opportunity to effect a reduction in the cost of living before taking action.

The Crown Prince of Roumania, who was recently rebuked on account of a mesalliance, intends to submit himself at the next parliamentary elections as a socialist candidate.

THE NATIONAL DEBT.

This bogey which looms, all terrible, above our path is perhaps very generally misunderstood. Let us look at it fairly and see how the matter really stands.

In the first place, one essential fact to be constantly borne in mind is that the National Debt is not only owed by the nation, but is in the main owing to the nation. (The amount we owe to other countries is less than that owing to us by them). In other words, it is a family affair.

It is true that it will be necessary to raise huge sums by taxation to pay the interest and the Sinking Fund. But those sums will go back as interest to the people who loaned the money and upon whom the taxation is imposed.

The fact that so much must be obtained to pay the interest is a sign of the immense wealth that the nation was able to confide to the Exchequer. And, we repeat, what will be paid by the people as taxes due to the National Debt comes back to them as interest, or dividends. Much must be paid out because much is to be received under those heads.

Now this, of course, though true and most important, does not mean that individuals will get back just what they pay. Naturally taxation cannot be arranged on the basis of what each man or company invested in Government securities.

The incidence will be proportionally heavier or lighter. But it does mean that the country as a whole will not be ruined by collecting from the people and paying back in another form. So we may at least avoid panic.

On the other hand the position does need very serious consideration. Taxation has its limits, and even the wisest consideration cannot prevent it from pressing heavily on many individual cases which will not be receiving a commensurate return.

Then although the security is of the best, the interest is not as high as might be reasonably aimed at in commercial or industrial employment of the capital thus locked up. And this locking up is a serious restraint on that free employment of capital which is essential to the expansion of trade. Also it hampers the raising of the great sums required for national or municipal measures for general social betterment, — education, housing and so forth.

To put it concisely, our present wealth is, and must for long remain, mortgaged. Yet there is an urgent need to make up for the missing production of the last five years, and a strong general demand for better provision for the mass of the population. That is to say, more wealth is wanted.

Well, there is only one solution of this problem. It is to make more wealth. We may share it more wisely but we must create it first.

This means — it is no use blinking the fact — harder work, more production, a search for better and more effective systems of using energy and time until we have made up arrears and reached the desired level.

No Government can create wealth or give to the people anything but what that people makes and places in the Government's hands for distribution. This is a basic fact too often forgotten.

Increased work and increased efficiency mean greater wealth and greater comfort. And in no other way can they be obtained.

Just as the great floating liabilities of a huge business are often merely the natural concomitants of its great assets and sound position, so an enormous National Debt is no danger if — but only if — the assets and business of the Nation grow proportionately. Let us see to it.

THE RIVER OF HUMANITY.

The child of Earth and Heaven, the River of Humanity, like its prototype, wanders first in small disunited brooklets through rocky gorges and by devious ways; until winding through the valleys of peace or overshadowed by the mountains of gloom, the union of the hitherto separate streams creates one vast quiet river moving steadily on its appointed way.

We, its constituent drops, sweep on with it. The human flow of each generation, its work done, its energy sinking to a lower level, at last broadened and placid, reaches and is merged into the Great Ocean.

But ended? No!

From that level it is drawn upwards, raised heavenwards by the power of the all-ruling Sun. Half seen, half hinted, the spirit and the body of the river gather again in mist and in cloud in the heights; driven by the unseen forces of the sky, they hover above the waiting earth, then descend to join again, with all the vigour of youth, the river that flows unendingly, graving deeper and deeper its mark upon things earthly in each phase that we call a generation.

Turbulent rapids, roaring falls interrupt the calmness of its course; it eats but slowly into the hills that turn its path; swelled at times by storms to uncontrollable heights, the River breaks its bounds and exchanges its peaceful utility for floods of devastation. But the storm passes, the floods subside, and once more is resumed the placidity of the normal flow within the age-long channel.

Yet, as knowledge grows, as time passes, these outbreaks become rarer. Their possibility recognised, their harm admitted, the wisdom of man takes precautions against their recurrence. The storms, we know, will come; but against the floods we continue to build the dykes of wiser knowledge, clearer education, international understanding.

More and more, too, in each generation do we learn to utilise beneficially the energy and volume of this mighty river, to take the hitherto waste power and make it give forth light and ease and happiness, to turn the superfluous quantity so that it may irrigate the arid places and increase productivity. As with the streams that water our lands, we see that the River of Humanity can be usefully and wisely in part diverted into paths not already provided by nature.

Ever more controlled, better employed, its peace now and again broken by turbulence, its individual drops wending their way in the community of its flow to lose themselves in the mysterious sea, onward it goes—towards rebirth in the heights—and renewed youth and hope.

For always the River flows. W. I.

BILLY'S SCHEME.

It was in the Mess that Billy first propounded the scheme—"his" scheme, he called it. The same morning the C.S.M. had found him in bed about two minutes before "Cookhouse" blew, and, of course he said nothing at all, but then, everybody knows the habits of Company Sergeant Majors.

Anyway, what he said had evidently aroused Billy's ire and—what was more—set him thinking, "his" scheme being the result.

"Look here," he said suddenly "you remember the great Horatio once crying and pleading for a business Government. Why not a business," here he paused dramatically, "Army."

Looking at Harrison with the look one assumes when on leave, and dealing with the "When do you go back?" people, Billy continued, "Ass! I don't mean a business army of that sort. My scheme is greater than that. My idea is this. If a man doesn't want to go on parade he gets no pay. No work—no pay—the very rudimentary idea of business applied to the Army. If he doesn't want to do a guard, he can have two days off, and lose two days pay."

Billy gazed round at his audience with a self-satisfied air, as if he had solved the problem of getting men on parade once and for all.

"And how many Quarterblokes and clerks do you intend to have to keep all these records? Besides, the pay offices have enough difficulties now," said Harrison.

But Billy—he must have been thinking—was ready for that.

"Don't you think the money gained would be sufficient to pay for a buckshee clerk or two? The Quarterblokes never do any work anyway."

"Think, too, how great it would be when you woke up with a "morning after the night before" feeling, and could say to yourself, "Well, it will only cost me so many shillings to stop in bed to-day."

Billy, flushed with triumph, and probably feeling like Nelson at Trafalgar, would have continued, but the harsh voice of "D" Coy.'s C.S.M. floated through the open door, "Where the—are those Sergeants of "D" Coy.? On parade!"

And poor Billy had to go.

"ACKPIP."

CLUBLAND IN COLOGNE.

FOR CATHOLIC SOLDIERS.

It was formerly a Beer Hall, the delight of many Germans of all classes, who gathered there from the dusty crowded streets to quench their thirst with huge quantities of extra mild beer.

At the back is the brewery and in the yard many gigantic barrels can be seen, a sign of former prosperity. Its number is 18, and its location Herzog-Strasse, the centre of a teeming population. Near to it is the famous Palast Theatre.

The officials of this Club are to be congratulated on their choice of a centre, for it is just in the right place.

It is a hive of industry and full of life and sunshine. Here you receive a warm welcome and are made to feel at home. The social atmosphere is irresistible; once you have been, you desire to go again.

The doors are opened wide to all Catholics and men of other churches. Every Thursday afternoon a Catholic chaplain attends to give advice or assistance to all who need it, and this in itself is a great boon.

The warm hearted genial Director is Mr. J. B. S. Holway, and his sister Miss Holway, is the superintendent. Both came from the Argentine Republic to help the old country in her hour of need Miss Holway, apart from home service, did a great work in France for two years.

There are nine more devoted lady workers, who are an example of all that is best and brightest. By their charming and graceful manners and willingness to help our men, they cheer up many who feel weary and homesick.

On the ground floor is a large refreshment room and canteen which are always crowded with men. Here at a moderate charge a splendid tea or supper can be obtained. At the back is a large storeroom crammed with boxes and so there is no fear of a famine or short supplies.

The billiard-room on the next floor contains two excellent tables and it is sweet to listen to the music of the ivory balls. This was formerly used as a Printers' Club and one can imagine the discussions which took place there. The walls are panelled and the room is well lighted.

The next room you enter with mixed feelings, for it was once the most select gathering place of the Prussian Military Party in Cologne. Here the high and mighty met to thank God that they were not as other men, to dream dreams and see visions, to talk with bated breath of their future grandeur. They would be as kings of the castle and have world wide dominion. They could see their victorious armies sweeping onwards. How eager they were! How confident!

Where are they to-day? Gone! The place that knew them once, knows them now no more. In that very room our men write their letters and spend many delightful hours reading. The voice of the boaster has vanished and the musical voice of Tommy can be heard. Oh! The irony of it all.

It is a fine room with quaint furniture, but only modern copies of antique.

The Catholic Club has done a great work in Cologne, and many men will carry away with them happy memories of the hours they spent there.

It is supported financially by a few generous subscribers at home and they can rest assured that their gifts are greatly appreciated. G. K.

ON CHANGING ONE'S MIND.

How many of us do not pride ourselves on having great strength of will? Few, of course, assert that they have a will inviolable; many, indeed, emphatically repudiate the idea, but deep down in all our hearts, I think, is the conviction that we do as we please, heeding neither the advice of friends nor the hindrance of circumstances.

Is it not one of Man's favourite gibes at the fair sex that Woman alone changes her mind? It is beneath Man's dignity to do that which he has resolved not to do, or to leave undone that which he was determined to do.

With Woman, however, intentions do not matter. Man laughs at her, patronises her, saying that when she performs the ignoble action of changing her mind, she often does it very prettily and with good effect: one never knows what to make of them. So he goes on and gradually convinces himself that altogether he is a superior sort of being.

Of course, we do change our minds, do we not? But we seldom admit it, and when we do confess, we do so rather shamefacedly. We then point out to ourselves the great advantages of the course we have adopted over the one rejected, congratulating ourselves on our power of discrimination.

We all remember how, after the signing of the Armistice, all sort of inducements were made to us to re-enlist. One man in my unit was especially loud in his denunciation of the Army in general and everything connected with it in particular. He swore that were he about to receive his "ticket," he would not sign for another hour at sovereign a minute. I met this fellow recently whilst I was on leave; he was in uniform. On my enquiring why he had not been demobilized, he informed me that he had been a civvy but had joined up again.

I diplomatically extracted from him the whole tale of woe. His wife had been overcome with joy on his return to civilian life and he had vowed that never again would he leave her side no matter what the circumstances.

He had tried in vain to get a job at his old trade, and rather than begin at the bottom of the ladder in a new one, had considered re-enlisting — with much encouragement from his wife, who harped on this subject continually. Finally he had donned again the King's uniform. "Strange creatures, women," he said, "they never know their own minds two days running." He was very careful to impress upon me that in doing as he had done he had obeyed only the mandates of prudence.

But why all this humbug about being ashamed of changing one's mind? Why, the power to do so is one of our greatest privileges. Suppose we were so made that it was impossible for us to do otherwise than follow the course dictated by our first impulse, what a strange world we should be living in.

Perhaps, after all, life is made up as much of bad resolutions unfulfilled as of good resolutions triumphantly adhered to.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Reader's Varied Views.

A BADGE WANTED.

Sir,—With regard to "Brassard's" letter in the "Cologne Post," who could mistake a British lady in Germany? I think most of us can tell the Britisher though she be in civil dress; whether she wears her brassard or not, and I expect officers' wives know this too, and are proud of it.

X. Y. Z.

APPRECIATION!

Sir,— I read with interest the letter of a lady, praising your paper.

I think that it is a great credit to you and I know that I am only voicing the opinion of the whole area when I say that it is one of the most interesting items in Tommy's life here in Rhineland.

Just let Tommy hear the paper man say "Nights Cologne Post" and he goes away like a man that has been docked of his rum ration.

I shall always look back on the "Post" as being the means of at least one pleasant hour each day in Germany.

A GRATEFUL READER.

THE FUTURE OF OFFICERS.

Sir,—In answer to "One of the Retained" I think his comments are absolutely uncalled for, especially from a conscript to a volunteer.

No man who volunteered for the war is retained now against his will.

Another point: Why should a man who has served efficiently as an officer in the war and has proved his ability now be expected to enlist as a private in order that one of the retained might get back to his fat job which he probably slipped into while better men were fighting for their country. VOLUNTEER.

ADVERTISEMENTS MISSING.

Sir,—"Anti-ad" certainly raises a point that we carry our advertisements too far in England.

Our public vehicles might at least be free from the sordid announcement of the best dentist in town, or of some disinfectant universally used, where through lack of space the fine art of advertising cannot be applied. But in the streets it is different, for our architects have left so much blank masonry. Let us camouflage this as much as possible.

It would be a foolish policy to dispense with what has been termed the Poor Man's Picture Gallery. A good poster brings brightness and colour to many a drab street and serves in many ways other than its initial purpose.

I hope, at least, "Anti-ad" would spare the poster artist. 152 H.D.

SERIOUS READING.

Sir,—It has proved distinctly gratifying to me to read the continued correspondence that followed upon my article entitled "Serious Reading."

I note, too, with pleasure, that you have arranged a competition concerning those works which appear most popular.

It is a charming idea. It will tell our young troops what to read. But, you should not tender them difficult reading at the outset. To give them, as some have suggested, the best of our splendid literature before they are able to appreciate it, would be to misapply it and perhaps develop no liking for it in the minds of those young sturdy fellows who are to further Britain's interests in the future.

Hence my reason for suggesting "Westward Ho!" as the first.

W. ROBERT PATTERSON, Lieut.

TOMMY CROWDED OUT.

Sir,—May I be allowed to protest as to the number of the German civil population who are allowed in the various Army cinemas.

Last night, I was present at an Army cinema, and was, unfortunately, rather late. Standing room was only to be obtained, but this we were willing to submit to, knowing the decidedly good programme usually provided.

Imagine my surprise, and I must say disgust, to find that at least 30 per cent. of the audience were Germans, all of whom were sitting!

In the gangways equally as many Tommies were crowded in the most uncomfortable positions.

We do not mean to be uncharitable to the losing side, but I ask, would any German, had the position been reversed, have stood whilst we sat? 10C EMMA.

COLLOQUIAL GERMAN.

Sir,—I was much interested in an article by K.A.L. He made the one true assertion that we were teaching the Germans English, instead of using every chance of learning German from them, to our own detriment and that of our country.

I was anxious not to allow laziness and my British instinct grandly to talk my own language wherever I found myself to get the better of me!

Providence—I really regard it as such—sent me "Colloquial German" by W. R. Paterson. Published by Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner & Co. Ltd., London—just exactly what I wanted.

I can recommend it strongly to anybody who is nerving himself in the task of learning German, or is endeavouring already to do so. D. V.

TO THE CHILDREN.

(By a Big Child)

You smile at me and I at you
The friendly smile of comrades true.
I may be big, but you've descried
That I am just a child inside.

Away with outer circumstance!
We claim each other at a glance:
We feel alike, we think the same,
We know that Life's a jolly game.

Those grown-ups think they're very wise!
But how shortsighted are their eyes!
They've all forgotten what they knew
When they were young like me and you.

They've left the Land of Let's-Pretend
Where great adventures without end
Are happening all the time; they fuss
O'er things too stupid far for us.

The Wonder-sights that you and I
Behold, they cannot, if they try.
But we, who live in Happyland,
Smile each at each — we understand!

DON'T MISS IT: C.P.C. FINAL LINDENTHAL 10.30 HOURS TO-DAY

A HUGE SUCCESS.

Brief History Of Our Cricket Competition.

THE SPORTING SPIRIT.

With the great match being played to-day at Stadtwald, Lindenthal, we reach the last stage of our great cricket cup competition, one of the biggest concerns of its kind ever organised in the Army, and easily the most important Rhineland sporting event.

We are in the happy position of being able to state that the objects with which our competition was brought into being in April have been fully realised. The main object, undoubtedly, was to provide healthy sport for the British occupants of the Rhineland, and no one will deny that in this particular we have been supremely successful.

But in many other ways the competition has bristled with benefits and we have received endless testimonials as to the enjoyment and pleasures derived. The competition has brought out the very best sporting qualities—there has been plenty of give and take—and taking into consideration its magnitude, the struggle has been fought out with the minimum of friction and with the maximum of good feeling. One result has been an increase of fellowship and friendship in the Rhine Army; there is nothing like sport for the cementing of such qualities.

Great Enthusiasm.

The fight for the cup has aroused the greatest enthusiasm, and a tremendous amount of interest has been evinced in the various league battles. Right through there was a big element of uncertainty in the competition; even in the finals of the leagues the issue was always in doubt. The results of the eliminating and semi-final rounds were equally doubtful and in the final to-day it would be risky to offer odds on either side.

It is well at this stage to look back over the progress of the competition, for which no fewer than 179 teams entered in April last. Of this number 107 finished the course. The unforeseen movement of troops from the Rhineland upset calculations to some extent, but, happily, it had no serious effect upon the great tournament. In all 72 teams were compelled to withdraw as a result of their units being sent to England.

In the tournament in which so vast a number of teams were competing, it was absolutely essential to form a number of leagues. Altogether there were seven, Cologne Town, Cologne North, Cologne South; Bonn League, Duren League, Euskirchen Leagu and Solingen League. These each fought out their own little competitions, the teams heading the leagues meeting in an eliminating round, of which the survivors passed on to the semi-finals, the winners of which qualified for the last stage. As has been announced, the finalists are the 93rd Bde R.G.A. and the 17th Lancers, two exceptionally strong teams who are expected to make a tremendous fight of the final to-day.

The leading teams in the respective league were:—

Cologne Southern League—93 Bde. R.G.A.
Cologne Town League—17th Lancers.
Cologne Northern League—29th M.G.C.
Bonn League—13th King's L.R.
Düren League—D Corps Siege Park.
Euskirchen League—174 Siege Bty.
Solingen League—Lowland Div., M.T. Coy.

Individual Performances.

From start to finish the competition was brimful of excitement and sensational performances, teams vieing with each other in the establishing of team and individual records. And some really remarkable feats have been performed. Most notable among the batting performances are those of Lieut. Astill 29th M.G.C. the Leicestershire county cricketer, Gunner Weight, 93rd. Bde. R.G.A., who is within a small number of 1000 runs during the competition, Lieut. Col. Heartley 52nd. Northumberland Fus., Capt. Fowler, 17th Lancers, Sgt. Taylor, 23 R.F., Sgt. Grey 52 Welsh. and Gnr. House Lancs. Div. R.E., all having excellent records. Low bowling averages were gained by Lieut. Bailey King's Liverpool's, Lieut. Fishpool 1/4th Yorks and Lancs., Pte. Carr 1/6th West Yorks, Pte. Fulford 51st Hants, Capt. Boles 17th Lancers and D.N. Jones 9th Corps M.T. Company. Among the most remarkable individual feats are those of Gunner Durvel, who took 8 wickets for no runs and Lieut Emmerton, who secured 7 wickets for no cost. Cpl. Biles of the Lowland Div. M.T. Company performed the hat-trick no less than four times. As a wicket keeper Capt. Stanyforth is the outstanding figure; hence stumped more batsmen than any other wicketkeeper in the competition. There have, however, been other really good exponents in this department.

Unbeaten Teams.

Remarkable, too, is the fact that three teams, 93rd Bde. R.G.A., 174 Siege Battery, and D Corps Siege Park finished their League tournaments unbeaten. The 4th Royal Sussex Regt. when they left for England just before the close were also undefeated.

Naturally there was a big disparity between the standards of cricket played in the various leagues. This was most noticeable in the eliminating and semi-final rounds when heavy defeats were inflicted by the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. and the 17th Lancers. In view of this fact, the runners up in the leagues in which the class of cricket was exceptionally high must be deemed to have been very unlucky. In one of the other weaker leagues they would probably have found no difficulty in securing first place. In this connection we must mention the 41st M.G.C. who fell victims in the Cologne Southern League to the redoubtable 93rd Bde. R.G.A. The worth of the M.G.C. eleven can be gauged from the fact that they made the record score of 236 for one against such a team as the D/190 Bde. R.F.A.

We believe that the competition has been fully appreciated, and that, for many, memories of the games in connection with the Cologne Post Competition will always be happy ones, and, if this is so, we too are happy in the knowledge that our hopes have been fully realised and that in our endeavours to give pleasure to the sporting fraternity in the British Army of the Rhine we have not laboured in vain.

COMMENTS ON THE FIGHT.

Lord Lonsdale on McGoorty's Marked Skill.

BECKETT'S PLANS.

Lord Lonsdale, asked to state his views on the Beckett-McGoorty contest, said:—

"It was one of the finest and cleanest fights between heavy-weights I have ever seen.

"I was greatly taken with McGoorty, who boxes with marked skill, and I am equally impressed with Beckett, whose improvement during the last year or two is very remarkable."

Asked how the contest compared with some of the great heavy-weight contests he had witnessed in the past, his lordship said: "The Slavin and Peter Jackson match was the best exposition of boxing I have ever seen, and the bout just over is, I think, the best I have seen since then between heavy-weights."

Mr. Bernard Mortimer.

Mr. Bernard Mortimer said: I am, of course, delighted. It was a magnificent fight, and one that Beckett may well be proud of winning. It may interest you to know that before the contest a message was received by Beckett from Prince Albert, who is in Scotland, wishing him success, and expressing regret that he would not be able to see the contest. He hoped, however, to be present at the next one in which Beckett would appear.

Mr. Mortimer went on to say: "I am content for Beckett to go through Europe to earn the right to challenge Dempsey for the world's championship, but I am not going to allow him to go all through America as well. It is now a case of meeting Carpentier, and then it must be Dempsey. That is my programme, and I do not intend to alter it."

BECKETT BEFORE CARPENTIER.

Mr. Cochran throws Light on the Dempsey Position.

A cable from New York appeared in several papers the other morning to the efect that Jack Dempsey had accepted an offer from Carpentier's manager, M. Descamps, to box the Frenchman in London, says Mr. Cochran, in a leter to the "Daily Chronicle."

Carpentier is under contract to box Beckett whenever I give him two months' notice.

A clause in the contract specifically prevents M. Descamps from commencing any negotiations for a match with Dempsey until after he has met Beckett.

M. Descamps has paid a forfeit of £1,000, and in addition subject to heavy damages in the event of any breach of contract. M. Descamps is a substantial man financially.

There also appears a letter from Jack Kearne, manager of Dempsey, stating that he has had a big offer from me to come to England, and that he is seriously considering same. He has already done more than this. I stated some time ago that Demsey would, under my direction, meet the winner of the Beckett-Carpentier match in London. A repetition of this statement is my only comment on the cable and letter from America.

There have been many foolish reports that Carpentier would never meet Beckett. So far from these being true, I have during the last few days received letters from M. Descamps, Carpentier himself, and their friend, Victor Breyer, urging me to fix a date for the Beckett match this year.

My difficulty is in securing the Olympia before next spring, but it is possible that this difficulty may be removed.

HOCKEY AT SCHLEBUSCH.

An interesting hockey match was played at Schlebusch between officers of the 63rd Bde. H.Q. and N.C.O's and men of the 420th Siege Battery. The former won a fast game, the score being 5 goals to 2.

420 Siege Battery are open for dates at home.

SOUTHERN DIVISION CRICKET WEEK.

The following fixtures have been arranged to be played at the Officers Sports Club ground Lindenthal this week.

9th September:—2nd Southern Inf. Bde. v. 3rd Southern Inf. Bde.

11th September:—1st Southern Inf. Bde. v. 2nd Southern Inf. Bde.

12th September:—Field Officers Southern Division v. Light Division.

13th September:—1st Southern Inf. Bde. v. 3rd Southern Inf. Bde.

By kind permission of Lieut.-Col. W. J. J. Collas, D.S.O. the band of the 51st Devonshire Regt. will attend.

THE CURTAIN FALLS.

Closing of a Satisfactory English Cricket Season.

PUBLIC INTEREST MAINTAINED.

A highly successful cricket season has almost come to a close. There are a few games to be played that will be reckoned in the first-class averages, and then the curtain will be rung down on a season that has been exceedingly satisfactory from many points of view. Lovers of cricket will find much cause for congratulation in the fact that the game, played as we have been accustomed for it to be played, has not lost its grip on the British public. It has not been necessary to resort to any of the new-fangled notions put forward with so much earnestness, and with the honest desire to benefit the game.

The championship struggle began on May 16 in London, when Middlesex opposed Notts at Lord's, and Surrey were in opposition to Somerset at the Oval. From that date until the destination of the honours was settled last Saturday much public interest has been shown in it. It would have been greater but for the difficulty that students of the game had in following the positions of the counties at any given time. This arose from the matches being begun on every day of the week, and the many times that they were carried over from Saturday till Monday made it impossible to present complete statistics on Monday mornings showing the position of affairs.

AUSTRALIANS' THIRD DEFEAT.

Against the South of England, at Hastings last week, the Australians lost the third match of their tour by 122 runs. The South made 183 and 280 runs, and the Australians 162 and 179 runs.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENCES.

Batteries Combine For Sports Meeting At Poller Wiesen.

The Rhine Anti-Aircraft Defences comprising M.R.G.P. and F. Batteries, R. E. Searchlights and No. 2 and A. A. Workshops held a most successful sports meeting at Poller Wiesen on Thursday. GUNNER'S QUARTETTE.

Fine Performance at 174 Siege Battery Athletics.

C.P.C. C. TEAM HONOURED.

At Stotzenheim on Thursday 174 Siege Battery R.G.A. held their Battery Sports. The programme was so arranged as to enable as many as possible to compete and to obtain as even a distribution of prizes as possible. With this end in view quite a large number of comic events were introduced where luck counted for more than skill. The whole day was eminently successful and great interest was manifested in every event. There was a very large number of entries.

The principal feature of the day was the extraordinary success of Bombardier Hale. He took four firsts, 100 yards open, 220 yards, 440 yards and 880 yards, he was second in the mile, practically won the relay race for his sub-section and put up an excellent show in the long jump. Besides this, he won his heat in the closed 100 yards but withdrew from the final in order to give others a chance.

At the close of the day Major D. W. Moss presented the prizes, which consisted of cups and other trophies, and money prizes, to the successful competitors and a set of medals to the members of the cricket team who topped the Euskirchen League in the "Cologne Post" Cup Competition.

The officials were as follows:—

Umpire:—Major D. W. Moss, D.S.O. M.C.
Starter:—Lieut. Sinclair.
Clerk of Course:—Gnr. H. P. Newland.
Steward:—Capt. Betty.
Judges:—Lieut. Heney, Lieut. Poland (14 S.B.).
Marshal:—Sgt. Parfitt.
Timekeeper:—Gnr. Wade.

The Results.

The results were:—

100 yds open:—1, Bdr. Hale; Cpl. Staines; 3, Capt. Batty.

100 yds:—1, Bdr. Bland; 2, Bdr. Edwards; 3, Sgt. Jabe.

220 yds:—1, Bdr. Hale; 2, Bland; 3, Lt. Blyton.

440 yds: 1, Bdr. Hale; 2, Bdr. Bland; 3, Sgt Birch.

880 yds:—1, Bdr. Hale; 2, Shephard; 3, Birch.

One mile:—1, Shephard; 2, Bdr. Hale; 3, Baptist

Long jump:—1, Sgt. Jabe (17ft. 2ins.); 2, Bdr. Edwards (16ft. 6ins.); 3, Cpl. Sustains (16ft. 2ins.).

Bun and treacle race:—1, Broughton; 2, Cpl. Sustains; 3, Bdr. Moore.

Boot race:—1, Peepall; 2, Millington; 3, Davies.

Consolation race:—1, Cpl. Bangs; 2, Pleace; 3, Pardoe.

THE DAVIS CUP.

British Team the Strongest Available.

The team to represent the British Isles in the challenge round of the International Davis Lawn Tennis Cup against Australasia at Sidney in December as announced in yesterday's "Cologne Post" will be Lt.-Col. A. R. F. Kingscote, M.C., Major A. H. Lowe, and probably one other player. The selection of the third member of the side will not be confirmed until next week.

In the circumstances the British team is probably the strongest obtainable, as it is understood, neither Mr. Roper Barrett nor Mr. P. M. Davson, who materially helped to beat France at Deauville last week, can make the long journey to the Antipodes.

In his present form Col. Kingscote, who will captain the side, is the leading English player. Apart from his defeat by the present world's champion, Mr. G. L. Patterson, in the All Comer's Final at Wimbledon, the Army player has had a wonderful season. In the Davis Cup ties at Eastbourne and Deauville he showed superb form, completely justifying the high hopes engendered by his pre-war play.

Major Lowe has hardly been seen at his best this season, but with plenty of practice in Australia against his fellow members in the visiting team he should prove extremely difficult to beat.

EVENT OF THE SEASON.

Our Cricket Cup Final at Lindenthal to-day.

THE LAST LAP.

The event of the season in Rhineland takes place at Lindenthal to-day, when the 17th Lancers and 93rd Bde R.G.A. meet in the final of the "Cologne Post" Cricket Competition. Crowds of cricket lovers, and in fact, lovers of sport of any kind will make their way to the Stadtwald ground to-day to witness what promises to be a sparkling match. We have previously dealt at some length with the records of the opposing teams, and to-day it will be sufficient to say that the very fact that they have survived such a competition, comprising struggles in their respective leagues, contests in the eliminating round and then the semi-finals, is a good enough guarantee of their fitness to figure in such an important event. And in their victories in the semi-finals they asserted their superiority in no uncertain manner; they both won hands down.

Consequently we have every justification for anticipating a rattling good game to-day. May the best team win.

The match commences at 10.30 hours. To reach the ground take No 1 or 2 car from the Dom to Lindenthal.

THE ST. LEGER.

Probable starters for the Popular Doncaster Fixture.

The following are the probable starters for the St. Leger, to be run at Doncaster on Sept. 10th.

Buchan (Taylor).
Cheap Popularity (Harry Powney).
Chuette (Beatty).
Dominion (Barling).
Golden Orb (Dewhurst).
Milton (R. Colling).
Pomme-De-Terre (Dundas).
Sir Douglas (Persse).
Splendid Spur (Gilpin).
Tangiers (Mullen).
Viceroy (R. Marsh).
White Heat (Blackwell).

DOMINION'S DEFEAT.

Derby form bad augury for Doncaster.

Dominion surely received his congé for the St. Leger when toiling in a bad third and last to Chuette and Mademoiselle Foch in the Breeders' St. Leger. He cut up like a non-stayer.

A reputation for stamina had clung to him since his victory as Ascot, where he easily defeated Coriolanus and others. These are relatively poor animals, however, and put him to no real test, whereas Chuette kept him on the stretch throughout and in the upshot galloped him to a standstill. She did it, moreover, without turning a hair herself, a tribute equally to her own merit and the skill of Major Beatty as a trainer. Odds laying on Dominion was general as distinguished from heavy, and the leading speculator, who has been dead out of luck lately, experienced a pleasant variation of fortune in going for Chuette.

AFTER FIVE YEARS.

Revival of St. Andrews Autumn-Golf Meeting.

The Royal and Ancient Club, which suspended operations during the last five years, has resumed its sphere of activity by re-establishing the famous autumn meeting, which includes competitions for the Calcutta Cup, the silver cross, the gold and silver medals, King William IV. medal, and other historic trophies. A start was made on Tuesday with the Queen Victoria Jubilee Vase. This is a competition by match play with handicap, each entrant being dealt with separately by the committee quite apart from his handicap at any other club he may belong to. For instance, Mr. R. de Montmorency, the Eton master, who is plus five at Rye and plus four at Stoke Poges and Burnham Beeches, was given a handicap of plus three. Similarly, Mr. F. W. H. Weaver, plus three at Hoylake and Wallasey, was playing from plus one. The Royal Ancient Club's system of handicapping also permits of the difference between two players handicaps being taken in full as against the customary method of three-fourths. After many beneficial and copious rains the championship course was in beautiful condition. The greens were sufficiently holding to allow of the ball being struck firmly and without any feeling of timidity.

FOOTBALL WANTED.

A/187 Bde. R.F.A. at Eil, are open to play any Battery or Battalion team in the vicinity of Cologne, home or away. Address all communications to Sports Officer, A/187 Bde. R.F.A.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

A call to "Strife."

"Strife" will be produced on October 6th by the R.A.D.C. and several small parts are still going in this play, rehearsals of which will start next week.

Special Concert.

Next Friday, Sept. 12th, there is to be a special concert at the Church Army Club, Antoniter Strasse, Cologne. A fine musical programme has been arranged by Miss West. The artistes include Miss Stannard, Miss Elsa West, Major Greenlees, and Mr. Mackenzie, humourist. Miss Izard will be the accompanist. Members of the Rhine Army Choral Society will assist.

B.R.A.D.C. for Antwerp.

The British Rhine Army Dramatic Company are visiting Antwerp this week when they will produce "Man and Superman," "Helen with the High Hand.," "The Younger Generation.," "The Importance of being Earnest," and the "Dream Child." On their return to the Deutsches Theatre on the 15th instant they will revive "Man and Superman" for the first three nights of the week, and for the latter three, and possibly a matinee, (should there be a sufficient demand), the much discussed play "Damaged Goods."

A Musical Treat.

The Rhine Army Dramatic Company hope to arrange for Sunday next, a concert which should appeal to all lovers of good music and at which Mr. Eric Morgan, a rising young tenor, will be heard for the first time in Cologne. Mr. Morgan has already made a name in London and Paris, and a musical career of exceptional brilliancy is obviously in front of him. He studied first under Lierhammer and completed his training in Paris, where he is shortly to appear in opera. At the forthcoming concert his programme will consist largely of English songs, though a few examples of the ultra modern French school will be included.

A Dainty Dancer.

Jerry Joyce (whom you see here) is the little female impersonator and dancer of "The Pedlars" (Lancs. Div. Concert Party). He has, in his dancing acts with Bobby Macauly, made a big name for himself in Rhineland. His neat execution and feminine mannerisms are quite a feature in the "Pedlar's" show. Before the war Joyce was with "The Five Bombays" on their principal tours. He is a professional artiste of much experience.

JACQUES.

FIVE FOR NONE.

Cavalry Division A.C. Defeat R.H.A. by 15 Runs.

A match between the R.H.A. and the Cav. Div. Amn. Column played at Bergheim resulted in a win for the latter by 15 runs. Batting first, the R.H.A. collapsed badly before the bowling of Joy and Philcox, and were all out for 38, Bush alone reaching double figures (14).

The Royals made 78. Surviving a confident appeal when 7, Lt. Joy hit out well for 34, and with Lieut. Casey (23) added 51 for the 6th wicket. Going in again the gunners compiled 65, Price (21) and Bush (14).

With an hour to play, the Royals had 26 to make. The second wicket fell at 7, the fourth at 10, and without the addition of a single run the next 5 wickets fell at this point. With 1 added, the innnings closed for 11, the Gunners winning by 15 runs.

Bush who captured his 100th wicket this season, took 7 wickets for 21, and 4 wickets for 2. Price took 5 wickets for 6.

This closes the Amn. Col. R.H.A. season, the result being:—

P.	W.	L.	D.
35	26	8	1.

"E" CORPS SIGNALS AVERAGES.

Cpl. McDonald 92 wkts for 341 runs (Average 3.71)

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Sunday, September 7th, 1919.

Wind S.E. changing to S.W. or West: 5-10 m.p.h. Fine and warm at first, then probably thunder; afterwards cooler. Visibility fair.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Bald and Bold.

The bald and bold Rutherford was the best forward on the field in the Arsenal and Newcastle United tussle. Against his old club, too!

London's Record Gates.

Chelsea followed the example of the Arsenal in providing the biggest gate, the Stamford Bridge return being about 50,000.

Lady Owner Successful.

Lady Gertrude Decies, the owner of Jameson, who upset the odds laid on Clondir in the Shipley Hall Selling Plate at Derby is a sister to Sir John Willoughby.

Prep's Ear ings.

Prep is another instance of a horse bought for a mere song nearning his owner quite a lot of money. Purchased for 70gs., the five-year-old has only run four times, this season, and been three times second.

"Dicky" Yorke makes good.

"Dicky" Yorke is one of the best of the Aston Villa recruits. So far he has figured at right-half, but it was as an outside-right that he made his name, while Wallace, the former Crystal Palace spry winger, served King and country. Yorke helped Chelsea in war-time football.

In Full Swing.

Amateur football will be in full swing this week-end, and most of the principal leagues have arranged a full card.

Topic of Discussion.

Naturally the most prominent topic of discussion at Derby was the drastic decision of the stewards of the Jockey Club in the "King Sol case," as it will henceforward be known.

Pens for Spectators.

It appears that the problem of making provision for the vast crowds who desire to see first-class football will have to be tackled on the lines so successfully adopted at the famous Hampden Park enclosure. Here a system of pens is adopted.

K. Robertson's Chance.

K. Robertson is likely to get plenty of riding now that the nursery season has come round. The lad can go to scale at a very light weight, and he may be said to have ridden quite a good race on Heir-at-Law at Derby.

Police Aquatics.

The 440yds. police swimming championship of the United Kingdom was decided at Barrowell Green Baths, Winchmore Hill, yesterday. There were only four starters, and F. P. Giles, of the City Police, easily secured the honours in 6min. 15¾sec.

Weight and Speed.

Sunderland claim that their forward line is the heaviest and fastest one playing in League football.

Latest Scratchings.

Latest scratchings include Japool from the St. Leger and Silver Bridge from the Prince Edward Handicap at Manchester.

Cheap Popularity.

Cheap Popularity, who will be ridden by Ledson in the St. Leger, is finding favour with backers as a likely outsider for the last of the season's classics.

Diadem Coughing.

Diadem is coughing and has done no regular work since returning from Ireland. When she retires to the stud it is believed that she will be covered by Stornoway.

A Good Investment.

Sir George Beaumont gave 300 guineas for Laugh about a couple of months ago, and the gelding has now won him five races in succession. Not at all a bad investment!

Wilde's American Trip.

Wilde will in all probability leave England about the middle of next month, though the date is not fixed. His return, however, is already decided upon, for his last contest will be a 12-round affair at New York on February 3.

St Leger Sweep.

In the Victory St. Leger sweepstake at Lille tickets to the value of £14,000 have been sold.

A Heavy Loss.

St. Albans City have lost eight leading players in the war, but are hopeful of building up a good team from local talent.

A Promising Amateur.

Captain A. Boyd is quite an acquisition to the ranks of amateur riders, as his judgment is sound, and he can do quite a nice weight—about 9st.

Archibald says "Certainly Not."

The feature of the Southern League match at Exeter with Reading was the brilliant keeping of the Biscuiters' goalie, Archibald, who refused to give the City forwards best.

A Low-Priced Winner.

Considering the huge prices that are paid for moderate-class winners, Jack Sheppard changed hands for an insignificant sum after the Castle Handicap at Lewes.

Well Protected.

The Doncaster Watch Committee proposes to engage 350 extra police, 21 detectives, and a number of mounted police to control the race crowds in connection with the Doncaster September meeting.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Then And Now.

"Just think. For five months I lived in Ypres for nothing and now I am called upon to pay £10 to get there," said an officer the other day as he boarded a car at Ostend bound for that stricken town of the salient. But did not the recruiting posters read "Join the Army and see the world at the Government's expense?" Verily time brings about many changes, while war has created the profiteer.

Overheard.

Some of our go-ahead American Allies evidently do not believe in spending time and money on works of art for Art's sake, as the following incident will show. Some days ago an American officer and lady companion were sight-seeing in Cologne. They were paying a visit to the Dom and going up the steps in front were evidently discussing the beautiful carving around the main entrance when the lady was heard to say "But surely nothing that is beautiful can be a waste of time." We will leave the reader to surmise what his remark must have been.

Much In Vogue.

The strange thing about it all is that it now seems to be accepted as the normal, the art of the age, and both Government and Socialistic and even the Spartacist literature and posters are designed along these lines by the most famous—or notorious—modern school artist. The psychological point of interest here is that it should be employed in appealing to the very lowest classes of the people and to assist a cause amongst people who make no pretentions to understanding the higher flights of art. One would imagine that it would only bring ridicule on the cause as it would certainly be thought such people would ridicule their eccentrice artistic atrocities.

Cologne in the Roman Days.

Apropos of a recent inquiry in our columns, the meaning of the inscription on one of the paving stones near the cathedral of course is: "Here stood the Roman North Tower." The spot marks the site of the northernmost of the sixteen towers in the old Roman wall. The tower which stood at the Northwest corner still exists, an interesting object, in Friesenstrasse, while a portion of the orignal wall can be seen near by in the Burgmauer. It is interesting to note that the main street or way of Roman Cologne coincided approximately with the present Hohestrasse with a portal at one end in the Northern wall where the Domplatz is now, while at its other end was the Southern gate as the Hohepforte. The main Eastern gate faced the bridge built by Julius Caesar across the Rhine, not far from the present suspension bridge.

A Lonely Grave.

Ten miles across the Rhine the traveller runs into the little wayside station, Wahn, where an electric train awaits him and a run of ten minutes brings him to Wahn Barracks. Turning along the broad road to the left, with a beautiful avenue of trees on either side, you reach a prisoner of war camp. Up one of the roads to the right, there is a little cemetery, which contains the remains of a goodly number of Russians, but in the corner is one plain cross. On it, written in pencil, we read the name Geo. Reeves, 2nd/6th S. Staff Rgt., Died 16. 11. 18. It will be observed that this is just five days after the Armistice was signed— a patnetic circumstance in itself.

Made It Possible.

Happily through the good offices of the Soldier's Christian Association a memorial is to be erected at the grave. On Victory Day, a large wreath was bought and hung over the cross. The card which was attached bore the simple, yet sweet words, "In memory of one who died, to make Victory Day possible." When the wreath was being taken out some officers who travelled with the workers of the Association remarked upon it. The story was told, and a thought was expressed that it would be nice to put up something more permanent. It was felt that many of the rank and file of the Battalions, then in camp, would like to share in it. And so a list was opened at the Y.M.C.A., Wahn. The men of the Bedfords responded heartily, and soon a sum of nearly 100 Marks was raised. The design has been chosen and soon it is hoped this permanent memorial to one of Britain's sons will be placed in position there.

Re-echoes.

Another correspondent says that No. 15 C.C.S. is now at Rintz, No 1 Area. Which is correct?

To-day a large crowd is expected to witness the final for the "Cologne Post" Cricket Cup. The match will start at Lindenthal at 10.30 hours.

An ex German officer, who has had officers and men of many regiments billetted under his roof since December last, was heard yesterday deploring the fact that the troops were leaving his township, not many miles from the Rhine.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's prizes have been awarded to: Pte. L. Wilson, M.T., R.A.S.C., c/o Inter-Allied Railway Sub. Commission Cologne, and Corporal M. Nerney, c/o A.D. Roads, Rhine Army.

OPINIONS OF THE MOMENT.

REAL LABOUR LEADERS.

Mr. G. N. Barnes, the Labour leader, has been speaking of the new types of Labour leaders — some of whom have been educated at universities. He said: "Some Labour leaders who have been to Oxford or Cambridge think themselves superior persons, and pose as guides, philosophers, and friends to people who have often got more sense than the guides and philosophers themselves. This is having a bad effect on simpleminded workers. A workshop is getting quite a different place from what it used to be. I believe the best time of my life was spent in a workshop, and the greatest satisfaction was in the job being well done."

NO CHEAP FOOD THIS WINTER.

Mr. C. A. McCurdy, M.P., Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food, disposes of the hope of cheaper food in the near future. He says:—Under the present vicious system the wage earner, by threats of strike or industrial disturbance, gets his ten shillings and goes out into a market expecting to get something in return for his extra money. But the only effect of the new and increased demand for these commodities is to put up the price, and so the workman, in spite of his increased wages, finds himself no better off than he was before. There is only one way out of our present troubles, and that is to increase the world's stocks of all essential commodities; and that can only be done by work.

MR. GATTIE'S TUBE SCHEME.

Mr. A.W.Gattie, who is against Government interference in his great traffic scheme, says:—I would like to see the railways under triple control—the shareholder, the railwayman, and the trader being fully represented. There will be fourteen clearing houses and the radius of influence of the London clearing house would be, as far as Portsmouth, Dover, Harwich, Bedford, and Oxford. None of the present carriers, will be allowed to run into my clearing house, because I propose to have 5,000 lorries for dealing with the traffic, and the carriers will in consequence, die a natural death. I should like a special Bill, because I have got to pull down seventeen streets and build three tubes. My ambition is to have the system extended all over the civilised world, and to have it cover railways, docks, harbours, and canals.

DRAMA FOR THE MASSES.

Miss Ellen Terry says:—The theatre is not such an important element in our life as it should be. That is partly because of the hostility to the playhouse which is one of our legacies from the puritan, a hostility the strength of which is underestimated by the theatrical world, because of the tendency to separate the drama from the theatre in the education of the young. It seems to me that we talk too much about the reform of the theatre, and too little about the reform of the audiences, and the creation of more and more audiences until you have a whole people running the theatre for themselves.

Miss Mary Lester writing on the place of woman in everyday life says: Thousands of women to-day think they are inferior to man. They are, simply because they have not had the chance in life. Let us raise women to their true standard; then men's lives and theirs may be "setting the pace" to lives we know little about. We want less timidity and more real thought-born speech from each sex, with equality for effort and intellect, which will mark the downfall of a great deal of cant. The great art in life should be to have as many pleasant thoughts as possible in the homes of England, which would mean a finer nation and one much more noble than when Woman was thought inferior to man.

LIFE WITHOUT A DRINK.

Mr. Frank Hillier writing from New York on the results of the Pussyfoot campaign says:—Prohibition cannot be enforced. That is what its opponents say, and judging by the number of people who have made arrangements to manufacture their own liquor there would seem to be something in the argument. Nearly everyone has one or more recipes for making not only wines but also spirits. In clubs you can see men "swopping" them; many people think that the best turn you can do a friend is to pass on some secret to which you have been admitted for the compounding of something "with a good kick in it." A man drew me into a corner yesterday and confided to me a process he had discovered by which, with the aid of a tin kettle, a pound of brown sugar, and a few feet of tubing, plus a few other adjuncts, he could produce a sort of rum of wonderful virtue.

SCIENCE v. RELIGION.

AN INTRODUCTION.

Of late years there has been a popular craze for the study of science chiefly, on account of the wonderful progress which has been made in that direction in manufacture, in labour-saving devices, wireless etc.

Photography has helped to give a smattering of very elementary science, Nature study in schools, cheap books written in popular language, the frequent references to chemical, electrical, and physical discoveries in the papers, all have advanced the knowledge of the man in the street.

It is very common to find in any debating society, arguments backed up by this popular science. It is very convincing to the shallow minded to near some fact, or what was thought to be a fact by our forefathers, shown to be a myth by some shallow semi-scientific statement backed up by a quotation from some sixpenny handbook on one of the many branches of science.

In Religion, discussions far and away the most popular subjects are those dealing with the wife of Cain, the Creation, the Flood, and the miracles of the old Testament.

Many are the curious statements made to attempt to prove that the old Testament is a tangle of distorted fairy tales made up to mislead the young and uneducated.

Geology is used as a great argument to prove that the statements in the first chapters of Genesis are misleading. The curious dates of Ussher in the margins of some of our Bibles cause distrust, and even alarm to the thoughtful man and woman of to-day, who require a robust Religion for every day life and are not going to accept any old statement without applying their God-given reasoning powers to it.

A little learning is a dangerous thing. To read a small article on geology seems to be sufficient to overthrow the faith of many. This should not be.

Undoubtedly Religion and Science have for many generations past seemed antagonistic, only of late has it come to be seen that the opposition is not real. Truth can only bear witness to the Supreme Truth whether it be found in realms of Religion or of Science.

We live in this wonderful universe as men blind and deaf. We can only see some of the manifestations of light, but there are lights we cannot see, yet which can be recorded.

So with sounds we are limited to a very small range, yet there are sounds we cannot hear. We are learning some of the powers of Nature, yet there are powers we cannot even dream of. Our world is three dimensional yet worlds of four and even more dimensions are mathematically possible.

We live in a world of spiritual unknown powers, sights and sounds and from our limited knowledge are not capable of grasping them and using them.

The Bible will teach us spiritual truths, science will teach us scientific truths. If they are truths they will not clash — they will blend. As a broken bottle in the morning sun reflects different rays from each surface so yet from the same sourse of light, so will Science and Religion each reflect some different aspect of Truth.

The man who merely dabbles in either Religion or Science will from the very nature of things become bigoted. The man who seriously studies the subject will not be alarmed at seeming inconsistencies, realising that "Truth" cannot lie, and that as one climbs higher and higher in the realms of truth, even parallel lines will meet.

"They shall go from strength to strength."

"When I was a child I thought as a child."

The perfection of Truth will only be found in the source of truth and it is the aim of Religion and of Science to find that source.

MULTIPLY PRODUCTION.

Mr. Hoover, the American Food Controller, in an analysis of the economic situation of Europe, says: "Unless productivity can be rapidly increased there can be nothing but political, moral, and economic chaos, finally interpreting itself in loss of life on a scale hitherto undreamed of. No economic policy will bring food to those stomachs or fuel to those hearths that does not secure the maximum production. There is no use of tears over rising prices; they are to a great degree a visualisation of insufficient production."

NATIONALIZE COAL.

Mr. H. Stanley Jevons, formerly Professor of Economics, Cardiff, and author of "The British Coal Trade" writing under this head says:—The situation in the coal-mining industry is such as to demand some drastic treatment, and it is quite evident that the country will have to find some solution which is satisfactory to the miners, who firmly believe that their conditions of work and of life can be bettered only by abolishing private ownership. From the national point of view, having regard to the feeling of the miners, the correct policy is to eliminate the distribution of profits to private capitalists altogether, and so to arrange the organisation that whatever profits are earned will be distributed to the various workers in the industry, from the lowest grades, like surface labourers and hauliers through hewers and officials, up to the managers. All must have their share of profits at the end of each year.

THE LION LEADS in CURING

Trade Mark — Established 1847

During the strenuous times of the past few years

Burgess' Lion Ointment

has more than maintained its reputation: it has gained increased commendation for its marvellous efficacy in removing pieces of shrapnel, splinters of bone, etc., from old wounds, healing them permanently from underneath.

Nature will always assert itself

It is useless healing a wound until it is thoroughly cleansed; it must break out again worse than before. The great success of

is that it will not heal till it has thoroughly cleared away all morbid matter. There is no danger to life in curing a bad leg by this remedy, as it does not throw back humour into the system. It cures without lancing or cutting, bringing all disease to the surface and healing from underneath in all cases of Ulcers, Abscesses, Whitlows, Boils, Carbuncles, Fatty or Cystic Tumours, Piles, Fistula, Polypus, Poisoned Wounds, and all forms of Skin Disease, Eczema, Ringworm, etc.

Unequalled as a General Household Remedy for Cuts, Burns, Stings, &c.

Proof. At 59, Gray's Inn Road, E. BURGESS has a Museum of Extractions, consisting of Tumours, Polypi, and diseased Bone; also numerous Photographs of most serious cases, which have all been cured by the Lion Ointment. E. B. invites the fullest inquiry into each case published by him, and is confident that no other remedy can show a tithe of such results. Of Chemists 9d, 1/3, etc. per box; or a SAMPLE BOX post free 9d, from the proprietor—

INCREASED PENSIONS.

LIVING WAGE ASSURED TO DISABLED OTHER RANKS AND DEPENDANTS.

AUSTRIA WILL SIGN TREATY.

NEW PENSIONS.

SUBSTANTIAL INCREASES NOW IN FORCE.

The new Pension rates have been officially announced, the revised scale being retrospective as from Wednesday last. The new rates for totally disabled warrant officers and non-commissioned officers and their dependents or widows are as follows:

	New Weekly Rates.	Previous Rates with Bonus.
W.O., Cl. 1 (R.S.M., &c.)	60/-	51/-
N.C.O., Cl. 1 (C.S.M.,&c.)	53/4	45/-
„ Cl. 2 (C.Q.M.S.&c.)	50/-	42/-
„ Cl. 3 (Sgt., &c.)	46/8	39/-
„ Cl. 4 (Cpl., &c.)	43/4	36/-

ALLOWANCES FOR WIFE AND CHILDREN:—

Wife	10/-	none.
1st child	7/- (10/- if no wife).	8/-
2nd child	6/- (7/6 if no wife).	6/-
Each other child	6/-	5/-

The allowance for the man's wife will be granted only where the marriage took place before the receipt of the wound or injury, or before the man's removal from duty on account of the disease for which pension was awarded.

Rates (for man, wife, and children) in cases of partial disablement will be proportionately lower.

WIDOWS' PENSIONS.

A widow pensioned under Article 11 of the Royal Warrant will receive, while she is under 40 and without children, one half of the pension which might have been awarded to her husband if totally disabled, and, when 40 or over, or when she has children, two-thirds of such pension.

Alternative pensions for widows (under 40 and without children) of the above ranks, and privates or men or corresponding rank will be one-half of the husband's pre-war earnings, increased by 60 per cent., subject to a maximum of 50s. Where the widow is 40 or over, or has children, it will be two-thirds of the husband's pre-war earnings, similarly increased, up to 66s. 8d.

The new rates will continue for at least three years, and will be subject to re-adjustment later, according to the cost of living, but will not be lowered more than 20 per cent. or made less than the previous rates, including bonus.

QUIEN TO DIE.

RECOMMENDATION FOR MERCY.

Quien, the ex-convict, who has been described as the betrayer of Edith Cavell to the Germans, who was sentenced to death on Friday was found guilty of intelligence with the enemy and swindling. Four of the seven court-martial judges voted for the death penalty, three for a lesser sentence.

Quien remarked: "I can only repeat that I am an innocent man."

Six of the seven judges signed a recommendation for mercy drawn up by Maitre Darmon, Quien's counsel. Miss Cavell's name was not mentioned in the verdict.

Maître Darmon, in his defence, invoked the Mayer confession put in at the eleventh hour by the prosecution to prove that Quien had nothing to do with the denunciation of Nurse Cavell. "If he was really guilty of intellgence with the enemy," said counsel," then he would certainly have betrayed the Cavell organisation. He would naturally have betrayed all those with whom he came in contact."

THE MAYER CONFESSION.

Otto Mayer, the German secret agent mentioned above, who arrested Miss Cavell, had a very remarkable career. Before the war he was variously a waiter in England, a soldier in the German Army, an employee of a British firm at Zanzibar, a courier for Messrs. Cook's tours, a courier at Delhi Durbar with Lord Iveagh and in Russia with Colonel House. During the war he was intelligence officer at Strasbourg and a secret police agent at Brussels.

Lieuts. Bergen and Pinkhoff, of the German secret police, says Mayer, were the moving forces in the case against Miss Cavell. They regarded it as the great chance of their careers. Quien had nothing to do with the case; he passed under the alias of Luc. The evidence on which Miss Cavell was condemned was taken from the papers of the architect Baucq, her chief helper.

EX-CROWN PRINCESS VISITS HER HUSBAND.

The ex-Crown Princess of Germany, with two of her sons, passed through Amsterdam on Saturday on the way to Wieringen to visit her husband. The public were excluded from the platform and there were no officials to greet her. The party will probably stay a week at Wieringen.

ALLIES FIRM.

GERMANY'S REPLY TO THE ULTIMATUM.

The text of Germany's reply to the Allies ultimatum was received at the office of the Conference on Saturday. According to information from a reliable source it is not couched in such conciliatory terms as unofficial reports have stated. The Note, it is now said, endeavours to raise difficulties regarding the interpretation of the Treaty and aims at maintaining an open door for the inclusion of Austrian representatives in the German Constitution. It is certain, however, that the Supreme Council will under no conditions consent to any concession.

Article 61 of the German Constitution provides for the admission of Austrian delegates to the German Parliament foreshadowing a future fusion of Germany and Austria. Article 80 of the Peace Treaty specifically forbids this. The Allies have given the Germans 15 days to cancel the second paragraph of Article 61.

AUSTRIA WILL SIGN UNDER PROTEST.

The Austrian National Assembly, after a long debate, decided by ninety-seven votes to twenty-three to authorise the signature of the Peace Treaty. At the same time the Assembly unanimously adopted a strong resolution of protest against what they term the Allies violation of German-Austria's "right" to decide upon the question of union with Germany.

WORLD UNREST.

U.S. DELAY LARGELY RESPONSIBLE.

Mr. Thomas Lamont, of the firm of Messrs. Pierpont Morgan and Sons, has issued a statement in which he declares that he has become greatly disturbed by the continued uncertainty and delay in ratification of the Peace Treaty by the United States, a delay which in his judgment is already responsible for having rendered social and industrial conditions in Europe and America, distinctly worse.

Since it became evident to the world of commerce that the action of the Senate might nullify the Treaty there has been an alarming fall in the rates of foreign exchange for which no remedy can be applied so long as the delay continues at Washington. If America insists on sending the Treaty back with changes and reservations, declares Mr. Lamont, it will spell a renewal of Bolshevist efforts throughout Europe, spreading, as is already in evidence, to America.

MORE RUMANIAN HITCHES.

The "Temps" understands that yesterday the Rumanian delegation handed a Note to the Supreme Council, giving reasons why the Rumanian Government finds that it cannot consent to the signing of the Austrian Treaty. The refusal is stated to be due to Rumania's dissatisfaction with the clause relating to the protection of minorities and to that which deprives her of the right to negotiate a commercial treaty and to fix certain railway tariffs.

CONDITION OF ARMY HORSES.

Statements, which will not bear investigation, have been made during the last few months to the effect that the military authorities have sold horses affected with contagious diseases, notably with mange and glanders. The Army, however, takes such care of its animals that more reliance can be placed on an Army horse than on one not bought from the Army. No animal known to be subject to skin disease is ever sold.

CRUCIFIED BY BOLSHEVISTS.

During a Baltic action off Krasnaya Gorka in June Lieut. Moiseieff, commander of a Bolshevist minesweeper, brought his vessel over to the Whites under hot fire, casting the Red flag overboard and hoisting the Cross of St. Andrew. Later Moisieff commanded a company of 100 revolted Red sailors on the Russian front. The party was ambushed, and only 10 returned alive.

Two midshipmen searched for Moiseieff's body and discovered it in a village churchyard. He had been crucified, his epaulettes being nailed to his shoulders and his hat badge nailed to his head.

PROUD VILLAGE RECORD.

A handsome memorial has been presented to the Kentish village of Knowlton for having sent a larger proportion of its inhabitants to the colours than any other village in England. The memorial was unveiled on Saturday by Earl Stanhope.

HAPPY IRELAND.

PROSPERITY CREATES HOPE FOR THE FUTURE.

Irish agitators are fond of talking about the sorrows of Ireland, but journeying through the country it is very hard to find signs of sorrow. Everything points to tremendous prosperity. A trip to Cork, Killarney and the surrounding districts reveals glowing scenes of agricultural success. Strikes impede the harvesting in places but though corn is over-ripe here and there, it is being saved. The administration of Government grants for labourers cottages, with the co-operation of the priests, has worked wonders and where one used once to see broken windows stuffed with bagging or straw and half thatched roofs there are now prim and clean homes. In the county of Cork the wealth of the people is unprecedented. There is abundance of employment and the workhouses are so depopulated that some of them are actually closed.

Money has been plentiful and it is estimated that there is £131,000,000 belonging to Irish people in Irish banks. That is absolute evidence of a plethora hitherto unknown in Ireland. Other evidence lies in the number of motorcars owned by men who not many years ago were struggling with little farms. Such is Ireland after the war. Its wealth and prosperity must have a steadying effect on the political situation and from that thought there emerges much hope for the future. The people have proved their business capacity and in the blending of business capacity with national aspiration there may be found the solution of many difficulties.

DECEPTIVE FISHING SMACK.

Speaking in Leeds, Admiral Sir Henry Jackson said many things had happened in the war that the public never knew of and never would know. There were records of men who had been torpedoed five and six times. One man had a record of seven, and he wanted another ship. The admiral told how some fishermen took a part in the war on their own account. The vessel was only a sailing smack, and they asked for a gun. A gun was mounted and concealed in the hold, to be raised when necessary. The ship had no motor or auxiliary power, and depended entirely upon its sailing. It went in the usual manner to the fishing grounds and waited. Then a calm came, and a German submarine appeared and commenced to destroy the fleet ship by ship. The crew of the smack waited until the submarine came alongside to investigate her, then a whistle blew on board the smack, the bulwarks fell away, and the gun appeared. One shot was sufficient to finish the submarine. That was done by a sailing vessel. A battleship of 25,000 tons, steaming 25 knots an hour, could not have done more.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MARNE.

M. Noulens, the French Minister of Agriculture, accompanied by General Pau, represented the French Government at the solemn ceremonies held at Meaux on Sunday in celebration of the fifth anniversary of the first battle of the Marne. In the morning high Mass was celebrated at the cathedral by the Archbishop of Rheims, the sermon being preached by the Bishop of Verdun. Pilgrimage was made in the afternoon to several famous villages associated with the battle, speeches being delivered before the graves of fallen soldiers.

FORTHCOMING TRIALS.

The calendar for the Old Bailey, which opens to-day, contains fully 160 prisoners, the largest figure for several years. It includes four murder charges, the Hendon wineshop case, the Prah-road case of Lucy Nightingale and two others at Stratford and Lewes. The manslaughter charge in respect of Connie Gram (the skeleton mystery) and the baby-farming case at Stratford are also on the list.

FATAL CRASH IN DARKNESS.

Two members of the R.A.F., Lieutenant W. E Coulson and Engineer J. R. Taylor, belonging to No. 11 Squadron, were killed while flying near Billingworth, Lincolnshire on Saturday evening. The two machines were returning from overseas to the aerodrome between Sleaford and Lincoln but owing to darkness setting in the airmen decided to land. The first machine landed safely but the other, suddenly nosedived from a height of eighty feet and crashed, killing both the occupants. Many people witnessed the accident. At the subsequent inquest a verdict of accidental death was returned.

LONG DISTANCE CEREMONY.

H. M., the King, by pressing an electric button in his sitting room at Balmoral Castle on Saturday, unveiled the memorial to Sir George Etienne Cartier in Mount Royal Park, Montreal.

MINED IN THE BALTIC.

The Admiralty announces that H. M. S. Verulam struck a mine in the Baltic on the night of September 3rd and sank. Sixteen officers and crew are reported as missing.

M. Caillaux has asked to be transferred from prison to a hospital.

UNHAPPY IRELAND.

SINN FEIN MURDER AT CHURCH DOOR.

At Fermoy, County Cork, on Sunday morning, one soldier was killed and two others dangerously wounded in an attack made by Sinn Feiners. A church parade of eighteen men of the Shropshire Light Infantry were being marched to divine service. They ere carrying their rifles and had just reached the church door when a party of thirty men drove up in motor cars, surrounded the soldiers, and opened revolver fire with results as above stated. Wresting several rifles from the soldiers the party escaped in the cars. Military and police started in pursuit but found the road blocked by tree trunks. An aeroplane also took up the search but so far no arrests have been made.

CIVIC RECEPTIONS TO TROOPS.

In reference to Civic receptions the War Office states that, having regard to the fact that certain units are now returning to the United Kingdom intact and not as Cadres, it has been decided that in these latter cases, Units will on disembarkation be sent direct to the stations to which they are allocated.

In the case of any particular Unit, for which application has already been received by the War Office for a Civic reception, the G.O.C., into whose Command it finally passes after arrival from overseas, will communicate with the individual or authority who is desirous of according it a reception, and make all arrangements with the latter as to the date and numbers required for the reception. If the reception is to take place in a Command other than that in which the unit is stationed, these arrangements should be made in conjunction with that Command.

The numbers proceeding for civic receptions from any one Unit may not exceed one Company or its equivalent, nor will any expense in connection with these receptions fall on public funds, with the exception of the cost of travelling and the provision of accommodation in barracks or hutments.

INTERNAL AFFAIRS OF HUNGARY.

Strong rumours are current at Budapesth that the Entente Powers, in order to ensure stabilization of the situation in Hungary, intend to proclaim a British Dictature, with General Gordon as Dictator, assisted by a Council of five.

It is also reported that troops are being mobilized in German West Hungary to prevent Austrian occupation of those districts of Hungary ceded to Austria by the Peace Treaty.

VICTORY MEDAL RIBAND.

The War Office announces that the riband of the "Victory" Medal may now be worn by all ranks who are entitled to the award of the Medal. A preliminary issue of two inches of the riband will be made to each individual entitled to the Medal.

The Stars and Medals approved for service during the war and also their ribands will be worn in the following order:—1914 Star; 1914-15 Star; British War Medal; Mercantile Marine War Medal; Victory Medal.

"DIRECT ACTION" BALLOT POSTPONED.

There is to be no immediate ballot on "direct action", and the questions involved are to be postponed until after the forthcoming meeting of the Trades Union Congress. Such is the decision of the Triple Industrial Alliance. "Direct action", it will be remembered, aims at securing the abolition of conscription and the discontinuance of military intervention in Russia and in trade Union disputes at home.

The decision is welcomed by the moderate and predominant element of Labour.

KILL THE RATS.

The Board of Agriculture yesterday issued a leaflet suggesting that, with a view to inaugurating an effective campaign against rats before the winter sets in, "a rat week" should be arranged by every local authority. The week, October 20-27, is suggested as most suitable.

It is proposed that village committees should voluntarily undertake to lay bait and arrange trapping and ferreting, prizes being awarded for the largest number of rats destroyed within a given area.

A WONDERFUL ENGINE.

Dating from 1776, the earliest pumping engine made for sale by Boulton and Watt, which is preserved near Wednesbury, has been given a trial under steam this week in preparation for the Watt centenary celebration at Birmingham. Designed for 13 strokes to the minute, the engine, which was for more than a century in continuous use, maintained 16 strokes to the minute at this week's trial.

For several months to come Germany will send daily six trainloads of German coal to France.

TWO NEW V.C'S.

GALLANT EXPLOIT FIVE YEARS AGO.

The Victoria Cross has been awarded to Lieut. Allan Ebenezer Ker, 3rd Batt. Gordon Highlanders, and to the late Lieut. William Arthur M'Crae Bruce, 59th Scinde Rifles, Indian Army.

When on March 21, 1918, the enemy penetrated our line near St. Quentin and the flank of the 61st Division became exposed, Lieut. Ker, with a Vickers gun, held back for three hours more than 500 of the enemy. He sent back word to his battalion headquarters that he had determined to remain with his sergeant and several badly wounded men and fight until relieved. Just as ammunition failed, his party was attacked from behind with bombs, machine guns, and bayonets. Several bayonet attacks were repulsed with revolvers, the Vickers gun having been destroyed. The wounded were collected into a small shelter. Lieutenant Ker refused to surrender until his position was rushed by large numbers.

The posthumous award of the V.C. to Lieut. Bruce is for conspicuous bravery on December 19, 1914. He was in command of a small party which captured an enemy trench near Givenchy, and, although wounded in the neck, walked up and down encouraging the men to hold on until he was killed.

LORD BERESFORD DEAD.

POPULAR FIGHTING ADMIRAL.

The death is announced of Lord Beresford. It occurred on Saturday while he was on a visit to the Duke of Portland at Berriedale Langwell, Caithness. The well-known peer left London on Tuesday last to spend a few days shooting on the Scottish moors. He was then apparently in fairly good health but it is known that he had been suffering from heart trouble a few months past.

Death was due to apoplexy.

Lord Beresford, a man of striking personality, was the son of the fourth Marquess of Waterford, and was seventy-three years of age. He had a distinguished career in the Navy. He was probably best known to the public for his gallant exploits as commander of the "Condor" during the bombardment of Alexandria in 1882 and of the Naval brigade during Lord Wolseley's Nile campaign in 1884-1885. Later he commanded the Mediterranean Fleet and the Channel Fleet. He retired in 1911. He had been M. P. for Woolwich and Portsmouth and was known as a vigorous champion of the Navy. He was the author of works on naval affairs.

GEPUSSYFUTZICHKEIT.

JOHN BARLEYCORN DEAD IN TWO PLACES.

A remarkable example of Prohibition oratory in the United States is afforded by a "funeral oration" delivered at Los Angeles, California, by Dr. C.E. Locke, in celebration of "the death of John Barleycorn":—

"For interminable ages wicked John Barleycorn has allured and tempted, and inveigled and deceived, and debauched and demented, and bestialized and demonized helpless human creatures," said Dr. Locke.

"He is a maligner, a conspirator, a liar, a thief and a robber, a despoiler of homes, a defiler of girlhood and womanhood, a dehumanizer of manhood, and a bloody-handed murderer. He has dragged holy motherhood through the mire and dashed sweet babyhood against the stones.

"And, John Barleycorn, you are dead! Deservedly dead! Dead in America! Dead in California! Dead in the land of the free and the home of the brave! You have been a long time alive, John, but now you are dead, and you will be a longer time dead!

"Let the funeral procession move hellward. Roll the whisky barrel down the steep descent to the lowest depths, and let the red-handed, blacknearted cortège follow their dead chieftain down into a reeking oblivion where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched."

Dead—and then some!

DEVONSHIRE HOUSE SOLD.

It is reported that the Duke of Devonshire has sold Devonshire House and grounds, his Piccadilly residence. The price is stated to exceed £1,000,000 and the purchasers are said to be a syndicate which purposes to erect there a huge hotel.

NOT BORN IN THE PURPLE.

Ex-Empress Zita of Austria gave birth to a son at Prangins on Saturday. She is now the mother of one daughter and five sons, four of whom have been born since the war began.

As the outcome of a conference held at Cologne, the British Government has arranged to repatriate 2,400 German prisoners daily at Cologne and 3000 weekly via Rotterdam.

President Poincaré has laid the foundation of a monument at the Pointe de Grave, near Bordeaux to commemorate the help of America in the great war.

BRITISH TOYS.

LITTLE TO FEAR FROM FOREIGN COMPETITION.

Addressing a deputation of British toy-makers Sir Auckland Geddes described the condition of German industry. He said that whatever temporary spurt of goods might come from Germany in the immediate future the trend of all information from Germany was that beyond a comparatively small amount there was not any accumulation of goods in Germany ready for export. German manufacturing costs were enormous. Just as the mark had fallen on foreign exchanges so its value had fallen and was still falling rapidly in Germany, and German costs on new production in terms of marks were rising very rapidly. Besides that important factor there was an enormously decreased output in Germany and he was not by any means sure that it was possible for Germany for months—possibly for years—to come seriously to compete even with the toy trade. Nevertheless, in case that estimate was wrong, the Government had reserved power to stop all or any imports into England where those imports might possibly prove overwhelmingly devastating.

Industry in Germany was very stagnant. They were short of raw material and they were pitifully short of coal. They were far worse off in that respect than Great Britain. If the British could get back something more of their old power of production in all departments, but more especially in coal, that they were going to get greatly improved production of coal he was sure — they had absolutely nothing to fear in trade competition. New needs would arise as the years went on but among the nations of the world to-day they were as well situated as any.—British Wireless Press.

"I HAVE SPOKEN."

WILSON PREDICTS U.S. RATIFICATION.

President Wilson has opened his tour of the United States to speak on the Peace Treaty. Speaking at Columbus (Ohio), he declared that his purpose was "to go out and report to my fellow-countrymen," which, he said, seemed increasingly necessary, because they had read many speeches about the Treaty, but were unable to gather from them much about what the Treaty contained. The Treaty undertook to punish Germany, but there was no thought of overwhelmingly crushing any great people.

He explained that the League of Nations was the only thing that could prevent catastrophic war. Referring to Italy's request for Fiume, he said that, although there were only scattered Italian settlements there, Italy wanted Fiume for strategic and military purposes. If there were a League of Nations Italy would not need that foothold. As an attempt to right the wrongs of Europe the Peace Treaty was a "measurable" success, measurable because the racial line was not always distinct, and could not be drawn with absolute precision on the map. The Peace Treaty contained the "Magna Charta of Labour," because it set up an international Labour organisation. This organisation would hold its first meeting in Washington in October, "whether the Treaty is ratified by them or not"—evidently referring to the recent criticisms of some Senators. The President predicted that, when the Treaty was accepted, American soldiers would never have to cross the seas again, adding: "And I say when it is accepted because it will be accepted."

SHOT BY FRENCH GIRL.

A French girl named Loeullet shot and killed a British soldier with a revolver, near Wimereux (British G.H.Q.). A private in the Royal Engineers, named Hammond, he had, she says, promised to marry her. But he was already married, and under the new order he brought his wife to France and was walking with her when the girl met him. After the crime she fainted, and was taken to hospital.

MEDAL FOR SPECIALS.

To mark the services rendered by Special Constables during the war, a silver medal is to be awarded. It will be styled the "Special Constabulary Medal."

The medal will be awarded to those who have served as "specials," without pay, for not less than three years, performing at least 150 police duties.

Names of those recommended for the medal are to be submitted to the Home Secretary by the chief officers of police.

The ribbon has one black and two white stripes on each side of a red centre.

A VIOLENT WORLD.

Violence in many forms is asserting itself in the world to-day. Not only in our own country but in all those affected by the war murders are painfully prevalent.

Ordinary strikes we are accustomed to, but often to-day these are assuming a certain ferocity in the violence of their demands which at times is very near to blackmailing a defenceless community. Then there is mob violence which breaks out frequently in disturbed unsettled Europe and has taken a virulent form in the United States as well.

The obvious suggestion is that we are sharing a form of blood-lust everywhere felt as an effect of the war. Violence, even where there is no personal antagonism, has become a commonplace. Instinctive distress at sight of wounds and blood is weakened. Common human feelings and normal relations have entirely changed for many. The validity of the restraints of morality or of conscience, or of early training, has been undermined, if not swept away, and the hold of religion has gone with it.

Recognizing this does not signify pessimism. It means facing a condition, seeking its cause, and asking how it is to be dealt with. It does not indicate that civilization has broken down, or that Christianity has proved a failure, either because of the fact of the war, or because of its effects, even though their scope may not yet be determined.

The present outlook is unquestionably bad. With all the talk of brotherhood and advocacy of world-wide fellowship, individual selfishness was never less restrained than it is in profiteering and the rush into extravagant expenditure; and class antagonism in its disregard of the rights of others was never less in check.

What then is to be done? In what direction and through what agencies are we to look for redress?

Force will not do. We have had our supreme lesson as to that in the career of Germany.

An upheaval of the social order to-day with a redistribution of wealth would accomplish nothing except disaster. Russia is now experiencing the first effect, the second will inevitably be a movement toward the re-establishment of society and of economic life in a form not widely distinct from that which prevails in civilized communities to-day.

The impulse to toil, to invent, to save, to compete, for the sake of possession has proved one of the most powerful as well as the most permanent of the impulses that have carried men forward and secured conditions of well-being.

Spiritual and social attainment has aimed at guiding this force, often inspiring but never destroying it, only for the hour arresting it where it had become overweening or injurious to the individual.

It is the height of folly, to advocate any form of reorganization which would diminish the incentive to individual effort or would reduce or impair its reward, or which would relegate to the State the ownership of all or the most important forms of property and give to it the immediate control of its distribution.

Such schemes are attractive as quick methods of dealing with existing evils and shortcuts to new conditions which shall be ideal, ignoring the truth which in every generation has to be relearned, that above all in the problems of human society quick methods and short-cuts are delusive and wasteful, where to be wasteful is to be destructive.

What is needed is to gather up and renew, out of the past and the things that are to be left behind, the forces which have given them their value.

There will be found to be truths that are eternal, the power for human and social reconstruction that inheres in the nobler traits of personal character, unselfishness, kindliness, honesty and honour, as between man and man; and these with patience and courage applied to the direction and the use of the instincts and desires planted in the hearts of men which will make possible the peace, the comfort, the joy and the faith that are elements of national happiness, as nothing else will.

DIET AND TRAINING.

Perhaps the most vexed question in athletic circles all over the world is what should one eat and drink in training?

It is, of course, an accepted fact that the art of training for any feat of an arduous nature consists of building up the body, while any physiologist will say that all the parts which compose the human frame, solids and liquids alike are successfully absorbed and deposited. It follows, therefore, that a perpetual renovation takes place regulated by the nature of the liquids and solids absorbed and by a healthy system of exercise.

Setting aside for one moment all ultra-special systems such as vegetarianism, the general and accepted rule among trainers is to let their charges eat what they like in moderation so long as the food is good and wholesome.

This is a fair indication of our general slackness in athletics, for surely it stands to reason that the heavy body building and muscle making food necessary to the hammer thrower and shot putter are not suited to the jumpers, sprinters, and hurdlers, nor will they do for the long distance runner, who requires stamina, with weight.

CLASSES OF ATHLETES.

Suppose we divide the athletic events into three classes:

A: Hammer throwers, and shotputters etc.; B: Jumpers, hurdlers and sprinters; C: Long distance runners.

Class A requires food which will give muscle and weight without diminishing the nervous energy or dulling the brain power.

Class B requires food which builds up certain muscles to stand a sudden strain without increasing weight; therefore all substances of fat producing nature must be carefully avoided and the nervous energy must be kept at a high pitch.

Class C requires the most nourishing food possible to create powers of great endurance, but which will not increase the weight unduly.

Modern trainers are mostly agreed that physic of a purgative nature should be given at the commencement of training and the stomach thereafter kept clean by regular habits. Regular meals, plenty of open air, and sleep are also necessary.

All food should be of the plainest and freshest and adapted to the atlete's taste; made dishes are to be seduously avoided; also stout, claret or burgundy are recommended as the liquors to be drunk.

On hour or more for rest is insisted upon after meals. For the teetotaller, milk or home brewed ginger beer is best.

Among other things which the modern coach recommends is mutton in preference to beef. Pork and veal are condemned; stews made from beer or mutton are said to be good for building up the vitality.

Poultry is considered good and oatmeal porridge is strongly advocated for building up the nervous forces. Butter, cheese, fish and potatoes are now considered indispensable to training. All milk puddings are, of course, excellent.

It is known that they feed athletes in training at the Varsity very well and keep their condition high. But then, the Varsity athlete is able to get in more training work than falls to the lot of the average business man.

METHODS OF FOOD REFORM.

At present there are about 20 different food-reform diets having nothing in common except the avoidance of meat. But whether the bases of a food reform diet is cheese, nuts, salad, or proprietary foods is a matter for the invidual to decide.

As a general rule, cyclists, walkers, and swimmers make eggs and cheese their chief bases. The great advantage of such a diet is that it does not necessitate the taking of regular exercise, and so is of incalculable value to the busy city man who cannot practise athletic for training regularly. It is also excellent for giving powers of endurance, if the diet is well-chosen.

Another thing about it is the avoidance of excessive bulk, and too great a varity of dishes at any one meal.

To see that there really is a sound foundation in these schemes of food-reform one has only to mention such men as Eustace Miles, himself a food-reformer for twenty years; Olley, the long distance cyclist; Karlmann, the winner of the 126 miles' walk from Dresden to Berlin in 26 hours, 52 mins., and Freddie Walsh, the holder of the World's Lightweight Championship.

Briefly summarized, the athlete's motto should be "Good plain food and plenty of it."

One most striking and most important fact, which stands out beyond dispute from a study of the subject, is that no athlete can do his best on the modern French cookery, which has become almost universal among the higher classes all over the world.

NONE OF US.

A reader from the start, he showed, apparently, the keenest interest in the Rhine Army's newspaper. Yet it must be admitted that, except for the sports page and the correspondence column, he expressed, but little appreciation of many interesting features of the "Post." For its articles and paragraphs of educational value, he cared nothing. But letters of complaint of canteen prices, cigarettes famines, race meeting anomalies, indeed communications on any complaint, real or imaginary, stirred him to the depths.

That German civilians, for example, should be allowed to "circulate" till 24.00 whilst he and his comrades had to "de-circulate" at 22.30 assumed in his grievance-warped mind the proportions of a rank injustice. Useless to remind him that the billeting of troops made this distinction necessary and in the interest of the men themselves, not all of whom are midnight birds.

Always was he on the point of exposing some "scandal," but the tongue seemed mightier than the pen. Hence, his did not figure among "Our Readers' Varied Views."

Only a few of us knew what readers of the "Post" lost through this paralysis of the pen from which he suffered. Thus, his threat to expose what he called "The Rissole Scandal" failed to materialise.

Twice in one week was this delectable dish served, lacking its accustomed heat, but, alas! although he did actually commence a letter headed "Cold Comfort," his ardour cooled even more rapidly than the temperature of the food-item which had inspired it.

But he was not always in an iconoclastic mood. Occasionally, he attempted the constructive. Thus, he came to us one day after cigarette issue, and mentioned his intention to write to "The Cologne Post."

"What; another grievance?" we enquired.

"No; not exactly a grievance," he responded. "It's about our cigarette issue."

Knowing that he was a non-smoker; we wondered what improvement he wanted there. He soon enlightened us.

"Why shouldn't non-smokers be credited with the value of the cigarettes in lieu of issue?" he enquired.

The suggestion was characteristic of its author who was as close as the recent weather. Although, as stated above, he was a reader of the "Post" from the start, never had he been known to purchase a copy. Instead, he put all of us who purchased the paper regularly, on a lending roster and borrowed from each in turn.

It was some little time before we became alive to his device for obtaining news on the cheap, but as soon as our eyes were opened, the word was passed round to spoke the wheel of this ultra-economist. The increase in the price of the paper afforded the desired opportunity. When, in due course, Coleman's turn on the roster arrived, he replied, with rigid countenance:

"Sorry old man — but I've given up taking the "Post" since it's gone up another 5 Pfennigs."

The "Post" has now another subscriber, and though he complains loudly of the increased price of the paper, this grievance, like his many other grievances will never be ventilated in its columns. After all 1.50 M. isn't a lot to pay weekly for a really keen collector of grouses.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY NIGHT.

How many readers, I wonder, who own cameras have ever tried experiments in this direction? Some no doubt, but to many it may open fresh fields to conquer, and will always provide amusement and satisfaction on those dull evenings when one gets stranded with nothing to do especially as the nights are gradually getting longer and the chances of photography by day are becoming more and more curtailed.

Besides this almost everything worth photographing, has been murdered, by the picture postcard monger, and may be purchased at 10 pgs. per card, while whatever the postcard merchant has missed, has been snapped by someone or other, armed with a camera, till one feels that there is little score for originality left. Surely then anything which gives room for individuality is worth a trial.

Most of the streets and squares are illuminated by arc lamps so that anyone in possession of a camera, with an aperture of F 8 can obtain very interesting and original pictures by taking advantage of this fact.

My first attempt at this kind of work, was perfectly successful. Of course a backed plate is essential or films, may be used, since they possess the same advantages as a backed plate, and will give results almost equal in quality.

Exposures will be found to vary considerably from five minutes to an hour according to the amount of light on the subject, and the number of strong lights near the camera.

The widest aperture of the lens should be used. My own camera only works at F 11, but I can get a wider aperture by opening the diaphram to its full extent thus enabling the whole lens to be used. Those who are fortunate enough to be in possession of cameras working at F 6.8 or 4.5 will score as exposure will be considerably reduced.

I may mention that moving objects before the camera during exposure will not appear on the negative as they are not in one place long enough. One has to guard against motor cars with bright headlights coming towards the camera. In this case it is only necessary to close the shutter till the car has passed when the exposure may be continued so that street views may be taken irrespective of the number of people about.

Of course where groups take up a position near the camera, and stand for any time, they will always move on at the request of the camera man.

Having once secured a picture of this sort, one has the satisfaction of knowing that he has something which possibly no one else has and it also provides a wide field of possibilities to the camera enthusiasts, which will ensure amusement during the long winter evenings when they come. V.H.M.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Reader's Varied Views.

"VANITY FAIR."

Sir,—"Mere Man" is just the kind of person who would concede nothing to the other sex if he were given a chance.

Thank goodness, there is more sound sense in those who rule the destinies of the Services. They recognised quite early in the war the value of women as auxiliaries to the fighting forces and they know now that they made no mistake.

Besides their useful work women have had a refining influence on the Service which cannot help being beneficial.

There are a considerable number now in Rhineland and to give them at least a corner in "The Cologne Post" is I think nothing more than their due.

OFFICER'S WIFE.

COUNTING BY TENS.

Sir,—You had a very sensible leading article the other day on the decimal system. It is, as you say, lamentable that our awkward way of reckoning cannot be abolished without further talk.

I remember it was just the same with the Daylight Saving Scheme of the late Mr. Willett. People argued for years as to its disadvantages and even its impossibility. Then suddenly war came. The plan was put into operation and, hey presto! everybody fell into the new way with scarcely a murmur. Within a week it came perfectly natural to us all and folk said "Why didn't we do it years ago?" It would be just the same with the decimal system. What we want in Britain is less talk and more decisive action. B.R.V.

THE MUZZLING OF DOGS.

Sir,—I have little sympathy with those sentimental people who whine about the muzzling of their dogs.

I would go further than muzzling. Every dog I think should be forbidden to go out in the streets at all. They ought to be kept in their rightful place, which is the back yard, with a chain.

They are a nuisance anywhere else, and a danger. As a cyclist, I have had two nasty accidents by being brought over by dogs. I say, shoot half of them and muzzle and keep in strict confinement the rest. NOT A DOG LOVER.

ADVERTISEMENTS MISSING.

Sir,—"Anti-Ad" says he would wager nine people out of ten are grateful for the absence of advertisements in Cologne trams, but I disagree with him.

I would like to give an instance. Proceeding on leave a few weeks ago, we were just landing at Folkestone and a traveling companion said to me: Isn't it grand to see the good old adverts p'acarded about? It makes you realize more than ever that you are at home, and I quite agreed with him.

On arrival in London it does one's eyes good to see the gaily placarded buses and trams plying about with their advertisements for for all and sundry to note. In my idea I would not like our omnibuses and trams stripped of their gaily coloured advertisements: they help to make the world look a little brighter and I really don't see anything hideous about them. C.B.S.

WHY NO BRASSARD?

Sir,—I also agree with "Brassard" that, the wearing of the same by the wives of officers and other ranks should be compulsory, if they are in possession of one. A short time ago, I was speaking to the wife of an officer and during the conversation I introduced the subject; judge my surprise when I was told by the lady that not only had she never received a "Brassard" but did not know what they were. Possibly it is the same with other wives. J.W.H.

THE TEN O'CLOCK RULE.

Sir,—May I be permitted to endorse the enquiry and complaint made by "Lieut.-Colonel" in your issue of to-day's date.

It is indeed humiliating to be turned out of cafés and cabarets at 10 o'clock when the Germans are allowed to remain. "Other ranks" feel it too, and if anything can be done to adjust what appears to be a just grievance, we should all be grateful. H. W.

TAXI-FARES.

Sir,—Some time ago you published an order to the effect that one had to pay four times the amount registered on the meter (extras not included in the increase). Could you, or one of your readers inform me of the scale of charges which the meter ought to register; e.g. 1 Mark a kilometer for two persons, or whatever it may be?

One ought to know this as occasionally one is informed the metre is broken and some "privateowners" have cabs without meters. On two recent occasions I protested in my best German that the meter was not registering, and as the driver replied in what was presumably "echt Kölsch" of which I could understand little or nothing, I was left absolutely at his mercy. A.B.

ENGLAND, MY ENGLAND.

What have I done for you,
England, my England?
What is there I would not do,
England, my own?
With your glorious eyes austere,
As the Lord were walking near,
Whispering terrible things and dear
As the Song on your bugles blown,
England—
Round the world on your bugles blown!

Where shall the watchful sun,
England, my England,
Match the master-work you've done,
England, my own?
When shall he rejoice agen
Such a breed of mighty men
As come forward, one to one,
To the Song on your bugles blown,
England—
Down the years on your bugles blown!

WILLIAM ERNEST HENLEY.

A GREAT GAME.

C.P.C. Final Produces Sparkling Cricket at Lindenthal.

A great game! That was the unaminous verdict of the big crowd which congregated at the Stadtwald, Lindenthal, on Sunday to witness the final of the "Cologne Post" Cricket Cup Competition. The most sanguine hopes were more than realised and the highest expectations surpassed, the game being the greatest match seen in the Rhineland.

Every factor contributed to the success of the event. The weather was perfect, the wicket good, and there was scarcely a dull moment, whereas at times excitement ran very high, no ably when the R.G.A. collapsed and when the Lancers were nearing the required score to win. Both teams were well supported and applause was very generous, the spectators freely showing their appreciation of the fine display. The finalists were the 17th Lancers and the 93rd Bde R.G A., both teams having excellent records in the competition. The gunners were unbeaten when they took the field on Sunday and the Lancers had only once been overcome when they were unable to turn out their usual side; so that on paper there was little to choose between the two teams and the element of uncertainty, always present in cricket, was even greater than usual. The Gunners had a slightly more imposing record, their scores in most matches having been very high and their wins more decisive. But if they started favourites it was only by a very slight margin, the worth of the Lancers eleven being well known. The result was a win for the 17th Lancers by five wickets, but the victory was by no means as decisive as the score suggests.

In reality the sides were indisputably well matched and had it not been for the sensational collapse of the R.G.A. the game would probably have been a much closer one. But in cricket it is useless dilating upon what might have been; it is such dramatic incidents which make the game what it is. Cricket without the element of surprise and without sensation would be a very dull affair.

The Collapse.

The break-down of the R.G.A. was as sensational as unexpected. With only five wickets down when an adjournment was made for lunch the score stood at 148 and everyone was giving them a total of at least 200, while the Lancers were becoming none too pleased at the heavy task which looked likely to confront them. But on resuming the rot set in immediately. Smythe who had been hitting well before lunch and had scored 36 was bowled by the very first ball from Capt. Boles. Cpl. Heuchan, Cpl. Blandford, Sgt. Barker and Cpl. Bowden followed each other in and out in quick time the five wickets falling for the ridiculous score of 11. Capt. Boles was responsible for most of the mischief, his average after the resumption being four for four.

Features of the game were the excellent wicket-keeping of Capt. Stanyforth of the Lancers against whom only two byes were recorded during the whole of the innings, and the fielding of both teams, the Cavalry being excellent in this department; some remarkable catches were made.

Capt. Stanyforth was easily the best performer of the day, for in addition to his excellent wicket-keeping he was top scorer with 70. His innings was not forceful, but he played the style of game suited to a match of such importance, treating the good balls with respect but mercilessly punishing all loose ones. He was out in a most unusual manner, dropping his bat after a stroke and hitting the wicket. He gave two very difficult chances when at four and sixty-four, but otherwise his play was faultless, the placing being perfect.

Weight's Misfortune.

The most unfortunate player on the field was Gunner Weight, the star performer of the R.G.A. His record in the competition has been a most creditable one; not only has he an excellent bowling average, but on going to the wicket for the first partnership with Bdr. Ellis he required only thirty-nine to complete his thousand runs for the competition. Consequently he played very carefully and, scoring very slowly, he reached 33 when he had the misfortune to be run out, 6 short of the required number of runs. When this happened he appeared well set, had mastered the bowling and looked good for one of his customary high scores. Bdr. Ellis was the highest scorer for the Gunners with a brisk innings of 39. From the first over he played with confidence and went for the bowling very vigorously. His total included 6 fours. Sig. Smythe came second with a score of 36; he also played an innings the reverse of steady, three's being his speciality. With 25 to his credit, Gunner Palliser was the only other Gunner to exceed 20.

In his usual easy style Capt. Fowler hit up a delightfully entertaining 30, scoring all round the wicket and finally falling a victim to a ball which he should not have touched. He made a very weak stroke giving a catch, which after being missed by the keeper, was held by Weight. Sgt. Payne, after a very careful start in which his game was obviously to hold the fort, opened out and made several boundary hits, his total being 36. For his innings of 27, Capt. Boles played very pretty cricket.

THE GAME.

At 10.50, the R.G.A. having won the toss, Gunner Weight and Bdr. Ellis first went to the wicket, Capts. Boles and Fowler bowling. Ellis did not take long to decide that the bowling warranted attack and he opened the scoring with a boundary hit. Weight, by reason of his ambition to reach his 1000 runs for the competition, meant to take no risk and he played with unusual caution. After half an hour's play 30 had been scored, the majority being to the credit of the bombardier. Fifty went up after three quarters of an hour's play, the bowling apparently making little impression upon the first-wicket pair. The partnership ended with the score at 57, Ellis being brilliantly caught by Clarke at square leg. Ellis's contribution was 39, including six fours.

Gunner Palliser followed and immediately set about the bowling, hitting two successive fours. An hours play saw the total at 80. Weight continued warily, his partner doing most of the scoring until Capt. Boles made a very fine catch, dismissing Palliser and dissolving the second partnership. The score then stood at 98, to which Palliser had contributed 25, with four 4s. Bdr. Rushton joined Weight and the century was reached after one hour and twenty minutes play. Then came Weight's bad fortune; his partner made a stroke and Weight called for a run, going half-way up the pitch himself. For some reason Rushton did not respond and Weight was unable to get back. The third wicket fell at 106, of which total Weight had made 33, and, as previously mentioned, he was only six runs short of his 1000 for the competition. Weight was loudly applauded, his record with the gunners being well known.

Rushton was then partnered by Sig. Smytne, who opened with a fine hit for three.

Lively Spell.

Both batsmen went all out to the bowling, and things were very lively for a time until Rusnton gave Clarke an easy catch. On Gunner Norton joining Smythe the game slackened somewhat. Smythe was missed at 22 by Cooke, but Norton was less fortunate, Capt. Boles making his second catch in the slips and dismissing him. The score board registered 150 when the match had been two hours in progress and with Cpl. Bloomfield partnering Smythe 8 more runs were added before an adjournment for lunch was made.

Resuming at 2 o'clock, steady, consistent cricket gave place to the sensational, and, whereas in the morning it had taken over two hours to dismiss five batsmen, the last five wickets fell within 20 minutes and for the addition of only 12 runs. Capt. Boles was the destroying agent. Smythe was the first victim of the run of bad luck; he was bowled by the very first ball, and Cpl. Heuchan, who followed, was dismissed by the last ball of the same over. The rot continued and in Capt. Boles' next over Cpl. Bloomfield was sent back and then Capt. Fowler had his turn, accounting for Sgt. Barker. To Capt. Boles went the credit of taking the last wicket Cpl. Bowden being the victim. The R.G.A. innings thus ended for the score of 170 and in twenty minutes the whole aspect of the game was changed. Capt. Boles after the resumption had the remarkable average of four for four, taking the four wickets in three overs.

The Lancers Bat.

The Lancers first representatives were Capt. Stanyforth and Capt. Fowler (Captain). The latter began to hit out merrily, while the former contented himself with punishing loose balls only. Half an hour's play saw 50 up, the majority having been secured by Fowler.

Weight and Smythe opened the bowling but they failed to give either batsman an uncomfortable time. Smythe was eventually relieved by Rushton, a slow break bowler, and in dealing with his deliveries both Fowler and Stanyforth were very uneasy, the timing being exceptionally difficult. It was off Rushton's bowling that Capt. Fowler was caught; he misjudged the ball and made a weak stroke. The first wicket partnership ended with the score at 53. Capt. Boles then joined Stanyforth and the total steadily increased.

An hours play saw 88 on the scoreboard and the century was reached in an hour and twenty minutes. After a rest Weight resumed bowling and met with immediate success, dismissing Capt. Boles, who had played an attractive innings of 22, in his first over.

Sg. Payne next faced the bowling and opened with excessive care, taking no chances. There was a big stand before the third wicket fell, meanwhile Capt. Stanyforth's score having risen to 70. He was out in a most unfortunate manner. He attempted a stroke and missed and the bat fell from his hands hitting the wicket. The score at this stage was 149 for three and the Lancers were being regarded as having the match well in hand when they, too, were overtaken by disaster.

Major Micholls was dismissed by the first ball, being lbw., and with the addition of a few more runs Sgt. Shenstone followed. Lieut Cooke came in and with Sgt. Payne saved the situation and saw the end, 171 being reached in three hours and ten minutes.

RUGBY PROSPECTS.

Unexpected Resources Revealed by the war.

REVIVAL EXPECTED.

Now that a Rugby season, under normal conditions is near at hand, the value of the work done by those who, despite all difficulties, kept the game going, so far as was possible, during the anxious years of war, can be recognised. In one respect we are better off than in the days before the world was turned upside down. Prior to the autumn of 1914 the Rugby game was making its way in the Navy and Army, but the full possibilities of development were not realised.

It was left for the war to reveal unexpected resources in playing strength and keen appreciation from the authorities. Nor is the game confined to the Navy and Army. In the Royal Air Force a fresh supply of Rugby players has been found—players of such considerable promise that no one can say how far they will go. Had the Rugby game been stopped entirely while the war lasted, we should have been in a sad plight to-day, looking here there, and everywhere for men of anything approaching the old standard, but now we have quite a sound foundation on which to build our International fifteens.

FRIENDLY FOOTER.

"C" Bty. 187 Bde. R.F.A. v. 180 Labour Coy at Eifel.

This match was played on the Eifel Tor Zollstock Football Ground, and despite the hot weather which was more suitable for cricket than "soccer," it was a keen struggle with both sides going all out for a win. The Labour Coy possess a fine well balanced team, but what the Artillery men lacked in weight they made up for by "nippy" play and at times both sides showed excellent combination. A draw of two goals each was a fair reflection of the game. All the players deserve praise, but if anything the visitors goalie gets the "extra" for some really brilliant saves.

YOUNG SHELTON'S CHALLENGE.

Pte. Young Shelton (415 Labour Coy) is open to box anyone in the Rhine Army at 8st. 6lbs., give or take two lbs. Seeing that Pte. Worman is wanting a match Pte. Shelton is willing to box him 10, 15, or 20 rounds, the "Cologne Post" to have full control of the match. If no answer comes to this challenge, Shelton will claim the championship of the Rhine Army, at that poundage.

The Two Tails.

Up to a point the innings of both teams were very similar. Approximately the same number of runs were made for the same number of wickets, in similar time. The difference, however, lay in the tails of the two teams.

In every way the match was a fitting final to a most enjoyable and keenly fought out competition and we congratulate the winners upon their feat. For the Gunners there is no disgrace in defeat; they put up an excellent show, worthy of their record throughout the competition.

The scores were:—

93rd Bde R. G. A.

Gnr. Weight run out	33
Bdr. Ellis c. Clarke b. Fowler	39
Gnr. Palliser c. Boles b. Cpl. Whitfield	25
Bdr. Rushton c. Clarke b. Whitfield	13
Sig. Smythe b. Capt. Boles	36

BURSCHEID'S BUMPER.

Fine Programme at 5th Devons Athletic Meeting.

16 PLATOON'S NARROW WIN.

The 5th (P. of W.) Bn. Devon Regt's sports were held at Burscheid on Saturday. Brilliant weather, excellent arrangements by the officers and the marked keenness of the men combined to make the day a decided success.

Great interest centred in the platoon championship which was largely responsible for the fact that there were very few men not taking an active part in one or more events. The success of an individual added to the total points of this platoon although the championship was not decided on the sports field alone. It was a 'toss up' between several platoons, but No 16, with a good all round record, gained the honour with few points to spare.

Owing to the large number of entries it was found necessary to devote the whole of Friday to running off the heats, leaving no less than 33 finals for Saturday. It would have been impossible to compile a more varied and interesting programme, which apart from the usual flat, hurdle and cycle races, included a mule scurry, medley race, "bumping melee" and the ever popular "tilting the bucket." It caused endless amusement because a "rickety" barrow and uneven ground placed the odds ten to one on a tilt and consequent shower bath of the "tilters."

No records were broken but on the whole, times were well up to the average, the 100 yards being won by Capt. Anderson in 11 sec. First and third places in the 300 yards flat open to the 2nd Southern Inf. Bde. fell to competitors from the 52nd Warwicks Pte. Hassell winning with several yards to spare from Lieut. Puddicombe.

A feature of the day was the pace of events and this coupled with the merry making antics of "Clifford and his pals" (2nd Lieut. Carswell and Sgt. Hogg) a miniature rifle range and side shows, allowed of no dull minutes.

The prizes were distributed by Mrs. Lucas (wife of Brig.-Gen. C. H. Lucas C.M.G. D.S.O.) — an interested spectator — who was heartily thanked by the Commanding Officer, Lieut.-Col. V. L. N. Pearson D.S.O.

THE ST. LEGER.

Form and Forecasts for To-Morrow's Classic.

BUCHAN OR BAYUDA?

"I Know," whose selections for the 2nd Cologne August meeting stamped him as a good judge of form, sends us the following comments and selections for the Doncaster St. Leger being run to-morrow. He says:—

The last of the classics will be decided to-morrow and I am sorry to say for the first time in twenty-nine years I shall miss this great race.

Going carefully through the season's form, I reduce the chances of the probable starters to two animals, Buchan, and Bayuda, a stable companion of Buchan's. I would have included Dominion but for his failure at Derby last week in the Breeders St. Leger, when with odds laids on him he could only finish third to Chuette. On this form he can have no chance to-morrow. The leading jockey, Donoghue, was to have ridden Buchan, but having broken a bone in his wrist through his fall at York, he will not be seen in the saddle again for some time. Strictly going by the book it is hard to deny the great chance "Buchan" holds. He has run five times this season winning twice and being placed second twice; his last success was in the valuable Eclipse stakes at Sandown Park which he won in a canter from "Cygnus" and "Silver Spur" and four others, the distance being 1¼ miles.

"Bayuda" in the same stable will be ridden by Childs and is considerably fancied. As she has missed many valuable and tempting engagements of late which were apparently in her mercy, one would be ill advised to oppose her. She has been galloping in great style according to training reports, and we can't forget that we have seen some strange things happen in former days when the Manton stable has had two strings to its bow.

MORE ST. LEGER SCRATCHINGS

Sir Douglas and Tangiers Will Not Run To-morrow.

The field for the St. Leger, the popular Doncaster fixture tomorrow, looks like being on the small side. The possibles have been further reduced by the elimination of Sir Douglas, Tangiers, and Chaudfontaine. The last named, of course, was never seriously regarded in connection with the race, but the other pair, particularly Sir Douglas, had frequently been mentioned. The Stockbridge colt, indeed, was pressing Buchan for the position of favourite a little while ago, while when wagering officially opened this week he was second in demand at 4 to 1, and even shorter odds had been accepted previously in the case of several "unofficial" wagers.

There had been some disposition to field against Sir Douglas when the rival forces met a few evenings ago, and in the end 10 to 15 was an offer. Tangiers, on the other hand, had hardened somewhat. It was noted that at the gallops of the pair under discussion had not appeared in the training reports during the past few days. With their disappearance interest in the Doncaster classic is reduced to some extent, as Sir Douglas had shown such improvement lately that he was gradually working himself to the top of the tree. He made a rare example of Chat Tor at Goodwood, yet a few days later the son of Torpoint smashed up a strong field at Lewes. Tangiers, too, has displayed creditable form on more than one occasion this season.

GREAT CRICKET MATCH.

C.P.C. Finalists to meet British Army of the Rhine.

A cricket match will be played on the Lindenthal Cricket Ground on Wednesday 10th September between an XI representing the finalists of the Cologne Post Cricket Cup, the 17th Lancers and the 93rd Bde. R.G.A., and a team selected from the rest of the British Army of the Rhine. Play will commence at 11-0 am. The following will represent the remainder of the Army:

Lt.-Col J. C. Hartley.
Col. H. S. Bush.
Lt.-Col. C. J. Blount.
Lt.-Col. H. F. Montgomery.
Major H. W. M. Yates.
Major E. R. Morris.
Capt. D. V. W. Dickinson
Capt. H. Chystal.
Capt. R. Dove.
Lieut. J. Astill.
Major Douglas Jones.

ST. ANDREW'S GOLF.

Final of Queen Victoria Vase Tournament.

The final round of the Queen Victoria Jubilee Vase Tournament was played over the Old Course at St. Andrews yesterday, when F.M. Richardson (plus 1 at the Royal and Ancient Club), who won the trophy when it was last played for in 1913, successfully defended his title as holder, beating W.H. Pilcher (handicap 2) by 2 up.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

At The Deutsches.

There was a large and appreciative audience at the Deutsches Theatre last evening when Miss Kate Coates' Concert Party commenced their week's run there. This is the second visit they have paid to Cologne and the artistes are the same as on the last occasion Presenting a new programme, the performance is as bright as ever.

A Complaint.

"P.L.S." writes us as follows:—There seems to be a large number of inefficient concert parties now floating about our occupied area, and it gives the impression that the outlying districts have become the dumping-ground of all such parties unwanted in Cologne. Is it not possible to establish a strict censorship over them before they are allowed to appear? Otherwise the good will eventually suffer for the bad.

Gone To England.

By the way, I hear that Cpl. Alex. Ewerdine, the popular box-office manager at the Deutsches Theatre, left for England demobbed yesterday. He took on the duties at the Bismarckstrasse house after four months successful managing at the old Agrippina Cinema. His sojourn at the theatre has been particularly happy. Always courteous and obliging Ewerdine did his work with great conscientiousness: his motto apparently was "no complaints." We wish him the best of luck across the water.

Leave Club Band Concert.

The Band of the 17th Lancers under the able conductorship of Bandmaster W.H. Richardson gave a most successful concert at the Leave Club on Sunday. Their renderings of "An evening in Toledo" by Schmelling and the French Chanson "Madelon" by Robert were among the most attractive of the items, but all the selections were well played. Miss Ada Moore sang "Wake up" and "Annie Laurie" with fine effect. The other two soloists were Pte. Frederick Morice, who sang the "Watchman" with dramatic power and Bombardier Ruston who gave the "Last Call" and for his encore "Friend." He has a voice of charm and range and his interpretations were much above the average

JACQUES.

MILITARY TOURNAMENT.

Wayward Mules at 1/6th West Yorks Function.

A military tournament was held in connection with the 1/6th West Yorks picnic at Rodenkirchen in the midst of a pretty wood by the Rhine Bank. The various competitions caused great interest and amusement, especially the musical chairs on horseback. The wrestling on horseback reached an exciting stage when the mules scattered the spectators with the competitors were locked in deadly combat. The results were as follows:—

Tug of War on Horseback:—1, "B" Coy; 2, "A" Coy.

Transport v. Grooms:—Transport Team.

Wrestling on Horseback:—"B" Coy.

Musical Chairs on Horseback:—1, L Cpl. Horner, "B" Coy; 2, Drummer Stewart.

The Band under Bandmaster Rastrick provided the musical programme.

"BRONCHO" BEHAVES.

Successful Light Division Signal Company Mounted Sports.

The Light Division Signals held a very successful Mounted Sports meeting at Ohligs. The mules were on their best behaviour, though about half of them succeeded in getting rid of their riders in the 4 furlong bareback race. Even "Broncho"—a terror in normal times—refused to do any bucking. The bareback race, wrestling on mules and the mounted tug of war gave the spectators plenty of amusement, while the "Derby", V.C. Race and bending race proved that there are plenty of good horsemen in the Company. The despatch riders showed great skill and daring in their bending race on very rough ground. The champion of the meeting was L Cpl. Kindon with three first prizes and one second.

BROOKLANDS RACING TRACK.

The renovation and reconstruction of Brooklands motor racing track is being undertaken by the Road Board at a cost of probably between eight and ten thousand pounds. The military authorities, who have had control of Brooklands Aerodrome, are giving up possession as quickly as possible, and it is expected that the re-laying of the track will begin this month. Mr A. W. Donaldson, M.I.C.E., who supervised the laying of the track, will be in charge of the reconstruction work.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Tuesday, September 9th, 1919.

Wind light, mainly north-west, 5 to 10 m.p.h. Cool, misty morning, fair warm day. Visibility indifferent.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Leach's Team Augmented.

Mr. Cunliffe-Owen's horses now at Alfriston will join Felix Leach's team at Newmarket this week.

Irish Sportsman Dead.

Mr. Martin J. Murphy, of the Grand Hotel, Tramore, well known in connection with the Tramore race meeting and ex-M.P. for a division of County Waterford, died on Thursday.

Laugh Changes Hands.

Mr. Isaacs, a patron of Clement's Letcombe Regis stable, has purchased Laugh from Sir George Beaumont. His price has not transpired, but it is believed to be well over £1,000.

Yarmouth Course Satisfactory.

Colonel Wilkinson, the Jockey Club inspector of courses, visited Yarmouth on Wednesday and inspected the course, stands, and stables, and expressed his satisfaction with the condition of the course and stables.

Two Winners.

W.R. Jarvis only took two horses to Derby, and won a race with each. The first was on Wednesday with Jameson, who, being nine years of age, must be nearly the oldest of our flat-racers. South Notts, the other one, had no difficulty in disposing of Badminton in the Selling Nursery.

Birmingham Marksmen.

The Birmingham team have powerful inside-forwards in "Wullie" Walker and John Whitehouse, who are gluttons for work and great shots.

Jockeys And Their Valets.

The statement that there had been a disagreement between jockeys and their valets has been greatly exaggerated, and has caused considerable annoyance.

Irish Sprinter for Doncaster.

Mr. F.S. Myerscough's smart Irish sprinter Tut Tut will meet her engagement in the Portland plate at Doncaster this week.

A blaze of Triumph.

The football season of 1919-20 has opened in a blaze of triumph. The most extravagant expectations as to the amount of support that would be forthcoming for the game have been exceeded, and this is particularly true of the Metropolis.

Death of ex-Amateur Champion.

J. Freeman, the ex-bantam-weight amateur champion, died on Wednesday morning at 9.30. The deceased, who was a member of the Lynn A.C., and was one of the cleverest amateurs of his time, won the bantam-weight championship at St. James' Hall Piccadilly, in 1900.

Old Whitgiftians R.F.C.

Old Whitgiftians Rugby Football Club, after a lapse of five years, has been revived, and quite like the old days this year three fifteens are to be run.

Success in America.

Young Cohen, of Aldgate, who is now in America and doing well, obtained another victory recently, when at Wallingford, Conn., on August 19, he outpointed Micky Travers, of New Haven.

Robertson Reappears.

G. Robertson, the Sheffield Wednesday forward, who played for Scotland against England in 1913, reappeared for his old club in the game with Middlesbrough on Saturday at Ayrsome Park.

Arab Boxer at Plymouth.

One of the two 15-round contests decided at the Cosmopolitan Club introduced Jen Hassan, of Bagdad, known as the Terrible Arab, who, it may be recalled, was brought to this country some time ago by Capt Victor McLaglen.

Hardinge on Footer.

"Football requires more strenuous training than cricket," says Hardinge, of the Arsenal and Kent. "Cricket keeps a man in good health, but in modern first-class football he has to run about so much that a stiff week or so of special physical preparation is necessary."

A foremost Club.

As holders of the Essex Senior Cup and champions of the South Essex League, Grays Athletic are entitled to rank as one of the foremost clubs in the country

Victory Girl.

Victory Girl, engaged in the Elvastor Nursery, ran previously as the Diana filly. Germinate is the newly-named Dorinda filly by Sunbright.

Picturesque Ground.

Possessed of one of the most picturesque grounds around London, Bromley should prove a decided acquisition to the Athenian League.

A St. Leger Trial.

We had a St. Leger trial at Derby and the Breeders' St. Leger may be said to have put Dominion out of the Doncaster classic. At any rate Lord Glanely's colt would require to show tremendous improvement to have any chance in next weeks' event.

Doncaster Preparations.

The Doncaster racecourse was on Thursday inspected by Lord Lonsdale, one of the Stewards for the St. Leger week. A tour of the course, stands, and offices was made, and his lordship expressed himself perfectly satisfied with the preparations made for this week's meeting.

OUR CRICKET CUP — THE WINNING TEAM — THE 17th LANCERS.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

A Fortunate Recovery.

A cavalry officer who was at Godesburg on Sunday was sitting on a seat near the river close to the landing stage and happened to place his gold cigarette case on the seat while he tied up his bootlace. Soon after he rose and walked right up to the castle at the rear of the Town. When there, feeling disposed to smoke, he felt for his case. Horrors! It was not in his pocket. So he retraced his steps to the riverside with little hope of ever again seeing his beloved gold case. What was his surprise, however, to see the seat occupied by a German man and woman and strangely enough the case was where he had left it, quite undisturbed. Quite forty minutes must have elapsed before he returned. He says he knows of many quarters of the globe where a valuable thing like that left lying on a public seat would have been snapped up within five minutes.

To Read at Home.

A gratifying feature about the return of so many troops to Blighty is the way in which numbers are arranging to have this paper posted home to them so that they may still keep in touch with their comrades remaining on the Rhine and may be able to see what is going on in the Army of Occupation they have left. It is a natural wish for those who have looked forward daily to reading the soldier's own newspaper to continue receiving it when back in the homeland, and we shall be glad to receive subscriptions to the "Post" at the rate of 12 marks a month, from soldiers of the Rhine Army going home. For this sum the paper will be sent to them daily by post and they will have it to read as regularly as when they were in Germany.

Corporal's Gallant Conduct.

Gallant conduct arising out of a fire at Pastorat Strasse, Hermulheim, has just come to light. It appears that Lance-Corporal S. Downs, 16th West Yorkskire Regiment, and Lance-Corporal J. J Roe, 9th Durham Light Infantry, behaved with great courage, and were the means of saving the adjoining houses by carrying buckets of water at great personal risk. They got on the roof and worked for forty-five minutes, getting the fire under control.

Embarrassing.

The other day, two young guards were proceeding on a course at the Divisional College. The heat was abnormal, and by the time they arrived at Ohligs with all their equipment and kit, they were decidedly hot and uncomfortable. On alighting from the train at Wald one of them told the other — in language more forcible than polite — his candid opinion of his having to carry all that weight on such a warm day. Seeing two ladies standing near by, the other one warned his comrade to be careful. "Oh, san fayry an!" said the other "they are only Fräuleins, and don't understand what I'm saying." His horror and embarrassment can be better imagined than described when one of the "Fräuleins" spoke to the other in perfect English. It then dawned on the embarrassed guard that the ladies were English teachers on duty at the College.

Blushing Honours.

A rather amusing incident ended the second act of "Helen with the High Hand" on Wednesday night. As the players were acknowledging the applause, an enormous bunch of flowers were handed over the footlights for Lieut. H. L. Harnell playing the part of "Emanual Proctor." "Emanuel" blushingly tried to hand his gift over to one of the ladies, but she smilingly refused them. The joke appealed to the House, but when "Emanual" tried to dump the garden of blooms on one of the fair sex it fairly "got" them. From the number of "resting" players watching this interesting scene in the front of the house and the way it tickled them I fancy the jape was pre-arranged, everybody being "wise" except Emanuel.

A Fiery Display.

While returning from Gemünd to Euskirchen on Sunday a scene of wonderful beauty might have been witnessed. Ahead of one, a hill covered with pines loomed up dark and solid in the twilight, and its top was fringed with orange flame, with a pall of smoke hanging over all. Unfortunately this was no firework display but a forest fire started that evening in all probability by some stray match or cigarette end.

Re-echoes.

On Sunday there were "Sommerfests" in several places round about Cologne and the German football season was opened by a number of matches.

There seemed to be more Rhineland femininity on Sunday adopting the sensible no-hat fashion. It was an ideal day for such a mode.

An exceptionally large number of troops have been demobilised in the last few days and there has been such a call on the Rhine route home that many have had to start for Blighty by rail.

The Military Club, which has been housed in the Royal Palace at Bruhl and was much appreciated by all who visited the historic demesne, has just ceased to function.

The 53rd Manchesters had a splendid river trip from Bonn to Coblenz recently. The only regret expressed was that there was not time to land at Coblenz.

On units leaving the Rhine Army, the N.A.C.B. will take over stocks at N.A.C.B. prices, less 5%, provided they are in good condition.

Apropos the interest taken in the college cap of an English boy on a visit to Cologne, a male correspondent thinks that this Teuton interest is not confined to the schoolboy. Every English lady comes in for careful and often rude scrutiny. Perhaps this is one objection to the brassard.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give two prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Pte. S. Darling, B Siege Park Workshogs, Rhine Army and Pte. G. Y. Farquhar, B Coy., 18th K.R.R.C., Rhine Army.

FROM EVERYWHERE.

The Price of Tea.—Both tea and coffee are going up in price.

Smithfield.—Meat supplies at Smithfield were exceptionally heavy this week-end.

What the Ex-Kaiser Had.—The ex-Kaiser in his flight had with him 650,000 marks.

Chasing Crooks.—French gendarmerie are to have motor-cars to get on the track of criminals.

In the River.—Four German guns presented to Farnham were pitched into the river.

Devonshire House Sold.—The Duke of Devonshire has sold Devonshire House and grounds, his Piccadilly residence.

Guides for the Prince.—Two Red Indian guides accompany the Prince of Wales on his North Ontario fishing expedition.

Newsboy—Clerc.—The Rev. H. Armstrong, the minister of Wesley's Chapel, City-road, once sold newspapers.

Still Dearer Suits.—"Prices of men's suits are going up by leaps and bounds," says a leading West End tailor.

No Tramway Strike.—The threatened general strike of tramway workers has been averted.

Motor-car Prices. — Eight Rolls-Royce cars realised £20,775 at Olympia, lowest price paid being £2,100.

Hidden Gold Owner Dies. — Charles Linton, the Ramsgate recluse who hoarded nearly £200 in gold, has died in hospital.

Learning from Us.—A record number of foreign students will be in residence at Oxford next term.

London-Hamburg.—Arrangements are afoot for re-opening the shipping service between Liverpool and Hamburg.

By Air.—A special Berlin-Friedrichshafen line has been established for German aerial traffic.

Shoe Leather.—Thieves stole 400 pairs of boots from a boot factory at East Shilton.

Flights to Belgium.—Flights to Belgium are permissible provided that no goods are carried.

Black Boudoirs no More.—The craze for black boudoirs and bedrooms has died out.

London for Clothes.—It is surprising the number of French women who are in Eng and to buy their clothes.

Fewer Brigadiers.—This week's Gazettes bring down the establishment of Brigadiers with a run.

Medals for Specials.—"Specials" are to have a medal. The King has sanctioned a decoration be awarded for faithful service.

The King.—The King was present at the annual gathering of the Braemar Highland Society, which was revived after a lapse of six years.

Housing.—Local authorities are having their attention called to the duties Parliament has cast upon them in regard to housing.

Milk Queue. — Southport residents brought toilet jugs and other utensils in which to take away the allowance which the authorities distribute.

Crossing Sweepers Back.—Crossing sweepers are resuming their "pitches" in the West End; many of them are ex-soldiers.

VANITY FAIR.

A feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

Perhaps!

The best women in society have set their faces rigidly against wicked waste, and—perhaps—that is why all the fashionable evening cloaks are made reversible. In West End shops are new models or evening wraps. One is a Titian chiffon velvet and mole, reversible shape, and fox collar dyed squirrel. A second is Magyar cut, with a wide square collar. The colours are saxe blue and beige. The prices are 16 guineas and 12 guineas respectively. A gorgeous orange brocade cloak is entirely made of a figured design, in which fruit, flowers, branches are delicately entwined on a mole background. Twenty-nine guineas is the price of this wonderful creation, straight from Paris.

Rue de la Paix.

The Rue de la Paix is becoming itself again after five years of rather halting existence. The striped sun-blinds which already characterized it in 1830 are coming out again in all the splendour of awnings renewed at fabulous expense. Window-boxes filled with the gayest possible flowers again do their best to mitigate the ugliness of panels and placards on which appear the banal letters that spell names whose syllabies will cause a hush in boudoirs 12,000 miles away.

A Temple of Fashion.

The Rue de la Paix was not designed as the temple of fashion, and indeed began life as a rather dull thoroughfare opened up by Napoleon in order that the Colonne Vendôme might be easily seen from the boulevards of Louis XIV. It had passed its majority, however, before it fell invevitably into commerce; but commerce of the most luxurious nature. Situated between the Tuileries and the Faubourg St. Honoré, and forming a short cut from them to the boulevards, it was natural that along its pavements should be spread out those wares most suitable to the brilliant and glittering creatures of the Second Empire.

Lingerie of the Moment.

I have never swerved from the conviction that lingerie ought to be washable, and not of the description so often seen in the most expensive shops that requires cleaning to preserve the colour or some fantastic trimming. The best shops have apparently decided that fine washing lawns and muslins are the correct thing, though silken varieties are still very popular. One really lovely set for a trousseau is in the finest white material, with a simple leaf design in blue, and of the same texture, cunningly inserted.

Lace Revival.

"Lace is to be used to a hitherto unprecedented extent for trimmings of every kind," says a well-known lace specialist "Gowns, lingerie, hats, cloaks, blouses, and, in fact, almost every garment will be plentifully adorned with lace of some kind." There has consequently been a great revival in the trade, and the making of hand-made lace promises to be a popular pastime among women.

Bracelets and Bare Arms.

This is going to be a bracelet winter. The ultra-short sleeve gave an excellent excuse for setting aside gloves. Long gloves, even in cotton or silk, were exorbitant in price; many girls objected to the quaint appearance of short gloves with short sleeves. What were they to do? Adopt bare brown arms. And surely these have been adopted with fervour. Now that summer is packing her dainty trunk and making ready to welcome poetic autumn, bare brown arms are beginning to feel a trifle uneasy. What is to be the next move? Sleeves are still short; long gloves are more expensive than ever. Bracelets! Happy idea. Bracelets and a great many of them. This coming winter we shall find bracelets worn in amazing numbers; not ordinary circles of gold but fancy things of uncommon design and colour.

Tucks And Tunics.

These conspire to introduce becomingly the breadth at the hip, which is the outstanding feature of the new silhouette, and the woman who does not wish to follow the "extreme" fashion will find that tier upon tier of deep tucks or a skirt with several tunics narrowing towards the hem, is an excellent way of expressing the mode. Collarless capes are being made by many of the leading dressmakers. With them women can wear different carves and collars of rich fur. Rumour has it that evening cloaks of satin and brocade are to be lined throughout with soft fur.

The Englishwoman's Feet.

Why do English girls manage their feet so badly? It is a fact, if you take the trouble to notice, that they more often than not tuck them away under their chairs in a drawing-room, as though they are something to be as amed of. The result is an ugly attitude which has a paralysing effect on the whole bearing. The failing isn't confined to overgrown girls—it seems to be an ineradicable disease with some of us. AGNES

A K.R.R.C. SGT. MAJOR SAYS:—

"I Have Been Astonished by Zam-Buk's Wonderful Healing."

WM. E. TAYLOR, an old K.R.R.C. Sergt. Major, now living at 17, Leeds Street, Top Lock, New Springs, Wigan says:—

"I have used Zam-Buk for years in my work as gymnastic instructor, football trainer, and trainer and lecturer for ambulance classes and colliery rescue teams. Over and over again have I proved the great superiority of Zam-Buk to all other skin preparations for wounds, abrasions, and skin disease.

"I first used Zam-Buk for irritating and INFLAMED PIMPLES. Zam-Buk soothed the itching of my skin and completely rid me of the troublesome outbreak. Later I advised a friend to try Zam-Buk for DRY ECZEMA on his hands, again with entirely satisfactory results.

"My son's heel was nearly torn off by a turn-table. Instead of losing his foot altogether as was at first thought Zam-Buk healed it so perfectly that he has been soldiering over 4 years and never feels anything of the old injury.

"I have been astonished by the way Zam-Buk has healed SORES AND WOUNDS. I have never known it fail."

Zam-Buk

Zam-Buk is composed of certain rare and valuable herbal extracts which make it unrivalled as a healer and skin-cure. Obtainable in sealed boxes from Chemists and Army Canteens or direct from The Zam-Buk Laboratories, Leeds.

ECONOMY WAITS ON POLICY.

PROBLEMS OF GREAT REDUCTIONS IN NATIONAL EXPENDITURE.

HOLLAND AND BELGIUM AGREE.

CUTTING DOWN.

ECONOMY MUST TAKE ITS TURN.

Definite suggestions for economy have been made by the Treasury in a letter despatched to the Prime Minister. The letter follows a consultation with the four great war Departments—the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Munitions.

The civil departments have been able to prepare statements already. They know what can be done in the matter of staff reduction. But the greater spending departments cannot make definite proposals for economy until they know the Government policy—the strength, for example, of the peace Navy, Army, and Air Force. Upon that will depend the amount which the Ministry of Munitions in its new guise as the Ministry of Supply must spend.

"The big four" are now looking forward to the return of the Prime Minister and the holding of Cabinet meetings which will decide the policy and enable them to present revised estimates for the end of 1919-20, and new estimates for 1920-21. A special finance meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday.

Retrenchment, it is argued, is a matter of policy. Administration is to be cut do n to the minimum, and affairs, as far as officials are concerned, are to return to a pre-war basis.

The one respect in which Departments, even with a pre-war staff, cannot get back to a pre-war expenditure is that of salaries and running costs. Salaries have risen from 40 to 60 per cent., and, with the addition of new Departments, such as Pensions, and the expansion of the Labour Ministry and the new Health Ministry developments, have increased cost of civil administration to double the pre-war figure. Taking the latter at £40,000,000 a year, one must give the new cost as at least £80,000,000.

On the top of this greatly increased staff or administration cost, is piled the cost of policy. In this must be included the actual pensions paid to disabled and dependents, the actual cost of doles—bread, coal, unemployment, railways, coastwise shipping—the money which will be spent by the Ministry of Health on housing, and the cost of policing the world—in Russia, Mesopotamia, Egypt, and elsewhere.

The next parliamentary session must concern itself largely with questions of finance. There are rumours of a new Budget, and even new taxation, to meet the cost of public services, which is actually much higher than that anticipated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in April.

In Treasury circles it is agreed that what will practically amount to a new Budget statement may be expected, but it is thought that fresh taxation may at least be postponed until the estimates for 1920-21 are produced.

HOLLAND AND BELGIUM.

AGREEMENT SATISFACTORY TO BOTH COUNTRIES.

The Hague correspondent of the "Libre Belgique" says that the Dutch Government seems to have been informed of certain "common formulae" which will be the subject of discussion at the first meeting of the Plenary Commission of fourteen.

"It is more than probable," adds the correspondent, "that an agreement will be reached before the end of the following week. It is understood that Belgium will scrupulously respect the decision of the Council of Five on June 4, contenting herself with certain economic concessions and that there will be no transfer of territory nor any encroachment on Dutch sovereign rights."

EX-KAISER'S SIGNATURE.

The purchase by the ex-Kaiser of Baroness van Heemstra's estate Huize Doorn has now been completed. When the bill of emption was presented to the ex-Emperor he would only sign "Wilhelm," as in his former days of pomp and circumstance, but the notary did not agree, and suggested that the ex-Kaiser should sign as "Wilhelm von Hohenzollern." The ex-Kaiser refused, but finally he proposed the signature "Wilhelm aus dem Hause Hohenzollern." This signature was accepted by the notary.

ROYAL SHEEP FOR FRANCE.

The Marne farmers, whose live stock has been considerably diminished during the war, have received a welcome gift from King George in the shape of five valuable Southdown ewes, which will be used for breeding purposes. Sheep will also be sent by the committee for the aid of farmers in the devastated regions of France and Belgium.

NORTH RUSSIA.

PREPARATIONS FOR EVACUATION NEARLY COMPLETE.

It is stated that preparations at Archangel for the evacuation of our troops are proceeding very swiftly. Tanks have arrived, and if there is trouble, malcontents will get more than they bargained for. The naval guns of the harbour are sufficient to knock Archangel sideways, and the monitor Erebus has 15in. guns on board.

A high official at the War Office has repeated the assurance that there is not the slightest intention of deviating from the settled policy of evacuation of North Russia.—

A newspaper statement that "Murmansk is not to be evacuated" is untrue. It will be found, when the ice closes the ports, that the British troops will have left.

CARES OF EMPIRE.

TAKING OVER IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA.

Sir Horace Byatt, Administrator of ex-German East Africa, is leaving England in a few days for Dar-es-Salaam, which will be the new headquarters of the Government under the mandate of the League of Nations.

Meanwhile all is going on smoothly. The old German native army has melted away and the Askaries have returned to their villages, while the country is now garrisoned by three battalions of the King's African Rifles from the neighbouring colonies. The only Germans left are a few of the original settlers, the majority having been repatriated.

The excellent railways, which were very considerably damaged by the Germans, have been repaired and are in working order right up to Lake Tanganyika. The most urgent need is the resumption of shipping, coastwise and with Europe.

EX-KAISER'S TRIAL.

AMERICAN VIEWS ON THE LEGAL ASPECT.

Mr. Lansing, U.S., Secretary of State, who at the Peace Conference presided over the Commission on Responsibilities, explained before the Convention of the American Bar Association at Boston the proceedings relating to the proposed trial of the former German Emperor. He also emphasised the objections of the American delegates to the decision reached by the Council of Four, which took form in Article 227—230 of the Treaty of Peace.

"Manifestly, the tribunal thus created is not a court of legal justice," Mr. Lansing said, "but rather an instrument of political power, which is to consider the case from the viewpoint of high policy, and to fix the penalty accordingly.

"One of the reasons that our country entered the war was to bring lawlessness to an end. We believed that an undeviating respect for law is essential to the prosperity and happiness of society, and that the rigid maintenance of law, however distasteful it may be, is an imperative duty."

IRISH HUMOUR.

ELECTING A RATE COLLECTOR.

An extraordinary scene occurred at the meeting of the Limerick County Council. About three hundred labourers attended with a band and banners in the interest of a candidate for rate collectorship, Mr. John O'Grady, champion weight thrower, and when they found the voting going against their favourite they broke into the council chamber, smashing the chairs, tables and furniture, and wrecking the entire place. The council members had to fly for safety. The damage is estimated at over £1,000.

RESCUERS DROWNED.

Three young Jews who went to the rescue of some rowing boats caught in a squall off Portobello have been drowned.

The three lads, named Berger, Clar and Itcovitzh, all aged nineteen, and belonging to Edinburgh, were observed rowing to the help of the other craft, but they, too, were overcome by the storm. It was hoped that they had been picked up by a steamer, but Berger's body was found later floating six miles out.

HERTZOG SNUBBED.

Gen. Hertzog, the South African leader, who had just returned from the Peace Conference, has had to leave Pietermaritzburg owing to public feeling against him. The public meeting was abandoned.

SHELL EXPLOSION.

THREE KILLED ON BANK OF THE RHINE.

People walking on the left bank of the Rhine shortly before five o'clock on Monday afternoon were surprised to hear a loud detonation on the other side of the river. A column of dust rose from the shore below what is known as the White City, by the 1st Signal Squadron R. E. Stables, screams were heard and people were seen running. When the dust cleared bodies were visible, lying on the river bank.

It appears that just before the explosion two men attached to the Remount Department were seen by the R. E. stable guard playing with an object which proves to have been a shell taken from the river. These two men, Pte. J. J. Farrell, R.A.S.C. (Remounts) and Pte. W. Derrick, R.A.S.C. (Remounts) were killed on the spot, Derrick's body being terribly mutilated. A German girl, aged 11, was also killed, and three other girls were wounded. Two horses were killed outright, two were so injured that they had to be destroyed and four were seriously wounded. Some Royal Engineers who were near the horses that were killed had very narrow escapes. The Red Cross and the Fire Brigade were called by telephone, and took the wounded children away in their ambulances.

It is said that during the Revolution last November a good deal of ammunition was thrown into the Rhine. The river is very low at present, and it is probable that the shell was found on the shore and imprudently handled with fatal results.

FOURFOLD CRIME.

TRAGEDIES DIRECTLY RESULTING FROM THE WAR.

Cases of suicide as direct or indirect results of the war are said to be multiplyng in Berlin and suicide lists have become a regular feature of the daily newspapers. One of the latest tragedies involves an engineer's wife and her three boys, aged thirteen, ten, and nine, who were found dead from gas poisoning. The throats of two boys, who apparently had offered resistance, had been cut with a razor. The bodies, which had been lying for six days, were as black as coal. The parents' bedstead, in the adjoining room, was covered with roses, and a letter addressed to the husband, who worked at some distance from Berlin, explained the whole tragedy:—

"I don't want to stand in your way. My fortune, which has been diminished during your war service, is now gone.

"You will find in a parcel a full statement of accounts and two pictures of the children and myself. The children's portrait is splendid, but mine is a bad one because I am sick at heart. I wish you all happiness with the other woman."

The husband, who rushed to Berlin on receipt of the letter, denies any other love affair.

The scarcity of apartments in Berlin is best illustrated by the fact that within six hours after the discovery of the tragedy dozens of people were inquiring about renting the apartments.

CONSTABLES STABBED BY SINN FEINERS.

Two men, named O'Reilly and Clavin, were charged at Mullingar with unlawful assembly at Kilbeggan on August 10.

Mrs. Sheehy Skeffington was addressing a proclaimed Sinn Fein meeting in Kilbeggan-square when the district inspector informed her that she could not do so. She said that she would take no orders but from James McGuinness, the Volunteer commandant.

Stones were thrown, and the inspector was struck in the face and back, and the platform was upset. Two constables who went to arrest McGuinness were stabbed in the back and had to release him.

The defendants were charged with being prominent in the disturbance. Both men were bound over to keep the peace, but O'Reilly, an old man of 70 years, refused to give bail, and was sentenced to a month's imprisonment.

TRADE RECOVERING.

Board of Trade returns for August, the last month during which the import restrictions were in operation, show that British trade is moving steadily upwards.

The figures for August (imports £148,832,393, exports £74,773,278) show an increase over the same month last year as follows: Imports £38,652,892, exports £31,251,041. Exports are thus up to 70 per cent.

The great proportion of the increase in exports fell in the section devoted to articles wholly or mainly manufactured.

Our import trade for the past eight months reached a total of £1,018,334,779, compared with £871,360,874 in the corresponding period of 1918.

£2,000 JEWEL THEFT.

At Dublin John Ryan was remanded on the charge of having stolen from the Gresham Hotel, during horse-show week, jewellery of the value of about £2,000, the property of Mrs. Crawshay, wife of Captain Crawshay. Bernard Caroll, a workman employed by a city jeweller, was charged with having received the property and remanded.

The police stated that practically all the jewellery had been recovered, and that Ryan, some time after his arrest, admitted the theft.

DASH FOR FREEDOM.

FAMOUS GERMAN FLYER'S ESCAPE.

A German flying officer, Lieutenant Paul Menkhoff, of the prison camp at Chateau Thierry, has just escaped into Switzerland in a dramatic manner.

A party of French soldiers, who were pursuing some escaped Germans, left a motor-car unprotected near the Edge Forest.

Menkhoff found the motor-car unattended, and jumping in drove a distance of about eight miles to another forest where he hid the car. He made the rest of the way on foot, and after enduring many hardships, arrived safely in Geneva.

Menkhoff is a famous German war airman, and was credited with bringing down fifty Allied airmen. He was brought down himself by an American airman, Lieutenant Walker Avery, during the latter's first war flight.

ALLENBY HOME.

HOW TO GREET THE LIBERATOR OF THE HOLY LAND.

Field-Marshal Lord Allenby reaches home to-day.

Meanwhile the Rev. A. Lombardini, who, in preaching at St. Botolph's (Bishopsgate) mid-day Wednesday services, has been speaking on "Our Victory in the East," urges that he should have a special religious welcome.

"Let all the dignitaries of the National Church, together with the leaders of the Free Churches, organise a great welcome for him," he says. "Let them await his arrival at the station, and, led by a Cross, go in procession to some sacred place and there join in a solemn service of thanksgiving for the freeing of the holy places.

"It is an opportunity that will never occur again. Will the Christian Church seize it or miss it?"

"RUN IN" BY A WOMAN.

HOW A "NAUGHTY BOY" WAS DEALT WITH.

Returning late at night from a party, Mrs. Rhodes, manageress of the Aldershot Church of England Soldiers' Institute, found a man, minus boots and socks, in the kitchen. "Have you any firearms?" she demanded. The man replying "No," she grasped him firmly by the collar and hauled him up the street, en route for the police station. On the way, however, she met a constable, to whom she handed her capture. "I told him he was a very naughty boy," said Mrs. Rhodes to a Press representative afterwards. "I was a bit afraid," she confessed," but I am more timid at having to appear at the police-court; I don't like police-courts." Mrs. Rhodes is the mother of 12 children, and her husband has been a pensioned warrant-officer from the 2nd Batt. Royal West Kent Regt. for 37 years.

TORTURE HOUSE.

HOW THE BOLSHEVISTS TREAT THEIR VICTIMS.

Terrible stories are being told of the atrocities committed by the Bolshevists during their occupation of Kharkoff. During the past month over 300 men and women have been brutally murdered, mutilated, and thrown into shallow trenches there.

General Denikin has had the bodies exhumed and laid in rows along the streets, in order that the men of his army may see the deeds of which their would-be rulers are capable. Many of the corpses have had arms and legs chopped off, men's heads have been smashed in and the brains smeared over the naked bodies. Women have been stripped and disembowelled.

One big building in the city is known to the inhabitants as the "torture house." It was originally a big block of flats. Heartrending screams were to be heard issuing from it at all hours of the night and day.

PLEASURELESS PARIS.

A sudden strike last night at two of the minor Paris music-halls has decided the managers to proclaim a lock-out. All music-halls, cinemas, circuses, and dancing establishments are closed. For the moment theatres are not affected, but there is every reason to believe that they will also close. The trouble, as in New York, is the managers' refusal to recognise the theatre workers' union.

The New York actors strike has ended in the recognition of the Actors' Equity Association, which according to its president, has killed "managerial aristocracy."

VOTE WON BY A HEAD.

In deciding a case at the Nelson Revision Court, in which there had been some doubt whether the claimant resided in the Nelson or Clitheroe constituency. Mr. Baldwick, the registration officer, said that in the constituency in which the claimant previously resided the dividing line between the two constituencies ran exactly under his bed. The question was whether his head or feet should count for a vote, and the decision was in favour of his head.

WELSH COAL KING.

CONTROLS 5,000,000 TONS A YEAR.

In well-informed circles at Cardiff it is said that Mr. D. R. Llewellyn and his partners, who have recently carried out extensive colliery deals, are on the point of concluding the purchase of further important South Wales colliery properties at a price of about £5,000,000 sterling.

Mr. Llewellyn is a young business man from Aberdare, and though still in the thirties is making as big a name in the South Wales coalfields as did the late Lord Rhondda. Lord Bute sold his last interests in the Welsh coalfields to Mr. Llewellyn only two months ago.

The new "coal king" and his associates have now the control of considerably over 5,000,000 tons of coal a year.

TRAIN WRECK.

PASSENGERS ROASTED TO DEATH.

The collision between a Toulouse and a Bordeaux express near Toulouse is more serious than was at first supposed. There are more than twenty dead, and at least sixty seriously injured.

The disaster occurred when the Paris-Toulouse express was about twelve miles from Toulouse. It was at a standstill, and the driver had put detonators on the rails and taken other precautions. The Bordeaux express, however, came round a curve at a speed of forty miles an hour, and was unable to avoid a crash! Its engine jumped into the air, and fell on the already wrecked rear portion of the Toulouse express. This was a first class corridor car, and all the occupants were killed instantaneously.

Most of the victims were in the Toulouse train, those in the Bordeaux express suffering little for some unexplained reason. Rescue work did not begin until late, and for a long time men and women pinned down by wreckage screamed in their agony. The rescue parties arrived from Toulouse in motorcars, and worked throughout the night with the aid of flares.

So many bodies have been carbonised that it is believed the death-roll will be increased. A number of children are among the victims.

BOMBS SCATTERED ABOUT A SHIP.

At Liverpool a large number of seamen and firemen of the steamship Magpie were charged with breaking into the ship's stores and stealing spirits belonging to the Government and intended for troops in Russia.

Evidence was given that the ship, which also carried barrels of petrol, left Liverpool at the end of August, but owing to engine trouble had to put back. It was then found that one hold, entrance to which was near the men's quarters, had been broken into and 40 cases of spirits opened. Cases of bombs were also broken and the contents scattered about the vessel. If a lighted match had been dropped, there would have been a serious explosion which would have sent the vessel to the bottom. Many of the crew were drunk and incapable of work, while the officers dared not go into their quarters.

All pleaded "Not Guilty." One prisoner, who was regarded as the ringleader, was sent to prison for four months, and all the others (except one man discharged) for three months.

ANOTHER "FISHING" STORY.

A young wife who was among the applicants to the magistrates at Tottenham said that her husband persisted in staying out late at night, and when she asked him where he had been, he replied, "I have been fishing."

It was stated that the two had been separated by order of the Court, but had lived together again, and the wife said she was prepared to continue to live with him if he would come home earlier of an evening.

The Magistrate: But he says he goes fishing. That might be true.

The wife (smiling): I think I'll go fishing.

UNSAVOURY CARGO CAUSES STRIKE.

Labourers at Goole harbour on Saturday refused to handle quantities of horse flesh which arrived for shipment to Belgium, because of its smell and condition, and insisted on their refusal when a bonus of 5s. per man was offered.

In pre-war days old horses were shipped in thousands to Belgium for food purposes, and the traffic was frequently condemned chiefly on the ground of humanity.

Since the war ended and trade with Antwerp was resumed, there has been a big demand for horse flesh. The animals are now killed in England, quartered and frozen, before being exported to the Continent.

MACKENSEN'S RETURN.

During the next few days the last troops of Mackensen's Army Corps are expected home from Hungary. It is anticipated that Mackensen will himself return to Berlin, as he is pledged to leave Hungary immediately it is evacuated by German troops.

"BIG FIVE" TRIAL.

BULLY BEEF FIRMS INDICTED FOR PROFITEERING.

The trial of the "Big Five"—meaning the meat packers at Chicago—has been fixed to open on the 15th September. The companies concerned are those of Armour, Swift, Morris, Wilson and Cudahy. The charge is that the powers controlled by the organisation are being used to manipulate the livestock markets, restrict interstate and international supplies of food, control prices of dressed meats and others foods, defraud both producers and consumers of food, and crush effective competition.

The Food-controller announces that although there will be no surplus, there is no apprehension of serious lack of food during winter months.

"MATERNITY EPIDEMIC."

GUARDIANS' PREDICAMENT DUE TO HOUSE FAMINE.

At Nottingham, married wives of soldiers who are about to become mothers, as well as those of civilians, are compelled to go to the local workhouse owing to house famine. Accommodation at the City workhouse has proved insufficient for what ex-Mayor Ward describes as a "maternity epidemic," and additional infirmary wards have had to be set aside for expectant mothers.

"WAR WIDOW" AS A W.A.A.C.

Her husband being taken a prisoner by the Germans in 1914, Ellen McCarthy, of Bermondsey, became a W.A.A.C.

It is alleged that while employed as a cook at an officers' mess at Catterick she became acquainted with a soldier named Henry Benjamin Baker. Posing, it is said, as a war widow, she went through a form of marriage with him.

When charged with bigamy at Tower Bridge it was said that she was married when only 15½ years old to McCarthy, who was then a Northumberland miner. On August 9, 1914, he went to France, and did not return to this country until December 9 last.

He said he had not seen her from the time he left England until the moment he saw her in the police court. His two children had been staying at his mother-in-law's house.

Prisoner when arrested said she thought that McCarthy was dead.

She was remanded.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S TRAINING.

During the week ending Sept. 5 the Grants Committee of the Appointments Department of the Ministry of Labour has sanctioned the giving of 503 grants under the Government scheme for training ex-service men, either officers or other ranks of higher education, for civil careers. Considerable progress is now being made with the allocation of grants, and the total number now sanctioned is 4,319, of which 1,754 have been awarded to officers and 2,565 to other ranks.

SOUVENIR FOR PERSHING.

The French Government is said to be considering a suggestion that the special train which was used by General Pershing as his mobile headquarters shall be presented to the United States as a souvenir.

General Pershing arrived at New York yesterday. Elaborate preparations had been made to give him an enthusiastic reception.

QUICK JUSTICE.

When a woman was put in the dock at Thames Police-court the case was disposed of in the following laconic manner.

Constable: Quarrelling with a man, your Worship.

Clerk: First time, gaoler?

Gaoler: Yes.

Magistrate: Go away.

WILSON'S CONVERTS.

President Wilson, continuing his great tour of the United States, is reported to have so favourably impressed his audiences that even some of his opponents now consider it probable that his plea for ratification of the Peace Treaty will have the support of the majority of the people.

PRISON FOR ANGRY LIEUTENANT.

Because a chemist's assistant at Piccadilly refused to treat him for the bite of a cat, Lieut. Harold Edmund Rosborough, of the Royal Automobile Club, was alleged to have struck the assistant in the face.

Charged at Marlborough street, he was sentenced to a month in the second division. Notice of appeal was given.

GERMANS MADE "BRITISH."

Twenty-one Germans, 13 of whom are British-born widows, were, says "The London Gazette," naturalized during August. The eight men have served in the British forces. One of them is described as a manufacturer and one as a company secretary.

Sir John Simon is to be invited to become Liberal candidate for the Monmouth Division.

EMPLOYING THE DISABLED.

The resettlement of disabled men from the Forces in the industrial life of the country is a threefold process. In the first place, there are a large number of skilled men, whose injuries were not of the gravest character, who were able to return to their pre-war occupations with little or no difficulty. These were not obliged to have recourse to the Employment Department of the Ministry of Labour, for the most part, a great proportion no doubt having had jobs kept open for them during the war.

Then there are those (partly skilled, partly unskilled) who had no definite jobs to return to and consequently went to the Employment Exchanges in search of work. Concerning these we have statistics extending from June 1918 to July 1919. During this period of 13 months the Exchanges succeeded in placing no less than 34,612 in first employment, and 2,280, who failed to keep their first jobs, in others. Over 6,200 of the first placings were in the industrial group known as "conveyance of men, goods and messages"; 6,000 in the engineering and ironfounding industry; nearly 4,900 in commercial pursuits and the food, drink and tobacco trades; 4,600 as general labourers, factory workers, etc; 2,700 in building and works of construction; 1,300 as workers in dress and 900 in the chemical and ammunition trades. Agricultural work absorbed comparatively few men; over the whole period — only 670 — but the proportion has been increasing, the last three months averaging over a 100.

These placings of disabled men have not been achieved without very strenuous work on the part of the special employment Exchanges dealing with men of this class and of the local Employment Committees. The canvassing of employers, in particular, has been vigorously kept up, and much progress has thereby been made in various neighbourhoods all over the Kingdom. Again, meetings of employers (and occasionally of workpeople also) have been called together, and the situation has been explained to them. Circular letters of appeal have been sent out to employers' associations. Lists of available men have been issued to firms or have been posted up in municipal buildings. In some places the picture theatres have been induced to throw an appeal on the screen.

Nevertheless, as the discharges from hospital continued and disabled men ceased to require constant medical care, the number of men coming to the Exchanges has grown beyond the power of the machinery to cope with, even when aided by such propaganda work as has just been mentioned, and there has been in the course of formation a residue of war sufferers for whom supplementary efforts are necessary.

These men are, to a great extent, unskilled men for whom no immediate jobs are open. A good proportion of them are men capable of acquiring skill, by training; and this brings us to the third part of the threefold process of resettlement.

In the spring of the present year the Ministry of Labour started to take over and reorganise the training facilities for disabled men, leaving to the Ministry of Pensions, which had hitherto had most of the work in hand, only the men still requiring medical attention. The result to the middle of August was that 10,725 men have received training, and 10,027 are still receiving it, in about 50 different trades or professions at various training centres, technical institutes, etc., under the Ministry of Labour scheme. This does not include men trained or in training at St. Dunstan's, at the Lord Roberts' Workshops, or under the Ministry of Munitions. The largest number of men under the scheme have received instruction in engineering, mechanical and electrical; in the boot and shoe trade; and in commercial pursuits — these occupations accounting for more than half of the 20,000 odd trained or now in training.

The great difficulty has been to provide the accommodation for the men requiring to be trained. It has been greatly increased lately, and new training-centres are being constantly opened all over the country. The cost is great; but that, of course, is not a prime consideration, in view of the necessity of the task. When new centres are acquired, they have still to be equipped, which takes from two to three months to do. In consequence, it is not possible yet to accommodate even the men anxious at the present moment for instruction.

The delay, however, has given time for the completion of negotiations with the representatives of the leading industries of the country, to ensure that there shall be no question of the disabled men being received into the trade for which they are trained. Also, it has enabled more generous financial arrangement to be made for those undergoing training, so that now, during training, they will get the full pension allowance given to an entirely disabled ex-service man, incapable of earning anything.

One more point remains. The ordinary work of the Exchanges and Employment Committees, in spite of persistent endeavours, has been unable, as has been said above, to cope fully with the stream of disabled men coming to them in search of employment. Some 40,000 men were on the "Live Register" of the Exchanges last month, in receipt of out-of-work donation; and this figure is bound to increase for some time to come, unless special steps, of a new character, are taken to reduce it. The Minister of Labour at Glasgow last week announced the coming of a new campaign, for the purpose of ensuring that employers throughout the country shall afford employment to a reasonable percentage of disabled men on their staffs. He said that, as a result of keeping in touch with large representations both of employers and of trade unions, an amount of agreement has been reached which gives the Government the greatest possible hope for the success of its scheme. It only now remains for the details of the scheme to be made public. Its object is that no disabled ex-service man who is capable of work of any kind shall be without it.

PROSPECTS OF THE MARK.

The financial Editor of "The Times" recently stated: Our attention has been drawn to an important factor, which, apparently, is not generally known, affecting the probable future course of German exchange. Private advices from Germany show that the German banks in the occupied territory are still subject to the devisen Ordnung, or control of exchange, which prohibits them from dealing in sterling or French francs. Consequently the banks have no holdings of sterling or French currency, and when the restriction is removed these banks, in order to finance the requirements of their customers, will be in the position of having to purchase sterling and other foreign currencies, in other words to sell marks. The resultant depreciation in the mark will be checked partly by the encouragement it will give to German export trade, but more particularly by the amount of credit Germany is able to obtain abroad. Foreign exchange experts are inclined to anticipate that the fall in the mark will be such that her export trade will be difficult to develop owing to the prohibitive cost of imports of raw materials with which to manufacture articles for export.

In the above extract from the "Times" the City Editor draws attention to one among the many influences which govern the external exchange value of the mark. The "deviser Ordnung" referred to was published in the Imperial German "Gesetzblatt" of 9th February, 1917 (since slightly amended) and, if we read it aright, the "Times" is not entirely correct in one particular. The order prohibits German banks from exporting—but not from all dealing in—negotiable instruments in Allied currency. As we all know they are now allowed to purchase such instruments, e.g., cheques, etc., as well as to deal in them in various other ways.

A-MAZE-MENT.

"Ever been lost, Ginger?"

This rather peculiar question caused four pairs of eyes to leave the magazines they had been drowsily surveying and regard the speaker with a careless inquisitiveness.

"Ever been lost? Eh," replied Ginger cautiously. "I suppose it's another catch-phrase of yours. Try somebody else for a change," and with these words his eyes once more fell to the book before him.

"Well," continued Nobby who by his enquiry had put reading temporarily out of the question, "Have you ever been in a Chinese puzzle, in plain language, a Maze?"

"Don't know," was the only response from the ultra-cautious Ginger. "And look here, it's nearly 'Lights Out,' and I want to finish this yarn. With chaps like you about, always interrupting, it makes a short story more like a serial, to be continued next week."

But Ginger's lack of interest was not shared by the others, who seemed to be rather glad than otherwise of an opportunity for conversation.

"I've been in a Maze," remarked one, evidently tired of reading. "It was at some sea-side pleasure town. That was a Maze if you like. A real Chinese puzzle. Harder to get out of than the Army, and just as much fun while you're in it."

"Yes, yes," interrupted Nobby, impatiently," but have you ever been in the Maze at Cologne?"

"Oh!" shouted Ginger, "Give him a drink and turn the lights out: he's going 'Stonewall Jackson,' Mazes! Chinese Puzzles!"

So saying, Ginger jumped out of bed and angrily switched off the lights.

* * *

Three nights later, in the same room, Ginger and his chums lay quietly reading. Suddenly, the silence was broken by a long drawn-out sigh from Ginger's quarter.

"Tired?" queried Nobby, affectionately.

"Yes, I'm dead fagged after this afternoon's episode," replied Ginger, yawning again. "The O.C. gave me a note to deliver at G.H.Q. Excelsior Hotel, and it took me an hour and a half to find the right room."

"Aw-aha ha ha . . . . . ." Nobby broke into spasms of violent laughter, and rolled about his bed in mirth.

"What's the matter with the idiot now?" the exasperated Ginger growled, "always laughing at other people's misfortunes."

"Experience is generally dear" replied Nobby, his mirth in no way abated.

"What do you mean?" demanded Ginger, hotly.

"Why!" continued the jubilant Nobby. "I told you there was a maze in Cologne? Who's going 'Stonewall Jackson' now, eh? Lost yourself, did you? Take rations, I should, if I were you, next time you go."

Ginger's head very slowly disappeared under the blankets, and all that disturbed the ensuing silence was an occasional ill-muffled sniggle from the beds.

CICERONE.

A RHINELAND FARMER.

Never was there a more pleasing prospect, long stretches of undulating pasture and arable land and an extensive wood in the background.

The farmhouse itself was fronting the highway and served a double purpose, for it was also an inn.

In front of it was a row of trees, to the right a well stocked orchard and at the back the usual farm buildings.

There was no outward trace of wealth and the house was meagrely furnished. The bar-parlour was the best room and in it was a fine antique table, also an excellent piano.

I often wondered what was the biggest source of revenue, the farm or the inn, for the parlour and the tap-room were always crowded with men who paid high prices for so called Rhine wine, an extra mild beer, and a kind of coloured water, guaranteed not to kill, supposed to be non-intoxicating.

To my astonishment I found that the farmer owned the freehold, and that the acreage of field and wood was so large that in England he would have been known by the dignified title of the Squire.

He was a tall powerful man with iron grey hair and a sullen face. He had a family of sturdy sons and buxom daughters. His wife, who was of comfortable proportions, managed the inn and his daughters not only served the customers, but attracted them.

They were, however, safely married as several Tommies with fraternising tendencies found out, and their husbands formed part of the household.

Farmers have always stood forth as the very semblance and type of independence, sturdy toil, and useful labour for the community at large, and this Rhineland farmer was no exception to the rule. He was the very embodiment of those lines:

"I care for nobody, no, not I,
And nobody cares for me."

He was envied and left severely alone by the village community, but what mattered it, so long as his inn was crowded with Tommies, and his fat bundle of soiled mark-notes increased! He was not a happy man and I wondered why.

I could not help contrasting him with a typical Yorkshire farmer I knew. This farmer had a beaming face and he was always singing. He used to say:

"I went out at 5 o'clock this morning, and the birds were singing so sweetly, and yet not one of them knew where its breakfast was coming from. I should have felt very ungrateful indeed, if I had not praised my Creator, for I knew that mine was frizzling in the oven, and would be ready for me directly I got back."

Again as I gazed upon his well-ordered farm, fine cattle and smiling fields, I thought of the lot of the farmers in the devastated area of the Somme battlefield. I knew some of them; they were thrifty and industrious and made our men as comfortable as they could.

This sullen looking Rhineland farmer knew not the terrors that he had escaped.

What thoughts must have occupied his mind as he gazed upon the crowd of laughing good-natured Tommies near his door? I leave him standing there and pass on my way.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

ADVERTISEMENTS MISSING.

Sir,—Personally I am in complete agreement with C.B.S. when he deplores the absence of advertisements in the Cologne trams.

To my mind they tend to remove the drabness of the interior of a tram in addition to giving the passenger something to think about instead of, as is frequently the case, leading him to quite unintentionally scrutinise his fellow passengers.

Imagine how dull the London Tube would be without the brightly coloured advertisements which adorn the cars.

LONDONER.

TAXI-FARES.

Sir,—I hope every effort will be made by Britishers to prevent German taxi-cab vampires from fleecing them and introducing into Cologne the abuse with which we were unfortunately only too familiar at French ports.

All that is required is a firm stand against any attempt to exact more than the legal fare. Once the German taxi-driver gets it into his head that he can impose upon the good nature of his English fare we shall see a repetition of the abuse which I have in mind.

Personal observation leads me to believe that we are spoiling the German in the matter of tips.

NIGHT HAWK.

THE MUZZLING OF DOGS.

Sir,—As a lover of dogs I am in accord with your correspondent who deplores the necessity for the muzzling of dogs.

From my own observation I am convinced that many animals are driven to the verge of madness by a muzzle. In the case of my own animal he paws at his muzzle, and when walking lowers his head as though he had some deep sense of shame.

This dog has never evinced the slightest degree of vice. Yet I suppose muzzling must continue.

A.A.

TEACHING THE TRUTH.

Sir,—The most important basis for the success of the League of Nations seems to me to have been forgotten.

The first article of the covenant of the League should have provided for the establishment of an international commission supervising the teaching of history in the schools.

Before the war history was taught in Germany with the one object of glorifying the Hohenzollern. Out of thirty young men who had been to a State school, only one knew that Bismarck had altered the Ems telegram which was the immediate pretext of the Franco-Prussian war.

Yesterday we read in the German papers that at Stettin school-boys went on strike because during the holidays, pictures of the Kaiser had been removed from the class rooms.

It is all right to send allied commissions supervising the disarmament of Germany, but what about commissions supervising the school-teaching? History is a science not an art; its object is truth and if the children are not taught the truth, Germany's young generation will have only one aim and that is: Revanche.

"Give me the youth and I will make peace" says a French writer somewhere. The Peace makers seem to have missed that point.

UN PARISIEN.

"VANITY FAIR."

Sir,—I quite realise that there are men with the sentiments of "Mere Man," but I hope the majority would be too chivalrous to declare them publicly.

Does "Mere Man" ever buy things at the canteens? Does he not think that the women who are doing auxiliary work of various kinds in occupied Germany, not to mention those who give their services gratuitously for his benefit, deserve this thoughtful concession?

The fact that he regards the other sex as negligible encourages the assumption that he has been hibernating for the past few years!

N.A.C.B. WORKER.

"THE OUTDOOR LIFE."

Sir,—I have read with great interest the scheme proposed by Brig.-Gen. Critchley, and would like to suggest that other ranks of the service with similar enthusiasm for a healthy, novel and sporting life might also have their chance. There are many of us, both demobilized and awaiting discharge who know that, after the excitement of four years of war, to settle down to the monotony of our pre-war existence will be practically impossible.

It is naturally not essential to have either the great Mexican pampas, the periodical interruption of brigands or rebels to arouse our enthusiasm, there are just as wonderful prospects in other parts of our own Empire which, under the hands of willing men, would prove both an ideal life to some of us and a beneficial one, too.

It would, perhaps, be interesting to know if other readers share my views on the matter. No doubt, as ordinary private and servicemen, the financial part of the scheme would be rather more complicated, and here, perhaps, the Government might take a hand in the matter to encourage these willing pioneers to make good, and also help the old country for which they have undergone such a lot.

P.H.

FACE THE SUN.

Don't hunt after trouble, but look for success;
You'll find what you look for, don't look in distress:
If you see but your shadow, remember, I pray,
That the sun is still shining, but you're in the way.

Don't grumble, don't bluster, don't dream and don't shirk,
Don't think of your troubles, but think of your work;
Your troubles will vanish, the work will be done;
No one sees the shadow who faces the sun.

A BATTERY CELEBRATION

"D" 168/Bde. R.F.A. Make Merry at Limperich.

SUCCESSFUL SPORTS SEASON.

On Friday evening the members of D/168 Bde. R.F.A. celebrated the close of a most successful season of sport by holding a dinner and concert in the hall of the Ratskeller, Limperich. The Commanding Officer, Major Williams, presided at the function.

Proceedings opened at 6.30. An excellent dinner had been arranged by Lieut. Rivett during which an orchestra from Bonn added to the enjoyment by a splendid selection of music. The dinner was followed by an impromptu concert. Major Williams in a few prefatory remarks, congratulated the Battery on its wonderful sporting record. The Battery had lost only one cricket match, he said; it had gained the lion's share of the prizes at the 168 Bde. R.F.A. Sports and maintained its high reputation by talking 2 firsts and 3 thirds at the Lancashire Divisional Gymkana.

Numerous volunteers contributed to the musical part of the programme, the officers being much in evidence. Those who especially distinguished themselves as mirth provokers were Major Williams, Capt. Howard, Lieut. Rivett, B.S.M King and Gnr. Morris. Dvr. Wilshire and Davis also sang well. The orchestra was very much appreciated and contributed greatly to the success of the concert by readily adapting itself to the accompaniment of English songs.

Before closing, Major Williams thanked all those who had worked for the success of the Battery at sport and also those who had been untiring in their efforts to make the evening such a success, Lieut. Tombs as Sports Officer and his able assistants B.S.M. King and Sgt. Derbyshire were heartily cheered. The Battery also showed its appreciation of Lieut. Rivett's work in making such splendid catering arrangements and in the tasteful decoration of the hall.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close an evening which will always be looked back upon with pleasure by all associated with D/168.

77 S. BTY.'S FAREWELL FUNCTION.

Dinner and Concert: Presentation to Capt. Harvey.

Prior to a number of the men of 77 Siege Battery being demobilized, a farewell dinner and concert was held on Friday evening. The room and tables were very tastefully decorated. Dinner was served at 7 p.m. The usual order of things was somewhat reversed, the men sitting down while the sergeants acted as waiters. A splendid dinner was served, after which the room was cleared and re-arranged for the concert. The O.C. of the Battery, Major Halifax M.C., took the chair, supported by Capt. Harvey and the officers of the Battery.

The toasts "The King" "The O.C." and "The Skipper" were given with musical honours. B.S.M. Craig, in a few well chosen words, presented Capt. Harvey on behalf of the N.C.O.'s and men of the Battery with a silver cup as a token of respect and appreciation of the good fellowship which had existed while he had been sports officer.

Lieut. Kay gave a fine exhibition of card manipulation and Bdr. Harling was quite a favourite as "Charlie Chaplin." Songs were given by Capt. Harvey, Sgt. Demmon, Bdrs. West and Harrison, Gunners Gunson, Anderson, Hirst, Mullock, Baxter and Eogleson, while recitals and monologues were rendered by Cpl. Funnell Bdr. Edwards and Sig. Ramsden. Gunners Gunson and Hirst were the accompanists. A most successful and pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem. Great credit is due to Bdr. Harrison for the able manner in which everything was carried out, he having had all the arrangements in hand.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

Are there any pessimists now about the boom in football? Even in August, the holiday season, the crowds were well up to the average even at a "bob" a head.

* * *

And the games were worth the "bob." The mighty fell and the weak were made strong with the stimulus of victory. One thing is pretty certain even at this early stage, and that is, the pace is going to be hot and the game very open. No team is going to have a cakewalk like Everton and Notts did last season.

* * *

Aston Villa hope to have the services this winter of R.A. Sloley, the Cambridge University and Corinthian forward. Sloley played for Brentford during the war.

* * *

Mention of Brentford recalls the fact that they made a profit of £1,962 in 1918—19. The amount of Entertainment Tax paid was £1,380.

* * *

Lot Jones, the Welsh International and Manchester City inside-left, has been secured by Southend United, a Southern League club, while Tom Barber who scored the goal by which Aston Villa defeated Sunderland in the Cup Final some years ago, is this season to play for Stalybridge Celtic.

* * *

Sheffield United possess one of the soundest teams from stem to stern in the whole country, and provided they reproduce the form shown in the opening game, ought to do well this season.

* * *

Up at Highbury they are hopeful that the Arsenal will settle down into a really good side. The North-London team look a well balanced lot rather than a team of two or three bright blazing stars backed up by a collection of mediocrities.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Wednesday, September 10th, 1919. Wind light and variable in direction. Misty morning, fair warm day. Visibility indifferent.

TO-DAY'S CLASSIC.

Buchan Likely To Start Hot St. Leger Favourite.

BAYUDA SCRATCHED.

The Doncaster St. Leger being run to-day has given rise to a succession of sensations. Late last week Sir Douglas and Tangiers, two much fancied horses, were scratched and this has now been followed by the withdrawal of Bayuda, a stable companion of Buchan and another foremost candidate. This is indeed a regrettable happening as it will rob the race of much of its attraction. The last classic is cutting up badly and it looks as if the field will be the smallest seen at Doncaster since Bayardo beat six opponents ten years ago.

The Manton trainer is certainly to be congratulated in announcing the filly's withdrawal with such promptitude. "Betting" on the St. Leger left a nasty taste when it was known that two of the horses quoted—Tangiers and Sir Douglas—had been withdrawn from the race.

With so many of Barling's horses coughing it would not be surprising to hear that Dominion had been scratched, and it looks as if Buchan will start one of the hottest Doncaster favourites we have had for many years. But, even in face of Buchan, there is a growing belief at Newmarket that Viceroy will make a big bid to win King George his first classic race.

Viceroy went extremely well when galloped with Jutland and Pesaro over the St. Leger distance on Saturday, and many of the Newmarket experts are forsaking Pomme de Terre and Keysoe for the King's colt. His form this season—two victories and a second—will certainly bear inspection, and in such a lean year anything can happen.

ENGLISH FOOTBALL.

Brief Comments on Saturday's League Games.

There were some strange reversals of form in Saturday's League football, but the outstanding fact was that the north-east coast clubs had another good day, Sunderland, Newcastle, and Middlesbrough repeating their victories over their victims of last week.

Sunderland's victory by three clear goals at Aston was a bombshell for the Villa.

Oldham Athletic took revenge from West Bromwich Albion, and Derby County, after drawing at home with Manchester United, went to Old Trafford and won by 2—0.

Tottenham Hotspur go on their way rejoicing, and the best that can be said of Coventry is that they put up a game fight against odds, and succeeded in spoiling.

In a drawn game at New Cross, each side scoring once, Milwall had the greater share of the play, and were unlucky not to win. During the first half-hour some fine combination was shown, but afterwards play suggested the old Cup-tie days.

The better balanced team, Watford on their own ground, completely outplayed Crystal Palace and won by the decisive margin of four goals to one.

At Homerton, before 12,000 spectators, Clapton Orient were again defeated by the narrow margin of a goal.

Showing fine form at Fratton Park, the Portsmouth team gained a decisive victory over Norwich City by three goals to nil.

In sunny, but windy weather, Cardiff City met Southampton in the first Southern League match at Cardiff, when the game resulted in a win for the City by three goals to nil.

Lincoln City and West Ham drew in London last week, and for the return game West Ham had many changes.

There were not many thrills in the early part of the game at St James's Park, Newcastle, where 45,000 spectators saw the Arsenal beaten by three goals to one.

In glorious weather at Newport, before 7,000 spectators, Newport County met Brentford in a Southern League match, the result being a victory for Brentford by four goals to two.

Playing at home before 5,000 people, Exeter City gained a hard-earned victory over Luton Town by three goals to two. The conditions favoured good football, and play throughout was interesting.

Queen's Park Rangers, who had won and drawn away, opened their season at home, when they drew Reading on the Loftus-road ground at Shepherd's Bush.

On the County ground at Northampton the home side met Southend United before a good crowd. The result was in favour of Northampton, who won by two goals to one.

Chelsea quite failed to live up to the high standard of their opening game at Stamford Bridge, when they were fairly and squarely beaten by Everton before a disappointed crowd of 60,000 spectators.

ROSS AND LEDOUX.

Walter Ross, our bantam champion, is to realise the ambition of his life by engaging in battle with Charles Ledoux. To get this match for Ross, Mr. Thomas Queen was prepared to wager £1,000 to £800 on our champion's chance of victory.

Ledoux and Ross are to meet at the Nouveau Cirque, Paris, on Wednesday, October 1.

OUR CRICKET CUP—THE RUNNERS-UP—93rd BDE.R.G.A.

From left to right the players are: Standing:—Bdr. Bloomfield, Cpl. Heuchan, Sgt. Barker, Gnr. Palliser. Sitting:—Bdr. Ellis, Bdr. Rushton, Maj. MacLeod, Gnr. Weight, Sig. Smythe. Front:—Cpl. Bowden, Gnr. Norton.

"R" BAT'Y., A.A., C.P.C. RECORD.

Only Team To Defeat The Cup Winners.

We publish below the batting and bowling averages of the "R" Battery, A.A. cricket team in the "Cologne Post" Cup Competition. "R" Battery were the runners-up in the Cologne Town League and are the only team boasting the distinction of having defeated the 17th Lancers, the winners of the cup.

The analyses are appended:—

Batting.

	No. of Inns.	Not out	Hgst. Score	No. of runs	Average
Bdr. Whitehouse	19	2	57	458	26.94
Bdr. Dewey	16	3	58+	263	20.23
Cpl Slape	14	1	69+	196	15.08
Gnr. Corbyn	17	2	46+	192	13.71
Cpl. Jones	17	3	66	171	13.15

Bowling.

	O.	M.	W.	R.	Average
Bdr. Whitehouse	165	37	82	361	4.40
Cpl. Slape	119	27	47	324	6.89

It will be seen that Bdr. Whitehouse has almost as good a record as any player in the "Cologne Post" Cup Competition. He has been the mainstay of the side.

Their victory against the 17th Lancers was almost entirely due to him, for he made 53 runs out of a total of 126 and took 8 wickets for 39 runs, a very fine performance against such a redoubtable side. On five occasions he scored over 50 runs; his best bowling performance was against the Cavalry Div. H.Q. who finished very near the top of the League. In that match he took 9 wickets for 18 runs. Other notable performers were Cpl. Slape, both in batting and bowling, Bdr. Dewey, Gnr. Corbyn and Cpl. Jones, in batting.

Bdr. Dewey kept wicket throughout season and averaged only 4 extras per match.

OUR CRICKET COMPETITION.

29th M.G.C. and "R" Battery A.A. add their Meed of Thanks.

We publish two more appreciations of our Cricket Competition.

Major Harding of the 29th M.G.C. says:—

On behalf of the team of the 29th M.G.C. I should like to thank you for supplying the "Cologne Post" Cricket Competition. The Competition has undoubtedly been a great success throughout and has produced the very best kind of cricket.

The team join me in congratulating you on the success of your tournament.

"R" A.A. Battery's Tribute.

The sports officer of "R" Battery A.A. says:—

I would like to say how much we have appreciated and are grateful to you for your Competition. Speaking for all the players I can assure you that the hours we have spent playing in your competition will rank amongst the best times spent in Cologne.

I wish to convey to you the very heartiest thanks of the Battery. Speaking personally I feel very proud of the team, for to finish second to a side like the 17th Lancers, is, I think, a real good performance for a fairly small unit.

NATIONAL CYCLING CHAMPION.

In the one mile national cycling championship race at Herne Hill, W. A. Ormston (holder) lost his title to H. E. Ryan. These two Polytechnicians finished a length apart, in 2m. 46 4-5s. W. G. Stewart, of the Kentish Wheelers, was third.

FOOTBALL SHIELD.

Entries for Kalk Y.M.C.A. Competition Close To-morrow.

To-morrow is the last day for the receipt of entries for the football shield competition being organized by Lieut. J. Woods under the auspices of the Kalk branch of the Y.M.C.A. A good number of entries have already been received, but there is still room for more. This competition, which will only last three weeks, is likely to be very successful and what is more will probably be the only one of its kind in Rhineland before Christmas. Don't miss it! The competition is open to any unit within ten miles of Kalk. All infantry battalions, brigades of artillery, cavalry units, etc., are eligible. An entrance fee of 100 marks, to be remitted before draw takes place, i.e., Friday September 12th, at the Offices of the "Cologne Post," is required. The competition will be run on the knock-out principle and matches will be played on the ground of the first named team. Teams will arrange for neutral referees and will see that the results of games are forwarded to Lieut. Wood, 93 Bde R.C.A. Kalk.

SPORTING SOCCER.

A very enjoyable game was played at Ohligs on Sunday afternoon between the 51st Rifle Brigade and Light Divisional M.T. Coy. resulting in a a draw 1-1. The kick-off was taken at 14.30 hrs by Lieut. Golding (sports officer for the latter unit).

The R.B.'s. backs (Lt. J. Lamont and Pte Hardmann, also the centre half-back (Lieut. W.H. Taggart) are deserving of special mention for a sparkling display of football, whilst Pte Wright at centre-half, and Boyd, right-half, played splendidly for the M.T. Coy.

A very pleasing feature of the match was the sporting character displayed by both sides throughout a fast game; the exceptionally hot weather failed to ruffle the temper of a single player.

"BEASTLY PRIZE FIGHTS".

Free Church Council President on Boxing.

At the meeting of the National Free Church Council held at Northampton, Dr. A. T. Guttery, the president, uttered a general gird against sport and against boxing in particular, though he did not call it boxing, but "beastly prize fights" and "pugilism." He denied a statement that our national character owed much of its strength to pugilism—it was, he said a slander upon our race. One thing that seemed to hurt him greatly was the idea that boxers made greater incomes than Prime Ministers.

£590 GOLF TOURNEY.

Northern and Midland Qualifying Competitions.

Under the auspices of the Professional Golfers' Association, the Northern and Midland sections have held their qualifying competitions in order to ascertain the names of those who will take part in the match play stages of the £590 "News of the World" tournament at Walton Heath on September 29 and following days.

FOR BATTALION CUP.

Keen Struggle at 52nd Northumberlands' Sports.

C. COY.'S THREE POINTS WIN.

The 52nd Bn. Northumberland Fusiliers held a very successful sports meeting at the Poller Wiesen Grounds on Wednesday last. Glorious weather prevailed, and the keenly contested events maintained the interest of a large number of spectators. The Band of the Battalion played selections during the afternoon and evening.

Intense excitement was shown in the contest for the Battalion Cup, which was eventually won by "C" Coy with 28 points, "B" Coy running up to a close finish with 25 points.

The prize for the individual competition was claimed by Cpl. Armitage and Pte. Schofield, both of whom gained 9 points each. It was decided to award prizes to each of the winners.

The Prizes were presented by Mrs. Hartley, the wife of the Commanding Officer, Lt.-Col. J. C. Hartley, D.S.O.

The results were:—

Mule race:—1, Cpl. Cawkwell; 2, Pte. Kennedy; 3, Pte. Jackson.

100 yards (officers handicap):—1, Major Palmer; 2, Lt.-Col. J. C. Hartley.

ARMY RIFLE MEETING.

Result of First Day's Shooting at Drove on Monday.

For the first day of the Army Rifle Meeting at Drove the weather was fine, the shooting of a high standard and the competition keen.

The competition continues each day this week and on Saturday the prizes will be distributed by the Commander-in-Chief.

The first day's results are as follows:—

Individual event No. 1, 200 yards slow:—1, Capt. King, M.G. Corps, 22; 2, 2 Lieut. Bissett, 5th R. Irish, 21; 3, L/Cpl. Muckle, 12th R. Irish Rifles, 21; 4, Pte. Knox, 51st H.L.I., 20.

Individual event No. 2, 200 yards rapid:—1, C.Q.M.S. Croucher, 19th Middlesex, 41; 2, R.S.M. Norris, 5th Hants, 37; 3, Lieut. Moyes, 53rd R. Warwicks, 37; 4, Cpl. Bolland, 53rd Rifle Bde., 36.

Individual event No. 3, 200 yards snapshooting:—1, Lieut. Felgate, 28rd Middlesex, 17; 2, Rfm. Gray, 6th London Regt., 16; 3, Sergt. Cromack, X. Corps Cyclists, 14; 4, R.S.M. Jagger, 20th K.R.R.C., 14.

Lewis Gun, traversing, 300 yards:—1, Pte. Wolley, 52nd Kings, 143; 2, Sergt. Smith, 13th K.R.R.C., 131; 3, Rfm. Martin, 13th K.R.R.C., 115; 4, L/Cpl. Stanley, 7th Middlesex, 113.

Pool Shooting, Unlimited Entry, 200 yards rapid:—R.S.M. Jaggers, 2/Lieut. Bissett, Pte. Lynch, L/Cpl. Cooper, Pte. Lutteridge.

GOLF CHAMPION AT HOLLINWELL.

Harry Vardon (South Herts), the open champion, Abe Mitchell (Sonning), George Duncan (Hanger Hill), ex-French champion, and Tom Williamson (Notts), ex-Midland champion, competed on the Nottinghamshire Club's course at Hollinwell on Saturday. The four professionals engaged in a stroke competition in the forenoon, when Vardon was partnered by the local man and Duncan by Mitchell.

Williamson played steady, though not brilliant, golf, and won the stroke event with a score of 75. Duncan was second with 77, Vardon third with 79, and Mitchell took 80.

In the four ball match in the afternoon, Vardon and Williamson opposed Duncan and Mitchell. The latter couple played the better golf, and after standing three up at the turn they won handsomely by 5 up and 3 to play.

Married v. Single.

Another football match between the married and single R.A.M.C. 42 Stationary Hospital, was played on Sunday, and the married men were once again successful by 2 goals to one.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

"The Jocks" in Cologne.

If you want to see something new in vaudeville go to the Palace Theatre and see "The Jocks" (Liverpool Scottish Concert Party) from Antwerp. I dropped in at the Herzogstrasse house last evening in a particularly critical turn of mind; but I found very little to criticise. The show was bright, well staged, musical and quite unlike anything I had previously seen. There was an atmosphere of originality that was very refreshing after the vague plagiarisms practised by some of the inferior parties floating around.

Real Comedians.

What struck me most was the wealth of comedy in the show; they have three comedians, Matchett, Collis and Rimmer, each a host in himself. The comedy duet of Matchett and Collis in the "Italiano" number was one of the funniest things I have seen, while the Spanish dancer burlesque by Billy Matchett positively brought down the house. Rimmer, a light comedian, sings songs of the "Gilbert the Filbert" order. The singing and dancing of E. Du Rocher is a feature of the performance. P. Casson, who has a pleasing voice, and A. McPhail Blair, a Scotch character delineator, complete the male caste.

The Perfect Girl.

Since the days of Berl Errol at Lille there have been but few perfect female impersonators. "The Jocks," however, have a girl (Peggy) C. Coonan, whose style, though hardly commedienne-ish, is faultless in mannerism. Coonan has a fine soprano voice and in the love scene from the "Chu Chin Chow" burlesque with Casson he uses it to great advantage. The party, by the way, have their own orchestra under the direction of W. Daniel. Candidly it is one of the brightest shows that has visited Cologne and it would pay you to book your seat well in advance.

The Quaint One.

G. Tollemache, "The Quaint One" of the "Crumps" (London Division Concert Party, who is depicted here, in answer to numerous enquiries, desires it to be known that he is not of French descent, as his name (George Tolle de Nache) on the programme seemingly implies. On the contrary he was born and bred in Leeds, and as near to George Formby, as anyone who has seen him would imagine. In the days when everything English is boomed, I can understand Tollemache wishing to make this point quite clear.

The Leading "Imp."

One of the most versatile entertainments in Rhineland amusements is that given by the "Imps," Light Divisional R. A. Party. This happy band of seven entertainers devote their attention both to the classical and comedy side of vaudeville. Their leader, Sgt. E. V. Ward, a tenor of exceptional ability, has had much experience, and his renderings from the platforms of Queen's Hall and Albert Hall, London, have been greatly appreciated in the days before war took him to the battlefields of France.

In few words.

Ernie Roberts, the comedian of the "Tabs," is leaving, I hear, on Wednesday for England, demobbed.

The Rhine Army Dramatic Company have had a very successful first night at Antwerp.

Collis, who incidently is not billed among the caste of "The Jocks," specially delayed his demob, to make the journey to Cologne.

What is Barker the violinist doing now? He is not figuring so prominently before the public as of yore.

JACQUES.

BECKETT AND CARPENTIER.

Deschamps denies Rumour that they will not Meet.

M. Descamps, Carpentier's manager, denies that Carpentier has given up his meeting with Beckett, and asserts that the match arranged for September 2 did not take place because of Carpentier's military duties.

"After November 10," added M. Descamps, "Carpentier will be ready to meet Beckett, and the earlier the date the better, as Mr. C. B. Cochran has promised a handsome purse for the match, and the victor will meet Dempsey for the world's championship."

BOXING AT ANTWERP.

At the emburkation camp, Antwerp, on Saturday before a huge crowd, Pte. Hughes, R.A.S.C., G.H.Q., Rhine Army, met the Belgian feather-weight in a six-round contest and beat him comfortably on points.

Pte. Parker, Liverpool Scottish, met the Belgian heavy-weight and just managed to win on points.

Major Delany, O.B.E., Superintendent of the P. and R. T., Rhine Army, was the referee.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Prophecy Dangerous.

Football form is in a tangle already, and the prophet's task is anything but an enviable one.

Amateur Opening.

Although the weather was a little too warm for football, the leading amateur clubs opened the season very successfuly on Saturday.

A Great Keeper.

Attack used to bring victory to Fulham usually. In the Clapham Orient match the side owed almost everything to Nixon, the goalkeeper, who, though finely covered by backs and halves, had a rare lot to do.

A Spoke in Millwall's Wheel.

Plymouth put a spoke into Millwall's wheel of progress at New Cross by sharing the points. It was a rather unexpected set-back to the home supporters, for they were on rather good terms with themselves after the three points gained away from home by their favourites.

Quoits Championship.

The 18yds championship of England final between H. Kirby (London) and James Hood (Liverpool) has been fixed to be played on the Custom House Club ground on Sept. 20, at 3.30. In addition to the championship the players are having a side stake of £25 each. On Monday, at 6 o'clock.

Unlucky Lady.

Mrs. Arthur James has not been a lucky lady in racing since she took over her late husband's horses.

Rabbit Coursing.

There was another big crowd at the Hussey Arms Grounds, Brownhills, when the concluding stages of Mr. E.G. Bray's £90 open sweepstakes, held under "Sporting Life" rules, were decided.

Boy McCormick for Australia.

The holder of the Lonsdale light heavyweight belt, Boy McCormick, left Euston on Thursday morning en route for Australia, under contract with the Stadium management at Sydney for five contests.

Jockey's Death.

We regret to learn of the death in Paris of the ex-steeplechase jockey, Claud Reeves, who rode with marked success in France from 1896 to 1900. Reeves rode Tancarville to victory for Count de la Bouteliere in the Grand Steeplechase of 1899.

Not Entertaining.

The 45,000 spectators who attended the Newcastle United—Arsenal match at Newcastle found little entertainment in the first half-hour's play. For the most part the home team were acting on the offensive, but their attack lacked finish and sting.

Steve Bloomer Again.

Steve Bloomer, the old Derby County and international forward, and for many seasons a terror to goalkeepers, turned out for the County reserves in a Midland League match against Ilkeston United.

A Cycling Revival.

The meeting of champions, organised by the National Cyclists Union, which, until the outbreak of war, was an annual gathering, was revived at Herne Hill, fully 5,000 persons being present.

Busy Beckett.

Joe Beckett apparently does not mean to let the grass grow under his feet. It is stated that he is willing to box Dick Smith a return match in between now and his bout with Carpentier.

Criqui' Money Posted.

"Sporting Life" have received a cheque for £300 on behalf of Eugene Criqui for his match at Holborn Stadium on Sept. 18 with Walter Ross for £200 a side. The other £100 is to go as weight forfeit, the match being made at 8st 6lb.

Forest's New Centre.

Notts Forest had a new centre forward in their League match with Rotherham County on Saturday at Nottingham. He is Harry Bedford, who created a favourable impression on his rare appearances in first-class football last season.

Encouraging.

The number of offers of prizes in connection with aeronautics that have been made since the cessation of hostilities is really encouraging.

Donoghue May Ride This Week.

Donoghue, who turned up at Derby last week, stated that his wrist is going on splendidly, and it is quite on the cards that he will resume riding again at Doncaster this week.

George Clark K.O.

In a twenty-rounds contest Fred Jones, of Rushden, beat George Clark, of Bermondsey, in the fifteenth round after a fine contest. Clark was leading on points when knocked out.

Leicester's New Goalkeeper.

Leicester City have secured the transfer of Aston Villa's reserve goalkeeper, B. Anstey, who some seasons ago was in the Villa's first team, but who has since then been kept rather in the background by the brilliance of Hardy.

Prince Albert And Athletics.

Prince Albert, in a letter expressing his regret at not being able to be present at the Demobilised Sailors' and Soldiers' Sports Festival at Stamford Bridge on September 17 and 18, states that he is keenly interested in the idea of an annual sports festival such as that.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

A Tragic Tower.

Many British soldiers will have noted on their walks along the river not far from Deutscher Ring a small tower, which has a very dark history. Here in the time of the early middle ages prisoners were kept and put to death in a most cruel manner. They were taken into a room from which escape was quite impossible. The room was quite bare of everything except a loaf of white bread which was hanging on a piece of string from the ceiling so high that the prisoner had to jump for it. He was quite aware that by jumping for the bread the floor would give way and precipitate him into a machinery below which would cut him into pieces and distribute his remains to the fishes in the Rhine. So the poor fellow awaited his death either through starvation or when he in his ravenous hunger desperately jumped for the white bread, the machinery making an end of his pains. The tower is called "Weck-Schnapp" (Jump for it).

The Dragon's Rock.

Many who have visited the Drachenfels, or Dragon's Rock, one of the Seven Mountains of Bonn, may not know that the stone for the Cathedral of Cologne was furnished by the quarries there, from the fourteenth to the nineteenth century. As, however, they menaced the safety of the Castle, they were purchased in 1836 by the Prussian Government, which also erected the retaining walls. The origin of the name "Drachenfels" refers to the legend of the slaying of a dragon there by "Siegfried."

The New Art.

The cult of the ultra-modern in art has developed to a quite alarming extent in Germany. In its various forms of futurism, cubism and so on, it had a very short vogue in England although it, of course, left indelible marks here and there, and devoted adherents out to pull down every convention. Here in Germany it has invaded and penetrated into the very life of the people. Pictures, statuary, bric-a-brac, book covers and illustrations, posters on the hoardings, advertisement-designs in the press, furniture, draperies and hangings, all are futurist in inspiration or intent, some would say with foul intent. That, of course, is a matter of opinion, although one must admit that whatever there may be in this tortured art, in some way or other it seems to appeal very strongly to the cultured intellectual classes.

Commendation.

Another act of courage is recorded. It occurred last month when a fire broke out at No. 14 G.H.Q. Reserve M.T. Company Lorry Park. Lance-Corporal Mark Hewlett, R.A.S.C., turned out the guard, of which he was in charge, and starting a lorry which was on fire, drove it out of the lines, thus preventing the fire spreading. Although badly burned whilst doing this, he returned and took charge of his guard for the remainder of his tour of duty.

Observed.

Has anybody ever thought how the trees which grow along the footpaths in Cologne receive their nourishment. They are tightly embedded at the bottom in the cement or other material of which the footpath is composed, and thus a very small proportion of moisture can reach the roots from the surface. In Paris we find the bottom of the tree enclosed in a circular iron grid about three feet in diameter. This allows rain or other water to get directly to the roots of the trees, and at any time the grid may be easily taken up and fresh soil put in. Several readers are rather curious to know if any other provision has been made here. Perhaps it is that the trees are planted at a big depth from the surface.

Withdrawing notes.

It is notified that all fifty-mark notes issued by the Reichsbank, bearing the date October 20th 1918, will shortly be called in and exchanged for a newer issue. In the meantime, to prevent financial loss, all W.O.'s, N.C.O.'s and men having in their possession these notes should hand them over to the Camp Commandant who will exchange them.

Below par.

The falling value of the mark has brought about some fine points for secretaries of War Savings Assns. to consider. During last week an enterprising depositor approached a secretary with a beaming smile on his face. The secretary thought his rich aunt had died, and he was going to deposit the realization of her estate in War Savings. But that wa not so. This enterprising investor came to the point immediately. "I want," he said, "to exchange my certificates for German marks." "Oh, do you?" queried the official. "What do you think I am, a stockbroker or what?"

A Roof Notion.

A scrutiny of the buildings with steep roofs in Germany reveals to the observer rows of iron hooks fixed firmly in the main supports at about a yard's interval. The chief reason for these, one must presume, is safety for the workman repairing the slating. As far as we know this idea is not utilised in England and a correspondent remarks that if such precautions for persons working on these elevated inclines were adopted they would be greatly appreciated by the workers in the building trade in England.

New Cafe Regulations.

Cafes and restaurants are open to all Officers and Warrant Officers till 23.00 hours daily, and to N.C.O.'s and men in possession of a pass authorizing them to be absent from their quarters after 22.30 hours. Warrant Officers are permitted to be absent from their billets until midnight without passes. Permanent passes may be issued to N.C.O.'s and men, up to midnight, by C.O.s, and daily passes up to 23.00 hours or midnight by Company Commanders.

Re-echoes.

It is possible to "express" telegrams in Germany by paying an extra fee. One rather wonders how long an ordinary peace-time telegram takes in delivery. To "express" a telegram in England in pre-war days would certainly present rather a problem to our postal authorities.

If there is one thing more than another in which the British Cavalry and Artillery man is pre-eminent it is the care of his horses, and the condition of our animals in the horseline in Rhineland evokes the admiration of all Germans.

The custom of shaving the head may have the merit of cleanliness, but it does not enhance a man's personal appearance. It is greatly in vogue among Germans old and young, however.

Kite flying seems to be an extremely popular pastime with the youngsters in Rhineland and just now appears to be almost rivalling diabolo in favour.

A fact which has struck an English visitor to the Rhine for the first time is the care which the fraulein, with the assistance of the friseur, bestows upon her hair. Perhaps the fashion of going about hatless has something to do with this.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give two prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Sgt. A.Crickmore C/245 Bde. R.F.A. Rhine Army, and Bmdr. Silcocks, R.G.A. Rhine Army.

NOTES FROM LONDON TOWN.

LONDON'S BEACH.

Yielding to the staccato importunities of a Colonial who has been pestering me to furnish him with some "real cute snapshots" of London life, I chartered a row boat on the Serpentine this noon, and sculled my Colonial and inseparable Kodak across to London's sea beach. At one o'clock to the tick, the hordes of Cockney school boys and girls are permitted—in their respective sectors—to strip off and plunge into the water. About three thousand boys, of all imaginable sizes, colours and patterns, and several hundred girls were waiting on the hour of the Serpentine bath. Three or four policeman of eminently paterfamilias aspects, armed with exquisitely flicky canes, kept watch and ward over the brigade of boys, all of whom were stripped to the skin, and sitting on their boots hours before the London clocks began to strike one. The girls—some of whom sport bathing dresses which make them look exactly like plump wasps—were just as keen. And as we simmered in the heat off the shore in the boat, I had the satisfaction of knowing that my Colonial photographer was being worried by a constant fusilade of "Eh, misters! What's the time?" Once there was an immense sensation. The senior "bobby" had been seen glancing at his wrist watch! Another time my companion, who was getting bored, nearly caused a mutiny by reporting that it was "Ten past one!". Altogether we had a very good time.

SEASIDE ECHOES OF WAR.

A friend who has been staying at a popular West Country seaside holiday resort tells me that he found the aftermath of the war unexpectedly in evidence even in that part of the country. It was quite remarkable to note how many silver buttons decorated the coats of all sorts and conditions of men on the beach. And the marks of shrapnel wounds were a familiar feature of the mise-en-scene round about the bathing vans. It was strange to note how well some fearfully lamed men were able to swim. The salt water and the exercise seemed to work miracles. But these were not the only relics of the Great Adventure even on that far away Devonshire coast. One evening, when there was a very high tide and the sea was rough with crested waves, my friend was sitting indoors playing a hand at Auction Bridge. Suddenly, about ten o'clock, there was the noise of a shattering detonation from seaward, and the houses shook. The general exclamation was "What's that!" But the only resi ent member of the party said quite prosaically "Oh, it's probably one of those drifting mines!" The coast has been swept by mine-searchers, but they reported the presence of several they could not secure.

BILLSTICKERS-IN-ARMS.

Probably the big country cities are as familiar as London with a certain patent food advertisement which figures largely on the street hoardings, and a striking feature of which, besides a small bull, is a map of the world. I saw two billstickers at work pasting up one of these pictorial aids to commerce on a London hoarding this week. They had nearly finished the job, and were standing side by side on two adjacent ladders, paste buckets and brushes in hand. Something queer about their movements arrested my notice, and on a close glance it appeared one of the men was elaborately explaining to the other by means of his brush and the map exactly how he made the voyage to Syria, and the strategic movements by which Allenby overthrew the Turks. Both men were wearing war ribbons on their coats. The incident struck me as typical of the times. Nowadays even our billstickers are travelled people. Here were two veterans side by side on ladders in the teeming London street fighting their battles o'er again, the Western front man deeply interested in the Eastern campaigns of his chum and oblivious to all the workaday world around them. But what a contrast between the mediaevel Crusader, whose effigy with crossed legs fascinates the American tourists in the quiet Temple Church, and the modern ex-Crusader billsticking in the Strand! The romance is not all on the side of the mediaeval Templar, one imagines.

OVERCROWDED HOLIDAY TRAINS.

Everybody is complaining bitterly of the shockingly overcrowded state of the holiday trains. It has been the common experience all through August that not only were all seats occupied on almost all the trains but the corridors were full up with passengers, too. On long journeys this is not only inconvenient but dangerous. And this condition cannot be entirely due to shortage of rolling stock, because I am informed that never before have the holiday trains been as a rule so long. Some people want to know whether the country has suddenly become overcrowded. But any experienced railway official can tell you that the explanation is not overcrowding of population but the amazing prosperity of the masses during the war. People are now taking distant holidays who never before went far afield. The trains are crowded with well dressed women who have obtained a new social outlook during the war. The standard of luxury has been suddenly raised for hundreds of thousands of lower middle class and working class people. And in spite of the heavier charges for travel there are many more people now travelling than ever before. One notes, too, that the cheap jewellry formerly worn has now been replaced by quite expensive rings and brooches. And whereas the men mostly wear older holiday clothes than formerly, their women folk are always arrayed in the latest notions of what is "fashionable."

SINISTER SEPTEMBER.

The grey skies and intermittent damp heats and chills of early September are playing havoc with the nerves and digestions of Londoners. Perfectly healthy people returning from holiday complain of lassitude and depression. Doctors ascribe the trouble to "liver," and prescribe the usual disagreeable medicines; but people whose livers are as normally active as an electric-power station are just as troubled and worried as the most inveterate of the Liver Brigade. The weather affects the appetite. The sullenness of the skies turns the digestion topsy-turvy. What is St. Martin about? It is his business to provide that delicious interegnum between August and early winter which has been immemorially called St. Martin's summer. If the neglected saint is desirous of producing emigration to Mesopotamia or Afghanistan, he has laid his plans skilfully. This grey weather simply will not do for white men.

BARNET'S "PHYSIC WELL."

Barnet Fair has vindicated the belief of those weather-wise Londoners who say that it always rains during fair week. Apart from the famous fair, Barnet has several claims to celebrity, though the great battle of the Wars of the Roses was not fought here, but in the neighbouring Middlesex parish of Hadley. The spot where Warwick, the "kingmaker," fell is marked by two trees. But on Barnet Common, where the battle was not fought, is a chalybeate spring, the virtues of which were extolled by Old Fuller in his "Worthies," and by Pepys, the diarist. This must have been the only endowed spa in Europe, for about 1687 a London alderman left a yearly sum for the maintenance of the "Physic Well of Barnet."

FROM EVERYWHERE.

Airplane Hunt.—Airplanes have been used in Ireland to hunt for a murder gang.

Reducing the Dole.—It is proposed to reduce the amount of unemployment-pay.

Chinese Generosity.—To rebuild a school at Verdun £2,000 has been given by the Chinese President.

Clyde Navigation.—Clyde navigation revenue last year showed a record increase of nearly £900,000.

A Curious Accident.—A Mold boy was killed instantly by a barrel of beer which jolted off a motor-lorry.

An animal Lover.—Mr. F. W. Young, Charlwood, Surrey, left £10 a year for the maintenance of each of her dogs.

Less Output.—There has been a big fall in the output of coal during the last six weeks.

Doing well.—One of 35 miners summoned at Port Talbot, Glamorgan, for not paying income-tax earned £116 in three months.

Generous to Soldiers.—The New Zealand Government is devoting £3,000,000 to soldiers' war gratuities.

Plum and Apple.—Though the season has been a good one for fruit, there is a prospect of a shortage of jam.

Burnt Up.—Over 200,000 pounds weight of paper are used in England yearly for the manufacture of cigarettes.

Desperate.—A women threatened by her husband at Walworth threw herself and her baby out of a first floor window.

Eternal Flow.—The oldest artesian well in Europe is at Lillers, France. From its mouth, water has flowed uninterruptedly for over 750 years.

Food News.—Australia is said to have ready for shipment sufficient surplus food to feed the whole of the United Kingdom for several months.

More money for disabled. — Bigger allowances for disabled men receiving industrial training are announced by the Ministry of Labour.

Greek setting for Skakespeare. — "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was produced before the Greek temple in the grounds of Blickling Hall, Aylsham.

Killed by 'Plane Propeller. — A man named Palmer, of Fulham, employed at a North Acton aeroplane factory, was killed by an aeroplane propeller.

Motor Bus Costs.—It costs a fraction under 1s 4d to run a London Motor Omnibus a mile and the average profit per passenger is under one-fifth of a penny.

LondonToboggans—London boys, whose ingenuity in improvising playthings is proverbial, are now to be seen careering down sloping streets on toboggans made from roller skates.

Ramsgate Naval Base.—Ramsgate Naval Base is to close at the end of the month.

Why Wash?—The City Corporation is to charge a penny more for a wash in all its lavatories.

Higher Wages.—Brewery clerks in South Wales are to receive a 30 per cent. increase of wages.

More Postal Deliveries.—Fresh postal deliveries are to come into force in London by the end of the month.

For Luck.—Among the presents at a soldier's wedding near Buckingham was a black kitten.

Boot Prices.—Prices for boots at the Australian Headquarters ranged from 24s. to 33s. per pair.

A wise Ommission.—Registrars of deaths are to omit reference to Poor Law institutions.

Would not Pay—Cinema show proprietors are of the opinion that it would not pay to curtail their programmes.

The Town Pet.—A workman in a Leeds music hall is the possessor of a tame fox, which he brings to town on a lead.

Largest in the World.—London's new dock is nearly finished, after eight year's building.

Wanted a Wife.—The Mayor of Glastonbury has received from the United States a request to search for a wife.

Spa's open market.—Bath's open market has been successfully launched. Cod sold at 4d. per lb.

Ford Enterprise.—Mr. Ford, the American motor-car manufacturer, intends to build a factory in Aarhus, Denmark.

Removal.—The British Military Permit Office has removed to 14a, Charles-st., Haymarket, from Bedford-sq.

A Magistrate's Query.—"Where is Bethnal Green? I have never heard of it."—Mr. Welleslay, a Woking magistrate.

Energy.—The Canadian Government states that 2,500,000 horse power may be developed along the banks of the St. Lawrence.

Present Day Earnings.—A labourer, aged 78, is engaged at Ashwell, and his earnings place him outside the old-age pension limit.

The Bath Season.—Bath is preparing for a big season this autumn and winter, owing to the difficulties of Continental travel.

Soldier Hoppers.—A feature of this year's hop-picking is the number of men who have served in the Forces, and who are now "hopping" in the fields.

Summer Time Extension?—Mr. W. R. Dunn, of Willesden, has petitioned the Home Secretary to extend summer time to October.

Where Justice Fails.—A Willesden magistrate: "The powers of this court are extensive, but they do not enable us to keep some women quiet."

Not Unanimous.—Whittlesey, Isle of Ely, a town of 4,000 inhabitants, is to have three war memorials owing to lack of public unanimity.

Ceratopogon Pulicaris!

TRADE UNION CONGRESS.

DEBATE ON STRIKE ACTION AS POLITICAL WEAPON TO COERCE THE GOVERNMENT.

RETURN OF GERMAN PRISONERS.

TRADE CONGRESS.

THE STRIKE AS A POLITICAL WEAPON.

Issues of great importance are to be debated at the Trades Union Congress, which opened on Tuesday morning at Glasgow. Mr. G.H. Stuart-Bunning, in his Presidential address, defended the refusal of the Parliamentary Committee of the Congress to call a special conference to debate the question of a strike in the event of certain demands to the Government being refused. He said that to have called that conference would inevitably have identified the Parliamentary Committee with the policy of the national strike on political matters. The Trades Union Congress had never yet fully accepted the policy of the national strike on industrial matters which were its primary function.

He continued "I do not think Congress has ever seriously discussed a national strike on a political issue, still less on several political issues on some of which there were sharp divisions among our own people. We were therefore asked to do something without precedent by executives who could not say definitely whether their own members were behind them."

Mr. Stuart-Bunning added that there was no political reform which the workpeople of this country could not achieve through the ballot box. Direct action would be a confession of failure. It would be a desperate gamble and he strongly favoured constitutional methods.

LABOUR "WILD MEN."

LEADERS WARNINGS.

"Everything depends on how organised Labour uses the weapon of industrial unity which it has been able to forge."

This was the burden of Mr. J. R. Clynes' speech at Carlisle on the eve of the Trade Union Congress at Glasgow.

"Labour," continued Mr. Clynes, "is in danger of handing over completely to its opponents all the strategy of politics, and by threatening a wrong method to attain its ends it is incurring the risk of alienating the public approval and support which it must secure before Labour can attain its rightful place of parliamentary authority in the government of the nation.

"In the past year trade union forces have increased by nearly a million. The parliamentary party was nearly doubled at the last election. The by-election contests prove that Labour is no longer viewed as a freakish interference in national politics, able only to disturb slightly the settled position of other parties.

"Those of us who urge the workers to turn their minds to improved systems of production or to increase output do so primarily in the interests of the workers themselves. There can, however, be no greater output without the assurance to the workers of greater comfort for them in our social and industrial system and a higher standard of living than they had before the war."

Silly Down Tools Policy.

Mr. J. H, Thomas, M.P., had also some words of warning for the hotheads of Labour in the course of a speech he delivered at Glasgow.

"The position in the Labour world generally will be far more serious during the coming months than ever before," he said. "The coming winter, instead of finding us with more food and lower prices, will find us with larger numbers of unemployed, higher wages, and real hardship on every side.

"There is nothing so ruinous to the Labour cause as the silly notion that the only way to solve difficulties is the down tools' policy. It is making the strike policy lose its effectiveness."

Referring to the coal trouble, Mr. Thomas said: "I believe the Government will be faced with a clear-cut issue in the form of a demand for State ownership, a demand that cannot even be stilled by the soldiers being brought out."

CAR DIVES INTO SHIP CANAL.

A motor-car and its occupant plunged over the transporter bridge at the Runcorn (Cheshire) end and fell 25ft. in the Manchester Ship Canal.

The car, which belonged to Mr. Andrews, of Mersey-road, Widness, forced its way through a gate before it toppled into the water. Mr. Andrews is an expert swimmer, and was able to get out of the canal with assistance. His car remained in 10ft. or 12ft. of water.

The Italian Premier announced in the Chamber that 11,000,000 women will have votes. According to these figures there are more female than male electors in Italy.

WINTER FOOD.

ENOUGH FOR ENGLAND, BUT ONLY JUST.

Although the distribution of meat, sugar, and butter is to be on a rationed basis, the Food Controller is not apprehensive of any serious lack of food during the winter months. Butter must remain scarce and high milk prices may take English-made butter almost off the market, unless the producers are driven to using milk which they cannot otherwise sell for cheese and butter.

Cheap food is practically an impossibility until the world begins to recover from the devastating effects of the war, freights come down from their present inflated figures, and increasing exports help to improve the value of the British sovereign in America.

With the Profiteering Act in force, and the Government apparently inclined to take measures to eliminate the speculator, greed, on the part of people who have to handle the food supplies before they reach the consumer, should not add artificially to the cost of essential articles. The Board of Trade have now received a large number of replies from local authorities accepting their invitation to form local committees under the Profiteering Act, and many chairmen of county councils have already submitted names of persons selected by representative county meetings for consideration as members of the appeal tribunals.

The regulations for both local committees and appeal tribunals will include a list of the articles which will come within the operation of the Act. Among them the public may expect to find all articles of wearing apparel, most household necessities, all ordinary articles of food not subject to fixed maximum controlled prices, and in fact practically everything in common use. As time goes on, it is stated, the net may be thrown even wider, and may cover building materials required in connection with the new housing scheme.

WELL FED PRISONERS.

AGITATORS' CRAFTY METHODS.

The advance guard (about 1000 strong) of German unwounded prisoners of war coming from England to Germany arrived at Meschede, Westphalia.

The "Zeitung am Mittag" says:—

The returned prisoners look in good condition. Their bodily constitution generally may be regarded as very satisfactory and justifies the hope that imprisonment has not done so much harm to our fellow-countrymen as we feared. Account must certainly be taken of the fact that the English in the last weeks before dispatching them gave them the full ration of a working soldier, which we are assured is very liberal.

The Radical parties are bombarding the returning prisoners with leaflet, while the Spartacists are employing women as agitators in the belief that their influence will prove very effective on men who have been so long deprived of female society.

SUBMARINES.

HOW OUR DEFICIENCY WAS MADE GOOD.

In the second of a series of articles now appearing in the "Times," Lord Fisher refers to the matter of submarines. He writes:—"In a memorandum which I had printed, and circulated in January 1914, seven months before the war, these words may be found in large capital letters: 'The submarine is the coming type of war vessel for sea fighting.' The truth of this memorandum was generously acknowledged at the time by one of the most important members of the Cabinet. When I left the Admiralty on January 25th, 1910, there were sixty-one effective submarines and thirteen were in building. When I returned to the Admiralty in October 1914, there were only fifty-one. So I sent for Mr. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Works, and he delivered a batch of submarines in five months—an unprecedented feat, as fourteen months was the record till then. These "H" submarines built by Mr. Schwab went unconvoyed from America to the Dardanelles and acted there prodigiously. Mr. Schwab should have been made a duke. If any man ever deserved the gratitude of England that man is Mr. Schwab."

TROTSKY'S BROTHER ARRESTED.

According to a Helsingfors telegram the Finnish police have issued an order for the arrest of Trotsky's brother, a Jew named Bronstein, who for some time has been residing on Finnish territory at Mohla, in the Karelian peninsula.

GOLD AND OIL.

FINDS IN CANADA WHICH EXCEED KLONDYKE.

A new "Klondyke" is said to have been discovered in Canada, and a gold rush greater than that to Klondyke is developing. The great gold and oil "strike" is 170 miles from Winnipeg. Specimens of ore from the Contract Bay district, seventy miles from Kenora, yielded on assay a proportion of gold beating all records. The oil "strike" twenty miles west of Lepas has developed enormous possibilities.

The gold "strike" is known as "Gordon's Golden Sidewalk," after Mr. D. Gordon, who made the discovery with Mr. Jacob Cook. Professor de Luryk, Canada's foremost geologist, declares that if present indications are borne out the "strike" will be more important than the Hollinger or Porcupine "strikes."

MOTOR TRADE.

NO AMERICAN INVASION AT PRESENT.

Much breath and ink have been spent over anticipations of an invasion of British markets by American motor-cars. Mr. Frank Lanchester, the head of the Lanchester Motor Company, does not anticipate bad times for the British motor trade for at least a year, even though the restrictions on imported motor-cars have been removed.

Mr. Lanchester deprecated the apparent panic which had set in in certain trade circles as at least premature and possibly quite groundless. Even if the threatened invasion burst upon us and showrooms were flooded with comparatively low-priced American cars, the British manufacturer whose business was on a solid footing would not be affected for at least a year, as his order-books were already filled for that period ahead.

According to Mr. Lanchester, before American firms attempt to oust the British moderate-priced car they will have to satisfy home demands, and Mr. Lanchester believes this will take a considerable time.

"I do not think that, at the worst, we shall be in a worse position than we were before the war. At that time British makers certainly held their own against the rush, as, indeed, I am fully convinced they will next time."

"On the whole," said Mr. Lanchester, "I am very decidedly an optimist, and I think I have solid grounds for it. But we must work."

FRANCE HONOURS AMERICA.

In laying the first stone of a monument in commemoration of American intervention in the war, at Pointe de Grave, Gironde, President Poincaré made a speech in which he congratulated the initiators of "an artistic work consecrating the glorification of Franco-American friendships." He declared he was addressing to America a faithful message of affection at the moment when the United States was celebrating the anniversary of the birth of Lafayette and was feting the battle of the Marne, which caused to shine upon the world the first gleam of hope and which was the first signal of defeat for the spirit of domination.

Mr. Wallace, the United States Ambassador in Paris, in an eloquent address, dwelt on the old ties between France and the United States, especially in the American War of Independence, and then, speaking of the late war said that in the days of peril France was the rampart of civilisation and the French Army its defence.

GNAT BITE CAUSES DEATH.

When Mrs. Emma Newman, wife of a Spitalfields caterer, had a slight swelling on her nose, she and her husband joked about it.

The swelling became worse however, and eventually Mrs. Newman was taken to hospital, where she died from bronchial pneumonia supervening on blood poisoning.

The husband said at the inquest that he thought the swelling was due to the bite of an insect, and a doctor said it was reasonable to suppose that a gnat bite caused the trouble.

Death by Misadventure was the verdict.

RECORD GERMAN AEROPLANE.

The aviation works at Leipzig have just finished what is said to be the biggest aeroplane in the world.

This giant machine is 22.5 meters long, and 6.5 meters high, with a wing spread of 43.5 meters. It is fitted with two motors of 750 h.p. each. Besides the six men comprising the crew eighteen passengers with luggage can be accommodated.

BOLSHEVIST MODERATES.

A report has reached London that the Russian Soviet of Tser has declared its independence of the central Soviet Government. There are indications, says Reuter, of a split in the Bolshevist ranks, especially in the North West, and of a new section springing up which is not prepared to adhere to the extremist policy of Lenin and Trotzky.

Lord Leverhulme has bought Moor Park, Herts, the stately old home of Lord Ebury, for about £300,000.

COMMERCE BY AIR.

GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE TO BE GIVEN.

A well attended meeting of those interested in commercial aviation was held on Tuesday to discuss, with representatives of the Air Ministry, the question of the disposal of airships and also the Government's policy for assisting aerial commercial enterprise.

Major General Seely, Under Secretary of State for Air, presided. He said the Government was anxious to do the best it could for the State in the disposal of the lighter than air type of machines and at the same time to aid commercial enterprise. The Air Ministry and Admiralty would combine to offer existing machines and machines in various stages of construction to those who would undertake the formation of a sound commercial air scheme. Such assistance would include the use of wireless stations and meteorological information, and the Post Office would help in every possible way. In case any well founded scheme the airsh would be sold at very cheap rates. Business people would also have the advantage of existing sheds and trained personnel and would have help in dealing with terminal points.

The future of such a scheme was boundless and he was sure if they went into it in a businesslike manner they would retain the supremacy in air which England had gained during the war. Air machines received from Germany would be included in the total that would be handed over for commercial purposes. He was quite sure they would make the airship service of great good to the State and they would have every possible chance to take the lead in the matter of airships for the benefit of the Empire and mankind generally.

"OVER THE TOP" IN WHITECHAPEL.

Mr. Frederick Charrington, the philanthropist, whose activities in the East End are so well known, was the chief figure at a pleasing little ceremony which followed a peace tea in Brady-street, Whitechapel.

Mr. Charrington had occasion recently to use his umbrella so forcibly in a certain house in the district that it was smashed, and on Saturday the men folk gave him a new one. In handing over the umbrella to Mr. Charrington, the spokesman said:—"We have chosen one with a businesslike knob at the end, besause we are quite aware of the manner in which Mr. Charrington's umbrella was broken, and the good service he did. I know that in doing what he did he must have felt as we did when we went over the top."

SHORT HARVEST.

The season's crops in England, realized in prospect, will not fulfil the rosy expectation aroused by the favourable weather changes early last month. Wheat, which then promised rather well, is not now expected to give more than 28 bushels from the acre. Barley and oats will both be light crops. Beans, which promised excellently, are in many districts actually poor. Potatoes are now expected to make a very good yield, and hops are reckoned the best crop of the year. Root crops generally will not make up for the relative failure of mangolds.

PROFITEERS BEWARE!

A large number of local authorities have accepted the Board of Trade's invitation to form committees under the Profiteering Act, and a list of the articles to be scheduled will be issued next week.

They will include wearing apparel, most household necessities, all ordinary articles of food not Government controlled—in fact, practically everything in common use. The net will be thrown wider as time goes on, and may cover even building materials under the new housing scheme.

IRISH VOTING CLAIMS.

At Omagh (County Tyrone) Revision Sessions a woman was given a Local Government vote for a pigstye and henhouse. A doctor was allowed a similar vote for a motor shed, and a man for a stable where he keeps two horses and a cow. At Dungannon Revision Sessions the Nationalists attempted to turn the proceedings into a farce during the hearing of a youth's claim for a vote by giving evidence in support of the claimant's age that the youth had begun to shave. The claim was disallowed.

BROKEN POLICE UNION.

At a demonstration held in Hyde Park to protest against the first three clauses of the Police Bill, and to demand the reinstatement of the strikers, Mr. Zollner, formerly of the City Police, said that, being a young organization, and being possessed of only a little over £3,000, the strike had broken the Police Union financially. The strikers were working in various capacities to keep the wolf from the door, so that the union could carry on.

In the Franco-Prussian War, Cologne lost sixty men, and in this war 15,000.

The last German Bishop of Strasburg died on Monday.

Commencing on the 20th September a train will run to Warsaw from Paris via Strasburg and Nuremberg.

WAR AND SCIENCE.

MARVELS OF SKILL AND COURAGE.

Meetings of the British Association opened at Bournemouth on Tuesday. A large proportion of the papers contain accounts of what was accomplished by British science in the war by sea and land. Sir Charles Parsons, the President, set the ball rolling with a remarkable lecture on war engineering, naval and military. At the conclusion of the Congress he will dip into the future and will tell something about a twenty mile bore hole into the earth, an experiment he has suggested before and been much occupied with since.

British pride will be much flattered with the account of the amazing acceleration of invention and discovery during the war and chemists and physicists have at least as notable a record as engineers.

Great heroism has been shown during the last month or two by agricultural chemists who have been turning gas and explosives into fertilisers and insect destroyers. Most war explosives are very similar to fertilisers but the making of the small and necessary chemical changes involved experiments with sufficient masses of explosives to blow all the chemists to atoms if the least error were made. Now the discovery is perfected and the danger over. Among other revelations of the wonders of applied science will be some account of the extraordinary accuracy of sound recording and listening apparatus.

ODESSA TORTURE HOUSE.

Among the hostages rescued from the Bolshevists at Odessa is General Smirnoff, of Port Arthur fame. The majority of the victims of the Bolshevists were shot in the courtyard of the Chresvychaika premises, or in a large garage, or in the regular labyrinth of stone cellars beneath that building. Blood-stained tarpaulins, in which the dead were taken in bundles to the grave pits, are lying about the courtyard. The walls of the cellars are pitted with bullet marks and bloodstains, while portions of brains are still adhering to them. It is stated that three French ladies were arrested and shot immediately after being pushed through the door leading from the street to the courtyard. A speciality practised by a negro commissary was to cut the arteries in the wrist of the condemned and gloat over the spectacle of their bleeding to death

ITALY'S PART.

Signor Nitti, the Italian Prime Minister, speaking in the Chamber in the discussion on the report of the Caporetto disaster, said:

"We alone—for the forces which the Allies had sent to our assistance in Italy were inferior in numbers to those which we were maintaining out of Italy—we alone overthrew the Austro-Hungarian Empire."

Signor Nitti declared that as a result of the publication of the Committee's conclusions on the Caporetto disaster Generals Cadorna, Porro, Capello, and Cavaciocchi had been placed on the retired list, and that Generals Montuori and Bongiovanni had been put on half-pay while other measures had been taken with regard to the other superior officers.

£2,500 A MONTH FOR GENERAL.

Several German generals prominent in the war are said to have received offers of employment in a combined Germano-Russian "Red" Army. In one case, the sum offered in writing was £2,500 a month to take over supreme command. Though the prominent generals refused, the temptations to younger and junior officers who have difficulty in finding employment on demobilization may present a certain danger.

SPARTACIST MURDER GANG.

The Berlin correspondent of the Copenhagen "Politiken" says that the police have tracked down a gang of communistic Anarchists who are supposed to have killed about fifty people who were opposed to their opinions or who had acted as agents of the Government.

During the last few weeks several bodies have been found in the waters of the Tiergarten and in the River Spree. Those killed were known to have been opponents of the Spartacists.

MORE PAY FOR BRICKLAYERS.

The South-Eastern Conciliation Board has made an award in the building trade in West Surrey, under which carpenters and bricklayers will receive 1s. 6d. per hour, painters 1s. 5d., scaffolders 1s. 4d., and labourers 1s. 3d., the new scale to hold good for six months. As a result the cost of the erection of 82 houses by the Guildford Corporation will be increased by £5,500, bringing the total to £69,000.

SERBS SHOOT FRENCH OFFICERS.

An Agram (Hungary) message says that following alleged provocation, a number of Serbian civilians attacked some French officers. Fifty shots were fired. One French officer was killed and four were severely injured.

MAN POWER PLANE.

PRACTICAL SELF-PROPELLED FLIP-FLAPS.

A man-power aeroplane with flip-flap wings may shortly make an appearance in the skies.

Aeroplanes without engines are the latest experimental phase of aviation. Aeronautical firms in Europe and America are closely watching the few experiments with gliding and man-power aeroplanes which are being made both in this country and in France.

"Man-driven aviettes are not a 'dream,'" said Captain W. H. Sayers, the aeronautical engineer and former member of the Royal Air Force. "Experiments show that the problem is one of power, weight, and speed. With a 'glide' of one in ten it simply means that a man must 'pedal' or otherwise exert a lifting power to his machine for 100 feet in order to glide for a distance of 1,000 feet. Further more, with a steady muscular power there is absolutely no reason why the aviette should not keep its own level. It might even rise by spiral movements while still keeping a fairly good speed.

"Man-power can be reckoned as equal to one and a half horse-power, although this is considerably lessened by continued effort."

PRICE OF VICTORY.

ENTENTE'S 2,886,539 DEAD.

Figures just published tell eloquently the price paid by the Entente nations in their fight for the freedom of the world. France, the heavist sufferer, mobilized 8,000,000 men and her toll of dead is 1,385,000, Great Britain counts 835,000 dead out of her armies of 5,700,000, the United States 51,000 dead out of 3,800,000 men; Italy 569,000 out of 5,250,000; Belgium 38,172 out of 380,000 and Portugal 8,367 out of 200,000. These figures do not include the terrible losses of Russia when she was fighting on our side.

MOUNTAINEERING IN NEW YORK.

Owing to the stokers of the boilers which furnish the power to work the lifts in the Metropolitan Life Building, in Madison-avenue, New York, carrying ont a lightning strike the 10,000 persons employed in this skyscraper had to use the stairs. There are 50 flights.

During the afternoon gallant spirits having business in the building faced the climb to the upper storeys, but before long the stairs were littered with people in various stages of exhaustion. One man is reported to have struggled as far as the 38th floor, his appointment being in an office on the 45th. Then he gave up.

The building is 700 feet high, or about 200 feet higher than the spires of Cologne Cathedral.

GIRL TARRED ON IRISH ROAD.

Tarring of an Irish girl in a public road by three men dressed in women's clothes was revealed at Drumsna Petty Sessions, Leitrim, when three young men, named James Brennan, John Mulvey, and John Cronogue, were committed for trial on a charge of assaulting Lizzie Moran, aged 19.

The girl said the men were dressed in women's clothes and their faces were covered with window curtains. They wore no boots and they did not speak. The men began to jump about the road, and, picking up dirt, threw it at her. Afterwards she was caught by the men and knocked down.

She then described the assault, saying the men tarred her.

The Lyceum Club, whose old premises at 128, Piccadilly, have been taken for a new club for R.A.F. officers, is to take temporary possession on the 18th inst. of a mansion near Parklane, which will serve as a clubhouse till the new permanent premises, 138, Piccadilly, are available for occupation.

£2,625 FOR A COW.

High prices were paid at the sale, at Stanford Rivers Hall, Ongar, Essex, of a portion of Mr. J. Furze's noted herd of pure-bred British Friesian cattle, 56 animals realising a total of £14,161. Ongar Doll, a 3-year-old cow, sold for 2,500 guineas, while her heifer calf, 4 months old, realised 1,050 guineas.

FORTY YEARS DELAY.

TOMMY ON THE RHINE.

Each day sees the dwindling of forces. Demobilization—that magic word—has acquired a new meaning as the hour for departure approaches. Strange it may seem but to many the joy of prospective demobilization has passed away for it is difficult to cast aside the attachment which the average British Tommy forms wherever he finds himself.

It is no idle boast to say that the Tommy as a class has endeared himself to his hosts. His unassuming, easy-going nature and high sporting qualities have made their appeal, until strange as it may seem we have the spectacle of men, women and children deploring the impending departure of the greater part of the British Army of the Rhine.

On the whole it may be claimed that Tommy has played a great and noble part in the relationship which has existed. True there have been disturbances of a minor nature, many happily exaggerated, but the wonder is not that these have occurred on but few occasions, but that under the circumstances they have been so infrequent and so unimportant.

We repeat that it is a great testimony to the high standard of conduct exercised by the private soldier of the British Army combined with British rule that there is so little friction.

"Better twenty years of British rule than one of Bolshevism" said a Rhinelander in the early days of the occupation. His welcome to the officers and men billeted under his roof savoured of compulsion but it is a tribute to the conduct of his guests that to-day he is deploring their departure.

The most inimical Teuton is not slow to realise that since the occupation he has enjoyed a far greater freedom and less exercise of officialdom than before the war. He has shared as a spectator in the sporting activities through which we have endeavoured to maintain some degree of physical fitness and of later date drawn on our amusements in a more practical way.

If there was any animosity cherished it is not apparent. Rather would we think that there is a complete absence of resentment at our presence, but for this state of affairs Tommy is in a great degree responsible. The Rhinelander owes a great deal to him and it is to be hoped that his example will not be lost upon his hosts. It certainly will not so far as the younger generation is concerned, for Tommy never enjoyed greater popularity than he does with the youngsters of this part of Germany.

THE FUGITIVE ARROWS.

He entered the Black Lion with a whirl, a vision of flying black coat-tails, a storm-stained hat, and the sound of retreating footsteps and the banging of a door gave one the impression of haste and supressed excitement.

"That," said the landlord, "is old Swivel, the antiquary; been mucking about the village for weeks measuring the walls, digging up the barrows and getting himself lost in the marshes. He carries bags of old flints and bones about with him—bit balmy, I think."

I was interested; the Danish practice of piracy still flourished in the vicinity, thinly disguised behind a card marked "Apartments," and I hastened after the old gentleman.

I found him in his room holding a queerly-shaped metal canister in his hands, and craved permission to discuss the old days with one so learned.

* * * *

"Yes," said Swivel, "Bewareham is a quaint old spot, and during my stay here I have unearthed many wonderful things, but the wonder of all is this." He pointed to the canister. "A complete record of the Danish operations in these parts. I found it in the walls to-day, beside a skeleton of a man, and I am very excited, as I decipher the Scandinavian characters."

The old man laid the canister on the table; we drew our chairs closer to the fire, and I sat and listened to the story of Wulf the Dane, as told on the faded sheets of parchment the canister contained.

Form No. 596/267. S.A.A.
To make your own arrows. Enclosed S.S. 156 on "Arrows and their Trajectory," is passed to you for information and necessary action. Your attention is drawn to the diagrams of:

A. Arrow.
B. Arrow in flight.
C. Bow and arrow.
D. Man with bow and arrow.

Note.—Arrows should be fired with an anti-clockwise movement.

Form No. 596/267. S.A.A.
Reference your correspondence: The arrows are not ready to be forwarded, as the men detailed to make these have not yet returned from Danish leave.
It is suggested that you practise economy with your present stock by attaching a piece of leather thong to the arrow before firing The arrows can then be pulled back and used again.

MEMORY AND OBSERVATION.

A REPLY.

I have recently read, in the "Cologne Post," an article under the above heading, to which I feel constrained to address a few remarks of friendly criticism in reply.

In view of the logical sequence to W.R.P's comments it is, to my humble mind at least, somewhat difficult to fathom his real object in writing the article.

Lest I myself should be similarly taxed, may I begin by saying that this is a brief apology in favour of systems for mind and memory training.

The commence with, W.R.P. seeks to portray what he alleges to be the futility of a system, and then, with delightful inconsistency, proceeds to lay down for general use a small, a very small one, on his own account.

Whether he is aware of it or not, moreover, his suggestions, quite good as far as they go, albeit incomplete, are in actual fact among the first elementary principals, form as it were the Kindergarten, of at least one of the great schools of mind and memory training he appears to find needless, if not futile.

Again, why does he not complete his analogy on the two systems — physical and mental?

Is not all physical training, of any use whatever, performed along systematic lines — (such as the Inch, the Swedish or Sandow schools) — with slight adaptions and modifications for weaker or stronger pupils?

The "sine qua non" of any system of improvement is "persistent effort" — and where personal will-power is lacking, the systematic training under the supervision of a master who knows, is the best, — the only, way of supplying the deficiency.

Without attempting to touch all the great questions of will-power and it's relation to mental discipline, I must briefly point out that the minority only are in sufficient possession thereof to conduct a complete and efficient mental evolution unaided, unencouraged, and uncorrected, where wrong.

Thus then, (and this is not a paid advertisement) the best known of mind and memory training institute: — I let it here be nameless — it does not matter to the discussion) does in very sooth work along systematic lines, and with all the necessary possibilities of individual adaption and application.

Allowing for the limitation of space necessarily forced upon W.R.P., I should feel I had not completed my remarks, if I failed to point out that his suggested methods merely dabble in the very elementals of mind or memory improvement, so that he might with advantage, complete his advice in two, or even more, further articles, the probable result of which would be to demonstrate that he is more in favour of systems than he himself knows.

In conclusion, it is but fair to repeat that his suggestions are all valuable, and well worthy of adoption. They do not, however, go far enough.

WHAT SHALL I READ?

How often is this said by people as they stand and gaze at rows of books. The selection is no doubt far from easy.

In choosing a book price is to-day no longer a consideration, thanks to the existence of the lending library, where for a guinea or so one can have access to all popular books. Out here we are for ever grateful to the organisers of the Camp Library.

The first thing is to determine whether one wishes to read from a point of view of instruction or amusement; secondly to make certain of one's favourite subject. One has to ask one's self "Shall I ask Captain Cook to show me the world" or "Shall Ruskin show me the beauties of Nature?"

From a point of view of reading in order to learn it is always comforting to remember what Richard de Bury, Bishop of Durham, wrote in 1344 concerning books:— "If you approach them, they are not asleep; if investigating you interrogate them, they conceal nothing; if you mistake them they never grumble; if you are ignorant they cannot laugh at you." Jeremy Collier said that "Books are a guide in youth, and an entertainment in age." Let us therefore bear that in mind when choosing a book; let it be one that may broaden our views and from which we may derive that experience which it took our forefathers a lifetime to accumulate.

That the pursuit of knowledge can be entertaining, one has the testimony of Confucius who "in his eager pursuit of knowledge forgot his food, who in the joy of its attainment forgot his sorrows, and did not even perceive that old age was coming on."

Everyone has not perhaps time to study. In that case one can but read for amusement, but even then one may make a study of character. Through the media of novels one may learn to recognise the characters of everyday life in their true light.

Novels have been, and are being written involving history, science and almost every conceivable subject. Let us search out the author who writes on subjects that interest us; even though it be concerning the complex problems of life it may help us to widen our views or even regard life from a different point of view altogether.

Whatever book we finally choose, do not let it be chosen as one so frequently sees it done. One has only to step into a circulating library. Here we see the last few pages of books being anxiously scanned so that the prospective readers may ascertain whether the ending be happy or otherwise. In the case of the former this criterion of its excellence is sufficient. At the railway bookstall we may see novels being picked out by reason of an attractive binding. The author seems of little import so long as the book has a paper cover illustrating an alluring phase of life.

Having chosen our book let us read thoughtfully. Most people race through a book and never stop to reflect. The result of this is generally that they form no fresh ideas in their mind but merely get doped with the ideas of other people.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

COUNTING BY TENS.

Sir,—How easy it is to count French and German money! Just two columns and only one divisor — ten. Could anything be more simple.

In our antiquated method we have three columns to deal with. To reduce the pound to shillings we divide by twenty, to bring shillings to pence we divide by twelve, pence to farthings by four.

We could without difficulty make our coinage decimal by reckoning ten pennies to a shilling, dropping the half-crown and substituting for the sixpence a fivepenny piece. Then make the shilling our unit and we have a coinage just as simple to reckon as the French or German.

Why don't we act on such obvious lines instead of talking and wrangling?

PETER P.

WIVES IN COLOGNE.

Sir,—I should like through the agency of your colmns to thank Mr Howes for his kind offer. May I point out that I am permitted by reason of my rank to make use of the Officers' club and my letter was dictated by a thought as to the comfort of the wives of other ranks.

Perhaps Mr. Howes will make public the outlines of the Church Army scheme through your columns. I feel sure, knowing something of the work of the Church Army that the arrangements will do credit to that institution.

J.A.B.

ADVERTISEMENTS MISSING.

Sir—, Apropos the correspondence on "Advertisements Missing" some of your readers would seem to be suffering acutely from Anti-Aditis.

All the case for the defence is much too strong to compress into a short letter. In lieu of this, I would strongly recommend your correspondents to go to the Central Y.M.C.A. Library and borrow "Scientific Distribution," by Charles Frederick Higham, which by the way is much more interesting to the lay mind than it sounds, and most enlightening.

LEARNING GERMAN.

Sir,—Seeing that "The Cologne Post" has recognised our arrival in Rhineland with its "Vanity Fair" column, I venture to ask for information from any readers who may know whether educational facilities exist at all in the Army Area of which our children (and they are with us in many instances) can take advantage. There is much they can learn here in acquiring a knowledge of the language and from observations of German every-day customs, but they should not lose a grip of their schooling during their stay.

A MOTHER.

THE ROMAN NORTH GATE.

Sir,—Among the notes supplied by various readers on this ancient gateway none have mentioned where it can now be seen. The structure of the Arch has been rebuilt in the shrubbery at the N.W. corner of the Wallraff-Richartz Museum.

Another interesting relic stands close by. The partico of a small Roman temple is rebuilt against the Museum wall. It was found — if we recollect aright — under the Luxemburger Strasse, and probably many an ancient wayfarer has prayed for a successful journey inside its doors.

S. T.

THE MUZZLING OF DOGS.

Sir,—Your correspondent "Not a lover of dogs" holds some very strong and very extraordinary views regarding the treatment of dogs. It is unfortunate that he should have had a couple of nasty accidents through running into dogs, but that in my opinion, is not nearly sufficient reason to justify his present attitude.

I too have had accidents: on one occasion I was badly bitten by a dog and on another I was forced to spend £17 patching up my motor bike and six weeks in hospital patching up myself. On neither occasion was the fault mine, nor the dog mine. Yet I am still a lover of dogs.

G. E. C.

TAXI-FARES.

Sir,—With reference to your correspondent's query re fares shown on taxis, and cabs not provided with workable taximeters, according to the German Police regulations, no cab may ply for hire unless provided with a taximeter, which must be in working order.

On taking a fare, the driver must lower his flag, and the taxi should then register 80 pfennigs. This is the minimum fare for 600 metres—a further charge of 10 pfennigs per 300 metres is registered. These are the original fares; four times these prices have now to be paid.

Any passenger who is driven in a cab which does not display the British orders re fares, or fails to lower the flag, or which has no taximeter or an unworkable one, will be doing a public service by handing the man over to the British Police for prosecution.

WHY NO BRASSARD?

Sir:—In all probability because the lady did not report (as instructed) at the Military Permit Office. It IS the same with MANY other wives.

BY ONE WHO KNOWS.

MEETING AT NIGHT.

The gray sea and the long black land;
And the yellow half-moon large and low;
And the startled little waves that leap
In fiery ringlets from their sleep,
As I gain the cove with pushing prow,
And quench its speed i' the slushy sand.

Then a mile of warm sea-scented beach;
Three fields to cross till a farm appears;
A tap at the pane, the quick sharp scratch
And blue spurt of a lighted match,
And a voice less loud, thro' its joys and fears,
Than the two hearts beating each to each!

LINDENTHAL TENNIS.

Inter-Allied Tourney Opens In Ideal Weather.

1ST. AND 2ND ROUNDS.

In spite of the lateness in the season the great inter-allied tennis tournament, which opened at Lindenthal on Saturday and is being continued throughout this week, is being favoured with brilliant weather. There was a very large number of entries, including representatives of the Allied Armies of occupation and the function is proving a signal success.

The results of the first and second round are appended and further results will appear in to-morrow's issue.

BUCHAN BEATEN.

Outsider Wins the Doncaster St. Leger.

DOMINION SECOND.

The Doncaster St. Leger, the last of the great classics, has been one of the most sensational racing events of the season. A number of the most fancied candidates were one after another withdrawn from the race and the result yesterday was no less surprising. The race was won by Lord Derby's filly Keysoe, an 100-8 chance, Dominion and Buchan being second and third respectively.

The most surprising feature of the race was the failure of Maj. Astor's Buchan, one of the hottest favourites of the season. Indeed it was difficult to see how anything in the field had a possible chance against this much fancied colt and he started with the betting 13-8 on He had shown himself to be a consistent performer and had always given a good account of himself when called upon. It will be remembered that he finished second to Grand Parade in the Derby.

Keysoe was not so much an outsider as to have been regarded as having no chance in the race. Indeed, this big filly had been very well spoken of in some quarters in connection with the classic.

But she had only just recovered from an indisposition and it was not quite known whether her best form had been regained.

Dominion, Lord Glanelly's colt, by reason of his poor performance in the Breeders' St Leger had lost favour and prestige, and his finishing in advance of Buchan is another surprising feature. He started at 7—1. Only colts ran in the 2,000 Guineas and Derby and in the last 25 years the only two fillies to win the last classic have been Sceptre in 1902, and Pretty Polly in 1904. Keysoe is by Swynford — Keystone II.

Details:—

1. Keysoe (Carslake) 100—8. Lord Derby.
2. Dominion (A. Smith) 7—1. Lord Glanelly.
3. Buchan (Childs) 13—8 Maj Astor.

PUTTING THE SHOT.

Fine Exhibition by R.G.A. Corporal at Stotzheim.

On Monday several events in continuation of the sports of 174 Siege Battery R.G.A. were contested at Stotzheim. The principal item was a splendid exhibition of putting the shot by Corporal Campbell. Using the 11 lb. shot, which was recently used at sports meeting at Euskirchen, he put it a distance of 44 ft. 10½ ins. Is this a record?

The results were as follows:—

High Jump:— 1, Gunner Atkin (5ft. 1 ins); 2, Sgt. Tabe (5ft.); 3, Signaller F.A. Birch.

Putting the shot:—1, Cpl. Campbell (44ft. 10½ ins); 2, Sgt. Tabe (39ft. 5 3,4 ins); 3, Gunner Pardoe (37ft. 11 ins.)

BECKETT'S CHALLENGERS.

Mr. Mortimer States His Views And Programme.

PERSISTENT FULTON.

In typical American style Mr. O'Rourke Fulton's manager has been persistently issuing challenges to Beckett and Carpentier, since his protege's success at Olympia when he accounted for Arthur Townley in the first round.

In this connection Mr. Bernard Mortimer, Beckett's manager, has written in the following terms to the "Sporting Life." He says:—No doubt Mr. O'Rourke is delighted with Fulton's success, but I can advise him not to be too elated, as, having had Townley down with Beckett for two weeks, I am in a position to judge the result more correctly than any other person.

Mr. O'Rourke can go on issuing his weird challenges, but he cannot forget that several weeks ago I told him that there was very little chance of Beckett and Fulton meeting, as my programme was mapped out. Had Beckett lost to McGoorty, I know what kind of a fool I should have been called, but I was anxious to show the public that Beckett was not only a two-handed fighter, but that he could and would box any opponent without relying on his strength alone. I was more delighted with Beckett's restraint and coolness against McGoorty than I was with his smashing method of dealing with Goddard.

Perhaps now Beckett will get the credit of not only being a great fighter, but also a scientific boxer, equal to any of recent years in England. His place in boxing can only be gauged by an encounter with Carpentier, representing the best in Europe. If successful Beckett will be in a position to demand a contest with Dempsey for the world's title—and "may the best man win." That is my programme.

BECKETT ON BOXING.

A Reply to Free Church Council President.

In our columns yesterday we referred to some remarks of Dr. T.A Guttery, president of the National Free Church Council, in which he described boxing as "beastly prize fights." On this subject Joe Beckett has had something to say in defence of himself and his fellow professors to a correspondent of the "Weekly Despatch." He said:

"The rev. gentleman who says fighting is beastly and is a reflection on our country can take it from me that he could have no better text for a sermon than a fighter when he has finished his training." "Think," he continued, "of such a fighter! He is perfection, and it is not physical perfection alone. That's where people who talk without knowing their book make a mistake.

"That man, that boxer, has absolutely mastered himself. He cannot be a glutton, he cannot be a drinker. He has to be abstinent and regular in his habits. It is moral perfection as well as physical perfection with him. Could you ask for a more lovely specimen of manhood?"

CRICKET FRIENDLY.

1st L.L.T.M.B. meet 1st London B.H.Q. at Loope.

T.M.B.'s batted first and compiled an innings of 55 runs, the best scores being made by Pte. Bowers 11 and Pte. Sampson 10. Pte. Penn for B.H.Q. took 6 wickets for 24 and Sgt. Wrigley 2 for 15. B.H.Q. made a score of 45 runs, the chief contributor being Pte. Barrows 26. Pte. Howard for T.M.B.'s took 4 wickets for 6 runs and Cpl. Walsh, 3 for 1.

In the second innings the highest scorers were Pte. Gothard 27, Pte. Howard 14 and L/Cpl. Gascoigne 13. Pte. Penn got 3 wickets for 19 runs and Pte. Collett, 2 for 12. B.H.Q. compiled 7st to which total Pte. Barrows contributed 24 and Pte. Roberts 12. L/Cpl. Davies for T.M.B.'s took 4 wickets for 14 runs and Pte. Gothard 5 for 18.

SIGNALS AT CRICKET.

A very interesting all day cricket match took place at Euskirchen on Sunday between E. Corps Signals and G.H.Q. Signals, the latter winning by 55 runs. G.H.Q. Signals were assisted by Lieut. Astill, the Leicestershire County player, who scored 51 and 12, and took 6 wickets for 42 runs and 6 for 27. For E. Corps Signals Mc. Donald scored 18 and 10 and took 7 wickets for 61 and 6 for 42. Other useful scorers were Lieut. Melhuish 25, for G.H.Q. and Col. Hitchens 21 not out, Wood 11 and Mr. Buddell 11 for E. Corps.

Scores:—G.H.Q. 139 and 75; E. Corps Sigs. 94 and 65.

IN OTHER YEARS.

Winners Of The Great Doncaster Classic.

THE MANTON STABLE.

The previous horse to win the Doncaster St. Leger on the Town Moor was Black Jester, a fair but not a great horse, but curiously enough the substitute race in all the four war years, which was called the September Stakes, and was run at Newmarket, was won by a horse of high class who was undoubtedly the best of his year. The horses in question were Pommern, Hurry On, Gay Crusader and Gainsborough, and that all four were well above the average classic winners in point of merit was the general opinion of expert Turfites. This year, unfortunately, the Derby winner was not engaged, and therefore Buchan who ran Grand Parade to half a length in the Epsom race stood for the best Derby form of those engaged in yesterday's race. Buchan had won two valuable stakes in the interim and is a most consistent runner, and he is trained in a stable which has done many big things in classic events during the last few years, and which indeed also sheltered Gay Crusader and Gainsborough, the last two winners of the substitute race.

SERGEANTS' "SMOKER."

Pleasing 29th Bde. R.G.A. Function at Endenich.

A highly successful Smoker was held by the W.Os., Staff Sergeants and Sergeants of the above Brigade at the Krause Saal, Endenich on Thursday Evening, 4th September. Invitations were extended to the officers of the Brigade, a gratifying number of whom were present. The President (R.S.M. W.G. Freeman) and committee B.S.M. C. Eade, Sgts. W. Burt, M. Moulton, and M. Archer are to be congratulated upon the fine way in which the "smoker" was organized, and Sgt. Burt who managed the catering, made a splendid show.

The musical part of the programme under the able chairmanship of R.S.M. Freeman was greatly enjoyed by the company, the artistes, all belonging to the Brigade, were in good vocal form and each thoroughly deserved the generous applause accorded them. The programme was opened by B.S.M. Eade, who was followed by Sgt. Burt, B.Q.M.S. Earith, Sgt. Spreadbury, B.S.M. Morgan, B.Q.M.S. Seath, Sgt. Northmore, Lt. Brown, Capt. Smith, Sgt. Cornwall, Sgt. Woomack, B.S.M. Elms, Capt. Black, and Sgt. Billing. The accompaniments were very ably managed by Bmdr. Ranican, Gunners Davison and Burnham. Capt. Smith proposed a vote of thanks on behalf of the officers. The Chairman responded, thanking the officers for their attendance and their whole-hearted support in making the evening the success it was. A most enjoyable evening terminated with a toast to the King and the singing of the National Anthem.

New Players Succe s.

An outstanding feature of the Isthmian League opening games was the fine play of the London Caledonians' new players. The pick of the acquisition was W. Gaul, the big Shepherd's Bush inside right.

INTER-ALLIED BOXING.

American Promoter Anxious To Arrange Matches.

BRITISH REPRESENTATIVES WANTED.

It will be re-called that a few days since a paragraph appeared in the "Cologne Post" stating that a suggestion had been put forward for the promotion of Inter-Allied boxing matches between the British and American Armies of the Occupation. Promoter Lew Reiss, the American Athletic Director was the originator of the idea and to-day we are able to annouce that he is prepared to arrange such bouts of four rounds and upwards between British and American contestants. It is understood that the first fights will take place at Coblentz and later it is intented to arrange a return show at Cologne. As pointed out expenses of boxers journeying to Coblentz will be defrayed and, in addition, there is to be a substantial purse for each fight, win, lose or draw.

In the British Army of Occupation there is no lack of really good boxers and no doubt many will be only too pleased to have the opportunity of pitting their skill against that of their American neighbours. Such contests can only have the effect of cementing the friendly relations existing between the Allied Armies in Germany, and, if only for this reason, the movement is a creditable one.

Those wishing to take the matter up should get into touch with Promoter Lew Reiss, American Athletic Director, Y.M.C.A. Coblentz. Boxers, preferably, should be about 140 pounds.

Football at Zollstock.

The 1st Pontoon Park R.E. met the 180th Labour Coy. at Zollstock in tropical weather, but never the less the game was fought out at a terrific pace, each goal being visited in turn. At half time the score stood at one all. After the resumption the pace was faster than ever, and of a great game the Pontoon Park ran out winners by 3 to 2. Clark, Hammond and Clift were great in defence, whilst Bowden and Porter were the outstanding forwards. The Labour Coy. played well together and were very unlucky to lose.

VI CORPS CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Double Success of 35 Bde. R.G.A. in Tug-of-War.

In connection with the VI Corps championships the semi-finals and finals of the basket ball and tug-of-war competitions were held on Tuesday at the Headquarters of the 41st Machine Gun Bn. at Königsforst, the winners qualifying to compete in the Army of the Rhine championship to be held shortly.

Both tug-of-war teams entered by the 35 Bde. R.G.A. maintained their unbroken records of successes, each winning by two pulls to nil. The 100st. team was opposed by the London Division Signal Coy and the catch-weight team by the East Surreys. The 1/6th West Yorks were successful in the final of the Basket Ball.

A PECULIAR BOWLER.

J. H. Lockton's Sideways Hop Run and Shuffle.

Since J. H. Lockton made his début for Surrey a few weeks ago his curious run to the wicket has attracted considerable attention. It is reminiscent of the Rev. C. J. M. Godfrey, the old Sussex cricketer, whose bowling feats for the Granville (Lee) C.C. are well known to London club cricketers of the 'nineties and the earlier years of the present century. When he begins his run Lockton is standing close to mid off and he runs to the wicket at an angle of about 45 degrees.

His run may be divided into three periods. In the first period Lockton presses heavily on his left foot, as if he were going to begin a dance. Then, just as he seems to be getting into his stride, he does a hop on his right foot, takes three very long steps and does another hop. By this time he is running nearly sideways, and in two long steps and a sort of shuffle he arrives at the crease. Of course, it is not until the very last moment that the batsman can get an idea of the line which the ball will take. Lockton's average pace is fast-medium, and he seems to have the qualities, except accuracy, which go to the making of a good bowler.

Newcastle Recover.

The main feature of Newcastle's victory over Arsenal was the complete change shown by the home team from the hesitancy and irresolution shown against Albion.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Another Departure.

The popular band of the Royal Dragoons is leaving us. Many who have heard the band, will regret to learn of its impending departure. One of the finest military bands in Rhineland, it has earned a splendid name for itself by the delightful concerts it has provided. The Dragoons have had the honour of appearing before their Majesties the King and Queen of Belgium, Marshal Foch, and, on the occasion of his last visit, Mr. Winson Churchill. I am sure that everyone who has enjoyed their music will join me in wishing the members every success.

Sublime and Ridiculous.

The "Imps" Concert Party gave excellent shows to record houses in the Kaisersaal, Solingen. Sgt. Ward's rendering of "Arioso" (Pagliacci) was a suitable curtain raiser, and his expression of "On with the Yotley" prepared the audience for the good things which followed. He was joined by A. Wiseman in the duet "Battle Eve" and on being recalled they gave "Watchman, what of the Night." W. Harrison pleased his audience with "Little Jane" and "You come to me" while A Wiseman was in good voice with "Old Fashioned Mother." The comedy of the performance was provided by Jerry Myers and W. Whibley, who have both earned good reputations. In the closing burlesque drama, in which Ward collaborated with Clifford Grey, Myers is the heignt of the ridiculous as Sir Wildwood Bine the villain of the play. Some very good work is also done by W. Harrison (Solingen John), W. Whibley (Muriel Hohestrasse) A. Wisemen (Mrs. Hohestrasse and Mr. Pownell (the village idiot). The latter does some Yiddish patter and a lisping song "Irish Thoup."

Dora of "The Crumps."

This little caricature is an impression of Harry Harris (Dora), the leading lady of "The Crumps" (London Division Concert Party). He has been a female impersonator since 1910, appearing with "The Buzzing Bees," "The Don Acks," "The Wunny Wuns," and lastly with "The Crumps." Harris will be remembered by many as Dicky in "The Headmaster" and Phil in "The Heart of a Child." He has also had considerable experience in film photoplay work in England before the war.

A Gala Night.

The Stadt Theatre, Bonn, bedecked with flags, flowers and bunting, was the scene of much revelry on Friday evening last when "The Pedlars" gave their gala performance. The programme was submitted by request with the result that there were many successes. Every turn went well and numerous calls were made for encores. During the interval the orchestra rendered a selection from their repertoire. The show concluded with a comedy sketch entitled "The Waiter." 'Erb (Fred Weedon) played the leading role, while Frank Hartley, Norman Kiddie, Bert Waring, Claude Coln (Dolly) and Harry Capell (Irene) also appeared. Farewell "Pedlars."

After the performance was over "Auld Lang Syne" was sung and streamers and confetti were thrown all over the auditorium. Then the artistes were presented with tokens of remembrance by members of the audience. "The Pedlars" gave their last show on Saturday; this being necessitated by the fact that many of their members are going home demobbed. We wish them individually the best of good fortune in England.

Goodbye "Greenjackets!"

The "Greenjackets"—the concert party of the 18th Bn. K.R.R.C.—gave their final performance on Saturday night in Solingen. From the opening chorus till the concluding item, everything went with a swing, and the unstinted applause showed how much their efforts were appreciated. Rfn. Bennett has a pleasing tenor voice and he sang "Time for love" in his usual way, and also duetted with "Elsie the flapper" (Rfn. Bannister) in "Have a Heart." Rfn. Overton sang "Devon Boys" with great feeling. Rfn. Pateman is a good light comedian while Rfn. Bayliss is a comedian with a style all his own. He made the house roar with laughter with his stories and topical patter. The life and soul of the party is Rfn. Cross and each item he gave was loudly applauded. He very capably impersonated Miss Teddie Gerard in the "Apache dance" and this was enthusiastically applauded. The fame of Rfn. Young has spread throughout the Division as a first class comedian, and I am not exaggerating when I say that he kept the audience shaking with laughter. The concerted items were appreciated, especially the topical allusions. The party have been fortunate in having Rfn. Wright as their pianist. He has a remarkably sympathetic touch. The electricians and the stage manager must also be congratulated. The "Greenjackets" have amused thousands of troops since the party was inaugurated, and while I know many will miss them, still all will join in wishing them every success in "civvy" life.

JACQUES.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Wednesday, September 11th, 1919.

Wind light southerly, 5 to 6 m.p.h. Cool misty morning. Fine, very, warm, hazy day. Visibility indifferent.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

African Rugger.

The Western Province defeated the New Zealand Service Rugby team by 17 points to 6.

Gillingham's Feat.

There was no finer performance in the Southern League than Gillingham's win at Swansea, but Welsh credit was more or less restored by Merthyr's unexpected draw at Brighton.

Matt Well's Return.

We understand that Matt Wells, who went to America to get a return contest with Freddy Welsh, is leaving America and expects to land in England about the middle of September.

Hockey Internationals.

Whether internationals between the four countries will materialise is at present doubtful. While Scotland and Wales are slow in reorganisation, England and Ireland are fully ready for international combat.

Cambridgeshire Pointers.

Haki's success involves a 10lb. penalty for the Cesarewitch, but Clarion gets no extra for the Cambridgeshire through winning the St. Denis Stakes. This colt has given Captain Dewhurst a lot of trouble this season, but he is all right now and is expected to play a big part in the big Newmarket handicap.

Hill Again.

W. A. Hill, the sprint champion, won in even time at Southend. He dead-heated in the quarter with R. Nolan. J. C. Dixon won the mile.

New Member Wins.

The annual half-mile handicap of the Richmond Swimming Club ended in A. Suhr, a new member, winning somewhat easily by 35 yards, being in receipt of 135sec. start.

Aussies in America.

A beginning was made on Friday with a series of six matches, which have been arranged between the Australian lawn tennis players and picked representatives of the United Staates.

A Sign of the Times.

One of the best signs of the times with regard to the blend of amateur and professional in the football world is the match next November between Cambridge University and a Southern team representative of the Football Association.

Surprising Results.

The teams not yet having properly settled down, it was not at all surprising to find a number of unexpected results in Saturday's matches. Probably the greatest of these was Aston Villa's defeat at home by Sunderland in the First League competition.

West Ham's Changes.

West Ham had no fewer than seven changes in their team from last week that met Lincoln City at Lincoln.

Services Hockey.

Hockey in the Army and Navy, as well as in the Royal Air Force, is going to be highly popular, and representative matches between the "triple services" should be productive of considerable interest.

Discharged and Demobbed.

Entries are coming in from all parts of the British Isles for the National Federation of Discharged and Demobilized Sailors and Soldiers Sports Champion meeting at Stamford Brige on Sept. 17 and 18.

Surrey's New Secretary.

Mr. John Shuter, Surrey's old captain, who was succeeded by Mr. K. J. Key, will fill the post of secretary to the Surrey County Cricket Club, rendered vacant by the appointment of Mr. W. Findlay as assistant secretary of the M.C.C.

"The Manton Wizard."

"The Manton Wizard" must have waved his magic wand over Haki this year, for the horse has undergone a wonderful rejuvenation. He has come out like a giant refreshed, and the way he battled on in the Goodwood Plate was a revelation to those people who had dubbed him a soft beast.

Outstanding Item.

In this month's motoring programme the A.C.U. Six Days' Trial for motorcycles, sidecar machines, and three-wheeled cyclecars is the outstanding item.

Everton's Revenge.

Comparative form came a cropper at Stamford Bridge for Everton gained a well-earned revenge for their defeat at Goodison Park, by beating Chelsea by one goal to nil.

Benzole Trial.

The benzole trial of 10,000 miles, which is now well under way, is given added interest by the intention of the Automobile Association to start to-morrow a 4 h. p. Triumph motor-cycle and sidecar on a shorter run of 5,000 miles.

Crouch Yachting.

The Royal Corinthian Yacht Club's race on the Crouch for the ex-24-footer limited handicap class was won by Mr. A. G. McMeekin's Gybo, Messrs. Stanley Straker and Hartley Straker's Merrymaid being second and Mr. E. H. Morris' Tartar third.

Motor-Cycling Trial.

Fifteen teams competed in the Motor-Cycling Club's team trial on roads in the vicinity of Tring. The only club to get its six men home over the 100 miles without a stop was

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Worth watching.

Our classified advertisement columns seem to be getting quite an interesting feature nowadays. Many people we find, read them daily as an informative new feature. Recently we had the first birth-announcement—of a son—to a British lady temporarily resident in Cologne. Demobbed officers dispose of surplus personal kit; cameras appear to be always changing hands, whilst "bound-for-Blighty" units sell sporting goods and cinema outfits—many of these latter, we understand, to private individuals for use in country houses. All the dentists of Rhineland seem to have discovered a little gold mine in gold-crown work for the British Army, whilst articles are lost and found daily. Now "Agony" advertisements are coming in, so we may soon expect to receive eight marks from Flossie who will be waiting to meet Algy at the Dom at 8.30. No doubt all will be forgiven. Truly, as "The Times" has recently discovered, there is news in advertisements.

Killing chivalry.

Tommy always has a warm spot in his heart for the kiddies, even though they have been unfortunate enough to possess German parents. But what matters that? Kiddies are kiddies the world over. And yet, there are folk with other ideas. For instance, the other day two soldiers were on a car and were engaged in good-humoured play with a little German mite, much to its own and its mother's satisfaction. It did not, however, meet the approval of an English lady who was accompanied by an officer, for with an ill-concealed sneer she turned to the officer and said in a voice which was, unfortunately for her, overheard by the Tommies,"—And we talk of patriotism!" The remark evidently struck the officer as being most unfair, and he refrained from comment, though obviously very embarrassed. It is to be hoped, says our correspondent, that there are few of her ilk in Cologne—or the world, for that matter.

Post Parcels.

In Germany the pre-war charge for post-parcels was 50 pfennigs for 11 pounds. A card bearing the address and attached to the parcel is provided with a blank space on which, without further charge, the sender can write any necessary message to the addressee. The post-office motors collect the parcels from the post-offices. Arriving at the station they are put in official post-office wagons. Special postmen with electric tricycle vans distribute the parcels. One can register a parcel and send it by express like a letter. Locally, within the limits of one town, the tariff is reduced fifty per cent. It is easy to understand the advantage to trade of this organization.

A rude clock.

The side of the tower of the Cologne Townhouse facing the Altermarkt shows underneath the big clock, the face of a man, who thrusts out his tongue every hour as often as the clock strikes. Many of us would like to know what this performance means. At any rate, it is quite interesting to watch him at twelve o'clock when he has to go through this performance twelve times.

Soldier-Councillors.

In view of the forthcoming elections in November, it has been decided that leave may be granted to candidates, if they apply through the Local Government Board, to stand for these elections. Leave will not exceed 21 days from the date of nomination of the candidate, and applications will be submitted to General Headquarters, Army of the Rhine.

Chivalry in a Tramcar.

In a tramcar proceeding from Schaberg to Solingen the other day, the conductor came along for fares. On appoaching a Fräulein, she offered him a one Mark note for a forty pfennig ticket. The conductor gruffly asked her if she had any small change, where upon she politely told him she hadn't. He then proceeded to upbraid her in a most rude manner and at the first stopping place, made her get off. If this is a sample of German chivalry towards his women-folk, one wonders where all their vaunted politeness comes in.

Re-Echoes.

The Army Book Shop on the Ring, has we notice, disappeared. With the reduction in our forces it is feared that many other useful institutions for the troops in Rhineland will be putting up the shutters.

If you are being demobbed why not continue to have the "Cologne Post" sent to you daily by post? It will cost you little and will be a pleasant reminder of your sojourns on the Rhine.

In a Bonn café yesterday was to be seen a German, who was proudly wearing the Iron Cross. Evidently the display of the ribbon was insufficient for him.

Contrary to general opinion, the Opera "Tosca" has been presented in Cologne before, but not during or since the war. This on the authority of Franz Bruckner, the celebrated music critic of the Kölner Tageblatt.

Many alterations have been made in the time-table of the Rhine Steamer services. An abridged time-table with new times has been published. The complete plan may be obtained at the usual agencies.

No 3 Coy Northern Div. Train subscribed during the week ending Sept. 6 the sum of £164-16-8 or 15,824 Marks, approximately £1-19-4 per head of the Coy.

The signallers of the 18th K.R.R.C. are to be heartily congratulated on the result of the classification test held recently. They have come out top of the whole 1st Light Division and Rfn. Sharke has earned the distinction of being the best signaller throughout the Division.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give two prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Signaller S.T. Hammond, Camp Commandant's Office, Light Division H.Q., Rhine Army and Private M. Friedman, Demob. Branch Genl. H.Q.R.A. Rhine Army.

Tank to the Rescue.—During a power breakdown in Belfast a newspaper firm bought a tank engine and linked it up with the dynamo.

Keeping Down Expense.—For use as a sanatorium, Middlesex County Council is to buy huts which have been used as a hospital.

Berkshire's War Record.—Berkshire's war memorial is to take the form of a monument on which over 8,000 names will be inscribed.

Surprise for the Mistress.—An Ealing lady has received the following note from an expected Irish maid: "You will be surprised to hear that, instead of coming to you to-morrow, I am going to be married."

AROUND AND ABOUT.

MARCHING TO MUSIC.

The only time that soldiers keep perfect step is when they are without sound signals, such as the beat of a drum. This is the explanation: "Sound travels about 1,060 feet per second at 0deg. C., or 265 feet in one-fourth second. The soldier next the drummer, steps with the drummer, the soldier 265 feet in the rear is one-fourth second late, and has his foot in the air when the foot of the front man is on the ground. This is because they march at 120 steps per minute (two steps per second), which gives one-half a step in one-fourth second. Hence the soldier who hears the signal one-fourth second late will fall one-half step behind. The feet are seen to strike the ground in receding waves as the sound passes down the line. If the drum stops, the men in two or three seconds get into perfect step again and go with a sway and swing absent at other times.

HOUSE FLY'S CAREER.

One of the first signs of the waning season may be observed in the behaviour of the house fly. During the summer this fly takes more liberties with us than any other insect. He invades every room, and his fondness for the kitchen is explained by the fact that it is generally warmer there than in any other part of the house and, therefore, more in keeping with his activities. Baking-day he seems to know by instinct, for he will leave the merry sunshine any time and hie away to the locality of the hot stove or oven, where he relies on finding some form of food to sample and crawl over. But it is the heat rather than the food that attracts him. The female deposits her eggs in all sorts of places, but she instinctively knows that if they must hatch out there must be warmth. Where the females go, there the males dance attendance. At such times one should treat these flies without mercy. They are not only a nuisance, but they are a public danger for they carry disease by their habits and methods of travel.

SHAKING HANDS.

Certain customs in vogue at the present day, such as shaking hands or offering the left arm to a lady, are of considerable antiquity. It is said that the Phoenicians introduced the former habit into Britain, and that upon the shores of Mounts Bay many a bargain in tin between Eastern merchant and Cornishman was ratified by this method of clasping hands.

In mediaeval times he who shook hands, whether in salutation or as a defensive measure—retaining the sword hand while some treaty was being arranged—must need strip off his steel gauntlet. So at the present time men pull off their right-handed glove before shaking hands with a lady.

STRIKING A MATCH.

"It's a woman," said the detective, heatedly. "We're on the trail."

"It looks like a man to me," the reporter murmured.

"But didn't you notice how she struck that match?" said Lecocq. "She struck it away from her—a sure sign of her sex. Men always strike matches toward them."

After the arrest of the suspect—a woman, sure enough—Lecocq amplified his match statement. "It is tobacco that caused this difference between the sexes in match striking," he said. "All of us unconsciously strike matches toward what we are going to light. Woman always is going to light a lamp or a fire, that is further off than the match, so she strikes her match away from her. But man is always going to light a pipe or cigarette: that is nearer, so he strikes his match toward him."

THE PLAGUE OF RATS.

According to trustworthy estimates, the depredations of the huge army of rats in Great Britain are responsible for the destruction of some £50,000,000 worth of food annually. The chief rat inspector of the Board of Agriculture calculates that each rat, if it lives a year, accounts for 5s. 6d. worth of food in rural areas amongst grain, crops, etc. If given the choice, rats much prefer the food prepared by man, and the extension of their activities in the house will increase that figure, according to the Board of Agriculture, to about £1 per head. It should be remembered that the danger of disease being spread is so great that it is unsafe to eat food which has been nibbled by rats.

The extent to which this danger can multiply may be gauged from the fact that the present estimate of £50,000,000 total yearly damage corresponds to an estimate from the same source in 1913 of £15,000,000.

A USE FOR POISON GAS.

It has been found that poison gas, so cruel an enemy to mankind in war, has its uses in peace. When applied to the land the gas kills all the things it ought to kill and none of those it ought not. Wireworms and millipedes die instantly, as do all the tribe of noxious insects, but that kindly and invisible life which makes the fertility of the soil, remains undamaged or is even benefited by the application. The beneficial soil bacteria are relieved of all noxious competitors, and so flourish immensely. There is no doubt about the facts They have been tested by repeated experiments, and we posses many thousand tons of this gas, which is in liquid form and as a liquid harmless.

RUSTIC FRENCH.

One detects the influence of the war in the village inns of England to-day, says a correspondent who has just returned from a walking tour. The "lads of the village" are home again, and gather, as of yore, in the bar parlour to discuss the events of the day; but there is a marked difference in their vocabulary. For they remember the estaminets of France and the language talked therein. "Encore de bière" has become the formula for repeating an order, and "fini" has taken its place among the recognised methods of intimating refusal to drink again.

BOGUS HEROES.

Every other day someone appears in one of the London courts on a charge of wearing Army uniform without permission. The penalties are severe, and to most people would act as a deterrent. They would consider the illegitimate wearing of uniform as not being worth the risk. In some cases their vanity gets the better of them. They do not consider that in the long run they are bound to be caught. In other cases, for instance, the daring officer who bedecks himself with ribbons abuses the uniform in order to facilitate a career of fraud. The man who poses as a private in the Army does so usually in order to take advantage of the hostels brought into being during the war for the convenience of bona-fide soldiers.

WOMEN CRICKETERS.

A thirteenth century manuscript chronicle of England shows a game of cricket in which a man is batting to the bowling of a woman. Mr. E. V. Lucas records a match between Sussex women in the 18th century. "In June, 1796," he writes, "the married women of Bury beat the single women by 80 runs, and thereupon uniting forces, challenged any team of women in the county. Not only did these women of Bury shine at cricket, but in a Sussex paper for 1791 I find an account of two of Bury's daughters assuming the names of Big Ben and Mendoza, and engaging in a hardly-contested prize fight before a huge gathering. Big Ben won."

AWFUL LYDDITE.

The part played in the war by H. M. light cruiser Birmingham has just been told by Lewis R. Freeman. Describing the Heligoland Bight fight in August 1914, he says the Birmingham was engaged with the Southampton and the Yarmouth in the sinking of the Mainz. Smaller than any of the three of us, we had her hopelessly outmatched from the first; but I have to give her credit for making the pluckiest kind of a fight. We battered her about as we pleased, and in standing in close to her, just before she went down, I had my first opportunity to see the truly terrible effect of British lyddite. Of the terrific 'scorching' action of the latter, there was grim evidence in two scarred and naked bodies—probably those of the captain and navigator—which hung over the rail of the bridge. Apparently unscathed from the fragments of a shell which had burst near them, the clothes and hair had been completely consumed by the fierce heat, while the terrific blast of air and gas had slit the flesh of their bodies as though it had been slashed with knives.

SMELLING MEDICINE.

That medicines for all diseases may be applied by inhalation is the conclusion of a medical authority, after many years of experiment. Hitherto this method has been chiefly confined to anaestheties and remedies for respiratory affections, but marked success is claimed for it in both digestive and nervous troubles. The medicine in liquid form is used to saturate a sponge, which is contained in a tube through which nitrous oxide gas as a "conveyor" is inhaled. Risk of chemical or other change from contact with food materials is avoided, and the medicine is absorbed into the circulation from the lungs even more readily than from the stomach, smaller doses sufficing.

WASTING TREES.

The amount of waste paper collected in all of Great Britain was about 1,000 tons a week in 1914. By 1918 this had been increased to 6,000 tons per week, or an increase of approximately 500 per cent.

Waste material is the protector of our natural resources. Waste paper, utilised in the manufacture of other paper material, serves as a substitute for wood pulp. It requires eight trees of mature growth to produce a ton of paper pulp. Every ton of waste paper which can be substituted will save eight trees for other uses. In our urban centres we send annually to the dump approximately 13 tons of usable waste material for every 1,000 inhabitants, and 20 per cent, of this tonnage is made up of waste paper.

Based upon the approximation of the present population of our country, we are sending annually to the dump at least 150,000 tons of waste paper, or twice as much paper as was collected in all of Great Britain in 1918. This amount represents the substituted power for at least 1,200,000 trees of mature growth.

THE TEN BEST BOOKS.

RESULT OF THE PRIZE COMPETITION.

The interesting contest which closed last Saturday has now been carefully judged by the Editor with the result that Pte G. Dilger, R.A.M.C., c/o D.D.M.S., VI. Corps, H.Q. Rhine Army, has been found to be the winner of the prize of fifty marks.

It will be remembered that readers were invited to send in lists of the ten books they considered the best. Every book scored one vote each time it figured in a list and the competitor whose selection embraced the highest aggregate of votes would be the winner.

The following books headed the list:

Ivanhoe	195	votes
The Scarlet Pimpernel	180	"
David Copperfield	176	"
King Solomon's Mines	162	"
Westward Ho!	150	"
Tale of Two Cities	131	"
Lorna Doone	115	"
The Three Musketeers	110	"
Count of Monte Cristo	110	"
Treasure Island	104	"
	1433	"

Nobody got their lists exactly like this, but Pte. Dilger came nearest with the following:

Ivanhoe	195	votes
David Copperfield	176	"
King Solomon's Mines	162	"
Westward Ho!	150	"
Lorna Doone	115	"
The Three Musketeers	110	"
Treasure Island	114	"
Oliver Twist	80	"
The Cloister on the Hearth	50	"
Tom Brown's Schooldays	20	"
	1272	"

In all 142 separate works were chosen by readers and the variety of books is of interest as showing the tastes of the man in the Rhine Army. One competitor went "nap" on the novels of Nat Gould, his list containing only books by that most popular writer of modern sporting fiction.

"GAMBLING IN MENS' LIVES".

MOMENTOUS ACTION OF SMILLIE'S FOLLOWERS AT T.U. CONGRESS.

A PRAYER FROM NORTH RUSSIA.

DIRECT ACTION.

MOMENTOUS CONGRESS OF TRADES UNIONS.

Mr. Smillie, the miners' leader, won a preliminary surprise attack with regard to the question of direct action at the Trade Union Congress at Glasgow yesterday, obtaining a large majority in favour of referring back the Parliamentary Committee's report on the policy.

The president, Mr. Stuart Bunning, had previously stated that such a vote would be construed as favouring direct action on political issues.

Mr. Smillie's majority on a card vote was 710,000, the voting being:—

For reference back 2,586,000
Against.....1,876,000

Majority for...710,000

Mr. J.R. Clynes, M.P., said they were bewildering their followers and disgusting the people.

Delegates to the number of 830, representing over 5,250,000 Trade Unionists, are in congress at Glasgow. There have been no sensations; the Congress is in sober mood and shows a sense of responsibility deepened partly by the knowledge of its great strength, and partly by the expectation that before long it may have to play a direct part in governing the country.

It is a significant fact that Emmanuel Shinwell, the Clydeside firebrand, who bade the delegates welcome to this city, gave vent to no passion, but rather dwelt in calm language on the great potentialities of the Congress and its growing influence.

It may be noted also that the President of the Congress, Mr. Stuart-Bunning, in an address remarkable for its moderation of tone and firmness of purpose, urged those of the rank and file who were inclined to waywardness not to jeopardize the place which trade unions had earned in the respect of the nation, because, he said, "we may confidently look forward in a short time to a Labour Government, and no Government can continue to exist which does not enjoy the confidence of the people." The President's address was the main business of the opening day. Some of the views which Mr. Stuart-Bunning expressed, notably on direct action, must have been objectionable to certain of his hearers, yet his speech was not subjected to a single interruption or expression of dissent.

The President's Points.

The chief points in the President's address were as follows:

We are involved in a war with Russia which is thoroughly unpopular with the working classes of this country. Their feeling has been illustrated in many ways and the Government is running a grave risk by ignoring it.

The action of the Parliamentary Committee on the important question of direct action has been misunderstood and misrepresented.

To have called a special congress [to consider a strike ballot] would have identified the Committee with the policy of a national strike on political matters.

Had such a Congress rejected the proposal it would have stereotyped the very policies it would desire to condemn; had it passed the resolution on, and the members rejected it at the ballot, the result would have been a miserable and tragic fiasco.

The Government must have fought a national strike, and that meant revolution.

The project therefore resolved itself into a desperate gamble, with the lives of men, women and children for the stakes.

I do not believe in industrial strikes on political matters. I do not despair of constitutional methods.

The suggestions of direct action are due largely to the conduct of Ministers themselves.

The failure to carry out pledges destroyed confidence in the Government.

The world is five years behind in production. The wastage must be repaired, the lost time made up. There must be an increase of productivity.

This will not be obtained by screeching "slackers" at us.

Increased output can only be obtained by the cooperation of both employers and employed. We are willing to do our share.

The Congress is not weakening on the question of the nationalization of the mines.

Speaking of the vast amalgamation of labour forces he said they had grievous faults. The discipline of the movement was deficient. There are unofficial strikes and repudiations of agreements.

The reputation of trades unions for keeping the bargains they have made must be upheld.

We may confidently look forward in a short time to a Labour Government. No Government can exist which does not enjoy the confidence of the people, and that can only be obtained and retained by a well-founded belief in the integrity of the party which provides the Government.

ARCHANGEL CLERGY.

ASK BRITISH TROOPS TO REMAIN.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has received a long telegram from the Bishop, clergy, and other Christians of Archangel appealing to English Christians to ask the British Government to allow British and Allied troops to remain in North Russia.

While during a whole year, says the telegram, the citizens of Archangel have lived in safety and peace under the protection of the British nation and her Allies, parts of the northern region are still under the yoke of Bolshevist terrorists, and the people are perishing in great numbers. Now the terrible tidings have spread throughout Archangel and the whole northern region that the British troops are to be withdrawn. This decision, if carried out, will have terrible consequences. In this solemn hour the Archangel Christians ask the Christians in England to ask their Government to leave British troops in Northern Russia until after the storm has passed and the position of the Russian people has become clear.

"ILLEGAL CONQUESTS"

DE WET'S STUPID OUTBURST.

General De Wet has issued a wild manifesto through the Nationalist organ, "Die Volksblad," at Bloemfontein. He declares that he will no longer keep silence regarding the illegal conquest of German South-West and East Africa, and is sorry that he must come out with the naked truth now that General Botha is dead. The true cause of the rebellion of 1914, in which he participated, was the unjustifiable attack on German territory, and therefore he intends making a strong appeal to the people of South Africa to force the Government to restore the German colonies to their "rightful owners."

STARVING BUDAPEST.

Budapest is on the verge of famine. Official reports show that the city has now only twelve days' supply of fats, eleven day's supply of flour and corn, two days' supply of meat, and four days' supply of coal, while the reserves of corn at this season, usually about 600,000 tons, are now below 9,000. Of milk there is practically none in the city, and the sanitary department says that there is at least 50 per cent. mortality amongst the infants in the hospitals. The municipal storehouses are empty. They usually contain at this time of the year, amongst other things, some 12,000,000 eggs, but there is now not a single egg in them. Budapest itself requires 3,000 tons of provisions daily, and only 600 tons are arriving. The peasants refuse to part with their foodstuffs for mere money, but demand boots, clothing, and other articles which Hungarian towns are quite unable to furnish. Bankers say that the peasants have three-fifths of the entire money in circulation. The Budapest banks can raise only 300 million crowns for food supplies, which would only feed the town population one month, and then merely the poorer classes. Vegetables are the chief article of diet, and even dogs are being eaten.

DON COSSACKS' RAID.

A grand raid by the Don Cossacks, led by Mamontoff, the famous Master of Foxhounds, has resulted in the capture of Tambog, with only twenty casualties among the attacking forces. Fifteen hundred Bolshevist troops and 2,000 peasant conscripts surrendered. One Bolshevist battalion, which surrendered to a man, is to form the nucleus of a division of former Bolshevists which Mamonstoff is organising. Tamboff was well stocked with food supplies, which Mamontoff distributed to the civilian population. The military stores in the town were destroyed by the Cossacks, who are now advancing on Koztoff.

CANADIAN MAIL TRAIN WRECKED.

A trans-continental train of the Canadian National Railways has been wrecked near Thor Lake, 37 miles west of Cap Reot, in Northern Ontario. Three sleeping cars and the dining car left the track and were overturned, imprisoning the passengers in their berths and making the work of rescue exceedingly difficult. Twenty passengers, most of them women and children, were injured.

GERMANY TIRED OF STRIKES.

The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger states that auxiliary forces of skilled workmen are being formed to combat strikes in gas, water, and electricity works, and in the transport of food and other vitally important sevices.—Reuter.

BISHOP'S BAN.

NO MONEY FROM WHIST DRIVES OR DANCES.

A crusade is to be started throughout Essex on the 18th inst. for raising a quarter of a million sterling for Church work in the county. The Bishop of Chelmsford in a letter to the clergy in his "Diocesan Chronicle" says:

"I may as well say quite frankly that I do not desire to have any part of the sum raised by whist drives or dances. For the moment I am not venturing an opinion on either. Both may be perfectly legitimate forms of recreation; but they are not the methods of the Church for raising the money for carrying on work. I have never heard of either being opened or closed with prayer.

"I want offerings as a result of self-denial and not because of a night of amusement. I emphasise this point because I believe the Church never really gains by money obtained in the ways I have mentioned. People do not give the money for a spiritual object, but for the enjoyment of the game, and in consequence they cannot reap any spiritual benefit from the gift."

WAR SCIENCE.

HOW LIVES WERE SAVED.

Sir Charles Parsons, speaking at the British Association Congress at Bournemouth, said that perhaps the most interesting development of the war had proved to be the listening devices for range-finding. Hydrophones for locating submarines were much used and echoes from objects both above and below water had also provided means of detection. Shocks from underwater explosions could be detected hundreds of miles away by means of hydrophones and by means of leader gear, ships could follow the line of a current when conveying cable to be laid at the bottom of the sea.

The advance made during the war in sound-ranging apparatus was such that in one year over 30,000 enemy guns were located by this means and the importance of these devices as a protection against submarines was very great.

FRENCH PROFITEERS BEATEN

Senator Herriot, Mayor of Lyons, has successfully fought the food speculators through the Workers' Co-operative Productions Society.

At a meeting of delegates from these societies, he announced that the Lyons Municipality had decided to grant a subvention of £44,000. This sum has not been taken from the City's budget. It comes from the profits realised by direct sale to the consumers of Lyons of provisions of the first necessity, on which speculators had previously made immense profits.

Those in charge of the city's finances made an inquiry into these huge profits, and Senator Herriot resolved to fight the plunderers. With money entrusted to him he did business, and a result of which speculation in food was stopped.

GIFTS TO THE NATION.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has acknowledged the receipt of £2,500 Funding stock from "G. B. C."

In June "F. S. T." announced, through "The Times," his intention to invest £150,000—a fifth of his wealth—in Joy Loan and give the scrip to the nation for cancellation. He urged other rich men to do likewise. Other contributions have included the surrender of £13,200 War stock by a Birmingham resident and the sacrifice of dividends on £40,000 War Loan by an Eastbourne man.

At the humbler end of the scale have been £8 from a man who wished to reduce the National Debt, and even 6d. from children "to help to pay for the war."

AIRMAN'S SWIM FOR LIFE.

While flying alone from Plymouth to Gosport in an aeroplane attached to H.M.S. Revenge, Captain David Don, of the R.A.F., fell into the sea about 100 yards from the cliff near Bolt head (South Devon).

Clearing himself from the machine, he struck out for the shore and reached an intervening rock 20 yards from the base of the cliff.

The accident was seen by harvesters and coastguards. The harvesters were first on the scene, and one descended the cliff and helped Capt. Don through the breakers.

Capt. Don was uninjured, and after hospitality at a farm house, was able to return to Plymouth by motor-car.

EX-SERVICE MEN AND WOMEN DRIVERS.

In answer to representations made to the War Office by the Comrades of the Great War regarding the continued employment of women drivers of War Office vehicles while ex-Service men are still unemployed, a reply has been received from the Secretary of the War Office stating that, in order to enable men to be demobilized in France, it was necessary to obtain 1,000 women drivers.

NO GUARANTEE FOR BELGIUM.

Members of the American Peace Delegation deny all knowledge of the reported agreement whereby the United States and Great Britain are to guarantee Belgium against German aggression.

SMUTS ON PEACE.

SOUTH AFRICAN PREMIER'S STIRRING SPEECH.

General Smuts, successor to General Botha, made the first speech of his premiership in introducing the Peace Treaty ratification resolution in the South African Union Parliament. He characterized the British victory as the most important ever attained in history and spoke in terms of high praise of the League of Nations. He said they were witnessing the last scene of the last act of the greatest drama in history, of the most important victory ever attained. Never had there been a settlement so far-reaching.

Regarding the provisions to prevent wars in future, the Premier declared, amid cheers, that the British Dominions were equal members, with full right to be elected to the League. This was the chance of the Dominions, but at the same time nothing should be allowed to loosen the bonds of the Empire. South Africa wanted to remain in the British League of Nations, which was probably the real organiser of victory. The lofty ideal of the League of Nations had taken root and it would undoubtedly come into operation to fill the great vacuum caused by the disappearance of old forms of Government.

Paris had been a seething cauldron of human greeds and passions, but he had ever kept before him the vision of the League of Nations as the great landmark of human progress. It would keep the peace of the world and it would obtain international recognition for young and small nations. General Smuts was confident that the disarmament of the former enemy meant the far-reaching disarmament of Allied Powers.

The speech concluded with references to reciprocal respect and desire for the the unity of British and Dutch.

FOILING PUSSYFOOT.

HOME MADE WINES AS NEW HOBBY.

The American Anti-Saloon League is not opposed to the provision in the Prohibition Enforcement Bill, now awaiting the President's signature, permitting the making of light wines in private houses. The "wets" all along have contended that if a man buys, say, grapes, takes them home, extracts the juice, and that juice ferments, it is impossible for the agents of the law to follow that man into his house to see what he does with the grapes or call daily to see if the juice ferments.

As every country housewife knows, elderberry and other wines, besides cider, can develop a high alcoholic content. So a further stimulus is given to the hobby of the "wets," which is the invention of new beverages "with a kick in them."

ARTILLERY RECORDS.

Remarkable figures concerning the war were detailed to the British Association at yesterday's meeting. On one day on the British front alone 943,837 artillery rounds were fired, weighing 1,080 tons or over one hundred times more than the number of rounds fired at Waterloo and over 540 times their weight. The total number of rounds fired on the whole of the British front was over 170 million, nearly 30,500,000 tons or 622 times as many and 1,250 times as heavy as the grand total in the Boer War.

MID-VICTORIAN SUNDAYS.

Over forty Scouts from the Poor-law Schools at Hanwell (City of London and Southwark) have been camping out under the care of Mr. Lingard, who asked that he might take ten of them to Southend on some Sunday for a day's outing.

The chairman (the Rev. Thomas Grear), at a meeting of the managers, said the committee did not think it desirable to sanction a Sunday outing. Mr. M. L. Saunders said he quite agreed with the committee. They did not want Sunday pleasuring. Sunday was a day of rest.

CLOSING DOWN.

All shipping intelligence offices in the United Kingdom closed last Saturday. They were at Louth, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Hull, London, Devonport, Cardiff, Swansea, Liverpool, and Glasgow. Henceforward all merchant vessels leaving the United Kingdom will be dependent upon the ordinary channels for mine warnings and other navigational information. With the closing of these offices the official giving of routes to outward-bound merchantmen ceases.

AERODROMES FOR DISPOSAL.

The Air Ministry announces that the following Royal Air Force stations are to be relinquished and disposed of: Lowestoft, Hickling Broad, Bembridge, New Bembridge, Seahouses, Seaton Carew, Marham, Tynemouth, Leadenham, Upper Heyford, Usworth, Helperby, Ashington, and Scale Hall, Lancs.

INDOOR OPEN-AIR SERVICE.

A novel service has been held at Dover within the walls of the Wesley Memorial Hall, which was unroofed and blown to pieces by German bombs. It has now been cleared inside and made safe, but is still open to the sky.

IRISH OUTRAGES.

PRIEST CALLS DOWN CURSE OF CAIN.

In connection with the daring outrage committed in Fermoy on Sunday morning, when a soldier was shot dead, three others were wounded, and the arms of the party were seized and carried away, four arrests have been made in the Globulane district, near Fermoy, and the prisoners taken under escort to the local barracks. Private Lloyd, who was shot through the neck, is still alive, but his condition is grave. After the seizure of the soldiers' arms the police in many Irish towns examined all motor-cars as they approached or left their districts. A motor driver named McDonagh, who failed to pull up in time, was fired at and wounded by the police at Moneygall, about twelve miles from Nenagh, county Tipperary. Military and police guarded the approaches to Nenagh and searched all cars that came or went.

It is reported that the police have discovered two guns and a large quantity of ammunition in a wood not far from the spot where the Lorrha (Tipperary) shooting outrage took place some days ago, when a police-sergeant was ambushed and shot dead.

Speaking at Mass at Lorrha on Sunday, the Rev. John Gleeson, parish priest, in condemning the recent murder of a police sergeant, said if the murderers escaped human justice they would not escape Divine justice, and while they lived the face of a dead innocent man, a good father, and a good Christian would haunt their memory. They would walk like Cain, fugitives on the earth. The cause which was forwarded on murder and cemented by human blood was cursed by God and doomed to vengeance. Concluding, the priest said: "May the curse of Cain, the curse of the widow and orphans, the curse of the priest, and the curse of God fall on those who were guilty of the murder, and may God have mercy on their souls."

PERSHING HOME.

GREATEST OVATION ON RECORD.

Upon his arrival at Hoboken General Pershing received the greatest ovation ever accorded by America to any of her citizens, with the exception, perhaps, of that accorded to President Wilson on the occasion of his first return from France.

As the Leviathan docked at Hoboken whistles, syrens, and bells at Hoboken, Manhattan, and Brooklyn started a deafening clamour, which was taken up by all the craft in the harbour, drowning the bands on the piers, which were playing the "Star-Spangled Banner."

General Pershing stood on the bridge and saluted in acknowledgment of his welcome. Mr. Baker, Secretary of State for War, was first to greet the General, upon whom he conferred the full rank of General. Mr. Baker read a message of welcome from Mr. Wilson, in which the President paid a glowing tribute to General Pershing's achievements.

The General subsequently motored to the City Hall, where an official reception was held.

LAND WOMEN NOT WANTED.

The British Mission which is seeking a chance to transplant English land women to Australia is meeting with very little success, all the States declaring that the whole of their activities is required to settle repatriated soldiers. The fact is that, although there is ample land and opportunities are plentiful, the nation still does not appreciate the pressing necessity of increasing the population in order to bear the burdens created by the war.

RELIEF MISSION TO MONTENEGRO.

Lieutenant-Colonel Cheke, accompanied by his staff, has just left Paris for Trieste, on his way to Montenegro, as head of the British Relief Mission. This is the first mission of relief from this country that will have entered Montenegro. Reports received by a messenger who has just arrived in Paris tell a tale of the appalling misery of the unfortunate inhabitants of the little country.

VON LETTOW'S ESCAPE.

A revolver shot was fired at General Lettow von Vorbeck on Saturday outside a theatre in Stargard (Pomerania), where he delivered a lecture on the war in East Africa. He was not injured, and his assailant was arrested.

AGED PRISONER'S DEATH.

William Causton, aged 89, who was charged with attempting to murder his wife, Mary Ann Causton, aged 83, at their home in Theodore-road, Hithergreen, Lewisham, has died in Brixton Prison.

Causton is alleged to have attacked his wife with a chopper on August 26. It is stated that the woman is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

MUNICIPAL VEGETABLE STALL.

Nottingham Corporation has decided, in consequence of the high prices charged for vegetables in the city, to set up a stall in the market-place for the sale of vegetables grown on the sewage farm. It was proposed that fish should also be sold by the municipality, but this was not adopted.

TWELVE MILE PIT.

TAPPING NEW SOURCES OF ENERGY.

Referring to the production of electric power the President of the British Association, speaking at yesterday's sitting, said it is cheaper to produce electricity from coal than from water, but the running costs of water power are much smaller. The cost of harnessing all the water power of the world would be, it is estimated, £8,000,000,000 or about what the war cost England. He expressed his conviction that in the end water power would prevail.

Dealing with the question of new sources of power he said the two main sources were live molecular energy and the sinking of shafts into the bowels of the earth. Referring to his suggestion to construct a shaft of twelve miles deep (seven times deeper than any existing one) which would cost £5,000,000 and take eighty-five years to sink, he said that the cost — less than one day's warfare — would be trivial compared with the enormous gains that might accrue. Boreholes have already been used in Italy and they discharge large volumes of pressure steam which is utilised for general power by turbines.

OILY RECTORY.

MARY JANE AS POLTERGEIST.

No "poltergeist," as some wiseheads suggested, but a servant girl of fifteen, is at the bottom of the oil "mystery" at Swanton Novers rectory, Norfolk. Mr. Oswald Williams, an illusionist, arranged with the rector, Mr. Guy, to lay a trap for the servant girl. She was dismissed for three days, and the house was closed; during this interval no liquid fell.

In the meantime, Mr. Williams cut off the water supply and removed all liquids from the premises except that he bestowed about the rooms haphazard several pails containing water strongly salted with common table salt. On the return of the girl yesterday morning she reported two more falls of liquid. This was found by Mr. Guy to be salted water.

Finally, through an aperture which had been made, the girl was seen to take up a glass and throw some of the salted water up to the ceiling. The watcher raised the alarm, and finally the girl after first denying her hoax, made a clean breast of the matter.

WOMEN THROWN FROM BUS TOP.

Two elderly women were killed and two men seriously injured through a bus colliding with a tree in Barry-road, Dulwich.

Where the accident ocurred the road is under repair, leaving a narrow strip for vehicles to pass. The bus swerved too closely to the near side, and struck the tree with such force that a considerable portion of the top of the bus was wrenched off, and all the seats on the left side torn away.

The two ladies were thrown from the top to the pavement, one being killed instantly, and the other so seriously injured that she died on the way to hospital.

PESTILENT PETROGRAD.

Advices from Petrograd state that the death rate in that city from cholera and dysentery has now increased to about 60 per cent. The sanitary situation is growing more and more intolerable. Owing to the lack of medicines and food, many hospitals have been forced to close. All the hospitals managed by Sisters of Mercy have been forced to discontinue their work by a decree issued by the Government. On some days from two to three hundred persons have died of cholera.

DECIMAL COINAGE REPORT.

The statement circulated by a news agency to the effect that the report arrived at by the Royal Commission on decimal coinage is of a non-committal character, and that no legislation is likely to be recommended, is incorrect. Lord Emmett says that the Royal Commission has not even begun to consider its report, nor have the commissioners exchanged any ideas on the matter.

ANCIENT CUSTOM REVIVED.

The Abbot's Bromley "horn dance" was resumed near Burton-on-Trent yesterday, after being allowed to lapse during the war—its first break in four Centuries.

The dozen dancers, who carried on their shoulders antlers weighing 50lb., toured the district, and, as is customary, called on Lord Bagot at Blithfield Hall, where they had a cordial reception.

CRUMBLING POLICE UNION.

The members of the Southampton Police Force have retired from the Police Union in a body. This was the outcome of a meeting held, when all ranks, without exception, unanimously handed in their resignation to the secretary. The present strength of the local force is about 160.

Vorwärts understands that four hundred thousand German workmen have volunteered for restoration work in Northern France.

PROUD TO WEAR IT!

At last the allied Victory riband has been authorised and issued; and we can wear it as a companion to the British War Riband.

The choice of colours for both medal ribands is quite a happy one and they blend harmoniously. They are appropriate and in good taste, and generally admired.

There are some, we know, who cavil at the natural desire of those who have served in the war to display these ribands on their uniform.

They hint sneeringly that what millions are entitled to wear is too cheap an honour for them.

They insinuate that there are thousands who were never actually under fire who can carry the decoration on their breasts.

Such paltry criticisms are as unfair as they are uncalled for, and they apply equally to the wars of the past as to the Greatest of all Wars.

No war — and much less one of such magnitude as this — could be carried to a successful conclusion if everyone were in the nearer zone of fire.

Organization, supplies, technical and medical services and administration generally all have their part to play and value in the field of operations.

Even those who were detailed to do their bit on the much travestied "Etaples front" had their taste of the ghastly side of modern warfare and paid their toll in hundreds of lives.

Let us be generous to all. In years to come, when we can view the war that has so recently ended in its true perspective, we shall begrudge no one their riband of service in it any more than we should think of doing in the case of a Crimean veteran.

We never stop to ask exactly what their particular job in that campaign was. It is sufficient to know that they served their country in the role that was assigned to them.

The pride in wearing the Victory riband is a legitimate and commendable pride, which we can share equally with all the Allies with whom we were linked in arms.

The man or woman—for this war was not merely a man's affair—who wears this honorable badge of service can do so with a clear consciousness of having done his or her duty to the Motherland in her hour of need.

BLÜCHER.

One hundred years ago to-day Field-Marshall von Blücher died. Let us recall the deeds by which he earned his fame and for which European civilization owed him much.

In June 1815 Wellington stood with his army south of Brussels, barring Napoleon's way to the city and the Flanders coast. From the Rhine Province Blücher marched to his aid with the Prussian force.

Napoleon—ever prompt in action—met the Prussians at Ligny on 16th June and after a fierce struggle drove them back; their grey haired leader himself being almost captured by the French cavalry.

Napoleon thought he had finished with the Prussians and at midday on the 18th June he attacked Wellington's position at the farm of Belle-Alliance on the Plain of Waterloo.

French leadership and courage were unavailing against the British levies and though by evening Wellington's men had been hard pressed, they still stood on their battle positions.

At that moment, Blücher's Prussians appeared on the French flank; the French wavered—they retired, and as twilight fell, Napoleon's aggressive militarism was ended.

What had happened? Blücher having promised to reinforce Wellington, resisted the advice of his Generals to rest his exhausted men, and saying "I must keep my word," made a forced march by a detour, in spite of rain and Flanders mud.

Times have changed. In 1815 Prussia was fighting side by side with Britain for national honour and existence and to save Europe from the military domination of one mighty leader. In 1815 Blücher kept his word.

In 1914 Prussian militarism had led Germany into an onslaught against the rights and freedom of other people. She violated her pledged word guaranteeing Belgian neutrality.

In 1914, Britain, mindful of her promises, took the field in defence of Belgium and by 1918 Germany's military aggression went under.

Both now and a hundred years ago Britain has fought for right and liberty. Does Germany now believe in these ideals? Is she convinced that militarism does not pay?

This is what the world requires her to prove before she can again be welcomed as a member of the comity of civilized nations.

IN A. C. C. S.

"Bang-rattle, Yea, Sir"—a grunt—again the sleepy voice of the night orderly, "A nice hot cup o'tea, Sir," "Oh! go to—with your tea, and don't bring me my water until half past six." After a little more grumbling the officer settles himself for another hour and a half of sleep.

At five-thirty the silvery voice of Sister awakes him, but he is careful not to betray the fact. "Mr. Johnson, Mr. Johnson, temperature please." Mr. Johnson receives a tender dig in the ribs. "Mr. Johnson, you ought to be ashamed of yourself sleeping at this hour. You ought to be washed by now, and there is your tea, stone cold." As each sentence is preceded by a pull of the ear and sundry other tortures used by Sisters in their profession, the unfortunate patient decides to wake up. Thereupon he seizes the thermometer, tries to swallow it, and shoots out his arm to the correct position for the taking of the pulse.

As an act of retaliation he keeps up a running fire of growls and grumblings, which has the desired effect of preventing Sister from "taking the count" correctly, and also of keeping the thermometer decidedly cool, so cool in fact that the thermometer is put back for another minute; and Sister has scored once more.

Again the poor patient drops off to sleep, only to be awakened a few minutes later by "Joosty" the night orderly, bringing the water. "I thought I told you to bring me my water at half past six." "Yes, Sir," is the reply, "but Sister says you leave it too late and get mixed up with the breakfast." "Could'nt make the breakfast any worse," is the retort.

After washing is over, along comes Sister and an orderly, to make the bed, this being done to everybody's satisfaction except the occupant's.

The night shift then departs, and a rattling of cups and plates heralds the advent of the day shift, breakfast, and another more or less somnolent day.

GIVENCHY.

WHAT TO SEE IN RHINELAND.

THE DABRIN CHAUSEN HILLS.

They remind you of Devonshire or parts of Yorkshire and are surpassingly beautiful.

You take the train to Wermelskirchen, pass through the town, and enter a long avenue of trees leading to the left from the station, and are at once transported in another world. The distance is about five kilometres, and the whole road is full of interest and surprises. The avenue extends nearly the whole of the way and it winds in and out down the valley. At the foot is a magnificent forest through which runs a rippling strean. You are almost tempted to leave the road and follow its course and revel in the woodland glades. Nathaniel Hawthorne in one of his books refers to the "refreshing waters of solitude and open air nature." In such a spot as this we can find renewals and refreshment for our jaded spirits. It is a fairylike glen and here we would wander and drink in the fragrance of the pines, but the call of the hills and its breezes is incessant.

So we continue our walk up the other side and admire at every turn the picturesque black and white timbered cottages and farms, the richly scented gardens and orchards, the timid goats, the ducks and hens. The laughing crowd of light-hearted children coming from school and playing their games give an added colour to the scene.

At last we come to Dabringhausen, and our souls are thrilled with a vision of beauty. It is a long struggling village, quaint and delightful. Here you are a thousand feet up, and from the cricket field of the 29th Bn. M.G.C. you have a wonderful panorama of hill and dale, field and forest. On a clear day the spires of the Dom in Cologne can be seen some forty or more kilometres away.

Here you can see villages with their clustering houses, and churches. Away in the distance on another range of hills are the towns of Remscheid and Lennep, their huge factory chimneys standing out against a background of blue sky.

A feature of interest is a magnificent Sanatorium, a retreat of the health-seekers from a large chemise factory in Cologne. Its situation is perfect, surrounded with woods and extensive grounds splendidly laid out; it is a veritable paradise. The buildings are picturesque and in keeping with the natural beauties. From the big windows you can see a vast expanse of country. The view is unequalled in Rhineland. Words cannot describe it; as you gaze upon it you are enchanted. No wonder it is so popular with the toilers from the city. Happy indeed are the officers and men billeted there.

There is a wonderful suggestivenes and charm about these hills. They are nature's sentinels, and one revels in their varying moods. Sometimes the storm-clouds move swiftly over them, like so many stern and hasting battalions from the South-West. Then a glorious morning follows a night of wind and cloud and the whole landscape is flooded with golden sunshine. Evening comes and the charm deepens, the atmospheric effects become extraordinarily beautiful. You are fascinated by the appearance of the western hilltops, behind which shines the matchless colours of the sunset. How clear and distinct are those distant outlines of the hills against the rare light and exquisite colouring of the evening sky! They seem only a few yards away instead of several miles.

In this softened glory, earth touches heaven, you drink in the breezes, it is the wine of life and invigorates the whole body.

"QUARTERS" ON LEAVE.

"Ah, well! I'm off at last. Hope you won't have much trouble with rations, old man. Good-bye" And with these words and a cheery smile our C.Q.M.S. departed, Blighty-bound.

"I shall be all-right," replied the sergeant, who out of kindness of heart, had volunteered to act as C.Q.M.S. in the Quarter's absence," there's not much to do on this job."

So he thought; as also did many others. He had forgotten however, that two platoons were on outpost duty, but nevertheless at 14.00 hours, with dauntless courage and set lips, he launched a mighty offensive against the unoffensive rations.

Now, since we have been in the forward area, I have had a splendid opportunity of seeing rations distributed from the stores. Incidentally, I may mention that I have added to my knowledge of English.

It is not surprising, therefore, that on this afternoon I chose to give the stores a wide berth. I preferred to learn German than add to my already overstocked list of English adjectives.

I had to return some time, however, and so 17.30 hours saw me wending my weary footsteps, storewards.

The scene that met my eyes on entering, defies description. Truly there had been a great struggle and if the sergeant emerged victorious, I determined to place him next to Ananias in my list of victims, I mean horrors. Kit-bags and flour, blankets and sugar, meat and potatoes; all lay about in delightful profusion.

As for the sergeant, he was nowhere to be seen and I wondered whether he would be reported missing or killed in action.

Suddenly his dulcet tones rang clarion-like through the perfumed air.

"Does five eighths of an ounce of butter, three seventeenths of a pound of bacon and tea, with 50 longitude at 53½ per cent interest equal five dead mules, well-peppered, ready to be made into bully-beef fit for human consumption?"

After getting this gibberish — and a large and varied assortment of adjectives — off his chest he popped his head up from behind a sack of flour.

I will next try to describe the state of his face. I can only suggest that he had first dipped it in tar and then added flour, sugar, tea, rat-poison, etc.

A little later he commenced this note: "Please write 'R.I.P.' on my tombstone. My head is going like a non-stop Lewis Gun in action. It is 02.00 hours. I am distraught, fed-up, don't know what. Why on earth should 'quarter's' have leave?"

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

WERE YOU IN THE SALIENT?

Sir,—I wonder if there are any of your readers, who took part in the operations in the Ypres section who remember Talbot House Club, Poperinghe and its promoter, the Rev. P.B Clayton. If so they may be interested to hear that a book is in course of publication entitled "Tales of Talbot House, Poperinghe and Ypres" by the Rev. P.B. Clayton M.C., F.S.A. with a preword by the Earl of Cavan. It is cloth bound and the price is 3 6. It may be obtained through any bookseller or direct from the publishers Chatto and Windus, St. Martin's Lane, London W.C. The proceeds from the sale are to be devoted to launching a new Talbot House in town. The promoters are already in touch with some 2,800 old members of the original Talbot house and W. Clayton who is at present in charge of the ordination candidates' school at Knutsford will be delighted to hear from anyone who remembers the old Club, which formed such a delightful oasis in the most shell-stricken area of Belgium. If you can kindly make these facts known through the medium of your paper I know now much it will be appreciated.

WHY NOT REAL GIRLS?

Sir,—I have seen scores of concert party artistes who have cleverly impersonated the female sex. Some have been very difficult to distinguish either by appearance, voice or manner from the genuine girl.

In wartime there was a valid reason for employng men to take women's part in Army concert troupes.

But the idea has always been a little repellant to me, and not quite artistic, and now that peace is here and real girls' talent can be enlisted, why not replace the sham "girl" with the real article?

I believe the Tabs have done so. But why should not all concert-parties take the step?

MUZZLING DOGS.

Sir,— Having read with some amusement the idiotic letter by "Not a Dog Lover," I would like to retaliate on behalf of man's finest and most faithful friend—his dog.

As a cyclist myself I will go so far as to assert that in every case, accidents with dogs are solely due to the negligence of the cyclist, often as not due to "scorching."

Cyclists often seem to forget that the world is for all, whether it be cat, dog or a millionaire's car. Therefore to threaten to consign to a life on a chain in the back yard, man's real pal, just for the selfish desire of a cyclist, who by the way does not pay 7.6 yearly to entitle him to roam at large, is beyond reason!

C. G. K.

THE MUZZLING OF DOGS.

Sir,—Most people will have read with amazement your correspondent's letter on this subject.

I quite agree that while there exists the present rabies outbreak, all dogs should be muzzled until the danger is past, but there is no occasion for such a callous and brutal letter as that of "Not a dog lover."

Judging from my own experience I should say that the two accidents spoken of by your correspondent were caused by the ineptidude of the cyclist.

There are others apart from dogs, who might benefit by a period of "strict confinement" and "muzzling."

A MATTER OF PENCE.

Sir,—In various newspapers of recent date I have read of the shortage of small money in England, copper in particular.

According to the English Press all units and regimental institutes have been asked to collect the coppers passing through their hands.

If this shortage is so great, why does our Army post offices insist on having German money, or one English penny to ten pfennigs?

The canteens invariably use the one penny as equal to 40 pfennigs.

POST ORDERLY.

MEMORY AND OBSERVATION.

Sir,—One of your readers who signs himself W. Airus has written a reply, in today's Cologne Post, to my article on 'Memory and Observation," and a letter signed W. A.F. also appeared on the 6th Sept. with reference to this subject.

Both the writers of these communications seem to suggest—may I be pardoned if I have misinterpreted them—that my article was a vicious attack upon memory systems. I am accused as follows.

1. W. Airus states,—W.R.P. seeks to portray what he alleges to be the futility of a system!

2. W.A.F. says,—W.R.P. pointed out that the systems advertised for the improvement of the memory are practically of no value.

I deny that I made these statements, and I repeat that it is far better that an individual should learn to depend upon himself (or herself) rather than upon any system invented by another.

It is stated that I gave, as example, for training the memory, two suggestions which are used to-day by some well-known system. Since these two suggestions, among many others, were employed by the ancient Roman, Greek and Chinese teachers, I think I may be excused if I mentioned them, for our knowledge is based upon the learning of bygone ages.

I am convinced, through ample proof, that our memories may be made more receptive if they are given exercise enough. And this, as I stated, may be accomplished by "self."

Personally, I may state that my own memory is good in some respects and very bad in others. It is good, fortunately for me, in those things which most matter.

I wish to thank W. Airus for his most instructive article.

CHANGING MARKS.

Sir,—Can anyone inform me why the English Post Offices in Rhineland won't change English money?

I was rather short of marks the other morning and went to three P.O's in Ohligs, to change a pound-note, but they refused to give me marks for English money.

CURIOSITY.

INTER-ALLIED TENNIS.

Gigantic Tourney in Progress at Lindenthal.

FINALS ON SUNDAY.

Everything continues to favour the gigantic Inter-Allied Tennis Tournament being fought out this week on the British Army of the Rhine Officers Sports Club courts at Lindenthal. Some idea of the enormity of the competitions can be gathered from the facts that no less than 300 competitors, embracing all the Allied Armies in representation, have entered, and that they involve the playing of 450 matches.

It is hoped to get through the eliminating rounds to-day, complete the semi-finals to-morrow and play off the finals on Sunday.

Results continued from yesterday are as follows:—

SOUTHERN DIVISION.

51st Devons Win Championships at Burscheid.

EXCELLENT BOXING.

The semi-finals and finals of the Southern Division Boxing Championships held at Burscheid on Saturday and Monday provided plenty of excellent sport. The object of the competition was to discover the strongest battalion team to represent the division at the Corps championships, and, if successful, later to be the Corps representatives in the Army championships.

The semi-finalists on Saturday were the 113 Bde. R.F.A. and the 15th Hants. After keen struggles in the various contests the 113 Bde. R.F.A. proved successful by 12 points to 10, thereby qualifying to meet the 51st Devons in the finals on the following Monday.

The semi-final results were as follows:—

Middleweights:— Major Sommerville-Smithe D.S.O., M.C. a bye.

Welter Weights (other ranks):—Spr. Rosansky, 113 Bde. R.F.A. defeated Cpl. Hinfley, 15th Hants on points. The first round produced some smart footwork on the part of both men and after some good exchanges, in which little serious damage was done, the round ended slightly in favour of Rosansky. In the second round the Sapper made considerable use of a very damaging left, but his opponent covered up well. The round was evenly contested. In round three Hinfley obviously weakened and Rosansky had things mostly his own way. He was a fairly easy winner on points.

Light Weights:—Gnr. Maloney gave in in the second round, the points going to the Hampshires.

Feather Weights:—Gnr. Rees gave in in the first round to Cpl. Cherry 15th Hants.

Bantam Weight:—Dvr. Barlin defeated Pte. Fisher, 15th Hants in the second round after a good fight.

Middle Weights:— (other ranks) Gnr. Eldrin won his fight with Cpl. Williams.

Result:—113 Bde. R.F.A. 12 points
15th Hants 10 points.

The 113 Bde. R.F.A. thus qualified to meet the 51st Devons in the finals and these took place at Burscheid on Monday.

The results were as follows:—

Middle-weights (Officers):—Lieut. Hayes, 51st Devons defeated Major Sommerville-Smith, D.S.O., M.C. The referee stopped the fight in second round; Major Smith was a very plucky loser.

Middle Weights (other ranks):—Cpl. Pollard 51st Devons defeated Gnr. Eldrin on points.

Welter-Weights:—(Officers) Lieut. Slade 113 Bde. R.F.A. a bye.

Welter-Weights (other ranks):—Spr. Rosansky defeated Cpl. Povey 51st Devons on points. In the first round Rosansky got home some straight lefts to the body, the round finishing in his favour. Some excellent fighting was seen in the second round both men taking a considerable amount of punishment. Povey had the best of the round. Round three went clearly in favour of the Sapper.

Light Weights:—Gnr. Maloney 113 Bde. R.F.A., was easily defeated by Pte. Ham 51st Devons in the first round.

Feather Weights:—Gnr. Lees was knocked out in the first round, the points going to the 51st Devons.

Bantam Weights:—Dvr. Barling, 113 Bde. R.F.A. defeated Pte. Mercer on points after a display of very clever boxing.

Consequently the Devons won on points, the totals being:—

51st Devons 12
113 Bde. R.F.A. 10.

By reason of their victory the 51st Devons qualified to represent the Southern Division at the Corps meeting.

Lieut. Col. Betts, G.H.Q. P. & R.T. was the referee.

IRISH GOLF SURPRISE.

Few golf championship meetings pass without surprises, and the Irish open event on Portrush links yesterday proved no exception to the general rule. The outstanding incident of the day was the overthrow of C. B. Macfarlane, the Scottish international, and a strong favourite for the title in dispute.

OLD SCOUTS CIRCLE.

The meeting of the Old Scouts "Circle" was held as usual on Wednesday at 6 o'clock at the Lindenthal, Y.M.C.A. Much useful work was done by the patrols. The patrols are run for scoutmaster's training class, and general refresher in scouting.

A very enjoyable time was spent last week-end, visits being made to Bensberg, Engelskirchen and Godesburg.

On Saturday we meet at 2-30 Hohenzollern Bridge for Bonn car and are bound for Rolandseck.

Sunday we intend to visit Rosrath and meet at Cöln Deutz at 1.15 and proceed by train.

DONCASTER RACING.

Tetratema wins the Champagne Stakes from Orpheus.

A FAVOURITES' DAY.

As generally expected, Major D. McCalmonts' Tetratema, following in the footsteps of his sire, the Tetrarch, won the Champagne Stakes at Doncaster on Tuesday. The question, indeed, was what would get nearest to Tetratema so certain did his chance appear. He won at Sandown on his first appearance, beating Mr. J. P. Hornung's Lady Phoebe by four lengths, but a better performance was his success in the Molecombe Stakes at Goodwood, for which event Mr. Concliffe-Owens Orpheus was fancied. On Tuesday Orpheus again proved inferior and finished second, with Mrs. H. Witworth's He Goes third. Tetratema's sire won the event in 1913 with 5 to 1 on him, easily defeating Sir Edward Hulton's Stornoway by three lengths.

In Rotnesay Bay, another favourite met with success in the great Yorkshire Handicap, Lord Derby's Tilly winning from Mr. W. De Pledge's Greek Scholar and Sir G. Murray's Coriolanus.

DETAILS.

Champagne Stakes:—
1, Tetratema (Major McCalmont;)
2, Orpheus (Mr. H. Cuncliffe-Owen;)
3, He Goes (Mrs. H. Whitworth.)

Great Yorkshire Handicap:—
1, Rothesay Bay (Lord Derby;)
2, Greek Scholar (Mr. W. De Pledge;)
3, Coriolanus (Sir G. Murray.)

TURF SENSATION.

Jockey and Trainer lose their Licences.

Another Turf sensation has followed quickly on the heels of the withdrawal, last week, by the Stewards of the Jockey Club, of the licence of Batho to train racehorses and of Cooper to ride them.

This week's sensation concerns Mullen, the trainer, and W. Smyth, the jockey. The following official statement was issued:—

At Doncaster, to-day, the Stewards of the Jockey Club investigated the case of W. Smith, who was reported by the local stewards at Haydock Park on August 30 in connection with the running of Patlander.

The Stewards (Lord Harewood acting for Lord Durham), having heard the evidence of the local stewards, the starter and the jockey, and the authorised account of the owner, were of opinion that Smyth did not do his best to win, and withdrew his licence.

They considered the statements of the trainer not satisfactory, and withdrew his licence as from September 15.

They expressed regret that the owner had not attended the inquiry in person.—(Signed) Penrhyn, Lonsdale, Harewood.

EXCELLENT CRICKET.

C.P.C. Finalists Easily Defeat Rhine Army at Lindenthal.

CAPT. FOWLER AGAIN.

As was only to be expected the cricket match played at Lindenthal on Wednesday, when the Rhine Army representative eleven was opposed by the team selected from the "Cologne Post" Cup Finalists the 17th Lancers, winners, and 93rd Bde. R.G.A. runners up, was productive of cricket of a very high standard. A thoroughly pleasant game, equally delightful to watch and to participate in resulted in a well-merited win for the C.P.C. finalists by five wickets. One of the most attractive features of the game was another fine innings by Capt. Fowler, who in scoring 77 not out reached his highest score for the season by one run. From the spectators point of view Capt. Fowler as a batsman, always provides the maximum of entertainment. He has a pleasing, free and easy style, never appears troubled, however strong the attack, and invariably hits out all round the wicket with great confidence. Another good performance was that of Col. Bush, Old Surrey Amateur, who played nice cricket for his 44 for the Rhineland. He was eventually stumped by the ever-watchful Capt. Stanyforth.

Rhine Army Collapse.

The Rhine Army won the toss and they were first represented at the wicket by Col. Bush and Col. Hartley. The latter was almost immediately caught in the slips by Capt. Fowler off Capt. Boles' bowling and was followed by Lieut. Astill, the Leicestershire county cricketer, who made eleven before being also caught. Col. Bush, meanwhile, was playing pleasing cricket and eventually reached 44 when he was stumped by Capt. Stanyforth. Something in the nature of a collapse ensued and eight wickets were down for 120 runs; Sig. Smythe, R.G.A., who relieved Capt. Boles with the ball being mainly responsible. Smythe is a left handed bowler and makes the ball come back from the leg in a disconcerting manner. Major Morris stopped the rot and on coming to the wicket settled down at once. His speciality was a very fine stroke to the off which brought him the majority of his runs. With Capt. Dickinson he made an excellent stand for the last wicket for which about 35 runs were added, and carried his bat for a total of 55; the total score being 203.

Finalists Bat.

For the Cup Finalists, Capt. Stanyforth and Bdr. Ellis were the first wicket partners and opposed the bowling of Dickinson and Astill. They remained but a short time together, however, Ellis getting caught by the third man when only three. Capt. Boles filled the vacancy and at once adopted the forceful game. He soon lost the company of Capt. Stanyforth who was caught in the slips. Rushton followed and with Capt. Boles added about 50 runs before the latter made a faulty stroke and was caught. The next partnership, for which Rushton was joined by Capt. Fowler, saw a display of hard hitting and quick scoring and resulted in another 60 runs being added. Rushton was caught behind the wicket and Smythe who relieved him was dismissed by the first ball from Dickinson. Palliser followed and with Capt. Fowler secured the required number of runs just on time.

Dickinson's bowling showed the best results. A feature of the afternoon was the remarkably good fielding of Lieut. Cook, of the Lancers.

SOMERSET'S VETERAN.

In the chorus of praise for veteran cricketers who have distinguished themselves this season scarcely sufficient justice was done to Ernest Robson, the Somerset professional.

Though twenty-three years have passed since he first appeared for his adopted county, he bowled this season nearly as well as ever, and was a good second to J. C. White as a mainstay of the attack. He preserves his easy action and good length wonderfully well for a bowler who was born as long ago as May 1, 1871.

WELSH RUGBY.

Great Revival Predicted By Union Secretary.

Interviewed by a Central News representative, Capt. Walter E. Rees, Secretary of Welsh Rugby Union, predicted a great Rugby revival in Wales during the coming season. Quite a number of clubs from mining villages had joined the Union, he said, the majority being first class organizations. He looked to Llanelly, Neath and Swansea for a great revival of enthusiasm.

"HAPPY HEAVIES."

Keen Competition at 41st Bde. R.G.A. Autumn Meeting.

REMARKABLE FEAT.

Crowds of "Happy Heavies" gathered at Schontal to watch the final day of the Brigade Sports. Glorious weather, beautiful woodland scenery, and an efficient committee of all ranks combined to make the occasion a remarkable one. The programme extended over three days and attracted large entries. A remarkable feat was accomplished by Gunner Upton of 250 Siege Battery who carried off the 220 yards, 440 yards and 880 yards races, and was second in the 100 yards. 260 Siege Battery also won the tug-of-war with a remarkably strong team, and the six a side football, after an exciting finish with 1/1 N. Midland H.B.

The mounted events produced some excellent results, especially the V.C. race won by driver O'Connell of the 1/1 Northumbrian H.B., the officers jumping won by Lieut. Harmer of the same battery and the N.C.O's jumping, won by Bdr. Burns of the Midlands. A road race of 5 miles was won by Gunner Jones, 153 Siege Battery in remarkably good time.

The cup for the battery gaining most points in the sports was won by 153 Siege Battery, a thoroughly deserved success and a most popular one. it was, indeed, pleasant to see Major Church's battery so well keeping up the high standard of enthusiasm and sportmanship which it has always set itself.

Among the distinguished visitors was Lord Pool, the Under secretary of State for War, who "kicked off" in the football final.

A very enjoyable day was brought to a close by the presentation of prizes by Lady Godley whose kindness was very much appreciated by all ranks. Loud cheers were given for Lieut.-General Sir Alexander Godley, the Corps Commander, and for Brigadier-General Pritchard, the IV Corps Heavy Artillery Commander, and in return Sir A. Godley made some extremely pleasant remarks on the Heavy Artillery in general.

SWEET REVENGE.

"B" Corps Siege Park v. Rhine Army Siege Park.

The above teams met in the return fixture on Wednesday evening on the latters ground at Marienburg.

Kick off was at 5—30 p.m. and a most exciting and keenly contested game was promised as on the previous occasion when these teams met at Mülheim the result went in favour of the Rhine Army Siege Park and the boys of the Corps were out for revenge.

From the start the game was very fast and slightly in favour of the Corps Siege Park team who were a fairly well balanced lot, each man playing his game; however they could not penetrate the stirling defence put up by the Army Siege Park until the game had been in progress about twenty minutes. Then, by a well concerted movement between Privates Bradburne and Calderbank the ball was taken within the opponents area and the former beat the goalie with a splendid shot; this put life into both teams and the game was now faster than ever; the Corps, for whom Corpl Iddley was playing a great game at back continuing to have the upper hand. From a good passing run by the forwards the ball was left with Bradburne who sent in a good shot which hit the cross bar and rebounded to the foot of Calderbank who had no difficulty in beating the goalie for the second time, thus making the score two nil in favour of the Corps.

The Army Press.

The second half opened with the Rhine Army pressing very hard and evidently feeling fit after the interval. From continued pressure they scored a good goal and now the game became very interesting and evenly contested, both teams putting up a good show, but unfortunately marred by a few minor accidents, caused chiefly by the rough nature of the ground.

The defence of the Corps underwent severe pressure for the first ten minutes of the second half, but came through smiling, and then, taking up the running, the Corps towards made several attacks but without success, the opposing defence (for whom a new right back was playing this half) playing extremely well. The goalie hereabouts had the misfortune to collide with one of his own men and had to be assisted from the field but returned after an interval of a few minutes. Time was now drawing near, the Corps renewed their efforts and were rewarded by a good goal scored by Elliott after the goalie had saved a splendid shot from Bradburne; the whistle went immediately afterwards leaving the Corps Siege Park winners by three goals to one.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

(BY NOVO.)

Harry Makepeace, the Everton player, hopes to return to the game shortly. Recently he has been more in the public eye as a cricketer than a footballer, and if the Lancashire County cricket authorities will re-tot up their lists and include the Australian match, they will find that his average is just better than that of Ernest Tyldesley.

* * *

While it is unfair to condemn a team for one moderate show, it is foolish to go into raptures over one good performance. Those who think that Chelsea possess a team of "world beaters" may possibly have to revise their opinions before long, and that notwithstanding the Pensioners' victories over Everton and Sunderland. The defence needs stiffening, and there are other obvious weaknesses in the West London side.

* * *

Newcastle United are to pay out nearly £3,000 in benefits this season.

* * *

Tottenham have certainly started well in their campaign to walk straight into upper circles. Five goals to none is a pretty sure test of efficiency even against the babes of the division, Coventry City. This victory was followed by another (4-0) over Leicester City.

* * *

Cowell, the Blackburn Rovers defender, injured in the practice match, has not wholly recovered. He should have rejoined his unit at Cologne, but was prevented from doing so by the mishap.

* * *

South Shields' new centre-half, Cox, stands 6 ft. 3 in. He is the tallest player signed on by any first-class club.

* * *

The first match of the season saw the "house full" notices go up at Highbury, where the Arsenal met Newcastle, the gates being closed, while a lot of people remained outside. As the official return of the attendance was 50,000 the necessity of closing the gates must have come as a bit of a shock, for it was confidently stated beforehand that 70,000 could be accommodated comfortably. Every seat in the stand could have been sold twice over, yet it must go down to the credit of the club, that they gave 500 free places to wounded soldiers.

THE DAVIS CUP.

Challenge Round Team for Australia Complete.

The third member of the British lawn tennis team to visit Australia this autumn in the challenge round of the Davis Cup will be Captain A. E. Beamish, the old Harrovian.

The invitation has been accepted by Captain Beamish subject to his ability to make the necessary arrangements.

An old Davis Cup international, Captain Beamish has represented this country in Australia, America, South Africa, and Sweden. In 1912 he assisted to win back the Davis Cup from Australasia, and in 1913 was double finalist at Wimbledon with Major J. C. Parke.

The completed British team will therefore consist of Lieut.-Col. A. R. F. Kingscote, M.C., Major A. H. Lowe, and Captain A.E. Beamish. They leave England at the end of this month.

The Lawn Tennis Association yesterday declined to affiliate the Argentine Lawn Tennis Association, and a British team, therefore, will not be sent to that country

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Friday, September 12th, 1919.

Warm, Southerly, 10-15 m.p.h. Morning mist, fine, hot day. Visibility fair.

Note. Yesterday was the hottest day this year. The temperature at Cologne registering 95 deg. in the shade.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

The St. Leger.
Many big house parties again assembled for the St. Leger, for the first time since the early days of the war.

First Winner.
Lewis Sherwood has not had to wait long before saddling a winner for his new patron, Mr. W. Hartell. His first runner, Zea, won at Plymouth last week.

Once Again.
Once again Barnsley have proved that they are a better side than West Ham, though last Monday's victory (2—0) was hardly so convincing as the previous Monday's result.

Eastbourne Tourney.
It looks as if there will be lovely weather at Eastbourne all this week for the Lawn Tennis Tournament, in Devonshire Park. There's a record entry, including a large number of French and Belgians over for it.

Army F.A. Secretary.
The hon. secretary—and a very excellent one, too—of the Army Football Association is Brigadier-General R. J. Kentish, C.M.G., D.S.O. He is at present engaged at Portsmouth and Bournemouth, laying out recreation grounds for the Army. It is not so very long since the gallant brigadier was a captain in the 87th Royal Irish Fusiliers.

Harris Disqualified.
In a twenty rounds contest at the Ring R. Todd (Marylebone) beat J. Harris (Birmingham), who was disqualified during the tenth round.

Unfortunate.
An unfortunate animal at Derby was Lycopodium, who got shut off at the despatch, or he probably would have won Paragon's race.

Puzzling Footer.
Football form continues very puzzling. This is not, of course, surprising, though undoubtedly somewhat exasperating to the keen student of the game, and there are so many!

Pros. too good.
The professional cricketers have once again proved their superiority over the amateurs. At Scarborough the Gents' batting again broke down, and the Players won by an innings and 110 runs.

Brightest London Side!
If the Tottenham club and their supporters did feel hurt when put back to the Second Division they can find mutual satisfaction in the nice little gates they are going to get. When the word goes round that they are the brightest side in London, if not in a larger area, the White Hart-lane ground will not prove too large.

How to Lose.
In their match with Brentford at New Cross Milwall gave a complete answer to the theoretical question: "What is the best way to lose a football match?"

Spurs' Thirteen.
Are the Spurs superstitious? They may well be, for with their goals numbering 13, one has been scored against them. Mercer has the record of being the first man to beat Jacques.

Polo Final.
At the Rugby Polo Club the tournament for the challenge cup ended in the success of Chapel Brampton (Mr. H. Drage, Capt. R. H. Farmer, Mr. J. Drage, and Capt. C. M. Barton), the holders.

Stage Stars at Golf.
Theatrical people are very much interested in the mixed foursome, for a challenge cup, at Stoke Poges next week. Miss Gladys Cooper, who has had some practice at Broadstairs, will be partnered by Mr. E. Graham.

Great Joy Improved.
The King's colt Great Joy improved on his two recent "seconds" by sharing the Wilton Nursery with Charleville, the judge being unable to separate them in a desperate finish. A note should be made of the Irish importation Luss, who showed fine speed for five furlongs.

Rugby Practices.
The London Welsh R.F.C. will hold two practice matches this week at the London County Athletic ground, Herne Hill, on Friday, at 5 p.m., and Saturday, at 3 p.m.

Rangers Improve.
In defeating Plymouth by one goal to none at Shepherd's Bush, the Rangers showed an improvement beyond measure, as compared with their display against Reading on Saturday.

Blyth's Solo.
The Arsenal were good individually but were individuals and not a combination, the two wing men being the pick of the attack, although Blyth's goal was brilliant solo work.

Irish Golf.
Play in the Irish Amateur Open Championship was begun on the Royal Portrush links on Monday. Major C. O. Hezlet, the well-known Irish player, had to scratch, being unable to get leave from his military duties.

Thames Sailing.
The chief race on the Thames was the Thames Sailing

Future Of Marylebone.—With the termination of the leases of its Georgian houses, Marylebone seems likely to undergo reconstruction in the next few years.

What A Shocking Horse!—A Manchester man was fined 10s. for being drunk and disorderly, and his horse was stated to have pranced about to the danger of the public. It had had shell-shock, he said.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

A Boom in Sport.

Latterly in the British Army of Occupation we have been treated to an unusual amount of sport of a very high order. Take cricket for instance. Last Sunday at Lindenthal the match between the "Cologne Post" Cup Finalists was productive of the best exposition of the game seen in Rhineland. By a merciless process of elimination the two strongest elevens were discovered and the display given was really excellent in every department of the game. Of batting there was plenty of the forceful, pretty-to-watch kind, the fielding was superb, while the bowling and wicket-keeping left little to be desired. This great match was followed on Wednesday by a meeting of the Rhine Army and a team selected from the C.P.C. finalists, and again the very best cricket was seen.

While cricket is perhaps the ideal summer game, other branches of sport have not been neglected.

High Standard In Athletics.

The various battalion, Brigade and Divisional athletic meetings have only served to show once again, how high the standard of athletics in the Army is, and how really well such shows can be run. In this connection we have the Army meeting being held shortly, when our most noted athletes will be competing. This promises to be the crowning event in Rhineland athletics. In aquatics, too splendid sport has been provided, notably at the Rhine Army meeting at Poller Wiesen. And what of football? The impending departure of so many of our neighbours makes it difficult to intelligently anticipate just what provision will be made in this, the king of sports, but already we have the announcement that one competition is being run, and this, no doubt will be followed by others when the reduced Rhine Army settles down to normal life once again.

A Query From Yorkshire.

"The Sheffield Daily Telegraph" which incidentally refers to us as "that very smart English daily" published for the troops in Germany, goes on to ask if the Opera performances and other entertainments so profusely provided in Rhineland explain the fact that the Hallamshires in Cologne are advertising their cinema projector for sale.

Traffic Sense.

A native of Cologne writes:—I quite agree with the opinion of the complaining officer that many of the Cologne population, especially as far as women are concerned lack any amount of common sense on behalf of the dangers of wheeled traffic. But to compare Cologne with London, Paris, Buenos Aires, New York is too much honour for the Metropolis of the Rhineland. Although always a very lively large town, it has never seen so much motorcar traffic as since the occupation. Whoever has lived in Cologne before the war, will have watched with amusement the tendency of the natives not to overstrain themselves in any direction, be it physical work or enjoying a walk or drinking beer, or conversation. The motto of the true Cologne inhabitant was always "For heaven's sake Not too quick."

Spreading of Disease by Flies.

Attention is directed to the danger of the spread of dysentery, diarrhoea and other intestinal diseases by the agency of flies. Breeding grounds should be destroyed by the early removal and burning of refuse and manure. When manure cannot be removed or burnt, is should be "packed close." Flies should be attacked by fly-traps, fly-papers and spraying, and latrines should be rendered fly-proof. Food should be protected by muslin.

Raw Herring.

Apropos our recent note on "German delicatessen," a reader says that raw herring is a great favourite with German people after a night's entertainment when they need a "pick-me-up". In pre-war days no thoughtful German wife omitted to have in the house a supply of fresh herrings for her husband when he returned from a night out with boon companions. Herrings and potatoes were also a much liked dish with the poor. The herrings were soaked for 24 hours in water and served in a sauce composed of milk, vinegar slices of raw union and spice, accompanied by steaming cooked but unpeeled potatoes. During the war this appetising dish was rarely seen and fabulous prices were paid for it by those able to afford the luxury.

About a Grave.

Perhaps one of our readers can answer the following enquiry we have received from Sapper W. Wight 497 (Kent) Field Coy. R.E. Southern Division, who says: I saw a puragraph on the death of Staff Sergt. Charleson D.C.M., R.A.M.C., who was killed by a train at Wiesdorf. I am a townsman of the late sergeant and just about to be demobilized so I have been thinking that I might obtain from his comrades through the columns of the "Cologne Post" the locality of his grave in order that I might photograph it for the benefit of his family!

Surprises from Fritz.

One would not expect the knack of witty or clever reports from our erstwhile enemies towards John Bull, especially knowing their characteristics of docility, narrow-mindedness, and cold logic. Still less could we expect an appropriate sally timed to the occasion when indulging in any pastimes which attract their gaze. But I present readers with a pleasant exception to this rule. It appears that a comrade of mine a few Sundays ago journeyed to an outlying village with a chum or two to indulge in fishing. Nothing in the conversation of the few local residents or passersby had indicated to English observers any tendency towards English speech, let alone any humorous British-like expressions. When, therefore, the would-be-angler had hooked something which brought his line down rather low, it was a souree of amazement to hear from Fritz the words, "Hi, you've got a shark at the end of your line!"

Area Changes.

Brigadier-General G. M. Bullen-Smith, C.M.G., D.S.O., has assumed the duties of Area Commandant, Schleiden and Montjoie, and Brigadier-General B. C. M. Carter, C.B. C.M.G. those of Area Commandant, Euskirchen and Rheinbach. These areas will be known as the Schleiden Area and the Euskirchen Area respectively.

The Wife's Influence.

In the course of an amusing sketch on life in the Occupied Area and the advent of the soldier's wife in Rhineland Mr. C. Patrick Thompson remarks: The brigade areas to the outlying towns have but recently commenced to experience the wifely influence. The tone of the local tennis-courts is raised considerably thereby, for when the little German boy who fags the balls loses you a point by intruding his face into the path of your best back-hand stroke, nothing more than "Dear me!" or "Good gracious!" is possible when the colonel's wife is playing on the next court. Nor is it considered quite the thing to drop down to the courts in singlet and shorts, as was the happy custom aforetime. The wives may be there!

Worth Reading.

We are informed that among the additions of new books to the Y.M.C.A. Central Library at 44 Friesenstrasse are: "1914"—Viscount French, Open Warfare—Philip Gibbs, Prisoners of Mainz—Alec Waugh, Christopher and Columbus—Baroness von Arnim, A Last Diary of the Great War—Pepys Junior, Five Tales—John Galsworthy, The Roll Call—Arnold Bennett, The Hohenzollerns in America, Mr. Standfast—John Buchan, Our Admirable Betty—J. Farnol, The Laird of Glenfernine—Marx Johnston, The Strong Hours—Maud Diver, Mufti—Sapper, The Lamp in the Desert—E. M. Dell, and Jimmy the Carrier—Israel Zangwill.

Study at Universities.

It has been decided that officers holding permanent commissions in the Regular Army may apply through the usual channels to the War Office for leave to be seconded in order to take a full course of study at a University either in the Empire or in an Allied country. Applications should reach the War Office supported by documents to show that the officer will be accepted at the University in question, and should show the dates of the commencement and ending of the course. Officers while seconded will receive no pay or allowances from Army funds, but they will maintain their relative position in their regiments. The Army Council, at the close of the first and second years of the course, will ask the Head of the University or College if in his opinion the officer is deriving full benefit from his course of study. An officer is liable to recall to his unit should the Army Council consider progress of his studies not satisfactory. Officers are at liberty to choose their own course of study, but are advised to consult the University authorities on this head.

Re-Echoes.

It apeears that we were wrong in supposing the Army Book Shop to be closed. It is in fact very much alive and likely to be.

We receive many complaints that whereas it is difficult and often impossible to get toilet soaps at the canteens, German shops hold good supplies. Similar complaints are still made as to "Gold Flake" cigarettes.

The shooting galleries at the lower end of the Hohestrasse appear to be particularly busy just now and well frequented by Tommy.

We saw an amusing example of the long and short of it in front of the Dom the other evening. A Scots major over six feet in height was strolling with a diminutive French captain who could not have been above 4¼ feet tall.

Have you noticed that while a considerable proportion of German males wear glasses, very few women do?

The number of British motor-cars and cycles that have been purloined lately has been exceptionally large and the thieves must be a clever gang.

A considerable number of copies of the "Post" are, we know, purchased and read daily by the German population of Rhineland.

We want more officers and men of the Rhine Army to contribute to our columns. With the departure of so many units to Blighty, we have lately lost several valued contributors. Who will replace them?

Many of the Rhineland folk who take sunbaths on the sand near Rodenkirchen, have the appearance of Red Indians, their skins being absolutely tanned by King Sol.

Much of the ancient and beautiful stained glass was removed from the Dom for safety when air raids became prevalent in the latter days of the war. It is being replaced now.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give two prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Gunner J. Morrow, 153 Siege Battery R.G.A., Rhine Army, and Corporal A. Neale, Northumberland Fusiliers, Rhine Army.

THE ORDEAL.

Patiently we waited,
Slowly passed the time,
Working up the symptoms
Till we had them fine.
Anguish indescribable,
Pain, no worse in hell,
Each in accents pleading
Had his tale to tell.

There he came upon us,
Tall and dark and grim,
Surely this our suffering
Found the heart of him,
But he, most prosaic,
Said "Do be precise,"
Muttered something soft and low
That surely wasn't nice.

There again we waited,
Pain most poignant now,
Beads of cold sweat hanging
Like dewdrops on our brow,
Then—someone had the paper
We crashed our necks to see,
O agony of agonies,
"E's give me M and D."

VANITY FAIR.

A feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

Early Autumn Fashions.

Never have the London shops been more interesting with the windows full to overflowing with autumn novelties. Velvet fabrics of a rich and silky texture, and entirely of British manufacture, are being shown in the loveliest colours, and in both the plain and corded variety. The fine, soft cloths, duvetyns, serges, tweeds and gabardines also cover a wide range of shades, including many new tones of henna and rust-brown, orange and nasturtium yellow, bright geranium pink and deep delphinium blue. The rougher kinds of tweeds and homespuns display a number of novel ideas in checks and stripes, some of which, it must be confessed, are more bewildering than beautiful, although there are certain designs carried out in black and white, and also in black and grey, which are in good taste and very suitable for tailor-made coats and costumes.

The New Styles.

As to the new styles, they show plenty of variety, especially where afternoon and evening frocks are concerned. Long, straight lines can still claim their votaries, but on the other hand panier draperies, drawn high on the hips, have a distinctive charm of their own, especially in the case of afternoon gowns in soft satin or crêpe de chine, and dance or dinner dresses in flowered taffetas and in Georgette. The coats which form part of the new tailor-made costumes are very much longer than those of last year, and in many cases the new silhouette is emphasised by the introduction of wide pockets, which give a considerable amount of extra fulness to the coats on either side, just below the region of the waist.

Autumn Wrap-Coats.

From Paris we learn that the new autumn wrap-coats are very picturesque. They are almost all wide at the hem and circular. And the collars? They are enormous, and they are in some cases quite small. But the large models, which are capable of being muffled up about the face, are the reigning favourites. High, shaped collars of Medicis outline are to be seen on many of the new fur coats; and calyx collars, which frame the chin and reach up to the mouth. I have seen autumn coats, fur-trimmed and high-collared, which were almost "princess" in outline; long, shaped to the figure, and very wide at the hem.

A Medium Of Self-Expression.

The French people, more than any other, have used dress as a medium of self-expression, and from the first days of recognized civilization in France chroniclers have given a place to fashion as one of the spontaneous ways in which her people showed their taste and distinction. In an old English chronicle on costume, it is written that "France is universally conceded the palm in the race of fashion, and she is unwearied in her exertions to retain the distinction." This is equally true of the France of to-day, with further evidence to prove that dress is one of the natural expressions of the French mind.

Bead Chains.

There is no decline in the popularity of the ubiquitous bead chain. Of all lengths, from the closely fitting throatlet to the long one that swings against the toes, these chains are very generally worn. To eke out a short supply of good beads, such as the now very valuable amber, it is a useful idea to separate the beads by cut crystal ones, and, again to economise, the beads may be strung upon strong silk in isolated splendour, each one knotted to keep it in its place. Opaque white beads are having a vogue now. They recall the meerschaum ones treasured after travels abroad in other days, and are oval, round, and in some cases quaintly carved.

Machine Embroidery.

It is a remarkable fact that a surprising quantity of machine embroidery is being used in Paris this autumn, and on the most expensive materials. Certainly it is exquisite embroidery, and almost always worked in metallic threads, but all the same it is machine-made. Some of the new materials for evening gowns are simply gorgeous, and they suggest straight and stately robes instead of the fussy, bunchy models, which are now so freely shown. I have always been convinced that straight dresses, and even long, straight tunics, will remain fashionable, side by side with the flounced and draped models, and this conviction has been strengthened by the texture of many of the new materials. It is impossible to drape or bunch metallic brocades which have a background of something like panne, and this is the latest material for dinner gowns. Lace, chiffon, crêpe, and voile frocks will be flounced, draped, and even pannicred.

AGNES.

THE LIGHTER SIDE.

Not Claiming Too Much.

"Are you the captain of your soul?"

"Sort of a second lieutenant," ventured Mr. Henpeck dubiously.

His Blessing.

A sergeant was so much given to using bad language on the parade-ground that some of the men complained and the C.O. interviewed him, and told him not to let it happen again.

The following morning the sergeant was in charge of a very ragged squad, and after keeping silence for a considerable time, he eventually burst out with:

"Bless you, my pretty dears; you know what I mean."

Leading Him to It.

He—"My dear, I can't afford to buy you that hat."

She—"Still, you'd save money if you did".

He—"How do you make that out?"

She—"Because I shall fret myself ill if I don't get it, and you know what doctors' bills are!"

Most Likely.

The customer eyed the rashers keenly.

"I tell you, madam," pursued the shopman, "that bacon's as right as you are."

"I say it's bad," persisted the customer.

"How can that be?" he reasoned. "Why, it was only cured last week!"

"Well, all I can say, then," she concluded, as she turned away, "is that it must have had a relapse."

Ceratopogon Pulicaris!

You may not recognise his name—but you know him quite well. He's the little stinging fly which is biting everyone who tries to enjoy the evening outdoors. He will not bite you, however, if you always use. . . .

LABOUR WANTS STATE MINES.

FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY'S OUTSPOKEN REPLY TO CRITICS.

AUSTRIA SIGNS PEACE TREATY.

NATIONAL MINES.

LABOUR REJECTS CABINET'S COAL SCHEME.

The Trade Union Congress at Glasgow has, by a card vote, rejected the Cabinet's coal scheme and demanded national sation of the mines. 4,478,000 voted in favour of nationalisation and 77,000 against — a majority for nationalisation of 4,401,000.

A deputation is to go to the Premier and if nationalisation is refused a special congress will decide the steps to be taken to compel the Government to accept Labour's demand.

A straight vote on "direct action" is to be taken.

NAVAL POLICY.

FIRST LORD REPLIES TO CRITICISMS.

Mr. Walter Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, yesterday replied to criticisms of delay at the Admiralty in reducing expenditure. He pointed out that it had been intimated to the Admiralty that it was their duty to be prepared for renewal of operations if the Armistice ended in failure. This meant that the German fleet would have been entitled to return to its owners and the blockade would have been reimposed. The whole burden would thus have fallen on the British Navy. Up to the last day thousands of people declared that Germany would never sign the Treaty and what would have been the condemnation of these same critics if the Navy had then been unable to play its historic part?

As regards actual expenditure it had to be remembered that the war suddenly ceased when Great Britain was at its highest point of production. It was not possible, nor was it desirable, to put a stop in a moment to this vast expenditure. He was confident that neither the Admiralty nor the Government were prepared to take risks with this great Imperial heritage. At the same time they realised that one result of the war was a prospect of a considerable period of peace. Their great enemies, against whom they had had to make such costly preparations, had disappeared. In these circumstances, and in view of the fact that trade must be revived—without which neither navies nor individuals could exist—it was their duty not to build ships which were not required, not to pursue a naval programme justifiable before the war but not justifiable now, but to do everything in their power to develop those commercial undertakings which were so essential to their national prosperity and well-being. That, in general terms, was their policy.

MURDERED MESSENGER.

BOY BOND BEARER'S FATE.

Nearly a month ago Benjamin Binkowitz, 21, a messenger employed by New York brokers, disappeared with Liberty bonds worth £35,000, which he was taking to the bank. The police of Milford (Connecticut) have now found the lad's mutilated body near a road outside the town.

Owing to the frequency with which New Yorkers are being "held up" and robbed in the streets of the city, insurance companies are issuing "hold-up policies," by which people will be able to protect themselves against the loss of their valuables in this manner.

SAVING £75,000,000.

LIQUIDATING AIRCRAFT CONTRACTS.

A committee of business men engaged in liquidating contracts for aircraft outstanding at the date of the armistice has cut liabilities of £150,000,000 in half and left the Ministry of Munitions with about 12,000 engines and 3,000 machines for disposal after the Air Force has provided for its own needs.

Brigadier-General William Alexander, Controller of Supply and Production of Aircraft from 1917, has described the great growth of aircraft production occasioned by the push for air supremacy begun under Lord Weir, and said that "break" clauses in all contracts gave contractors the right to continue their output of machines and engines at armistice rates of production for three months. As soon as the armistice was signed telegrams were sent to 4,000 contractors cutting the contracts.

At the date of the armistice 4,000 aeroplanes, with spare parts equivalent to another 2,000 aeroplanes, in addition to 4,000 engines and spares equivalent to 2,500 engines, were being supplied monthly.

AUSTRIA SIGNS.

DETERMINED TO FULFIL PEACE TERMS.

Austria signed the Peace Treaty with the Allies at St. Germain at 10.15 on Wednesday, There were few spectators.

M. Clemenceau used the same words as at Versailles in inviting Dr. Renner to sign the Treaty. The American delegation signed next.

Mr. Balfour, Lord Milner and Mr. Barnes signed on behalf of Great Britain.

"In spite of difficulties," said Dr. Renner, in an interview, "Austria is firmly determined to fulfil the terms of the Peace Treaty to the extreme limit of her ability."

S. AFRICA'S TASK.

ADMINISTERING GERMAN COLONY.

The mandate under which the Union of South Africa is charged with the administration of the South-West Protectorate (formerly German South-West Africa) has been published as a Parliamentary Paper.

The mandate grants "full powers of administration and legislation," subject to an undertaking on certain specified grounds, mainly prohibition of the slave trade, the control of the traffic in arms and ammunition in accordance with the Brussels Convention of 1900, and the veto on the supply of intoxicating spirits and beverages to natives.

Article 3 prohibits the "military training of natives otherwise than for purposes of internal police and the local defence of the territory." This accords clearly with Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations, but the mandate adds, "furthermore no military or naval bases shall be established or fortifications erected in the territory."

FUTURE OF CAILLAUX.

WILL HE BE FREED?

The examining committee of the French Senate has decided, to send M. Caillaux, the ex-Premier, who has been under arrest for nearly two years, for trial before the High Court. On Tuesday of next week the text of the indictment will be drawn up.

A section of the Paris Press says that the accusation of high treason has been abandoned, and that only political offences will be charged against him. If that prove true it is more than probable that the Political Amnesty Bill at present before the French Chamber will be extended to M. Caillaux's case and as soon as it passes into law will secure his release without trial.

This would be a tremendous political event, giving him a fresh prestige.

ENGLAND AND DENMARK.

Further articles appear in the English newspapers regarding conditions in Denmark, as seen by the party of English journalists who were so cordially received by Danes of all classes on their recent visit. They speak in the highest terms of Denmark's industry and shipping development, and of course of her agricultural importance.

The "Daily Telegraph" says that Denmark is looking to England, anxious to see mutual commercial relations re-established. She wants a great many things which she can get more conveniently from England than anywhere else—coal above all things—and she desires to be in a position to resume the supply so essential to her national prosperity and well-being.

REDUCING THE NAVY.

It is officially announced that the Admiralty have given orders for the Home Fleet battleships and the fourth and fifth destroyer flotillas to be reduced to a reserve basis as from October.

The 20th Flotilla will likewise be reduced to a reserve basis on completion of service in the Baltic.

A reconstructed Fourth Destroyer Flotilla and 2nd Light Cruiser Squadron will be fully manned and will join the Atlantic Fleet. The submarine flotillas attached to the Atlantic Fleet are to be reduced to three—7 K Class, 7 L Class, and 7 H Class.

The Home Fleet battleships will remain at Portland, and the officers and men will remain in the ships until required for appointments or drafts.

SOFT GOODS.

The following advertisement appears in the "Times": Will the Vision in Pink and White standing on Maidenhead platform last Friday on arrival 4.50 train from Paddington be so kind as to communicate Box S. 107, The Times?

GERMAN VIEWS.

ON US AND ON THEMSELVES.

The semi-official "German Gazette" has published the first of a series of articles on England and English thought. The article says:—

"We knew too little about the Englishman. In Goethe's time he was the check-suited travelling lord; to the reader of the incomparable Dickens he was the jovial, rotund landlord or country squire, with a taste for pie and punch.

"We, in our time, were faced with a well-bred, thin lipped type of men which deemed itself to be the chosen race of God, and strode easily, but with keen eye, over seas and continents, steeled its nerves, formed strong friendships, and with what seemed little in the way of inner organization, enjoyed an incomparable harmony of nationality and of private and public life.

"We busied ourselves with finding out and accentuating the unavoidable discords in its expression of life, the mistakes in its character. But something else is needed if one is to know one's opponent: the discovery of the sources of his strength."

By Way of Contrast.

Last Sunday's "Vossische Zeitung" contains an article which states that England won a victory over Germany, but only after having mobilized almost the whole world against her. The writer asserts that the Englishman's confidence in his own strength has not increased in consequence, but his respect has increased for German capacity, which he fears to-day just as much as before the war.

A speech by the president of the Pan-German League in Berlin contained a bitter attack on "the cruel foes of Germany." He said:—

"To-day our hard enemies know that they could not beat us. They know what the majority of the German people can do under proper leadership. They are afraid of it to-day in spite of its collapse, and they are taking steps in accordance with their fears."

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

LOVE ON A CASH BASIS.

Mrs. London Wallick, a New York woman, is suing Mrs. MacHirsch, also of New York, for £100,000, the value of her husband's love, alleging alienation of the latter's affections.

Mrs. MacHirsch is the widow of a clothing manufacturer, who left her £200,000. This is the second time the matrimonial affairs of the Wallicks have been to the fore this summer, Mrs. Wallick having been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in July During the trial a certain mysterious "blonde woman" was frequently mentioned. Her identity is now revealed.

AIRSHIP DE LUXE.

On Wednesday night the British airship R33 left Norfolk on a continental voyage with a party of business men, intending to fly over Amsterdam and Paris. She carries eight business men as passengers and a crew of 32 officers and men. The flight is intended to be a practical demonstration of the comfort of airship travel. The airship will cruise over the North Sea, Holland and France. Visits will be made to the Hague and Rotterdam and to the Amsterdam Aircraft Exhibition. She will then go to Paris, where a landing will be made, probably at St. Cyr.

The airship has been adapted for passenger accommodation and every possible attention has been given to comfort. Sleeping berths have been rigged up in the internal keel way of the vessel. Meals prepared by a chef will be served in a messroom by a head waiter. Hot and cold water will be available and the news of the day will be received by wireless.

REDS WANT PEACE.

A telegram from Petrograd to Helsingfors states that the Workers' and Soldiers' Council of Petrograd have passed a resolution expressing the conviction that the Peoples Commissariat will not refuse to enter into peace negotiations with the Finnish Government.

The Petrograd newspaper "Isvestia" states that the Soviet Government has approached the Esthonian Government with a proposal to open peace negotiations.

According to a telegram from Warsaw, peace negotiations between the Bolsheviks and the Lithuanian Government are to begin immediately. The Lithuanians, Reuter learns, have sent their representatives to the front.

Lithuania, on the borders of Poland and East Prussia, is Polish in population. This is the second western internal enemy with which the Bolsheviks have made a truce this week.

FIRST GERMAN GOODS IN ENGLAND.

Several consignments of German goods have reached Leith as the result of the removal of restrictions on imports from Germany.

The consignments consist chiefly of glassware and whetstones. They have been transported through Holland.

It is expected that some little time will elapse before shipping facilities are available for direct trade with Germany.

FERMOY LOOTED.

SEQUEL TO IRISH SHOOTING OUTRAGE.

Between 50 and 60 shops have been wrecked at Fermoy (Co. Cork) mainly by soldiers. The rioting followed the verdict at the inquest on Private Jones, of the Shropshire Light Infantry, who was shot dead in the attack by a band of men on a party of soldiers going to church on Sunday morning. The jury declared that the men came to get rifles and had no idea of murder, and that the crime was unpremeditated.

About 9 p.m. parties of soldiers, said to belong to the Shropshire Light Infantry and Royal Field Artillery, attacked the shops in the Square, Bank-street, and Patrick-street. They were armed with hammers and pieces of iron which they used to smash the windows. The first houses and shops attacked were those of the jurymen at the inquest on Private Jones. The jewellery shop of Mr. Barber, the foreman of the jury, received special attention.

The soldiers were joined by a large number of women and youths, who indulged in looting. Messrs. Tyler's boot shop was cleared of its stock, and women could be seen carrying off large parcels. From Messrs. Quintan's drapery stores and from Mr. Barber's shop practically the whole stock was also taken by the looters.

A district inspector and a few policemen looked on, helpless to stop the rioting. The lack of an adequate force of police is partly explained by the fact that large numbers were in the county districts on special patrol duty.

The attack by the soldiers, who numbered about 200, was obviously an organised one. It was led by a soldier with a whistle, which he blew at intervals to rally his followers and direct their movements.

By 10.30 p.m. the military pickets were in possession of the streets and dealing with the situation. They were assisted by the police, and the soldiers were rounded up and sent back to barracks.

Colonel Dobbs, the officer commanding at Fermoy, stated at a public meeting there that, as feelings were running high, the troops would be confined to barracks that night. The verdict of the jury at the inquest on Private Jones he characterised as absurd, declaring that they had not the pluck to say that it was a case of murder.

Father O'Donoghue said everybody in the town condemned and regretted Sunday's incident.

Eight men are now in custody in connection with Sunday's shooting.

CHANNEL COLLISION.

LINER BEACHED AT DUNGENESS.

The liner Marathon, of the Aberdeen Line (7,827 tons), homeward bound from Sydney (Australia) for London, was beached on Thursday at Dungeness after having been in collision with the Japanese steamer Heijun Maru off Brighton during a thick fog.

The liner had ninety-four passengers bound for London and these were taken off by the Dover Harbour tug Lady Brassey and landed at Dover.

There was no panic on board and every body behaved splendidly.

HOMAGE TO "BOBS."

FOCH PAYS A TRIBUTE.

A characteristic story is being told in Paris of an action of Marshal Foch's during his last visit to London. The Marshal seized a few moments in the interval between two receptions arranged in his honour and motored away to pay a visit to the daughter of his old friend, Field-Marshal Lord Roberts.

Before saying good-bye, Foch asked Countess Roberts' permission to walk in the garden, accompanied only by one of his staff officers.

"I want," said Foch, "to walk for a few minutes in the garden where, before the war, I walked with my dear friend, your father, and I want to repeat to my staff officer here what my old friend told me concerning the Germans' intentions. I owe this to his memory."

SPANISH INFANTE'S FLIGHT.

Prince Alfonso of Orleans, who married Princess Beatrice, daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh, has disappeared according to the Seville Press, while in the care of a legal guardian named Cajigas. He is believed to have gone into Portugal on his way to Italy to claim a fortune estimated at £ 600,000 left by his father, the Duke of Galliera, who married the Infanta Eulalia, an aunt of King Alfonso.

The guardian has been placed in charge of him, it is said, owing to his extravagance.

While Cajigas was asleep Prince Alfonso slipped out of the hotel where they were staying and drove away in a motor-car with Señor Albornoz, a leader of the Republican Party.

WIFE'S TERRIBLE ORDEAL.

A visitor from the Croydon district named Twist was drowned at Padstow while bathing with his son, who was saved by means of a fishing rod and line. Efforts to reach Twist were unavailing, and for over an hour his wife watched his body washing about in the surf until the tide carried it to sea.

WAR ENGINEERING.

SYSTEM THE CHIEF AID TO INVENTION.

Some of the great achievements of the war, known in a nebulous way, are at last being revealed in detail. Professor Petavel, President of the Engineering section of the British Association, speaking on activities during the war of British engineers, said that whereas in 1914 we were inferior to the enemy in every military asset except courage, our victory in 1918 came as the result of our mastery in practically all the thousand factors on which modern warfare depended.

The Ministry of Munitions was responsible for the formation of the required organisations. Thus, the total number of guns manufactured during the war was 20,000 and over 200,000 machine guns had been delivered by November, 1918. British engineers, civil or military, had been responsible for the transport through France. During the last two years of war large numbers of railway engines were sent across the Channel and many miles of track were taken up in England and relaid in France. Road transport was organised on an unprecedented scale and 100,000 new vehicles were delivered.

Among notable new departures were the cross-channel train ferry and portable steel bridges. The paravane enabled most ships to pass unscathed through minefields and in a slightly modified form served to seek out and destroy submarines under water.

The professor said that what was popularly known as invention, or an idea of revolutionary importance emanating from one person, had played relatively little part in the recent development of aeronautics. Success had been due to system and combined effort of many scientific workers, trained designers and practical constructors. With some exceptions the same held true in the case of engine construction. Several inventions, however, had notably influenced the course of the war. The successful manufacture of incendiary bullets, for instance, put an end to Zeppelin raids; tracer bullets increased accuracy of aim and synchronising gear made it possible to fire through the propeller at the rate of nearly 1,000 rounds per minute. A satisfactory self-sealing petrol tank was manufactured and greatly diminished the risk of fire. Much ingenuity was displayed in connection with bomb sighting and navigational instruments. Wireless telephony and directional wireless were introduced. Reliable indicators and an improved compass made accurate navigation through clouds possible and armoured aeroplanes were constructed. Increased efficiency of anti-aircraft artillery and the high rate of climb of defending machines put a check on daylight aeroplane raids, while at night and in mist both searchlights and guns could be trained on an enemy, even though invisible, by means of sound indicators. A screen of kite-balloons supporting nets formed part of the night defence of London.

SHORTAGE OF HOUSES.

WHAT IT COSTS TO DIG A HOLE.

The extraordinary extent to which labour and material costs in building have increased since 1914 is shown in the Architects' Journal by Lieut.-Col. T. E. Coleman, who has made an exhaustive analysis.

The cost of digging an ordinary hole in common soil has advanced from 8d. to 1s. 9d. a cubic foot, or 160 per cent., and painting costs are 1s. 9d. instead of 8d. a square yard.

Concrete for ordinary floors, which used to cost 3s. a square yard, now costs 6s., and practically every form of concrete has doubled in price, as also is the case with brickwork.

The same amount of wood suitable for lintels and door-plates which could be bought for 2s 6d in 1914 is now 7s. The cheapest quality of glass has risen in price from 4½d. to 1s. 2d. a foot.

A rod (16½ft.) of brickwork which used to cost £17 10s. is now £34. Plumbers' lead has advanced from £1 7s. to £2 9s. a cwt., a foot run of ½in. lead piping which cost 1s. 1d. is now 2s., and 4in. cast iron ventilating pipes have gone up from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 5d. a foot.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT STOTZHEIM.

The funeral took place at the British Military Cemetery, Bonn, on Tuesday of 221160 Gunner C. Heighway (of Liverpool) of 174 Siege Bty, R.G.A. who succumbed to injuries received in an accident which occured in Stotzheim on Saturday. The interment, with full military honours, was witnessed by practically every man in the Battery and a large number of civilians. The Band of the Border Regt. played the "Dead March" from "Saul" during the progress of the cortege from 21 C.C.S. to the cemetery. The coffin, covered by a Union Jack, was borne in a gun carriage from A/168 Brigade R.F.A. under the charge of Sgt. Hortun, the bearers being eight of the deceased's comrades. The final rites were performed by the Rev. F.A.C. Youens, C.F. (X. Corps). The firing party, all gunners of the Battery, under Sgt. Neville and Corporal Sustains fired three volleys over the grave and a trumpeter of the 1st/1st Essex H.B. sounded the "Last Post." The officers present were Major O.W. Moss D.S.O., M.C., Major H.M. Kemble, D.S.O., Lieutenants Cox, Blyton, Sinclair, (174 Siege Bty) and Heney (14 S. B.) Wreaths were sent by the Officers 174 S. B. the Sergeants 174 S.B. Right Section; Centre Section; Left Section; and 14 S. B. The 14th S. B., who share the village of Stotzheim with 174 S.B. were represented by their B.S.M.

FATAL HONEYMOON.

M.P.'S. WIFE'S FALL ON MOUNTAINS.

A distressing mountaineering tragedy has occurred in the Island of Skye, where the newly-married wife of Captain W. E. Elliott, M.P. for Lanark, was killed, while he had a narrow escape.

Captain and Mrs. Elliott were on their honeymoon. When they were climbing one of the highest peaks of the Coolin Mountains, a mist came on and Mrs. Elliott stumbled and fell. Pulling her husband with her, they both slid down the mountain side, Mrs. Elliott being killed in the fall.

Although seriously injured, Captain Elliot made the best of his way to Sligichan to report the accident and to get assistance to remove his wife's body.

Captain W. E. Elliot, Coalition Unionist member for Lanark, was married a fortnight ago at St. Margaret's, Westminster. His bride was Miss Helen Arabella Hamilton, eldest daughter of Lieut.-Colonel D. L. Hamilton, R.A.M.C. (T.), of 29, New Northroad, London, N.

"IT IS IMMATERIAL".

PHILOSOPHIC PRISONER.

At the Central Criminal Court, before the Recorder, Alfred Coates, 40, painter, was sentenced to three years' penal servitude for thefts at Dulwich and Plaistow.

In a statement to the police the prisoner admitted that after his repatriation from Germany, where he was a prisoner of war, he had lived a criminal life. He had committed a lot of offences all over England and wished to make a clean breast of them.

The Recorder observed that the prisoner had been convicted 26 times and he did not suppose that any sentence he passed would make any difference to him.

The prisoner,—I don't know. You might have a try. It's never too late to mend, you know. I blame for this the first man who sentenced me.

The Recorder reminded him that he had had several short sentences.

The prisoner.—Well, it is immaterial whether I get six months or 12 years. If I see a chance of picking up anything when I come out I shall take it.

The Recorder,—I expect you will.

On hearing the sentence the prisoner said, "Thank you. Good afternoon."

THE SYRIAN QUESTION.

Colonel Lawrence, the brilliant young British engineer whose influence with the Arabs and whose extraordinary war services to the Allies have become public since the Armistice, has written a letter to the "Times" on the Syrian Question.

He had access to documents referring to an understanding between British, French and Arabs. He asserts that they are in no way incompatible with one another, but that one of them, the Sykes-Picot agreement, is unworkable. Its geography "is the geography of the White Knight and it makes a similar irruption into economics when it lays down that the Baghdad railway may not be finished until the Euphrates railway has been built."

This being the case, he says, there is nothing to be done but for the three signatories to these documents, which were compiled in perfect good faith but under the stress of an emergency, to sit down together and find out a new scheme which all can carry out without tripping each other up.

YOUNG OFFICER DROWNED.

On Wednesday the 1/6th Battalion West Yorkshire Regiment followed the body of one of their most popular officers, Second-Lieut. Jamieson, to the little British plot in the Südfriedhof Cemetery, Cologne. Mr. Jamieson was drowned while bathing in the Rhine at Rodenkirchen on Friday last, but his body was not recovered until the early hours of Tuesday morning.

His charming personality and unusual fund of dry humour won him friends wherever he went and his tragic death is felt very keenly throughout the battalion.

The funeral took place with full military honours from No. 36 C.C.S. and the procession, going through the streets in slow time, formed an impressive sight. The service was conducted by the Rev. George Kendall, C.F., Battalion Chaplain, and the Commanding Officer, Lt. Col. N.F. Barwell, M.C., gave a short address at the graveside.

Many eyes were dim after the "Last Post" had sounded and the band had played "Abide with me." Thus the Battalion paid its last tribute to a gallant officer and a true comrade.

Wreaths were sent among others by the officers and men of the Battalion.

MAKING MONEY.

The Disposal Board secured £869,858 for surplus mechanical transport in August, and among other property disposed of, machinery realised in one week £55,249, and horses and animals £27,164, while saltpetre made £88,000.

DEMOBILIZED PIGEONS.

The Air Ministry have decided to dispense with the R.A.F. pigeon service. This means that a large number of birds will be disposed of, with their lofts, baskets, and other appliances.

TOMMY'S PETS.

He sat on his haunches a picture of misery as though he appreciated his impending fate. Yet his was to be better than others for was he not bound for quarantine? There was at least the prospect of a reunion.

"Yes, he's going home with us, Sir." We felt glad, yet sorry as one pictured this pet in strange company for the greater part of a year. But how many have to be torn away from their masters and left to form new friendships, to master the understanding of a strange tongue, to spend weeks of vain searching?

Yet how much in a greater degree does the problem arise with regard to our four legged friends, who did such good service in quarters where motor propelled vehicles were not seen. There was the nightly trek to the line, the link between ration dumps in which our long Eared friends rarely failed us.

To the lover of animals the mule and pack pony stand out in a class of their own. The mule is in like degree what the racing type is to the sportsman and whatever reputation he has built up as an awkward being when the fit seizes him, to those who know him best he is the most docile of beings.

There was the old grey fellow who would follow his driver down the village street, the brown who searched for foodstuffs in a tunic pocket, always playful and a good friend who never jibbed even where shells fell and made one thoughtful.

These too have had to part company. Time has brought a breach in the friendship, while Tommy has taken a hasty leave of his charges not without a certain sadness of heart.

Perhaps it is as well he has not stopped to see their appearance under the hammer, their being led away to perform unaccustomed tasks under a strange taskmaster.

This is their fate—the fate of many horses and mules. To-day they are to be seen in strange company. By their very appearance they are easily recognised. Their smooth sleek coats tell of the hours of labour bestowed upon them by their humane custodians. A closer examination reveals their marking and one instinctively pities them their fate.

Their good qualities will not we hope be lost upon their new owners, for as faithful servants they are entitled to that care and consideration which characterised their treatment by the British Tommy. Let us hope this fact will not be lost sight of by their new owners.

"FRITZ UP!"

"Thirty-six, A Sub!" "Thirty-four, "B Sub." It is the voice of the picquet I have come to relieve, who, with a sigh of relief, is handing over to myself preparatory to "getting down to it."

For the next two hours I have the sole charge of seventy animals who at the moment are contentedly munching at their hay nets.

It is a brilliant moonlight night and the white houses of the village near our horse lines stand out in clear relief.

How often we decried the Italian method of painting the houses white. How well they guided the German airman out on his nightly prowl.

In the distance the rugged line of the Carnic Alps stands out with the moon shining on the snow patches, whilst nearer at hand the wooded slopes of the Montello call to mind the Hog's Back at Guildford. Occasional flashes along its slopes show where the gunners are "strafing" or are being strafed.

I stroll round the lines counting the animals and incidentally disentangling one here and there, as only mules know how to get disentangled with the meshes of hay nets or steel head chains.

Whilst engaged in quietening two mules who have come to loggerheads as to the sharing of their hay I am attracted by a cry of "A Sub picquet!" Without deigning a reply I walk out from the lines knowing that one of the animals is loose.

There he goes ambling across the field as if rejoicing in his freedom. Stealthily I give chase muttering uncomplimentary things about him and mules in general. For some minutes the chase continues and success is about to crown my efforts when borne on the clear night air comes the old familiar three blass on the whistle.

The chorus is taken up nearer at hand and presently is heard in the village followed by hoarse cries to "Put those lights out."

How I revile that mule. Here am I some distance away from the lines in an open field with the all too familiar "Woof! Woof!" every minute becoming plainer. Who can describe one's feelings. Surely that German airman can see myself and the wretched mule in the middle of the field.

The thought that he has a bomb specially reserved for you is not comforting. How helpless you are.

But I do not tarry long. Leaving the mule to himself I hurry back to the lines in case of emergency.

"A Sub picquet!" "A Sub picquet!" It is "C" Sub picquet. He has heard the whistle and as if drawn by a magnet is now coming towards me. There seems to be some sort of fascination in having company during these times. One feels much bolder with a companion.

"Where is he?" I ask for want of something to say to break the strain. As if in answer to my question a hissing noise which grates on the nerves followed by a dull explosion some distance away is heard.

Immediately the air becomes filled with the clatter of Lewis guns interspersed with an occasional bark from the anti-aircraft guns.

Long lines of tracer bullets wind upwards but still the ominous beat of the engine continues. It is quite close now and that awful feeling of being seen comes over one. The animals are still feeding contentedly all unaware of the impending danger.

"Look out" shouts my companion and as if mechanically propelled we both drop flat. There is a hiss, a blinding flash and a peculiar noise of breaking glass, the pieces of which sing past one with a musical rush.

Twice more this happens and as we rise a faint smell of powder assails our nostrils. The noise of the engine is now getting fainter. Mechanically we walk round the lines together.

The animals now are thoroughly alarmed, all ears are cocked, and there is a frightened tugging at the ropes.

We do not have to go far to see the result of the bombs. Here in a huddled group are three poor animals still tethered to the line.

Another animal shaking like an aspen leaf is evidently in a bad way standing on three legs only, the fourth being doubled up as if in pain.

A shout attracts my attention. It is the Sergeant Major and the Veterinary Sergeant who have hurried out to ascertain where the bombs fell.

A hurried explanation follows and somewhat shaken I rest for a while on a bale of hay.

A pistol shot rings out, followed by another. It is the Veterinary Sergeant mercifully releasing two more poor animals.

Things rapidly become normal again, the German airman has evidently returned home by another route and troubles us no more. I wonder what his thoughts would be were he to see the result of his night's work.

HAWKEYE.

EDUCATION IN THE ARMY.

In the post-bellum army, education will form an integral part of the training of a soldier. This principle has now been definitely settled, though, as the Minister for War said at the close of the recent session, the establishment necessary to give effect to it cannot be laid down until the composition and conditions of service of our future army are finally decided.

The success of the scheme of education formulated for the Army of the Rhine naturally prompted questions in the House as to whether its underlying principle, fertile in potentialities, would be conserved after the disappearance of the Armies of Occupation. The answer could hardly have been other than in the affirmative, if it be conceded that education within the Army is a proved necessity, and when it can be confidently stated that the organization of education in all its aspects presents few serious difficulties.

Indeed from many points of view it presents fewer obstacles than in the sphere of civil education. For the ambitious pupil will find that his progress is not thwarted through want of means, and the idler that he cannot cut his lectures with impunity.

A PERIOD OF TRANSITION.

With the Armies of Occupation undergoing rapid reduction, the adaptation of the Scheme of Education necessarily means a short period of transition. But steps have been taken to ensure that education shall be continued for all soldiers going overseas, and as regards units returning to this country, the education which the men have been receiving overseas will be continued on the same lines as in the past.

Full details of the future scheme must necessarily depend upon the conditions of the post-bellum army, and until the organization of the scheme is fully worked out, it is impossible finally to say precisely what features of the scheme in vogue on the Rhine will be incorporated, or how many of the subjects so successfully taught there will be taken. It is understood, however, that the three cardinal divisions of Higher Commercial and Technical Educational will be retained and thoroughly exploited.

This is rendered the more easy from the fact that when a man enters upon the later period of his term of colour service, the demands made on his time by purely military training become less and the time for study proportionately increased.

Again in England many hours in the winter, and in India a large proportion of the hot months, unfavourable as they are for military exercise, might and ought to be devoted to education. Nor will there be any break in the continuity of a man's study or technical training by reason of his being transferred to another unit.

THE EDUCATIONAL RECORD.

The danger of this result was early foreseen in the inauguration of the scheme for the Armies of Occupation, but was gradually surmounted as experience suggested the remedy. The record of any individual soldier's educational training accompanies him, like his record of military service, wherever he may go, so that when he arrives at his new unit he takes up the thread of his training where he left it at his previous unit.

That the principle of education as an integral part of Army training is being realised in spite of its complete break with old time traditions of life in the army, seems at first sight, somewhat inexplicable. But in reality those responsible for the success of education in the Armies of Occupation have found their task the easier from the fact that scepticism has never darkened their path, nor the most cordial co-operation whether from pupils or instructors ever been lacking.

The fact is that militarism, as such, has in these times engendered a lively sentiment against its crudities. "The mere recognition of the fact that education is henceforward to be an essential part of army training," as the President of the Board of Education so truly said last June, "is one of those great steps forward in the social progress of the world for which the war has been responsible."

THE ARMY CUL DE SAC.

For years the army has been looked upon as a kind of blind alley employment, a cul de sac, into which the wastrel wandered who had failed at other things, or out of which a man well trained as a soldier emerged at the end of his time totally unfitted in spite of a fine character and a splendid sense of discipline for any other employment. But in the army of to-day the recruit will find a far different atmosphere, and wherever he may go he will, as it has been neatly said, "walk into the education scheme."

It is fully recognised that if the Army chooses to educate its men, it has abundant opportunities for doing so, and it may be confidently predicted that among commanding officers in whose hands is the duty of seeing that all officers and qualified non-commissioned officers make themselves responsible, as well as for the educational training of the men under their command as for other forms of training, there will be keen rivalry in the matter of showing the best results.

The advantages to the ex-soldier are obvious. He will leave the army, not merely an efficient soldier, trained in the high profession of arms, but a competent workman, able to find employment, a man of initiative and sense of esprit de corps, and above all a good citizen.

His passage into civilian life as a loyal trained and educated young man will surely have its influence upon those with whom he comes in contact, and as the number of these men grows, the more marked will be the influence of their ideals on the public mind. Tone, form, a cultivated manner will cease to be the monopoly of our older Schools and Universities. The post-bellum army will become in the truest sense a popular University.

IF DOUGHTY DEEDS.

If doughty deeds my lady please,
Right soon I'll mount my steed;
And strong his arm and fast his seat,
That bears frae me the meed.
I'll wear thy colours in my cap,
Thy picture in my heart;
And he that bends not to thine eye
Shall rue it to his smart!
Then tell me how to woo thee, Love;
O tell me how to woo thee;
For thy dear sake nae care I'll take,
Tho' ne'er another trow me.

ROBERT CUNNINGHAME GRAHAM.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

A WAGGISH CORRESPONDENT.

Sir,—In one of our leading dailies — I forget whether it was the "Times" or the "Cologne Post" — recently appeared a discussion on the correct spelling of the word "Ipecacuanha." I do not discuss the merits of that case, but surely we have a more interesting problem nearer at hand.

Let your reader take a Bonn car along the Oberländer Ufer and they will see in letters of startling size outside a certain Army establishment "Demobolization." In the only paper I ever read — the "Cologne Post," of course — I sometimes see questions about "Demobilization," while my officer who is rather a stickler for such things copies G.R.O's and writes "Demobilization."

Personally I am not particularly interested, as I am retainable, and there does not appear to be any particular doubt on the spelling of or the fact of being "Retainable."

NOT DEMOBILIZABLE.

COUNTING BY TENS.

Sir,—"H.R.V" seems to have little idea of the almost insurmountable obstacles in the way of altering our present system of coinage.

It would have been difficult even in normal times, but under the present conditions of reconstruction the introduction of the decimal system must inevitably cause an immense confusion throughout the commercial world.

With regard to the Daylight Saving Scheme "H.R.V." seems to think that most people agreed to the change without protest, but if he was conversant with agricultural matters he would know differently.

The scheme is a cause of great inconvenience and annoyance to farmers and their employers, and in many country districts it is ignored, and farmwork conducted by the proper method of the solar system.

B.M.G.

Sir,—With regard to decimal coinage, three places of decimals would be necessary if the pound stands; the Commission appointed found that it was advisable it should.

As there is no prospect at present of any alteration, those who have many discounts to make from small amounts can use decimals to advantage. Shillings for whole numbers and pence as decimals, they are few, and easy to remember.

For general purposes only two places of decimals are required as of course the second place is hundredths of a shilling. To effect a discount subtract the percentage from one hundred and use the result to multiply the sum to be discounted; from the product strike off the last two figures and put a decimal at two places.

This system is quicker than a discount book as practice shows many short cuts.

F. A. CHRISTIE.

A LACK OF TACT.

Sir,—Apropos the "Echo" relative to the remarks of an English lady as to the Tommy's attitude towards German children I think the fact that her escort did not support her in her view is sufficient comment upon her lack of tact.

What possible connection there is between patriotism and the appeal the youngster of any nationality makes to the lover of children I do not know, but to my mind the lady in question showed a singular lack of tact and a snobbish nature happily to be met with very infrequently.

I would remind her that but for Tommy she would not be on the Rhine at present.

1914.

LIGHTLESS TRAINS.

Sir,—May I support the complaint raised by one of your correspondents, that the coaches on the German trains, reserved for the use of the Allied soldiers, are frequently unlighted at night.

I travelled from Aachen on Tuesday by the night express. Every other coach on the train, including third class carriages, was lighted save that reserved for us.

Is this an attempt at economy or insult on the part of the State railways? The omission, if such, is becoming too frequent for even the long-suffering British soldier and needs some attention from the "powers that be."

LUMINCI AMATOR.

WHY NOT REAL GIRLS?

Sir,—Yes, why not? Some men can impersonate a woman quite well and some quite passably, but I have seen some horrible examples.

In war-time nothing else was possible, and we were grateful for any diversion. All credit and thanks should be given to those who came to our rescue with amusing shows.

But now, it is quite different. We can make a concert party much more refined and artistic if real girls take girl parts, and they are, I am sure, available.

I have often wondered, too, since I have been in Rhineland why such organisations as the W.R.A.F., etc. don't have concert parties exclusively composed of women performers. There must be plenty of latent talent.

BLACK AND WHITE.

PROUD TO WEAR IT.

Sir,—I want to wear the Allies Victory ribbon, but I cannot get a bit of it. They had some at the Leave Club but are sold out, I am told.

When I was home on leave last month everyone had it up and I sported it, too. Then a day before returning to the Rhine an order was issued for everyone to take it down. So I did, and came to Cologne without any.

Directly I got over here the order came out that it could be worn and now I am looking for some of it to put on my tunic.

TOMMY DOD.

WHY NO BRASSARD?

Sir,—I do not wonder at English ladies in Germany looking with disfavour on the brassard.

What looks more disfiguring to a neatly dressed person than to have an ugly looking breadth of cloth round one's arm with glaring letters on it.

I should suggest that a special badge be issued to them to be worn on the lapel of the coat.

Y.M.C.A. FOOTBALL SHIELD

Draw for first round of the Competition.

TWENTY-FIVE ENTRIES.

At the "Cologne Post" offices yesterday the draw for the first round of the football competition for the shield being put up by the Kalk branch of the Y.M.C.A. took place. Altogether 25 teams have entered, 18 of whom will participate in the first round, the remaining seven teams getting byes. The draw is as follows:—

35th Bde. R.G.A. v. 187th Bde. R.F.A.
63rd Bde. R.G.A. v. 13th M.A.C.
Southern Division R.E. v. "R" Battery A.A. R.G.A.
9th D.L.I. v. 23rd Middlesex.
G.H.Q. Signals R.E. v. 1st Pontoon Coy. R.E.
Wahn Survey Detachment v. 2/4th Queen's.
No 8 Vet. Hospital v. 11th Queen's.
93rd Bde. R.G.A. v. 1/6th West Yorks.
Kalk Bakeries v. 23 R. Fusiliers.

The following teams have byes:— 6th Corps Troops, Rhine Flotilla R.N., 87th Field Ambulance, 10th Queen's, 53rd Northumberland Fus., 17th Royal Fusiliers, and "B" Battery 190 Bde. R.F.A.

The competition is being organised and run by Lieut. J. Wood, the energetic sports officer of the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. and to him all correspondence respecting the tournament must be addressed. All games in the first round must be played by Saturday next on the ground of the first named team and sports officers of the home side will be responsible for the provision of ground, referee and ball.

The sports officer of the home team is further requested to arrange with the visitors as to date and time and also as to colours to be worn. The secretaries of the winning teams are asked to forward results of matches to Lieut. J.Wood 93rd Bde. R.G.A. as early as possible and also to send accounts to the "Cologne Post." Entrance fees should be sent to the secretary before the first match is played.

In addition to the shield being presented by the Kalk branch of the Y.M. C.A., it has been decided to present each member of the winning team with a silver cigarrette case and each member of the running-up team with a silver medal.

Lieut. Wood should be at once notified of any difficulty as to ground and he will endeavour to make provision in such cases.

ARMY RIFLE MEETING.

CONFIDENCE IN CARPENTIER.

M. Descamps, the manager of Georges Carpentier, writes to Mr. Cochran to say that hearing people in England are willing to lay odds on Beckett, he is very anxious to take advantage of this, and will back his man up to one hundred thousand francs.

BOMBARDIER WELLS' CONTRACT.

Bombardier Wells has affixed his signature to a contract with Mr. Cochran whereby he will box a series of matches at Holborn Stadium. The first will probably take place next month.

FIRST-CLASS BILLIARDS.

Inman's Chances in the Championship.

NO VACANCIES IN RANKS.

Happily, in the world of billiards there are no vacancies in the ranks of the leading players and thus in the professional tournaments we shall still see Inman, Reece, H.W. Stevenson, Falkiner, Willie Smith and Tom Newman, with all their varying styles. These famous men will all be seen at the tournament organised by Messrs. Burroughes and Watts, but no longer will the competitions be fought out at Soho Square, which has for long been associated with great billiard struggles. The scene of future battles will be the spacious new saloon in St. James street Piccadilly, an ideal venue.

The event of the season will, of course be the championship, and in this we shall see the real thing. Seldom was a more determined effort made than that of last season to wrest the honours from Melbourne Inman. He had gone off, said some; Stevenson and Reece are better than ever, said others; Falkiner is bound to beat him, shouted a third party. Yet, although for the first time he had, as holder, to play through, instead of just one single challenge match, he simply walked away with it.

Barring accidents, he seems just as likely to do the same thing again. He always gets there and that, after all, is the main thing. No man at present before the public can close up the game so skilfully, or take such ready advantage of an opening.

II CORPS ELIMINATIONS.

Devons, Hants and R.I.R's meet with Success.

The II Corps had a thoroughly successful afternoon's sport at Leverkusen. The events decided were—cross country running, basketball and tug-of-war. After the tea interval some excellent boxing was witnessed. The 15th Hampshires won the Cross Country run, and had also the first man home in the good time of 22 minutes 25 seconds over a four mile course. In the basketball the 12th R.I. R's outclassed the 5th Devons. and won by 16 points to 10. The teams were:—

12th R.I.R's. Lieut. Gilmore, Lieut. Turpin, Sergt. Semple, Rifmn. Puddick, and Rifmn. Crisford.

5th Devons. Captain Anderson, Lieut. Puddicome Lieut. Adams, L/Cpl. Ivy, and Pte. Perkins.

The Tug-of-War was won very easily by the 5th R.I.Rs.

Lady Jacob kindly presented the medals to the winners.

Some really good knock-outs were seen in the Team Boxing Competition and the 51st Devonshire Regt. thoroughly deserved a push forward to the Rhine Army Boxing Championships by winning the II Corps eliminating contests.

Lieut.-General Sir C. W. Jacob thanked Colonel J. Betts, D.S.O. Inspector of P. & R.T. Rhine Army for coming from Rhiel to referee the Boxing. He afterwards presented the medals to the winners.

(BY NOVO.)

Bolton Wanderers directorate made a pretty mix up of their team for the second match. Hulme, a left-half, was played inside-right, and Buchan, who usually occupies that berth, was tried in Hulme's position, whilst Powley, the right back, figured as centre half. Watson, left-back, took the right back position, and a new goalkeeper, left-back, and outside-right were introduced.

* * *

Kitchen, of Sheffield United, is in good form, seeing that he recorded a double in each of the Bramall Lane team's opening games.

* * *

Up to date, the Sunderland club have played 848 games, and of this number they have won 420, lost 274, and drawn 154. They have scored 1,602 goals and their opponents have registered 1,162 goals against them.

* * *

South Shields will need watching. They continue to make efforts to get together a winning side, and the signing of Walker Hampson, who played for Scotswood last season is a good move. They are due at White Hart Lane next saturday. The Spurs will have no walk-over.

* * *

Stoke have re-signed their pre-war centre-forward, Arthur Watkin, who scored 24 Southern League and 17 Cuptie goals for them in the season 1914-15.

* * *

Plymouth Argyle Club have secured the signatures of James McLeary, a centre-forward from the Clackmacudden Club, Inverness, and of R. C. Symons, an inside forward of St. Austell, who played for the Salonika Army in the Army Championship matches at Aldershot.

THE CUP WINNERS.

Record of 17th Lancers in "Cologne Post" Competition.

SPLENDID BATTING.

We are able to publish to-day a brief history of the 17th Lancers cricket team the winners of the "Cologne Post" Cup, in the Competition. The record of the team, by virtue of success in such a severe test, is necessarily a highly creditable one, and it is only approached in all-round consistency by one other team, that of the 93rd Bde. R.G.A., the runners up in the competition.

The Lancers' strength lay chiefly in their powers as a batting side, and their averages, which we give below, probably constitute a record for the competition, Capt. Fowler, the team's captain fittingly heads the list with the excellent figures of 35.40. He has achieved this remarkable performance not so much as a result of occasional very high scores, but by reason of an unfailing ability to knock up a useful number of runs.

During the Summer the team played 21 matches of which they won nineteen, drew one and lost one, all, with the exception of one, being in the C.P.C.C. The drawn match was against the 4th Royal Sussex Regt. at Hennef, when, owing to a heavy thunderstorm lasting nearly two hours no result could be arrived at. The game as far as it had gone was decidedly in favour of the Lancers; they compiled a total of 180 to which their opponents replied with 72 for 6 wickets. "R" Battery A.A. administered the only defeat, but upon this occasion the cup winners were not quite at full strength. Bdr. Whitehouse was mainly reponsible for the victory of the Anti-Aircraft; he played a fine innings of 53 and took 7 wickets for 39 runs, an excellent performance.

A Good Wicket.

The 17th Lancers were exceedingly fortunate in having a good wicket on the Exercier Platz, Kalk, and this probably accounts to some extent for so many of the team reaching double figure batting averages and also for the bowling averages not being quite so impressive as those of many other teams. In addition to Capt. Fowler, Capt. Boles and Capt. Stanyforth did well with the bat while Major Micholls and Sgt. Payne played some splendid innings. Sgt. Shenstone and Pte. Clarke were always reliable in the tail to hit up a good score when runs were badly needed. Practically all the bowling was done by Captains Boles and Fowler and Cpl. Whitfield, the former claiming the distinction of having taken the greatest number wickets. S.Q.M.S. Wyeth and Sgt. Shenstone upon occasions displayed their ability to get wickets very cheaply.

With such a reliable wicket keeper as Capt. Stanyforth the team was always well looked after in this department; not only did he bring off a large number of "stumps," but he came through the season with a surprisingly small number of extras. Sgt. Payne proved himself a very capable understudy.

As the teams against whom the Lancers played will be only too ready to testify, the ground fielding of the team as a whole was exceptionally fine; this was plainly evidenced and commented upon when the final was played at Lindenthal. Lieut. Cooke was the shinning light in this side of the game, while Capts. Boles and Fowler were two most reliable slips.

The majority of the victories were gained by fairly substantial margins, the closest match being with the 53rd Sherwood Foresters on a bad wicket when the very modest scores of 32 and 21 were registered.

We take this opportunity of congratulating the 17th Lancers upon having won our cup and wish the team, who will shortly be proceeding to England, the very best of luck.

The batting and bowling averages for the season are appended:—

GAUNT BUT GOOD.

Unprepossessing Mule Romps Home for "A" Battery.

GEN. TYLER'S CUP.

A blazing hot sun shone on a motley collection of mules, a few men with loaded rifles, a miscellaneous collection of what looked like dead or dying men, and a good many interested spectators, when the V.C. race was run off at Hangelar, which was to decide, which of the batteries or which section of the D.A.C. had gained the most points in the Divisiona competitio s to entitle them to the trophy which had been offered by Brig.-Gen. Tyler, Commanding the Lancs Divisional Artillery.

It was not the prettiest (far from it), nor the youngest of the mules present, which with Gunner Taylor up, fairly romped home, much to the chagrin of everyone but "A" Battery, 168 Bde. R.F.A., who knew that in the gaunt-looking but perfectly docile creature they possessed something that neither knew fear or fences, a good old "muley" which had evidently been trained to the hour; he knew that there was something at stake or why should he have had so many carrots of late. A second or third place would not put his battery ahead of B 1.1, D/168, C/161 or No 1 Section of the D.A.C. No wonder, therefore, that when he came in an easy first, A/168 felt very proud of him and, incidentally, of themselves. By his winning, this battery has gained three 1sts one 2nd, and two thirds with competitions which counted towards the coveted trophy which General Tyler presented on the ground.

In addition, "A" Battery (Commanded by Major R. R. Hoare, M.C.) has spent a busy time in competing and winning prizes at the Southern Division Show, and it only lost the Shield presented by General Lambert by failing in a tug-of-war competition.

No. 7 F. A. AT SPORT.

Successful Meeting At Riehl On Wednesday.

No. 7 Field Ambulance held their sports on Wednesday afternoon at Riehl and a very enjoyable time was spent. The racing was exceptionally good and some fairly fast times were made.

In the evening the Tonics Concert Party gave a very fine concert which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. By kind permission of Lieut.-Col. Freyell the band of the 52nd D.L.I. performed during the meeting. The prizes were presented by Mrs. McSheely, the wife of the Commanding Officer.

The results were as follows:—

100 yards flat:—1, Pte. Jones; 2, Pte. Teasdale; 3, S. M. Stanley.

220 yards flat:—1, Pte. Jones; 2, S. M. Stanley.

440 yards flat:—1, S. M. Stanley; 2, Pte. Sheath.

880 yards flat:—1, S. M. Stanley; 2, Pte. Stanuton.

Long jump:—1, M. Wood.

High jump:—1, M. Wood; 2, Pte. Jones.

Potato and bucket race:—1, Pte. Jones; 2, Pte. Massey.

Officers race:—1, Capt. Richards; 2, Capt. Lawson.

Sgt. race:—1, S. M. Stanley; 2, Sgt. Shier.

Section relay race:—1, A. Section.

Sack race:—1, L. M. Wood.

Band race;—1, L/Cpl. Kidd; 2. Pte. Heward.

Wrestling on Horseback:—1, "B" Team.

Ladies event:—1, Miss Mason; 2, Miss Matthews.

Throwing the cricket ball:—1, Sgt. Shier.

Stretcher competition:—1. No. 3 Squadron.

Pillow fighting:—1, Dr. Penn; 2, Pte Mac Cartney.

Three-legged race:—1, Pte. Jones and Pte. Raistrick; 2, Pte. Stanton and Pte. Garth.

Obstacle race:—1, M. L. Wood; 2, Wood.

Blind squad drill:—1, No. 1 Squadron.

9th Durhams' Sports.

The annual sports meeting of the 9th Battalion Durham Light Infantry will take place on the P. and R.T. School Ground (No. 12 tram car terminus) on Friday Sept. 19th commencing at 14.00 hours. There will be a 440 yards race open to all ranks of the allied armies, and a one mile race open to all ranks of the Durham Light Infantry. Entries which close 09.30 hours Sept. 15th are cordially invited.

41st M.G.C. ATHLETICS.

The 41st M.G.C., winners of the VI Corps championship, are holding an athletic meeting at Rath Camp, Königsforst, on the 21st inst. An excellent programme has been arranged, including in the open events a relay race and one mile. To reach the ground take the Königsforst car from the Hohenzollern bridge.

52nd Northumberland's Sports.

At the 52nd Bn. Northumberland Fusiliers Sports meeting the winner of the mile race open to the Northern Division was Pte. Boss of the 53rd Northumberland Fusiliers.

Amusement and Recreation.

Leave Club Whist Drive.

A most successful whist drive was held in the garden of the B.E.L.C. on Thursday. It was a glorious evening, greatly adding to the enjoyment of everybody. The gentlemens prizes were won by:—Pte. J. Feasdale, first, Pte. Darling, second, and Pte. Fletcher third. The first lady's prize was won by Pte. G. Minday with Mrs. Wibberly second.

Pussy-Foot Please Note.

Not the least successful rendezvous in Rhineland are the many new tea rooms opening everywhere since the food situation became easier. With quite enjoyable little orchestras these places are certainly a relief from the incessant hustle and hubbub of the large cafés. The latest addition is "The Ceylon" in the Stolwerk building Hohestrasse with every kind of light refreshments, elegant breakfast rooms and salon music. It opens on Saturday next at 4 o-clock.

Dont Miss It!

I hear that we are in for a treat on Sunday, when Backhaus, the eminent pianist, will again appear at the Deutsches Theatre. Those who have heard Backhaus on his previous visits will need no persuasion to be present on Sunday, while those who have not, have missed a great musical treat. Eric Morgan, the popular English tenor will sing, and Alfred Parker will play a Beethoven Sonata with Backhaus, as well as some solos. Altogether a really fine show.

To be Demobbed.

Here is a little impression of Bert Coole the comedian, of "The Crumps" (London Divisional Concert Party).

After amusing the boys out here for some time past he tells me he is going home shortly demobbed. Coole has made all his plans for his return to the English stage. As soon as he reaches England he is to produce a double act with Harry Harris (Dora of the Crumps). He anticipates a successful tour in Blighty having several dates with the L.V.T., already arranged.

More Stars At Home.

Jack Holbert and the inimitable Rebla of the White Knights M.T. Concert Party are now starring in the new revue "Bran Pie" at the Prince of Wales Theatre, London. Rebla had the honour of a cartoun all to himself in this week's "Passing Show." We wish all the best to both and a long run for "Bran Pie." You should see it when you get to town. "His little Widows," by the way, featuring our own Eric Blore, has now been transferred to the Garrick Theatre.

The great little "Tab."

Ernie Roberts has gone and the Palast will know him no more; the great little "Tab" has joined the great army of demobilized, taking with him the good wishes of every single member of the company he so ably and harmoniously produced and piloted through a long and brilliantly successful season in Cologne. Producer, creator, manager — he will be greatly missed and his place hard to fill. Ernie took his work seriously for although his business was to be funny, there is nothing particularly funny in conceiving and producing a revue, or indeed any kind of two hour show, of the standard required by Cologne audience. Ernie did it and, with the support of an excellent company, filled houses nightly. Under the more favourable conditions of civilian working, conditions with which his pre-war experience has made him quite familiar, Ernie Roberts as a comedian should go far.

Coming Events.

On Sunday the Rev. C. E. Wheeler will give an address in writing room from 5—6 and there will be a concert by the band of the 20th K.R.R.C. at 6.30 p.m. (by kind permission of O.C.) Major Bowen, Lts. Ramsay and Mearns will sing and Cpl. Rossi will play the violin. There will be an impromptu concert on Monday, from 5—6 and a dance in the theatre at 6.30 p.m. On Tuesday a dancing class will be held in the theatre from 5—6 while an impromptu concert will take place in the music room at the same hour. The Tonics Concert Party will give a show at 7 p.m.

JACQUES.

93rd BDE. R.G.A.

To Represent II Corps in Rhine Army Championships.

On Tuesday at Riehl the three best teams in the II Corps, met to decide the unit to represent the Corps in the Rhine Army Championship. The points went to units as follows:—

63rd Bde., R.G.A., 22 points.
9th London Regt., 20 points.
15th Hants Regt., 18 points.

"Footer" friendly.

On Wednesday at Ehrenfeld No 2 A. A. Workshops met Rhine Army Siege Park in a friendly match; despite very hot weather a fast game ensued resulting in a win for the "Archies" by 4 goals to 2.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Saturday, September 13th, 1919.

Wind Southerly 5—10 m.p.h. Misty morning. Fine and hot. Visibility fair.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Death of Joe White.

We learn that Joe White, the well-known oldtime boxer, has died at Cardiff.

"Maggie" Magee.

West Bromwich Albion place great value on the services of Thomas Magee, a young man who made his name as a penetrative forward in Army football.

Silvester the Incorrigible.

Silvester appears to be going from bad to worse. After starting at 20 to 1, freely offered in a field of six for the Prince Edward Handicap at Manchester he went as far as the first turn and then bolted out of the track, pulling himself up at the paddock gate.

Hole in One.

In the first-round tie between Mr. M. Cairnes, the ex-native champion, and Mr. G. J. Ogg, the former, at the short seventh, holed his tee shot. The only previous occasion such an incident happened in an Irish championship match was at Lahinch in 1910.

No Excuse—Except.

There seemed no sort of an excuse to offer for Marshal Neil's extremely disappointing display in the Michaelmas Stakes at Manchester unless it is that, not coming from a particularly robust strain, the long journey from Berkshire took too much out of him.

Chelsea's Crocks.

Although Chelsea opened so auspiciously, they have already almost half the team crocked.

A Sparkling Race.

Tetratema's victory in the Champagne Stakes was quite the feature of the day, As befits the name of the race, it was of the sparkling variety.

Aussie's Double Feat.

At Scarborough yesterday J. M. Gregory, the Australian cricketer, who bowls fast right arm, and bats left hand, joined the band of his compatriots who during their tour in this country have scored a thousand runs and taken a hundred wickets.

Ross Well Supported.

Despite the fact that he is Manchester born, the sportsmen across the Tweed are solid to a man in supporting Walter Ross, the bantamweight champion. They believe that he will prove equal to Tancy Lee in the winning outright of the Lonsdale Challenge Belt.

Golf Record.

Mr. L. W. Vignaux has beaten the "record" for the Shooters Hill course. The old "record" was 70, by Mr. C. J. Thorn. Mr. L. W. Vignaux went round in 69, and 68. His brother, Mr. E. D. Vignaux, won the vice-president's prize on Saturday with a score of 76—9=67.

Aston Changes.

Aston Villa, who continue to lose League points, have begun to reconstruct. In the game at Derby they called up two of the young recruits.

A Lady Owner.

Mrs. Frank Wormald, who won a race at Derby with South Notts, is a one-horse owner. She is the widow of Brigadier-General Wormald, who fell in the war.

Ex-King Manoel's Win.

Ex-King Manoel of Portugal, who has long been an enthusiastic tennis player with his Belgian partner, succeeded in defeating P. H. Fitzgerald and J. D. Duncan at Eastbourne.

Half's Loss.

Portsmouth Football Club's centre half-back, John Harwood, recently missed from his house a gold watch, valued at £4 10s., and it was found that a boy who took it had sold it to a fruit hawker for 4s.

Joy Bells.

In the Second Division, only the 'Spurs and Bristol City have not dropped a point. Here only four home teams won, and the great feat of the day was the vindication of West Ham's new team at Lincoln City. A few minutes of the real Puddefoot sufficed to make the joy-bells ring out at Boleyn.

Goals Scarce.

Goals were scarce in the Southern League, on Monday, eight clubs failing to score.

Derby County's Find.

Ritchie, who scored Derby County's winning goal against Aston Villa this week, though this was his first appearance in senior football, played with all the sang-froid of an old hand.

Patterson's Quartette.

Alan C. Patterson, of the Wearside Club, won the Durham Championship for the fourth time, when he played two rounds of 79 and 78 (157). Patterson's previous successes in this competition were obtained in 1908, 1909, and 1912.

New Zealand and Salmon.

For many years it has been a matter of regret that, though brown trout and rainbows have established themselves so wonderfully in New-Zealand, the repeated experiments with salmon seemed to have resulted in failure.

More Records.

At Parsloes Park Mr. Walter Winans made a flying quarter-mile amateur driving record to wagon of 36 1-5sec. with his mare Henrietta Guy, and a mile record to wagon of 3min. 7 2-5sec. with his trotting pair Discord and Harmony. The previous record, held by the same pair, was 3min. 22sec.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Unappreciative Audiences.

Given the cool of a summer evening, a clear sky and a full moon, the Zoological Gardens formed an ideal rendezvous on Thursday evening. There was not a suspicion of a breeze to disturb one's appreciation of the capital musical programme arranged. What more provided a fitting setting for an ideal evening. Yet throughout, one's enjoyment was spoilt by the incessant babble of tongues and shuffling of chairs. Germans we are told give place to no one in their appreciation of music. Were these the same music lovers whose shouts for waiters coincided with the presentation of programme items, or those who, not content to summon the waiter in the customary manner, made various hissing and throaty noices? This was the state of things on the terrace. We cannot vouch for what happened below, but members of the British Army who wish to avail themselves of a musical treat on which we congratulate the management should make a point of securing a seat near the orchestra. At any rate avoid the terrace as you would a plague, unless you wish your attention distracted by fräuleins, whose sole aim is to display post-war plumes, or by individuals whose love for the inner man outweighs their appreciation of music.

Return of German Prisoners of War.

On Wednesday evening, those in the vicinity of the Cologne-Deutz station witnessed an interesting spectacle. Attention was attracted by the crowd of civilians waiting outside the station, the youthful and more nimble of them standing on the wall and gazing through the iron railings. The cause of the excitement was the arrival of a party of German prisoners after a period of enforced exile. Suddenly there was a rush for the main entrance. Recognition, embracement and tears bespoke a welcome too great and sincere to be expressed in words. To the onlooker the tanned faces of the prisoners gave them a healthy appearance all due credit to the treatment which they have received during their confinement in our camps.. This fact should do more to convince the Germans of the British character and help them to realise how nonsensical are the stories of starvation and the like.

Tommy's Language.

Regarding the recent paragraph entitled "Embarrassing" a private says he considers the language used by the Young Guards referred to was not sufficiently diabolical to call forth supercilious comment. Lady teachers, he adds, know only "perfect English"; therefore genuine Army verbosity is incomprehensible. He thinks that quite enough critics of Tommy exist in the Army and suggests that the feminine element should try to look more upon his virtues than upon his vices and that it would be more profitable to pay some attention to sentiments expressed by the German people.

Cat-Music.

The North African soldiers of our French Allies have a very strange form of martial music to encourage them on their marches. Their band seems to consist of drummers and about a dozen men playing a peculiar horn Flute-like in appearance these instruments emit a most mournful melody. The nearest approach to the sound is that of the wind whistling through rushes. No definable tune seems to be played, and to the unaccustomed ear, the effect is weird and not altogether pleasing. The Americans refer to it rather contemptuously as "Cat-Music" and certainly the simile is apt. We trust that this instrument will never be incorporated in any Rhineland Jazz Band. It might however prove useful to a would-be tragedian for the Ghost Scene in Hamlet.

Re-Echoes.

Complaints are reaching us from troops in the outlying districts that they cannot get British girls as partners at dances held there as units in Cologne can.

The German authorities are surprisingly liberal in their arrangements about standing on tram-platforms, but to one section of the community this is "verboten." Children unaccompanied by adults must go inside.

Is the German architecture beautiful? The Germans evidently believe so, but a French soldier—in pre-war days a student at the Beaux Arts, Paris—found it ugly and repellant. Utilitarianism is perhaps the predominant feature.

Mr. Knott, president of the British Chamber of Commerce in Cologne, says that the confidence of Germany in Great Britain has been greatly strengthened by the fair treatment they have been receiving from the British military authorities in the occupied territory.

The catering arrangements on some of the river trips would appear to call for improvement. We have had many letters severely criticising them. Whoever is responsible would do well to investigate the reason for this dissatisfaction.

In future our weekly article on Photography will always appear on Saturdays. Camera enthusiasts please note!

Many officers and men going home on demobilization are subscribing 12 marks a month so as to still receive their favourite "Post" daily at their address in Blighty. Everyone should think of this before leaving Rhineland.

Does the climate of the Cologne part of Rhineland conduce to indigestion and rheumatism? We hear of many cases of the kind from officers and men hitherto immune.

In the recent tropical spell many Germans have been seen wearing only a very thin cotton vest, a jacket and trousers, and, of course, no hat. We forgot socks and boots. Naturally they didn't leave these off.

In some cafés in Cologne whenever they serve you a liquid refreshment they invariably bring a glass of cold water on the tray, also. It is a sensible custom.

Overheard at Lindenthal: 1st Gunner "Why don't they change the bowling?" 2nd Gunner "Dunno. Expect the Captain's a Quartermaster, and never changes anything."

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Sergt. J.R. Ducker, 51st Durham L.I., Rhine Army, and Pte. E. Mullett, Publications Dept A.P. S.S., Rhine Army.

Intensifying.

It sometimes happens that a negative is under-exposed or under-developed, in which case it is styled "thin" or "weak."

The strength of a negative may be better judged by viewing it against white paper than by holding it against the sky. If the shadows and dark tints are not strong and the prints not clear, this defect may, to a certain extent, be remedied by an immersion in an intensifying solution. This increases the density of a negative. In order to intensify the density of a negative it must have already been thoroughly fixed in hypo and washed.

The most usual method is to treat the plate or film with mercuric chloride, but intensifying may also be attained by means of uranium, lead or silver.

Place the "thin" negative in a solution composed of

Mercuric chloride (2 parts)
Hydrochloric acid (1 part)
Water (100 parts)

The result will be that the film of the negative is bleached.

It must be left in the solution until it becomes whitish.

It should then be well washed and placed in

Sodium sulphite (1 part)
Water (6 parts)

or in the following solution

Strong liquid Ammonia (1 part)
Water (10 parts).

An ordinary hydro-quinine developer will also serve in lieu of this second bath.

After a second washing in clean water, the negative is ready for drying. It will be found to be much improved in detail. Intensifying solutions may be purchased already prepared.

Lantern Slides.

Lantern slides may be described as prints made upon glass instead of upon paper. Their usual dimensions are 3¼ ins. by 3¼ ins. but they may be smaller and inserted in a frame or edged with black paper to suit the 3¼ ins. square. Since they are intended for projection upon a large screen, it is clear that their detail must be as nearly perfect as possible and that great care must be exercised in their production.

There are special plates for the purpose, which are printed from the negative in a frame after the same manner as printing paper and subsequently developed and fixed in hypo. The exposure will vary necessarily according to the density of the negative, the intensity of the light used (candle, gas or electric,) and the speed of the plate. Some plates are more rapid than others.

It is not possible to give definite instructions relating to exposure, since this must be judged by continued trial.

When the positive has been dried, its film surface must be protected; this is done by covering it with a very thin sheet of glass, sold for the purpose, and binding the edges together with narrow strips of adhesive black paper.

In the case of negatives larger in size than 3¼ ins. by 3¼ ins., these can be reduced by any professional possessing the necessary apparatus; by reduction in size the positive becomes stronger in detail and its projection upon a screen so much the more clear.

NOTES FROM LONDON TOWN.

FUTURE OF THE FLAPPER.

Hundreds of girls are to-day tempted to wish that they had never entered Government employment. They are the Whitehall flappers, large numbers of whom are receiving their discharges from the chief Government offices. They are finding that commercial and business firms have no room for them. Even advertisements of posts sometimes state that "no Whitehall wash-outs need apply." "I have been looking for a new post all this week," said a War Office girl. "All the employers I saw seemed satisfied with my qualifications until I mentioned the words 'Government office.' Then each one said that I should be unsuitable and closed the interview." A walk down Whitehall in the luncheon hour will show you white stockings and bead necklaces no longer. The flapper proper has disappeared. The women who are receiving their discharges owing to the closing down of departments belong to a different time. They are capable, efficient girls, who have to work for a living. It is unfair to say all are untrained, because in several Government departments, classes were held during the war, and the girls were required to pass an examination.

HOP-PICKERS.

If any one doubts the moral improvement of a certain class of Londoner, let him consider the hop-pickers, now preparing to take to the fields. To-day their conduct is exemplary; forty years ago the picking season was a time of terror for every one living in the hop districts. Looting of eggs, chickens, fruit, vegetables, and even of carts was common, and the return journey of the hop-pickers was generally accomplished by rushing the trains at Maidstone and travelling free of charge. It really was a terrible time of invasion. On each estate one or two hop fields were reserved for the villagers, and the rest were handed over to the mercy of the foreigner. He, she, and it—and by "it" I mean an innumerable number of grubby little babies—used to camp out on the roadside or in the neighbouring fields. One evening they would all be there, a veritable army of locusts; the next they were gone, leaving the country-side littered with rags, tins, broken bottles, buckets, coal scuttles, and anything else they had borrowed for the hopping season and for which they had no further use.

FREAK DINNERS — AND DINERS.

The most exclusive of the West End restaurants are trying — in the spirit of Telemachus when he endeavoured by slow degrees "to make mild a savage people" — to win their patrons back to the evening dress pre-war habit. In one case the rule is that none but evening dress patrons may dance or listen to the band in the lounge. Two gentlemen not in evening dress, in attendance on a lady who was so attired, were politely told of the regulations by the head waiter at Prince's the other night when they wished to dance, and they made a great outcry about it. But even evening dress will not cover the social deficiencies of some of the new rich people who are now making a point of dining expensively at the most fashionable places. At the Carlton one evening last week three young men at a table near mine amused themselves by dining backwards, i. e., they went through the menu the reverse way, beginning with coffee and ending up with hors d'oeuvres. This might not have been a matter for complaint had they not advertised their freak dinner in the most conspicuous possible manner, and talked in loud, familiar tones about their foibles. The table manners of some "fashionable" diners, even in the elementary matter of the correct use of knives and forks, would have been unthinkable five years ago.

BOTHA AND THE ABBEY.

Why not establish a permanent link between the Motherland and South Africa by erecting a memorial in Westminster Abbey to that great Empire-builder Louis Botha? It is not, after all, such a cry to the year 1902 and the peace of Vereeniging, but who in the world would have dreamt of such a service in those days? Times have changed with a vengeance? A great scheme for filling the northern windows of the Abbey with stained glass from the designs of Mr. Cowper, a dozen or more in all, was started some years ago. Three of those windows are in position by now, and add enormously to the beauty of the place. Another, commemorating the noble and patriotic life of General Botha, might well stand beside them.

STREET MARKETS.

The pressure of public opinion is doing more to curb the rapacity of the profiteers and to bring down prices than is ever likely to be achieved by the Government Profiteering Act. No doubt there is something in the suggestion that the profiteers are seeking to get on better terms with the public by reducing shop prices to a figure which will still yield them huge profits. But the effects of the street markets in reducing shop prices is still more marked. When you see the prices that are being charged in the greengrocers' shops it is really deplorable to notice the quantity of fine vegetables which are being allowed to rot or go to waste on the allotments simply because no methods have been devised to enable allotment holders to dispose of their surplus produce. In many districts at least this has been remedied, and we may look to see a wide extension of the street market movement. This establishment of communal shops is also being advocated in some quarters, and the threat will not be lost upon traders, who are further threatened with the provisions of the Profiteering Act.

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

NATION AND THE MINES.

T.U. CONGRESS REVERSE THEIR DECISION TO COERCE THE GOVERNMENT.

A FEW RIDICULOUS RESOLUTIONS.

NATIONAL MINES.

EVADING "COMPULSION" OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Another surprise was yielded by the Trades Union Congress at Glasgow yesterday. Direct action—a general strike for political ends—was shelved.

The debate ended suddenly by a delegate Mr. T. Shaw, M.P., moving the "previous question," and this was carried on a card vote as follows:—

For previous question	2,225,000
Against	2,086,000
Majority for.....	169,000

Thus a straight vote on direct action was evaded.

In moving this resolution, which is the customary method of stifling a debate or evading an awkward issue, Mr. Shaw said that Messrs. Smillie and Williams had made it clear that their idea of industrial action was to create a revolution in this country.

During the war there was a conference at Leeds, where decisions were taken to form a Soviet. If that conspiracy had succeeded, Europe would have had the chains of militarism riveted upon her as she never had before.

The country as a whole was against the use of the strike for purely political purposes.

Mr. Hayday, M.P., who seconded, said he feared that industrial actions on purely political matters would lead them into the false belief that there were greater advantages to be gained by brute force than by the exercise of their rights of citizenship.

MANY THINGS DEMANDED.

The Congress passed resolutions calling on the Government to—

Nationalise the banks: levy a direct tax on land values: Provide pensions for mothers: abolish the Poor Law system: income tax minimum of £250: more liberal allowance for dependents, with allowance for wear and tear of clothing: reinstate dismissed police officers and recognise the Police Union: provide £1 a week pension for all persons of sixty and over.

As has already been stated, the Trade Union Congress has affirmed the miners' policy on nationalization by 4,478,000 votes to a minority vote of 77,000. The resolution endorsed the miners' rejection of the Government scheme for the future control of the industry; declared for national ownership and joint control by representatives of the State and the workers; and, in the event of the Government refusing to accept this position, a special congress is to be convened for the purpose of deciding the action to be taken to compel the Government to accept the majority report of the Coal Commission.

This decision marks an entirely new phase in the agitation for nationalization. For twenty years the Trades Congress has affirmed and reaffirmed resolutions in favour of nationalization of the mining industry, of land, and of railways. They have been merely pious resolutions. This is changed. Nationalization of the coal mining industry is now within the arena of practical politics. It is the aftermath of the Coal Industry Commission, and in the coming months it is going to be the most troublesome problem with which the Government and the nation has to deal. The Miners' Federation has ranged almost the whole Trade Union movement on their side in the campaign, which will be pressed with all their resources in every constituency in Great Britain.

If the Government stand firm in resistance, then, one may take it, within two months from now a special congress of the trade union movement will be called together in London to make the momentous decision as to what action organised Labour will take to "compel the Government to accept the majority report of the Commission."

Mr. Smillie, in moving the resolution, argued that so long as the mines are privately owned, and output is the chief desire of the owner, it is inevitable that sometimes safety should be sacrificed for greater output and profit. He disclaimed any Syndicalist idea in the claim of the miners for nationalization but he added that "the time may come when they may advance a further step." He repeated that the nation will never get the greatest output as long as the mines are privately owned.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, M.P., who seconded the resolution, associated the railwaymen with the miners. He understood the character of the proposed campaign, but was apparently prepared to take his part in it and his share of the responsibility so long as it is conducted along constitutional lines.

Mr. J. Havelock Wilson the seamen's leader, led the forlorn hope of opposition. He criticised State control and State management, but his warnings made little appeal to his audience, which, however, listened to him patiently.

[We give the summary of the speeches in favour of "direct action" in order to illustrate the arguments of the extremists. The congress apparently realised the possible terrible consequences of their decision and reversed it in the manner stated above.]

FREE TO CHOOSE.

DOMINIONS TO DECIDE THEIR OWN DESTINY.

The debate in the South African Union Parliament on the ratification of the Peace Treaty gave General Smuts the opportunity of showing how the country had strengthened its position in the British Empire. General Hertzog, he said, chooses to regard South Africa's new privileges under the peace terms as an entry into the maelstrom of European politics. On the contrary, South Africa was now freer to determine her own destiny than she had ever been. During the last few years the Dominions have obtained complete powers, not only to regulate internal affairs, but to determine their own foreign policy and to decide on questions of peace and war. In future they will deal with foreign affairs through their own representatives and in the League of Nations, will be on an absolute equality with Great Britain. So far from being drawn into foreign wars at the call of the British, as was theoretically possible before, they can now make their own choice on this vital issue.

LABOUR IN FRANCE.

MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES STRIKE.

The municipal employees in the Department of the Seine, which comprises seventy-eight parishes, have carried out their threat and gone on strike. When the Mayors and Municipal Councillors found that none of their employees had come to work, they began to devise means for ensuring the essential services. The Mayors at once communicated with M. Autrand, Prefect of the Seine, who replied that the military authorities would send help. The Mayors are marrying couples as usual, and volunteers from outside are digging graves and effecting interments. The streets in many communes are unswept, dustbins cannot be moved, and lavatories are unattended. Happily, the water service is not interrupted. If the strike continues, soldiers are to be employed at interments.

When the managers of music-halls met the delegate of the Central Committee a spirit of conciliation was manifest. The Central Committee is now virtually recognised, and, so far as music-halls, concerts, circuses, and dancing establishments are concerned, the managers' terms were accepted and will come into force on the 20th. The trouble with the cinema employees has yet to be disposed of.

CHAOS IN EGYPT.

Egypt is still in a state of industrial chaos. The Alexandria scavengers and the Cairo tramwaymen both succeeded, by the use of violence, in preventing the resumption of the services. All new employees were attacked directly they appeared. The Alexandria trams are still idle, and are likely to remain so, the Government, apparently caring nothing for the public's inconvenience.

The strikes are undoubtedly an attempt to damage British prestige in Egypt and every day's delay in Government intervention is interpreted by the Egyptians as a sign of weakness. The anarchical spirit is growing more arrogant, and unless checked is likely to culminate in further riots.

FINANCING GERMANY.

The Berlin "Zeitung am Mittag" concludes, from the ever-increasing number of representatives of leading American banks who have recently been arriving in Berlin, that the gradual improvement of the economic and financial position of Germany may be hoped for. American financiers, the paper says, have got into touch with leading financial circles and authorities on the question of granting long-term credits.

OPERATIONS AT ARCHANGEL.

The War Office announces fighting on three sectors of the Archangel front. Two villages on the Dvina have been captured. An enemy attack on the Pinega river was repulsed and an advance made by Russian volunteer troops along the Volgoda railway.

HUNGARY AND ROUMANIA.

Vienna messages state that a Hungarian special envoy has arrived at Bucharest to start negotiations for a separate peace Hungary and Roumania, and it is likely that the question of a "personal union" of the two countries will also be discussed.

A Leicester man, charged with neglecting six children, said he had 20 children and 20 grandchildren. He considered he was an asset to the nation. The case was adjourned for a month.

BOSTON LOOTING.

FOOTBALLERS AS SPECIAL CONSTABLES.

Serious disorders have occurred at Boston U.S.A., following a strike of the entire police force. Hooligans started smashing shop windows and looting stores in South Boston. Order was restored by the volunteer police after a sharp conflict, but riotous gangs later on sprang up in other parts of the city. Officials dashed through the streets in motor-cars of the police department, dispersing the gangs by firing revolvers over their heads.

After midnight the hooligan element became bolder and invaded the centre of the city, assaulting women and breaking open shops. Much damage was done before they were finally dispersed.

The police strike is an effort to obtain union with the American Federation of Labour. All demands, with regard to wages and hours, have been granted, but the police insist not only on the right to organise their own union, to which the Police Department does not object, but also the right to co-operate with all other trade unions. A thousand volunteers have offered themselves as emergency police, including stalwart members of the Harvard University football team. The Police Department is attempting to complete a temporary organization sufficient to prevent further disorderly outbreaks.

BALFOUR'S RETURN.

HIS EMINENT SERVICES AT PARIS.

Mr. A. J. Balfour arrived in London on Thursday night from Paris after a continuous sojourn of eight months in the French capital.

He was enthusiastically welcomed by a large crowd.

Parisian newspapers show high appreciation of his services to the Peace Conference. The "Journal des Debats" speaks of his devotion, assiduous labour and great experience of affairs, and says; "the collaboration of this eminent statesman has been of the utmost value to the Conference and the services he has rendered have been most highly appreciated."

WHAT PERSIA WANTED.

Prince Firous, the Persian Foreign Minister, in an interview with the "Daily Express" correspondent at Montreux, given on behalf of the Shah, said: "I cannot understand European reports that England, in August last, created a Protectorate of Persia. That is entirely incorrect and untrue. It was Persia who took the initiative and asked for England's help because Persia was being ruined and in a state of anarchy. Small bands of brigands who infested the country destroyed commerce and endangered lives. The Government, practically without troops, guns, rifles and money, was helpless to restore order and only retained authority in a few of the principal towns."

KILLED BY GOLF CLUB.

Robert Taint, a mining engineer, aged eighteen, employed at the South Ayrshire Collieries, Limited, has died at Girvan from the effects of an accident while golfing.

With two other engineers, he was engaged in a game on the Girvan course. One of his companions made a drive at his ball, and on turning round to make a remark about the stroke was horrified to see Tait lying unconscious at his feet.

Tait, who never regained consciousness, was found to be suffering from injuries to the neck caused in the swing of the club.

GERMAN FOOD RIOTS.

Scenes of great excitement occurred at Glogau, when a crowd collected before the large food shops, owing to the high prices of fruit and vegetables. As the position grew ever more threatening, troops had to brought up. They were attacked by the crowd, one soldier's rifle being snatched from his hand, and he himself shot, upon which the order to fire was given, and the streets cleared with machine-guns and grenades.

According to the latest news, ten persons were killed and eleven wounded during the disturbances.

LAST U-BOAT SINKER.

The funeral of Commander James Wilson, R.N.R., who sank the last German submarine accounted for in the war a few hours before the armistice, has taken place at Reigate. He was much loved by the Reigate school-children, to whom he used to distribute sweets and fruit on his return from cruises, and among the wreaths were several from the little ones, one inscribed "In memory of one who loved children."

A PADRES' FELLOWSHIP.

At a conference of chaplains convened recently at Cambridge by Bishop Gwynne, Deputy Chaplain-General in France, and by Dr. Simms, Principal Chaplain to the B.E.F., proposals were discussed for the formation of an interdenominational Padres' Fellowship, to conserve and apply the lessons of the war and to maintain the spirit of co-operation and good will that had obtained in service overseas.

TAR AND FEATHERS.

COURT MARTIAL SEQUEL TO NOTORIOUS CASE.

Remarkable evidence was given yesterday before a general court-martial at Cambridge, when Lieutenant Francis Thomas Wright, M.C., R.E., was charged with assaulting Desmond Beresford Kinahan by tarring and feathering him, and chaining him to a tree in Harvey-road, Cambridge, on the night of June 6 last.

The court was presided over by Colonel Emery, and the prosecutor was Captain H. H. Dunn, the accused being represented by Captain R. Whitehead, M.C.

The accused's wife, whose name had been connected with the case, was present in court, and Lieutenant Wright pleaded not guilty.

At the outset Captain Dunn announced that evidence with regard to the charge of assault only would be given, and Kinahan, who relinquished his commission as a lieutenant in the Navy in June, was at once called.

He said he received a letter on the evening of June 6 from the accused asking him to see him the following night at 10.30. He called at the house as requested, and was taken to see the accused in the garage in the garden. The accused was standing in the shelter of the door, and seizing his wrists tripped him backwards. The accused was assisted by his brother, Mr. Dudley Wright, and told witness if he called out they would gag him. They then undressed him, and the accused said he proposed to tar and feather him at 11.30. The accused and Mr. Dudley Wright did so. Witness was then lashed to the floor until five minutes to one, when Lieutenant Wright brought along a heavy chain, one end of which he locked round the witness's neck. He was then taken in a small light car to Harveyroad, where the other end of the chain was fastened to a tree by the accused. The car drove away, and five minutes afterwards the witness hailed a policeman, who took him to the police station.

Took It Lying Down.

Captain Whitehead: Are you aware you have behaved very dishonourably?

Witness: No, because I have seen letters from the accused to Mrs. Wright in which he said if she ever met anyone else whom she loved more than him she was to let him know and he would release her.

Questioned about the tar and feather incident, the witness said he had hardly a chance of resisting, as the accused and his brother were there. Asked if he took everything lying down, he said he did after the first few minutes. He did not consider the attack was justified, as he was prepared to prove. He admitted that he took off his overcoat and waistcoat, explaining that if he had not done so voluntarily he would have been forced. Various letters of the usual type were read in Court.

Accused Gives Evidence.

Lieutenant Wright, giving evidence in defence, said he was a civil engineer by profession, and came home from Brazil when war broke out. He was five times rejected before enlisting as a motor driver in the A.S.C. After being commissioned he was wounded, and in October, 1916, he met Hazel Robson, who became his wife in October last. In November he went back to the Balkans, and received letters of a perfectly friendly and loving nature from his wife. Subsequently he received a letter from his wife confessing her love for Kinahan. He came to England and eventually carried out his scheme of humiliation.

Addressing the Court, Captain Dunn urged that the charge was proved, but declared there were aggravating circumstances which could be put forward in mitigation. The traditions of both services had been grossly violated by Kinahan, and he was shocked that such a case should ever have come before a court-martial. A man must consider a brother officer's wife as sacred and inviolable, and he left the case with every confidence.

Mr. Cassels applied to be heard for Kinahan, but the Court refused the application, a similar result attending the application by Mr. Patworth on behalf of Mrs. Wright.

The president remarked that it was open to Mrs. Wright to go to a civil court if she so desired.

After considering in private for a few minutes, the Court was declared closed, and sentence will be promulgated in due course.

BOYS' GAMBLING HELL.

"Lads are becoming real little gamblers. I heard of a lad of thirteen years who ran quite a little gambling saloon. So I went there one night, when the mother was out, and I found about fourteen lads in the kitchen gambling. They soon bolted when they saw me," said the Rev. F. G. M. Kelly, vicar of St. Alphege's, at a meeting of the Edmonton War Pensions Committee.

The vicar moved that a letter be sent to the Ministry of Pensions expressing the view that widows should not be allowed to go out to work without the consent of the Local Pensions Committee. He gave as his reason that girls of fourteen stayed out till nine o'clock at night and schoolboys gambled while mother was away.

The motion was carried.

SIX-PINTS-A-DAY STRIKE.

Harvesters employed in some of the large vineyards in the south of France, near Montpellier, have gone on strike. The men, who already receive 12s. 10d. and 4 pints of wine a day, ask for 16s. and 6 pints.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

WORK TO BE DONE AT THE OUTSET.

Arrangements are being made for carrying out the tasks which will devolve upon the League of Nations as soon as the Peace Treaty with Germany comes into legal force. This will be the case when the Treaty has been ratified by Germany and three of the principal Allied and Associated Powers. Germany has already done so and ratification by Great Britain, France and Italy will not be long delayed. The League of Nations then automatically comes into force and will begin its operations forthwith. The early days of the League will be a period of great pressure, for according to the Peace Treaty there are certain tasks it has to carry out within a prescribed period.

Within fifteen days of its coming into force, it has to appoint a governing commission for the Saar valley and as speedily as possible a High Commissioner for Dantzig. The Council of the League will consist of representatives of Powers who have adhered to the League. Its first duty will be to make immediate appointments as required by the Treaty, to confirm the provisional appointment of Sir Eric Drummond as Secretary General and to prepare the agenda for the first meeting of Assembly of the League, which will be at Washington and will form its public inauguration. This may not take place before March.

MURDER AT FOREST GATE.

On Wednesday morning, at 16, Upton-avenue, Forest-gate—only a short distance away from the scene of the Becket fourfold murder—a man named William Davie, aged 56, murdered Lily Allum, 44, and then committed suicide, the crimes being committed with a razor. The house is in the occupation of Mr. Robert Davie, a baker, who, when his wife died last November, allowed his brother William to rent three upstairs rooms. William brought with him Lily Allum, who kept house, and generally got on very well with him. After breaktast on Wednesday morning the couple were upstairs, and screams from the woman alarmed the house. Robert Davie rushed upstairs, and found that Allum was bleeding from the throat. He carried her down the stairs, and went for medical assistance. On returning, he and the doctor found William Davie lying in the passage with his feet towards the door and bleeding profusely from the throat. He died almost immediately, and the woman was already dead.

FERMOY QUIET.

Calm now prevails in Fermoy. Major-General Williams, of the Southern Irish Command, has issued a proclamation prohibiting all meetings, assemblies, or processions in any public place within three miles of the town. Business is necessarily suspended in many of the shops which were wrecked, and gangs of labourers were still employed yesterday in removing the debris from the streets.

It is understood that the Shropshire Light Infantry will be removed from the town to-morrow. The condition of Private Lloyd, one of the three men of that regiment who were wounded when Private Jones was shot dead, is reported to have improved slightly, but he is not yet out of danger.

ENGINEERS' DEMANDS.

At a conference in London the Amalgamated Society of Engineers decided to fall into line with the Shipbuilding and Engineering Trades Federation, and to bring the whole strength of these industries to bear on an application to the Government for the consolidation of war wages. It was also suggested that as soon as consolidation of wages is effected, it should be followed by another application for a general advance.

"DIRECT ACTION" FARM WORKERS FINED.

Arising out of the Staffordshire farm labourers' strike two men were each fined £10 at Stafford Police Court for stopping a grinding mill and engine on a farm at Longnor. It was stated that about 100 labourers on strike visited the farm and were ordered off, but they entered the farm buildings and used threats. The defendants pleaded "Guilty,' one saying he thought at the time they had the right to fetch union men out. The Chairman of the Bench said there was a spirit of lawlessness abroad which must be stopped.

Two farm workers were also fined £5 each for assaulting an employee on the Wood Eaton estate by pulling him off a cart. They said they only used peaceful persuasion and denied calling the man a "blackleg" or laying hands on him.

NEW YORK VICTORY MARCH.

General Pershing, at the head of the First American Division, rode over a route five miles long through the heart of the city. A crowd of millions was in the streets to watch the procession, and gave expression to unparalleled enthusiasm. Cardinal Mercier, with other prominent personages, witnessed the procession from a special stand.

Progress has been made by the Supreme Council with the Bulgarian Treaty, the text of which is now complete. It will be presented to the Bulgarians in the course of next week.

BELGIAN RELIEF.

DISPOSAL OF SURPLUS BRITISH FUNDS.

The National Committee for Relief in Belgium, through which over £2,000,000, solely from British sources, was contributed towards relief in that country, has, after consultation with Mr. Hoover, allocated the balance of funds in hand to the following charitable organisations in Belgium: Mme. Doutremont's Children's Home, 200,000 francs; Foyer des Orphelines, Brussels, 150,000 francs; Countess van den Steen's Home for Children, 150,000 francs; Foyer des Orphelines, Charleroi 100,000 francs; Orphelinat Protestant, 50,000 francs; Gouttes de Lait, Brussels, 50,000 francs; De Wouters' Home for Young Girls, 25,000 francs.

In transmitting the gifts, Sir William Goode, Secretary to the Committee, has expressed the hope that the gifts will be accepted as a token of British appreciation of the heroism shown by the Belgian nation throughout the war, and of sympathy with the sufferings which they so courageously withstood during the German occupation.

MILK AT ONE SHILLING A QUART.

The Food Controller has decided to fix the maximum retail prices of milk per quart as follows: October 11d.; November 1s.; December 1s.; January 1s.; February 1s.; March 1s.; April 11d.

The Food Controller draws the attention to the power vested in local authorities to provide milk for expectant and nursing mothers and for children under five years of age through Maternity and Child Welfare Centres and otherwise at a reduced price or free of cost in cases in which the local authorities are satisfied that circumstances justify the provision.

"BROKE IN OUR WARS."

Harry Bohle, aged twenty-four, who was charged at the Central Criminal Court with the wilful murder of Rosie Josephine Gallmann, his sweetheart by cutting her throat at Stepney, was found to be insane at the time when he committed the crime, and was ordered to be detained during the King's pleasure.

It was stated that Bohle, an ex-soldier, was wounded at Mons and the Dardanelles. He was blown up by shell-fire three times in one day during the fighting on the Somme.

Bohle was about to be married to the woman and they were on the most affectionate terms.

GERMANY'S PEACE TANKS.

Article 171 of the Peace Treaty stipulates that Germany shall not build tanks for war purposes, but their construction for peaceful uses is not prohibited.

A number of German factories have been building tanks for agricultural purposes—ploughing, mowing, haulage, etc. Some inquisitive workmen of other factories became suspicious of certain frameworks and armoured plates which were being constructed at their own workshops, and careful investigation revealed the surprising fact that these frameworks and plates fitted exactly the agricultural tanks, which in a few hours time could be converted into fighting tanks.

PLANE CRASH IN LONDON PARK.

An Avre aeroplane had a forced landing in the centre of Southwark Park, S.E. The machine was wrecked but the pilot and two passengers—one a woman—escaped injury.

Lieut. E.A. Sullock, the pilot, was taking the passengers from Hounslow to Southend when, he states, "a cylinder blew out of the engine 2,500ft. up.

"I had to decide," he said, "between risking the lives of the passengers by alighting on the river or landing in a green field. I chose the field. I saw a man with a horse and roller on the spot where I intended to land. In landing, after avoiding them, the under-carriage was torn away and we turned over."

Lieut. Sulloch, who has carried over 2,000 passengers without accident, helped his passengers from the upside-down machine.

FAMOUS PROFESSOR DROWNED.

While bathing with his children in the River Wharfe, Yorks, Professor F. W. Moormann, University of Leeds, was drowned. With his wife, two sons, and daughter, he was spending a vocation in Upper Wharfedale.

Professor Moormann was aged 47, and was appointed to the Chair of English Language at Leeds in 1912. He was an authority on the Yorkshire dialect, and during his researches utilised the gramophone to obtain accurate records of the dialect as spoken and sung in the country districts.

AVOIDABLE WASTE.

The London barge Perseus, which put into Dover yesterday fogbound, has a cargo of 175 tons of empty shell-cases. They had been brought from France to England, were sold to a French firm as scrap metal, and are now being taken back to France.

Two freight payments, as well as the cost of handling the material in England, have been involved.

RULE IN RHINELAND.

Some uncertainty appears to reign in the minds of many of our readers as to impending changes in our administration of the occupied territory. Events and necessary measures during the last five years have called for such frequent and often drastic changes that many can hardly keep pace with the march of history. It will perhaps be useful if we summarise the situation as it is now developing.

Peace is signed. But it is not yet ratified by all of the principal belligerent powers. Ratification means the approval and acceptance by the countries concerned, of the terms which their representatives have signed on their behalf. And until that is done a state of political and military peace cannot be said to be definitely established.

Great Britain, Belgium and Germany have already ratified the peace treaty. France has the matter now in hand and there will probably be little delay. Italy will most likely not be much later. The decision of the United States awaits the result of President Wilson's explanatory tour. But it has been ruled that three of the great allied powers must ratify their acceptance of the peace-treaty before the terms can be taken as settled.

Meanwhile, in order that no time may be lost and that all may be ready for reconstruction of commerce and normal conditions preparations are being made and details worked out for the new order of things.

Coming now to that aspect of peace which has the greatest immediate interest for our readers, we understand the future arrangements to be, briefly, as follows:—

The military occupation of a part of Germany during a certain period being one of the clauses in the peace treaty, that occupation by the troops of the four Allied and Associated Powers continues, the British force remaining centered on Cologne. (It may be noted that such occupation of territory at the cost of the country thus partially occupied, is a customary form of security given by their rulers for the faithful execution of the agreed terms).

The civil administration heretofore under the direction of the Military Governor's branch of the Army Staff, will, on ratification of the treaty, pass into the hands of the normal German Authorities, whose business it will be, as in ordinary times of peace, to carry on all branches of local Government and activities and to settle purely German disputes and difficulties.

But whilst the administration of the occupied territory reverts, on the ratification of peace, to the hands of the German Government, the presence of the Allied Armies and the very fact of military occupation imply a certain control over the population of the area concerned, if the rights appertaining to the Allied troops are to be secured.

The enumeration of these rights is set forth in the Convention of Occupation, signed by the German Government at the same time as the Peace treaty; this document further provides a machinery for assuring that such rights are fully secured. The machinery provided by the Convention is not a military, but a civil body called The Rhineland High Commission, sitting at Coblenz and composed of one member from each of the four nations maintaining troops in the occupied territory, the French member acting as president. The British member is Sir Harold Stuart, K.C.S.I, whose record in India is well known, in connection with the Police Commission, then as Director of the resultant Intelligence Department, and later as Home Secretary to the Government of India.

For the purpose of securing the rights of the occupying forces, the High Commission issue ordinances which will have the force of German laws.

Sub-commissions representing, and reporting to the High Commission, will be established at the four centres of occupation. And similarly there will be representatives in the town or country districts hitherto under the control of Area Commandants.

It is fortunate that there may be available for these new administrations a number of British officers who have during the last nine months gained invaluable experience in the questions of German administration methods and personalities.

THE BATTALION PICNIC.

No one knows the origin of the idea—an idea unique I believe in the annals of the Rhine Army — A Battalion Picnic.

The novelty of it almost took our breath away and when orders appeared in which it was decreed that the Battalion would proceed by road in full marching order, less steel helmets, S.B.Rs., and other small articles of equipment, which the boys are always grieved to part with for a moment, to Rodenkirchen and bivouac, the excitement knew no bounds.

Many went to bed that night to dream of Scouting days, Red Indian warfare, sweethearting amid sylvan glades, and demobilization, the latter, however, being only in the background for who would seek it with such a prospect in view?

I told my batman to call me at 4.30 a.m. instead of which at 5.15 I jumped hastily from my feather bed to find him snoring heavily. I asked him if I should get him a cup of tea and then packed up myself.

What a rush! I lost my studs, put my shaving and hair brushes in my pocket and forgot my jewel case.

As I left my billet the roseate hues of early dawn were shedding their soft radiance over the spires of the Old Dom and the refreshing dew cooled my throbbing head.

Oh! the joy, the spirit of adventure! what mattered the unearthly hour!

Arriving at the Mess I kicked over two chairs, sang a hymn, drank one cup of cold tea and relished the one biscuit left for me.

Thus fortified in my inner man I joined our splendid Battalion at the starting point.

I noticed the beaming face of our R.S.M. How lovingly he gazed upon his boys! He too was going to leg it with the rest and his soul was at peace.

Hark! The Band is playing and the trek begins. Never did any band play with greater vigour and the results were amazing. As we passed along Lindenwall, Bonnerwall, and the outer defences of Cologne every window was crowded. What a sight!

At 8 o'clock we had breakfast on the line of march. Sitting on the banks of the Rhine we enjoyed our poached eggs on toast and other dainties.

We arrived at Rodenkirchen at 10 a.m. and proceeded to bivouac at the best place for any troops in Rhineland amongst the bushes and trees next to the famous bathing pavilion.

Soon many fair damsels appeared on the balcony in most becoming costumes and waved their lily-white hands in welcome and our Brigadier also rolled up in his German Vauxhall du luxe to see if we were comfy.

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

Lunch was served al-fresco, the men and officers enjoying with keen appetites the chicken and bully beef washed down by the incomparable Rhine Water.

The men in the meantime had erected their bivouacs and also named them. Hence you were reminded at the "Northern Villa" that Jocks and Tynesiders were verboten, the terms for board being ten Marks. Likewise "Fuzzy Villa", "The Better 'Ole" and "Wishem House" were all occupied.

In the afternoon the men, in vivid bathing costumes, entered the enclosure sacred to mixed bathing and disported themselves, under the watchful eyes of certain gallant fraulein-proof subalterns, amongst the numerous fair Rhineland damsels, children, and brown backed, fierce, jealous looking men.

Never was there a more picturesque scene.

After tea the wood was reminiscent of Ivanhoe, Robin Hood and his Merry Men, for our gallant warriors entered the lists in a grand Military Tournament, in which tugs of war, wrestling, musical chairs — all on firery steeds with snorting nostrils — were the chief features.

The excitement was intense. Here you could see men locked in deadly combat and soon the spectators were flying in all directions, trees were charged and bushes trampled down. The mules sweated and laughed, the men yelled and heered.

Dancing too on the green to the accompaniment of the band was indulged in, and the Padre lined up a group of German boys who did the goose step in fine style, and were suitably rewarded with slices of cbread.

In the evening after dinner the officers sang rollicking songs and choruses, the men taking up the strain.

One moment was one of intense agony — our gallant second in Command could be heard shouting "Someone has cribbed my soap." Awful the thought! Every face turned to ashen white. Who was guilty of this shameful deed? A court of inquiry will decide. The camp fire blazed brightly, and at "Last Post" the moon shone, with Turner-like effect, through the trees on the sleeping camp of snoring officers and men and the night dew fell gently upon their happy faces. The Colonel was the last to turn in, likewise the R.S.M., for both went round to tuck the boys in and bid them a sweet good night.

It was a fitting end to a perfect day.

G. A.

THE "K" ENVELOPE.

A small Manilla paper envelope, with the magic words, "On His Majesty's Service" at the top, and a "K" just where one's signature is to be written, in the lower left-hand cornert. What can this insignificant thing have to do with national economy!

But wait; think a bit; remember some of those platitudinous but fatefully truthful truths that we had dinned into our ears when we were children, such as, "Take care of the pence, and the pounds will take care of themselves," and the like.

And now to come to the point. Those little, unattractive oblongs of Manilla paper known to the A. P. and S. Depôt as "Envelopes K."

It seems hardly credible that these ugly ducklings should exercise such a fascination as to lead men, and not ordinary men but officers whose standards of conduct becoming an officer and a gentleman is so high, to commit a wrong

Yet such is the sorrowful fact. Be it propinquity, father of many sins, or carelessness, covetousness, cupidity, or mere cussedness, officers will use these absurd-looking envelopes for their private correspondence.

This, then, is my first premise,—officers use K envelopes. Everybody will, I am sure, agree with that statement. If anyone is sceptical let him ask the A.D.P.S., or any D.A.D.P.S. of his acquaintance.

Second premise, K envelopes which are Government property are not meant for private use.

Conclusion, officers use Government property not meant for private use.

Now please don't try to pick flaws in this syllogism, for there are none. The father of logic himself could find no fault with it.

Second Syllogism,-Government property costs money; K envelopes (hideously ugly though they are) are Government property; therefore K envelopes cost money.

Third Syllogism,—The private use of Government property costing money entails a national loss;

Officers who use K envelopes for private correspondence use Government property costing money;

Therefore officers who use K envelopes for private correspondence entail a national loss.

Now don't try to quibble. Premises and conclusions are unassailable. No casuistry or sophistry will help. Note how inevitable all this is once one has started. Take it from me, old Aristotle was not such a fool as some persons who sneer at logic think.

But what is the amount of this loss entailed by officers' use of K envelopes? Here, a few statistics will be in order, and statistics are just as fascinating as logic when one takes the trouble to make their acquaintance.

We may assume, I think, without fear of contradiction, that there are at present 100,000 officers in the army. We may assume, further, I think, that each officer uses on the average one K envelope per day (I know perfectly well that there are officers who never use a K envelope, but I know other officers who average half a dozen daily, not to mention those they tear up because of an error in the address, a blot, or what not).

By simple multiplication we establish the fact, then, that officers use 100,000 K envelopes per day. Now these envelopes cost the Government say 5/- per thousand.

Dividing, then, the above total by 1000 we get as 500/- the daily cost to the Government of the K envelopes used by officers for private correspondence. Now assume the use of a certain number by orderly-room and other clerks and their friends, and we have the grand daily cost of 600/- or £30.

Now multiply this by 365 (366 for leap-years) and the cost to the Government per year for this single, and seemingly insignificant item, is £10,950.

Assume that this sum is invested at 6% compound interest, and in about three hundred years it would pay off thei entire national debt.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

NOT IN BLIGHTY.

Sir,—I sat under the trees at Lindenthal on one of the recent hot evenings, at a little table with a glass of lager beer before me and a few chums around, while we watched the boating on the lake.

We saw husbands, wives and children enjoying the peaceful scene and pleasant surroundings as we were doing, and we said: how nice it would be, if when we went back to Blighty to our native town, it were possible to do the same.

But it isn't and if it were suggested the local Chadoands and Stigginseses would have fits.

For myself I shall miss those innocent inexpensive pleasures when I have to be demobbed.

A.B.W.

THE OUTDOOR LIFE.

Sir,—I have read with surprise the letter of "P.H." who complains that it will be practically impossible for many to settle down to our pre-war existence.

"Mexican pampas" and "brigands or rebels" may arouse our enthusiasm in novels, but when met with face to face it is a different matter.

I myself have had quite sufficient excitement during the past three years to last me for the rest of my life, and so, no doubt, have many others.

Dodging shells in the front line was certainly a novel experience, but could hardly be called healthy.

I shall be only too glad to settle down in England again to a quiet and intellectual existance, and regard the events of the last few years as a hideous night-mare.

B.M.G.

WHAT IS THE MEANING?

Sir—What is behind the practice of certain cabaret waiters in withholding from circulation the price list of wines, which we were led to suppose were for consumption by British officers and men?

Frequently my inquiry for such a list has been met by a look of blank amazement as though the waiter had never heard of such a thing. This is absurd.

Such lists were in use in almost every cabaret in the early months of the occupation and they served the excellent purpose of preventing profiteering. It is obvious that the hotel or cabaret proprietor is only too ready to foist his own list on to his British customers. Perhaps the A.P.M. or responsible authority will take this matter up.

JUNO.

WHY DO THEY STARE?

Sir,—I am not one of those fortunate beings to have my wife or a relation on the Rhine and have, therefore, no personal interest in the matter, but I would like to comment upon the gross rudeness of a certain type of German who not content with his objectionable staring habit, is not above displaying open insolence so far as English ladies are concerned.

The case in point came under my notice near the Dom this week. An officer and lady were waiting to board a car, when a German, who was accompanied by an overdressed female, not content with rude scrutiny, proceeded to discuss the couple. Their conversation was evidently very amusing, yet, when the officer who was apparently aware of the interest taken in him, turned in their direction, the German male, as usual, sought other sources of discussion.

Why is it that some German males have so little gallantry?

OBSERVER.

COUNTING BY TENS.

Sir,—Your correspondent B.M.G. uses the stale old argument always trotted out—that "the introduction of the decimal system must cause an immense confusion throughout the commercial world."

It is too ridiculous to have to answer people whose minds possess such a kink. Does B.M.G. not realise that the confusion exists at present and if we fall in line with the rest of the commercial world simplicity becomes universal?

Why should it be more difficult for us to make the change than all the European countries including Germany and France.

We have no more "unsurmountable obstacles" to overcome than they had. But we have people like B.M.G. who obstinately bar all progress.

BUSINESS MAN.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,—It is a very pleasant thing, no doubt, to have one's wife and family on the Rhine. It makes one feel almost at home.

But does it make for efficiency? I can see the difference in my unit in the case of those who have their wives with them — more especially the newly married ones.

It's time off for this excursion or that entertainment; wifey must be taken to this sight or that; must go to the cafes and restaurants and have a good time generally.

And hubby — well his work suffers. "You don't mind carrying on for me this afternoon old chap; you understand don't you?"

Oh yes; we understand and we oblige but we single men are getting a little sick of it all the same.

I am sure from the standpoint of efficiency wives in Rhineland are a mistake. What do others say?

BACHELOR.

JEAN.

Of a' the airts the wind can blow,
I d aft like the west,
For there the bonnie lassie lives,
The lassie I lo'e best:
There wild woods grow, and rivers flow,
And monie a hill between;
But day and night my fancy's flight
Is ever wi' my Jean.

I see her in the dewy flowers,
I see her sweet and fair:
I hear her in the tunefu' birds
I hear her charm the air:
There's not a bonnie flower that springs
By fountain, shaw, or green;
There's not a bonnie bird that sings,
But minds me o' my Jean.

ROBERT BURNS.

CULMINATING STAGE.

Lindenthal Tennis Tourney Finals on Monday.

PROVISION FOR VISITORS.

In the great Inter-Allied Tennis Tournament which commenced at Lindenthal last Saturday, the process of elimination proceeded yesterday when the semi-finals were played off. The finalists only will remain and they will join in battle on Monday when tennis of a very high order will be seen. The three hundred entrants for competition included first class exponents of the game from each of the Allied Armies of Occupation and consequently the standard of play will be high. It is easily the most attractive tennis programme staged in Rhineland and a huge crowd is expected to make the pretty Lindenthal grounds their rendezvous to witness the culminating stage of the competitions. With characteristic foresight the committee have made every provision for the accommodation of visitors.

The promoters have indeed been fortunate in selecting the past week for the tournament, the weather each day having been perfect. A wet week would have upset all calculations and probably have entailed the adandonment of the concern. We give below the remaining results up to the semi-final round, and in our Tuesday's issue hope to publish the results of the last stages.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

(BY NOVO.)

Once again it is stated that this is the last season for football at the Crystal Palace, as the playing pitch has been taken over for extensions in connection with the electric railway. Many clubs who could not win the cup at the Palace won't be sorry.

* * *

Scotswood, a team that did well last season in the Northern Victory League, have transferred several of their players, amongst them being Robinson and Henderson to Newcastle United, Spence to Manchester United, Stothard to South Shields, Cail to Aberdeen, Tulloch to West Ham, Dairskin to Southport, and Urwin to Luton.

* * *

What price Blackburn Rovers? In their Lancashire League days during the war they were sport for all the clubs in the tournament, but with the return of their old stalwarts, including Shea and Dawson, they are an altogether different side.

* * *

Newcastle United's first performance of the season created a decidedly favourable impression, but to many of their supporters the gilt was badly tarnished by their second display against West Bromwich Albion. There were in the old days, some clubs against which the Tynesiders seldom shone. One of them was West Bromwich Albion, and another was Sheffield United. It looks as if history was merely being continued.

* * *

Preston North End got off the mark in rather bad fashion. To lose by 4—1 to the Rovers, and follow up with a home defeat by 5—1 at the hands of Bradford City, was certainly a facer for the "Proud Prestonians."

* * *

But form is all topsy turvey. It will be weeks before the clubs settle down to the game in earnest, and so surprises must be the order of the day for some time longer.

* * *

Tommy Browell's shooting boots appear to be as reliable as ever, since he netted three goals in two games for Manchester City. By the way, the Mancurians dropped their pre-war league backs Henry and Fletcher after the match with Sheffield United.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Sunday, September 14th, 1919.

Wind between South-East and South, 5 to 10 M.P.H. At first fair and very warm, little cloudy. Visibility fair.

THE AUTUMN HANDICAPS.

Satisfactory Acceptances for Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire.

THE EXIT OF HE.

With the conclusion of the Doncaster meeting the attention of racing enthusiasts will naturally be claimed by the Autumn handicaps, the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire, the acceptances for which have been received. Generally speaking they can be regarded as eminently satisfactory, though several which were expected to remain in have been withdrawn. The Cesarewitch entry fell but three short of the hundred, and of these thirty-five have disappeared, while twenty-five of the ninety nominated for the Cambridgeshire have been taken out.

Dealing first with the Cesarewitch, last year's second, He, had been previously withdrawn, and it is understood that this good son of Santoi, who practically broke down in the Prince Edward Handicap on Saturday, has concluded his racing career. The joint top-weight Arion, however, remains in, as does the penalised Haki, who now has 9st 2lb. Other of the heavy brigade which can face the starter next month are Queen's Square, Furore, and Racing Syndicate. Notable three-year-olds to go out are Paper Money, Tangiers, Skyraker, All Alone, and Trestle, while among the seniors Tom Pepper and Dionysos are the chief defections.

Irish Elegance to Run.

Mr. James White has accepted with Irish Elegance for the Cambridgeshire, while My Dear, Diadem, Zinovia, and Arion remain. My Dear is, by the way, Taylor's only survivor, Queen's Square, Manilardo and Flying Spear having been withdrawn. Barling's trio—Scatwell, Grand Fleet, and Dominion—are left in, and it is quite likely that one or other will develop into a well-fancied candidate.

One is somewhat surprised at the non-acceptance of Callander, who was well treated on his best form, but this colt has not been an easy animal to train. Others who have gone are Mountaineer, Good Night, Roseway, Jutland, Gay Lord, and Prince Philip. The majority of those noted in the early wagering are still, however, eligible to compete, and the opinion previously expressed that interesting contests should result still holds good.

RACING NOTES AND NOTIONS.

By Jerry M.

How many are contemplating a "splashy little autumn double?" I shall make a few suggestions after the acceptances appear this week. The original weights disclosed no great flaw, and "Bookies" are cheerfully offering 8,000 to 1 some ways.

With its little jumping meeting Plymouth scored a great success financially, and it supplied one of the most surprising happenings ever known in racing. In a handicap — not a weight for age with complicating conditions — but a plain straightforward handicap — "Sporting Parson" ridden by Mr. F. B. Rees carried 14 lb. too little weight; he won, but was of course disqualified and Turner his trainer was fined £10 for "gross carelessness!!!" But how did he pass the scales before the race?

How our old selling platers seem to thrive on plenty of work! Old "Saintly Maude" must surely be made of iron. She has run on fifteen occasions this season and moreover won the last six times off the real, a double hat trick!!! Her buying in price ranges from 65 guineas to 420 guineas and the latter price is cheap with the hurdle season in the offing.

Lord Charles Beresford, whose death will be regretted by all who knew the breezy sailor-sportsman, would have been a strong supporter of the Turf, had he not chosen a Naval career. In his earlier days he owned a few chasers and was a capable amateur rider. In the seventies he finished a creditable third in a private sweepstake to his two brothers Lord William and Lord Marcus, at Curraghmore.

AIR RACE DISQUALIFICATION.

The Royal Aero Club committee in charge of the seaplane race for the Jacques Schneider Trophy at Bournemouth on Wednesday has decided that, as the only competitor to finish, Signor Janello, of Italy, is disqualified because he flew inside the mark-boat in flying the course, the race has been declared null and void.

Wonderful Soccer Veterans.

Bob Crampton, the famous full back of Blackburn Rovers, though in his fortieth year, is not yet through with the game. Other wonderful veterans are David Stokes, Bolton Wanderers, and Meredith, the great Welshman, who is still slim and hard as hickory.

C.P.C. VICTORS.

Warm appreciation of our Cricket Competition.

PLEASANT REMEMBRANCES.

The 17th Lancers, the winners of the "Cologne Post" Cup Cricket Competition, through the captain of their team, Capt. Fowler, in the letter which we publish below, show how keenly they have appreciated our competition and add their meed of thanks to the many other expressions of felicitation we have received.

Capt. Fowler says:— I am writing to thank you on behalf of our cricket team for the very kind way in which you entertained us to lunch and tea on the day of the C.P.C. final last Sunday, and to tell you how very much the whole side have enjoyed playing in the League matches throughout the season. Your competition gave the necessary stimulus to unit cricket, which otherwise, I do not think, would have flourished in Rhineland this summer. As the fortunate winners of the cup, we thank you most heartily for having given the trophy and for all the pleasant remembrances we shall always have of our only cricket season in Germany.

RHINE ARMY ATHLETICS.

The greatest Rhineland athletic meeting takes place at on the P. and R.T. ground at Riehl on Wednesday and Thursday, when the British Army of the Rhine Athletic Championships will be decided. There is an imposing programme and the very best Rhineland talent will be participating in the events.

On both days the meeting will be followed by boxing championships in the large hall of the Burgergesellschaft, near the British Empire Leave Club. Excellent shows are promised.

PROFESSIONAL GOLF.

Draw for Southern Section in Association Tourney.

The draw for the Southern Section Competition in the Professional Golfers' Association tournament for £590 in prizes presented by the "News of the World," was made at the office of the P.G.A., Bishopsgate, last week. The event takes place at Sonning on Sept. 18, and the 26 players returning the best scores for 36 holes will qualify for the final stages, by match-play, at Walton Heath, on Sept. 29 and 30, Oct. 1 and 2.

The huge entry of 146 prevents more than one round being played on a day, with the consequence that the 73 couples will play 18 holes on the 17th, and as the first couple will go out at 9 a.m., there is a fresh draw for partners on the second day.

Favourite Breaks Down.

Visbount Rivaud's Ariodant, who was fancied for the Omnium today, met with a slight accident last Sunday in the Prix de Menneval, and will have to be stopped in his work.

PRIVATE IN LUCK.

Wins £3,350 in Lille St. Leger Sweepstake Draw.

"THE FIELD" WINS.

Pte. R. G. Bailey, the Cottage, Litton Cheney, Dorchester, who drew "the field," which included the winner, Keysoe, in the Army Victory St. Leger sweep, which was promoted and drawn at Lille among the officers, N.C.O.'s, and men of the Overseas Forces, has won the first prize of £3,350, the number of his ticket being 20,835.

The second prize of £1,675 was won by Capt. J. G. G. Noble, N. A. C. B. Headquarters, Wimereux, B.T.G.F., who drew Dominion, and the third prize of £837 10s. by Sgt. H. Goddard, 9, Longfellow-st., Pendleton, Manchester, who drew Buchan.

In addition to the above all tickets who drew probables receive £140 each, and there are 200 consolation prizes of £8 each.

All applications for prize money must be made to Major Denison, 33, Rue de Loos, Lille.

The only other sweep that will be promoted this year will be on the Cambridgeshire, to be run on Oct. 29.

COURAGE OF CONVICTIONS.

Beckett's manager's big offer to M. Descamps.

Mr. Bernard Mortimer, Joe Beckett's thick-and-thin supporter, has the courage of his opinions, and it is in accordance with the best sporting traditions of the game to find men boxing for considerable sums of their own and supporters' money instead of merely putting up a comfortable purse. It is certainly also a guarantee to the public that a genuine, all-out sporting match is going to be witnessed.

Mr Mortimer has offered M. Descamps a wager of £3,000 on £4,000 level on Beckett against Carpentier in their coming match at Olympia.

REECE v. INMAN.

Old Rivals to meet in London next Month.

The new Burroughes Hall in St. James'-st., Piccadilly, will receive its "house warming" on Monday, Oct. 6, with the first instalment of a fortnight's match between those old and tense rivals, Inman and Reece. Tom Reece is already hard at practice in view of this and other important games, and in the course of an interview with a representative of the "Sporting Life" the Lancastrian expressed a desire to make the opening game with his old rival a real test of merit.

DEATH OF A SPORTSMAN.

The death occured on Monday at the 36 C.C.S. of Captain Arnold Nimmo Brown. 113th Siege Battery, 93rd Brigade R.G.A., at the age of 25. Captain Brown, who was a Colonial, enlisted in South Africa and fought with the 7th Siege Battery in the war; he was a keen sportsman and a fine inside three-quarter, playing for the 10th Brigade and the Second Army last season and previously for his school (Watson's). He represented Watson's School in the 100 yards and threw the cricket ball 107 yards in the Public School Sports.

The whole of the 112th Battery, as well as representatives of other batteries were present at the funeral. The body was carried on a 60 pdr. driven by officers of the Brigade; the band of the 9th E. Surrey Regiment was present and the firing party was supplied by the 113th Siege Battery, R.G.A.

The mourners included Captain Brown's fiancee and her mother, Miss and Mrs. Scott. Wreaths were sent among others, by the officers of the 113th and 93rd Brigades, and the N.C.O.'s and men of the 113th.

RABIES CHECKED.

Except in the neighbourhood of Cardiff, four cases have occurred in the last few days, the spread of rabies appears to have been checked. During the past week 30 cases in which rabies was suspected were reported to the Board of Agriculture, but only the cases referred to have proved to be rabies. The London area has been free from new cases since August 4.

Unusual Cheering.

It was quite unusual to hear cheering and clapping when the red flag went up signalling an objection to King John; but this occured when Rothesay Bay was in the unsaddling enclosure after the Great Yorkshire Handicap.

THE RUNNERS-UP.

93rd Bde's Record In "Cologne Post" Cup Competition.

THE WEIGHTY WEIGHT.

Yesterday we published the history of the 17th Lancers, winners of the "Cologne Post" Cricket Cup Competition, and to-day we are able to give the record of the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. the runners-up, who may be deemed to have been somewhat unlucky to lose in the final in view of their extraordinarily good show in the earlier rounds of the tournament.

The announcement that the "Cologne Post" were to put up a cup for competition was heartily received by the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. who at once entered a team and set about construction. Every assistance was forthcoming from Lieut.-Col. Moultrie, the Brigade Commander, a keen cricket enthusiast and a fine sportsman. The captaincy was in the excellent hands of Major McLeod. Contrary to many elevens, a man was played strictly on merit; it mattered not whether battery commander or battery cook. The season opened against the Rhine M.T. Coy. R.A.S.C. on the excellent ground prepared by Gunner Weight. The A.S.C. got 35 and the 93rd Bde., replied with a hundred and seventy-seven for eight. It was seen that the team had great possibilities, and later the possibilities developed into actual facts. There was a real uphill fight in the next match when the 51st Devons were the opponents. They compiled a total of 168, having the assistance of A. J. Smith of Kent. However Gunner Weight rose to the occasion, ably assisted by Sgt. Lord, and the runs were obtained. Success followed success, high scores were the order, while usually opponents were dismissed for paltry totals. Gunner Weight, the Durham pro'. proved a tower of strength and his scores include 138 not out, 101 not out, 50 not out, 64, 49, 43 and 43. His bowling record is almost equally good; his best figures have been 6 for 14, 6 for 19, 5 for 9, 4 for 13 and 5 for 13.

Bdr. Ellis has been the next most successful batsmen and he has compiled some very useful totals. In addition he has proved an excellent change bowler on more than one occasion. The conclusion must not be drawn that the team possessed only two batsmen; at times both Ellis and Weight failed and yet the score neared 200. Bdr. Rushton, B.S.M. Ford, Major Phillips, Gunner Palliser, Cpl. Heuchan, Cpl. Wilson, Lieut. Griffith, Bdr. Bloomfield, Gunner Lord and Gunner Norton and Sig. Smythe have all done well with the bat. As bowling assistants Weight has had Sig. Smythe, Cpl. Bowden, Major MacLeod, Bdr. Rushton and several others, chief of whom is Smythe, a left-arm slow to medium and a good contrast to Weight's fast deliveries. His best figures have been 4 for 11, 4 for 7, 5 for 9, 9 for 18 and 6 for 16. Upon occasion, too, he has shown himself to be a very fast scorer, a notable performance being against Wahn when he reached 98 in 70 minutes. The fielding on the whole has been good, while Lieut. Griffiths proved himself to be a wicket-keeper of no mean order. He allowed very few balls to pass him and woe betide the man who left his crease. Gnr. Norton the reserve stumper was always safe if not brilliant.

It is noteworthy that Gunner Weight, who, by the way, is now demobilized, got within six of his 1,000 runs for the competition and scored well over that number during the season. The team average the high score of 260 per match 200 being reached on no less than eight occasions, frequently for the loss of only three wickets.

The team came through to the final with an unbeaten record, a really creditable performance, and the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. has every reason to be proud of their eleven. The team always responded to the call and proved their worth in fighting uphill battes as well as when victory came easily.

The averages are as follows:—

Batting.

	I.	N.O.	M.H.	Total	Average
Weight	19	4	138	99	66.26
Ellis	18	3	80	639	42.6

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Innocent Mirth and Joy.

"Would'st spend an afternoon of innocent mirth and joy?" ask the W.R.A.F's in advertising their "Revelry" being held at Sud Park, Marienburg, on Wednesday. The programme arranged is novel in character, including a "fair" in the afternoon with all its attractions and in the evening a torchlight tattoo. It looks like being a very lively little show and the entrance fee of one mark is going to the benefit of the W.R.A.F. "Old Comrades Society."

Backhaus and Barker.

The announcement that Backhaus, the noted pianist, is to appear at the Deutsches Theatre on Sunday evening has been received with the greatest pleasure. As a pianist, Backhaus has established a fine reputation, indeed, he is in the foremost rank of present day musicians. That he is to be acccompanied in the rendering of a Beethoven Sonata by Alfred Barker, the celebrated violinist, is an additional attraction, the talented pair having previously being associated with most pleasing effect. At the same performance Eric Morgan, the gitted tenor, will sing, sufficient in itself to attract a large audience. Undoubtedly we are going to get the real thing on Sunday.

Another View.

P.L.S's complaint regarding the standard of concert parties in the rural districts has brought the following reply from "Play-goer." He says:—"I think P.L.S.'s complaint is unreasonable. I, myself, am in a village 30 miles from Cologne. I have seen some very good concert parties and we have all been quite satisfied and delighted with the performances. I am quite willing to admit that some parties are not so efficient as others, but one must allow for that, seeing that they have been organized while they have been in Germany and it takes much time and trouble to produce a really good party. I think it rather unfair of P.L.S. to say that outlying districts have become a dumping-ground for unwanted concert parties from Cologne; he cannot always have the latest London production at his disposal."

JACQUES.

RUGBY WING-FORWARD.

New Zealand to Abolish their own Innovation.

The New Zealanders were responsible for the unfortunate introduction of the wing-forward into Rugby football which threatened to spoil the game.

It is good news for that reason to learn that they are now striving to lay the monster of their own creation.

The wing-forward at his worst ruins a rugby match, but fortunately can be rendered harmless by a wideawake referee. There exists no reason, however, why in a clean game like Rugby football it should be necessary for the referee to render any player harmless. Rugby men will rejoice, therefore, to learn that a recent meeting of the New Zealand Union voted in favour of abolishing the wing-forward.

The news is not surprising. Over here we have always loathed the wing-forward, and the New Zealanders themselves were heartily sick of him a long time ago.

VI CORPS BASKETBALL.

1/6 West Yorks in good Form at Heumar.

A very interesting afternoon's sport was witnessed at Heumar on Tuesday when the final of the VI Corps basketball was decided.

The game was full of thrills. The 1/6 West Yorks led by 6—2 at half-time. They maintained superiority during the second half and finally won by 12—2.

The teams took the field as under:—

West Yorks:— Captain G.F.G. Rees, Lieut. W. Rumney, R.Q.M.S. E. Franks, L/Cpl. Butterell, Pte. Redhead.

C 190 Batt. R.F.A.:— Captain Bray, Lieut. Devonald, Sergt. Tyles, Cpl. Blowe, Bdr. Clayton.

EMMA-TOCKS DEFEAT R.I.R.'s.

Before a good muster of spectators, the 5th B'n. Royal Irish Regiment met the Light Div. M.T. Coy. at Ohligs.

The final score after a fast and clean game was 2 (Pte. Ross and Cpl. Hood) — 1 (Cpl. May) in favour of the M.T's.

The half time score was 1 all and a regrettable incident occurred in the second half, Lt. McCracken the "Micks" Goalie, having the ill luck to dislocate a finger whilst effecting a fine clearance. Pte. O'Rourke came from the forward line to deputise for him and made a really brilliant save at full length, turning the ball round the post in a manner which roused great enthusiasm.

Sgt. Homersham, at right back, played splendidly for the R.I.R., likewise Cpl. May who showed himself to be an exceptionally speedy and smart centre forward. For the M.T's. Cpl. Hood, who led the forward line, did well, and Boyd was the best of a good half-back line.

A Fleetwood Signature.

John McGuire, son of Detective Inspector McGuire, of the Preston Borough Police Force, who has rendered good service with the Preston North End League team since he was invalided home from the Near East, has signed on for Fleetwood, a Lancashire Combination club.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

A Hitch.

There is, we now learn, a slight hitch regarding the date of the match between Bob Marriott and Billy Fry.

From Emerald Isle.

An Irish lady hailing from Kerry is to race in England, and some half-dozen horses which have been bought on her behalf by Mr. Joyce have joined McKie's team at Lewes.

Cambridge Rugger.

A strong fixture list has been arranged for the Cambridge side this season, for, apart from three trial matches at the opening of the season, no fewer than 27 games will be played.

Irish Champions.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. Boyd, the only Irishman, except Mr. Lionel Munn, who has won the Irish Open Championship, and Mr. H. M. Cairnes, a former "Native" Champion of Ireland, played very steady golf on Monday and got through easily.

Five-Year-Olds Doing Well.

One of the minor features of the present season is the improvement so many of our five-years-olds have been showing. Besides Laugh, Saintly Maude, and Zulanda winning races in succession, we have Shoemaker, who registered his fourth victory out of five outings this season at Doncaster.

Dispersing.

M. Brossette, the owner and breeder of the crack two-year-old filly La Chiffa II., intends dispersing his stable and stud.

Begorra for Belgium.

Capt. Armitage has disposed of Begorra privately to Mr. Walter Hopkins, and the colt is shortly to find a new home in Belgium.

New Trainer.

Martin Hartigan, a younger brother to Pat Hartigan, the Ogbourne trainer, is shortly to take up his position at Foxhill as Mr. James White's new trainer.

M.F.H. Dead.

Mr. C. W. B. Fernie, who for many years was Master of the pack known as Mr. Fernie's Hounds, which had headquarters at Medbourne, Market Harborough, has died at Keythorpe Hall, Leicestershire.

Going Abroad.

Mr. A. E. Barton has disposed of his stallion Ambassador to the British Bloodstock Agency, and the brother to Brown Prince will shortly be shipped to South America.

To Carry Silk.

Gool, the winner of the colt's section of the Prix La Rochette on Sunday, is the first produce of Opott to carry silk. He is entered in the French Derby and Grand Prix next year.

Army Fifteen.

The Army are running a regular Rugby fifteen with their headquarters at Queen's Club and they will meet all the leading clubs.

Unlike Prophets.

Champion boxers, unlike prophets, have often "no honour save in their own country." This is especially true of British champions.

Sister to Gleneskaki.

Mr. Haybourn has so many of his own yearlings by Cigar to go into training that he has decided to send his sister to Gleneskaki up to public auction.

"Will be There."

At present the composition of the Harlequins Rugby team is too indefinite for the mention of names, but that they "will be there" goes without saying.

Entries Good.

A representative entry has been received for the A. A. A. seven and ten miles championships to take place at the L.A.C. meeting on Sept. 20 at Stamford Bridge ground.

Langford Comes Back.

Sam Langford, the famous Boston negro, shaded Bill Tate, of New York, another well-known coloured heavyweight, in 10 rounds of fast fighting at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Clondir Lucky.

Gwilt started the season with a very modest team of horses at Lambourn when he came out of the Army, but he has soon got some nice platers together.

Eastbourne Surprise.

Perfect weather favoured the Eastbourne lawn tennis meeting. A surprise occurred when T.M. Mavrogordato defeated the brilliant Australian, Capt. P. O'Hara Wood.

France to Belgium.

It is said that Milton Henry, who has been riding in France, will take up his residence in Belgium, where he will train for a Belgian owner, who is buying in France.

A.I.F's Cricket Closure.

With a defeat at Scarborough yesterday more creditable than many a victory, the Ausralian Imperial Forces team brought their long tour to a close. It is not too much to say that their all-round form has exceeded all expectation.

Fair Helen's Half-brother.

Mr. Watkin Williams will start next season with many high-class two-year-olds. In July last Mr. Frank Cundell picked up a rare bargain for him when he gave 1,500gs. for the colt by Cylgad out of Helen Blair, known in future by Cylglair.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

A Summer's Plague.

An evil arising from the hot weather is the extraordinary number of gnats which were to be met with in a tramcar bound Rodenkirchen way the other evening. They danced in swarms around each of the electric globes and created quite a stir amongst the passengers. They are unpleasant little fellows to deal with at the best of times. How fräulein with her taste for openwork stockings fares we do not know, but we imagine that some discomfort must result. Gnat bites are to be avoided judging from our experience.

Slump in Business.

Small tradesmen in the outlying areas are deploring the departure of the British Tommy. Naturally so many have made small fortunes out of our occupation and are now rubbing their hands and wondering what they are to do. The Teuton is a remarkable being. One frau whose better half runs a sort of general store not many miles from Cologne to-day dislikes the few troops resident in her village, her animosity, if one can call it such, being based upon the fact that they, perhaps wisely, do their shopping in Cologne. Not far away another shopkeeper who has achieved a minor degree of affluence views his accumulated stock with a certain amount of misgiving. Perhaps like the friseur across the way he intends to remove his business to Cologne in the hope of securing more of Tommy's custom. Judging from our experience one images that there is little room for hairdressers. Like cafés, they are to be met with at every turn.

Purchase of Sporting Weapons.

It is notified that, although there is no objection to the purchase by officers of sporting weapons in Germany for taking home to England, it is necessary that all weapons taken out of the area should be inspected and that proof of legal ownership should be produced. All officers taking weapons out of the country will therefore obtain from their Commanding Officer, a certificate to the effect that they are the bona-fide property of the officer concerned.

A tidal Clock.

Between the Rhine Flotilla and the Hangebruecke there stands a small clock-tower which may have puzzled some of our readers as apparently it gives only ten hours. The "clock" does not show the time but the depth in metre of the Rhine at this point. It is verly low at present — about 2½ metres — compared with four metres a few weeks ago.

Necks and Collars.

It is strange, but while the Fraulein as a class eschews the open neck blouse so popular with English ladies, the German male has a sneaking regard for the open collared shirt. This, by the way, is being much worn at Continental seaside resorts. The fashion originally hailed from Austria just before the war, and it was baptised by its inventors the "Schiller collar," but to the Englishman the name "Byronic collar" would convey the idea more exactly. It flaps losely open in front at the neck and displays several inches of chest. Its opponents maintain that the vogue of low necks for men is effeminate. Its partisans urge on the contrary that the loose collar and untrammelled throat are the natural expression of the modern man's fondness for sport and healthy conditions, or is it a desire for comfort in these dog days?

Commendable Zeal.

With characteristic and commendable zeal Lieut. J. Wood, the hard-working sports officer of the 93rd Bde. R.G.A., who is ever alive to the value and essentiality of sport in a unit, has undertaken the organization of the football competition being run for the Kalk Y.M.C.A. Shield. The very fact that the arrangements are in such capable hands is enough to guarantee the successful running of the competition. Twenty-five entries have been received and the draw for the first round took place at the "Cologne Post" offices on Friday.

Re-Echoes.

Three French motor-lorries were to be seen in Cologne which had apparently covered the journey from Paris by road. On one was inscribed in chalk "Goods from Paris."

Two lithographs in a friend's billet have a familiar look about them. On closer inspection one turned out to be the avenue at Bushey Park on "Chestnut Sunday." Both have been used by the London "Underground" to depict the lure of the spring country-ride, but how came they to be in Cologne?

German Mark notes are just now under suspicion. In one Cologne establishment when handed over the counter each one is subjected to a critical scrutiny.

A sign of the times is a perfect epidemic of new boots. Brown is the popular shade. It must be a novel experience to the German to be able to dispense with patched soles.

Many Tommies are boasting of two ribands now. When are local organizations going to import a quantity of the Victory riband? They show a singular lack of enterprise in not being prepared for the rush.

The practice of carrying a package of sandwiches and calling at an hotel for liquid refreshment is very common in this country. The proprietor seems to get but little profit out of the transaction.

Why is it that one class of German removes his hat on entering a shop and another stalks into the dining room of an hotel and fails to remove his headgear? Is it a question of education in manners or custom?

Several hairdressers who have passed through internment camps in England and who have had long experience of English custom are very uncomplimentary as to their new surroundings. They want to return, but as one remarked "England is finished so far as we are concerned for several years now."

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Pte. T. Bratby, att'd Leicester Regt., Rhine Army; and Q.M. Sergt. P. Making, P. and R.T. G.H.Q. Rhine Army.

RELIGION AND SCIENCE.

I: THE CREATION STORY.

One of the difficulties which confronts the reader is the division of the work of creation into six days of work and a seventh of rest. There have been many attempts to explain this and we must admit that none of these attempts do really explain. We cannot reconcile the Genesis accounts with our present day knowledge of scientific facts.

1. St. Augustine explains them allegorically and not as historial facts.

"The day which God made by his words does not consist of a revolution of matter but of spiritual knowledge."

2. The first chapter is of the nature of a hymn and is to be interpreted as poetry and so fanciful.

3. The first verse is accepted as being a statement of fact but all that follows is supposed to be imaginary and of no authority.

4. In the first verse is the account of the original creation of unordered matter and that subsequently the present order was evolved by God in the course of six days.

5. God produced the present natural order in six days, but the fossils and all geological evidences of gradual evolution were relics of events which took place between verses 2 and 3. This presumes that the earth was devoid of life as the result of some great and universal catastrophe.

Related to this is the theory of an universal flood which would account for these geological phenomena, though only to a superficial observer.

6. The days are geological epochs.

7. The days are so many visions representing stages in the work.

8. The habitation theory. That the first three days were days of preparation and the second three days were days of accomplishment, e.g. 1st day Light. 4th day that which contains light, sun. etc.

If the first two chapters of Genesis be carefully read it will be noticed that there are two distinct accounts of the creation, and that the order of the events as given in them is quite different.

Doubtless the two accounts were written from different standpoints and represent two distinct lines of tradition which may have been edited by some early compiler.

In the first account the order is grass, herbs, trees, lights, sun, moon, stars, aquatic animals, winged creatures, land animals, creeping things, man, male and female.

The second account is to be found in Gen. Chap 2. Verses 7 to 22, and the order is man, trees, beast of the field, fowl of the air, woman.

According to our present knowledge of geology the appearance of living things on the earth has been as follows. It will be noticed that animals and plants appear simultaneously and that there is no distinct line of demarkation between successive epochs. Animal:—eozoon, protozoa, molluscs, corals, crustaceans, fishes, earliest insects, amphibians, spiders, beetles, reptiles, marsupials, monster reptiles, birds, extinct mammals, first living vertebrates, modern mammals, and man.

Plants:—Eozoon, marine plants, earliest land plants, coal plants, pines, cycads, modern trees, palms, dicotyledons, angiosperms.

THE LION LEADS in CURING

Trade Mark — Established 1847

During the strenuous times of the past few years

Burgess' Lion Ointment

has more than maintained its reputation. it has gained increased commendation for its marvellous efficacy in removing pieces of shrapnel, splinters of bone, etc., from old wounds, healing them permanently from underneath.

Nature will always assert itself

It is useless healing a wound until it is thoroughly cleansed; it must break out again worse than before. The great success of

is that it will not heal till it has thoroughly cleared away all morbid matter. There is no danger to life in curing a bad leg by this remedy, as it does not throw back humour into the system. It cures without lancing or cutting, bringing all disease to the surface and healing from underneath in all cases of Ulcers, Abscesses, Whitlows, Boils, Carbuncles, Fatty or Cystic Tumours, Piles, Fistula, Polypus, Poisoned Wounds, and all forms of Skin Disease, Eczema, Ringworm, etc.

Unequalled as a General Household Remedy for Cuts, Burns, Stings, &c.

Proof. At 59, Gray's Inn Road, E. BURGESS has a Museum of Extractions, consisting of Tumours, Polypi, and diseased Bone; also numerous Photographs of most serious cases, which have all been cured by the Lion Ointment. E. B. invites the fullest inquiry into each case published by him, and is confident that no other remedy can show a tithe of such results. Of Chemists 9d, 1/3, etc. per box; or a SAMPLE BOX post free 9d, from the proprietor—

OPINIONS OF THE MOMENT.

GAS AS A WEAPON.

Brigadier-General H. Hartley, speaking on "Chemical Warfare" and dealing with the impression that the use of gas in warfare is inhumane, says that this arose through the Germans introducing it contrary to The Hague convention, and because of the accounts which were circulated of the nature and number of our casualties as the result of the first gasclouds. A new weapon is always considered to be inhumane, but if war is admitted at all, then the most humane weapon is that which gives the quickest decision with the minimum amount of suffering. The death-rate among gas casualties was smaller than that arising from other casualties, and the number of men who suffered permanent incapacity was also lower. At the same time, military objects can be attained by a gas attack which cannot be secured by other means.

IS THE COALITION DOOMED?

The Rt. Hon. C. F. G. Masterman, writing on the future of the Coalition Government, says:—The Coalition is doomed and it knows that it is doomed. Governments with sentences of death upon them are often, however, an unconscionable time a-dying. Like the sick man "very near to death" in a famous poem, they hear the composed sorrow of their friends and discussion of the most suitable date "for carrying the corpse away." But they hang on in desperate hope of a recovery. During this time they are useless for all constructive reform. They write an ignominious page of political history. But they can appeal to a Parliament to support them, which is in the same dolorous plight as themselves. This Parliament sees itself disappear with a Dissolution. It has no wish to disappear. There is no Constitutional metnod of making it disappear. If it can do nothing serviceable it still can live.

SUNDAY SPORT.

The Rev. Geo. Allen, one of the best-known clergymen in Leeds, speaking on the subject of Sunday sport said:—"I don't quite see the necessity for Sunday sport. With the general shortening of the hours of labour, people are not debarred from obtaining all the physical exercise they need six days a week, and my own view is that to rest on the seventh day is quite as beneficial, if not more so, than would be recreation. But, after all, the question of whether a man should play games on Sunday is largely a matter for his own conscience. If he can fix it up with his conscience, well and good. Personally, I do not think there is to-day a loud and insistent call for sport on seven days a week."

STAGE TRIUMPH OF OLD MEN.

Mr. Vanghan Dryden, commenting upon the presence of many actors of the old school in the stage, says:—A glance round the London theatres reveals the astonishing fact that this is the time of the leading old man. So many white wigs have never been seen in the West End before. The wigmakers must have torn their own hair during their endeavours to find enough grey locks to furnish forth the heads of our leading actors. The youngmen in the majority of the plays now unning are simply tarown in as a foil, a sort of contrast. They are allowed to come on and make love to the ingenue every now and then, when the stage is not wanted for the oldsters. During most of "The Cinderella Man" three characters, whose combined ages must amount to 250 years, hold the stage.

ARE WOMEN MORE BEAUTIFUL?

Mr. Alexander Campbell, writing on the influence of life on woman says:—It is the habit of the elderly to depreciate the evening of their lives. I was, therefore, surprised, when walking the other day with a sprightly veteran, to hear him remark tnat he thought women became more and more beautiful. Compared, that was, he said, with thirty years ago. My observations tend to confirm the accuracy of the ancient's gallant remark. This declaration is, of course, subject to some reservations and qualifications. The pressure of competition in the struggle for existence leaves its effects written in stunted frame and careworn facial expression. Where this factor is absent, the remark, generally, holds good. Possibly this evolution towards beauty is in large part due to suggestion. Beauty, charm and grace display themselves to the eye and through the eye to the mind in a hundred ways. That which is ugly and grimly realistic is largely put out of sight—for good or evil as the case may be.

DIRECT ACTION.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, secretary of the Labour party, speaking with regard to "Direct Action" said he had heard with considerable satisfaction that the Triple Alliance Conference had decided to postpone a policy of direct action for purely political purposes. In his judgment that was both a wise and a commendable decision. He said for purely political purposes, for he did not admit that the organised workers could entirely forego the weapon of direct action. However much he regretted that circumstances sometimes compelled the workers to have to resort to the weapon of the strike, he was afraid that until society was much better organised the organised workers must retain that weapon of the right to strike. If he knew anything of organised labour, it compelled him to say that a Labour Government would fight to the very last ditch against any policy of direct action by any minority, by whatever name it might care to call itself. Therefore they ought not to set a bald example.

The Girl worth while.

It is easy enough to be cheerful,
When you've men at your beck and call,
But the girl worth while,
Is the girl who can smile,
When there are no men at all.

No. 144. COLOGNE, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1919. Price 25 Pfg.

LIVING WAGE FOR THE ARMY.

REVISED SCALE OF PAY AND ALLOWANCES WITH EFFECT AS FROM 1st JULY.

SIX WEEKS ARREARS TO DRAW.

PAY WARRANT.

NEW SCALE THROUGHOUT THE ARMY.

The Royal Warrant for the new rates of pay in the Army was issued on Saturday under Army Orders 324 (officers) and 325 (soldiers). While providing for substantial increases in all ranks it abolishes or modifies all previous Warrants It comes into force as from 1st July, 1919, except as regards pensions, which date from 1st April, 1919. In cases where transfer to the new scale involves a loss of emoluments, the old scale may be adhered to until from any reason the new scale equals or exceeds the old.

Special rates and conditions are laid down for tradesmen of all arms and departments and the amounts and conditions of working pay are amended or abolished.

The new rates are granted in consideration of the present high cost of living, and the rates of pay, half-pay and retired pay will be subject, after 5 years, to revision, either upwards or downwards to an extent not exceeding 20 per cent. according as the cost of living rises or falls. After 1st July, 1924, a further revision may take place every 3 years.

OFFICEERS.

The normal rates of pay for combatant officers, applicable to Cavalry (including Household Cavalry), Royal Artillery (Horse, Field and Garrison), Royal Engineers, Foot Guards, Infantry (including Labour Corps and West India Regiment), Machine Gun Corps, Tank Corps, Royal Army Service Corps, Army Cyclist Corps, and also to officers, except those paid as civil servants, of the Stationery Services, are as follows:—

Ranks.	Pay per day s.	d.
Colonel Commanding a regiment of Foot Guards	55	0
" in addition as Command Pay	10	0
Lieutenant-Colonel	47	6
" " commanding a regiment of Household Cavalry or battalion of Foot Guards, in addition as command Pay ...	10	0
Major	31	6
" after 5 years' service as such	37	0
Captain	23	6
" with 15 years' total service	26	0
" holding higher rank by Brevet, in addition ...	2	0
Lieutenant	16	0
" with 7 years' total services	19	0
2nd Lieutenant	13	0
" after 2 years' total service	16	0

There are special rates of pay for Officers in Command and for General Officers who are not in command. The scale of allowances is considerably revised, and in this section of the warrant appears the following definition: "A married officer for the purposes of furniture, lodging and fuel and light allowance is one who is, or has been married, and is thirty years of age or over."

WARRANT OFFICERS, N.C.O's AND OTHER RANKS.

The new normal rates for warrant officers, non commissioned officers and men are as follows:—

	Per day s.	d.
Regimental sergeant-major, master gunner, 1st Class, and all other warrant officers, Class I. (except tradesmen etc.	14	0
Regimental quartermaster-sergeant, quartermaster - corporal - major, quartermaster-sergeant instructor	12	0
Squadron, battery or company sergeant-major, squadron corporal-major, squadron quartermaster-corporal, squadron corporal-major roughrider, squadron serjeant-major roughrider, squadron corporal-major instructor or squadron, serjeant-major instructor in fencing and gymnastics or in musketry, Battery or company serjeant-major instructor .	10	0
Squadron, battery or company quartermaster-serjeant, Colour-serjeant or staff-serjeant	9	6
Includes additional pay of 6d. per day for keeping the pay and mess book under Article 698, Pay Warrant.
Serjeant cook, corporal cook (Household Cavalry)	8	6
Serjeant, corporal of horse (Household Cavalry), corporal of horse trumpeter, serjeant trumpeter, serjeant drummer, serjeant piper, or serjeant-bugler	7	0
Lance-serjeant	5	6
Corporal or bombardier.	5	0
Lance-corporal or lance-bombardier	4	3
Trooper, gunner, driver, private, bugler, bandsman, kettle drummer, trumpeter, fifer, piper, or drummer	2	9
Ditto, after 2 years' service as above	3	6
Boy, until he attains the age of 18 or is placed on the recognized establishment of the band ...	1	0

Soldiers (excluding boys) up to and including lance serjeant drawing the above rates will be eligible in addition for proficiency pay at the rate of 6d. per day.

Changes in rank.

As from 1st July, 1919, non-commissioned officers of the Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers and Royal Army Ordnance Corps will be graded as follows for pay:

Royal Artillery—
Corporal 1st corporal of the band } becomes lance-serjeant.
Bombardier 2nd corporal of the band } becomes corporal.
Lance-bombardier becomes lance-corporal.

Royal Engineers—
Corporal becomes lance-serjeant.
2nd corporal becomes corporal.

Royal Army Ordnance Corps—
Lance-serjeant remains lance-serjeant.
Corporal becomes lance-serjeant.
2nd corporal becomes corporal.

The existing separation, parents' and dependants' allowances and the concession granted by Army Order 1 of 1918, under which the allotment from a soldier's pay in order to qualify for separation or dependants allowance is ussued from public funds, will continue until 31st December, 1919. The future of these allowances from that date is subject to further consideration for all who are now entitled to them.

The system of charging National Health Insurance contributions against the accounts of soldiers is discontinued and the soldiers' contributions will be borne by the public for all those who draw pay under this Warrant.

Hospital stoppages will in future only be deducted where the disability is due to the soldier's own fault.

Conditions of Proficiency Pay.

The rate of proficiency pay is 6d. per day.

In order to become eligible for proficiency pay a soldier, of whatever rank, must—

(a) Have at least 1 year's service with the Colours.
(b) Be in all respects physically capable of performing the duties of his rank in the arm of the service to which he belongs.
(c) Attain a standard of professional and educational proficiency as laid down from time to time by the Army Council.

Proficiency pay will be issuable irrespective of the length of the engagement under which the soldier is serving with the Colours.

Lance-serjeants, corporals and lance-corporals will not be entitled to draw proficiency pay in virtue of their rank, but will in all cases be required to satisfy the conditions laid down above.

FIGHTING IN SIBERIA.

CLAIM AND COUNTER CLAIM.

According to the "Times" correspondent Koltchak's counter-offensive in Siberia is progressing. The Reds have displayed skill and determination, but have been out-generalled and beaten. The outposts of the Third Army are approaching Kurgan. Cavalry are sweeping the enemy's rear, capturing transport. The Second Army has started a pivotal movement in line with the Third. Another fortnight remains before the weather will seriously impede operations. Surprises of course are possible from the resourceful foe, who is managing, despite the hardest knocks, to maintain a semblance of order during his retreat.

The spirit of the infantry, according to the reports of the officers, is on a par with that of the best troops of 1914, while the cavalry leaves nothing to be desired.

While the Bolshevists are silent about the operations of the Siberian armies, they claim further successes in the Asiatic province of Uralsk, north of the Caspian, at a point 400 miles south-west of Kurgan, where the Siberians are at present operating. They reported previously the capture of 12,000 men; it is now stated that 20,000 more have surrendered.

DREYFUS DECORATED.

At a prise d'armes at the Invalides Lieutenant-Colonel Alfred Dreyfus was decorated with the rosette of the Legion of Honour.

TURKEY PAWNING HER JEWELS.

The Porte is negotiating with an English group of financiers for a loan of £7,200,000. The Crown jewels will be pledged as security.

S. AFRICA RATIFIES TREATY.

The motion for ratification of the Peace Treaty has been carried by the South African Union House of Assembly by 84 votes to 19. In the course of his speech General Smuts defended President Wilson against the charge of bad faith regarding his fourteen points.

CRIME IN IRELAND.

SINN FEIN PARLIAMENT PROCLAIMED.

Lord French's warning that the Government of Ireland would take drastic measures to supress crime in Ireland has been followed by swift action.

A Proclamation has been published in the "Dublin Gazette" prohibiting and suppressing the Sinn Fein Parliament or Dail Eireann, which is described as a "dangerous association." It applies to the 37 counties and six county boroughs of Ireland.

Sinn Fein headquarters in each town, with other nests of sedition, were swooped on, and from the early morning of Friday prisoners were arriving in Dublin from all parts of the country in military motor-lorries.

Detective Officer Hoey of the Political Division of the Dublin Metropolitan Police, was shot dead outside the detective office in Townsend-street, Dublin doubtless as an act of revenge for the raids.

The most fruitful raid was made in Dublin. At an early hour a large party of police and troops descended on the Sinn Fein headquarters in Harcourt street. The building was thoroughly searched and a vast amount of printed matter and correspondence seized. Two Sinn Fein M.P.s—Messrs. Ernest Blythe and Patrick O'Keefe, who were on the premises were arrested. Mr. O'Keefe is general secretary of the Sinn Fein organization.

Hostile crowds and armed resistance made the task of the Londonderry searchers exciting. Sinn Fein Hall was taken possession of by troops, who held it with fixed bayonets. The police meanwhile began to search—and to find arms of various kinds, which were taken to the barracks. A stone-throwing crowd in Rossville-street, where arms were seized, melted away when the troops brought their bayonets to the "charge," but a more venturesome mob which followed a raiding party carrying arms to the barracks had to be charged with batons.

It is stated that at one suspected house a man sprang out of bed, whipped two loaded revolvers from under his pillow, and presented them at a police-sergeant's head. He was overpowered without difficulty. A quantity of gelignite was subsequently found in this house.

Aviators hovered over Galway while the raid was in progress. About 200 police and soldiers visited a dozen suspect places, including the Sinn Fein offices, the town hall, the office of the "Galway Express," and the houses of local Sinn Fein leaders. Documents were piled into lorries and taken away, and one arrest was made—that of a solicitor named Nichols, who is president of the Galway Sinn Fein club and has been several times interned.

GABRIEL D'ANNUNZIO'S COUP.

TAKES POSSESSION OF FIUME.

An extraordinary story comes from Fiume, being a report that Gabriel d'Annunzio, the famous poet and daring aviator, has emulated the feats of Garibaldi by taking possession of the town of Fiume.

According to the Europa Press, he has seized the town at the head of a corps of volunteers, armed and equipped with artillery, machine guns, armoured cars and aeroplanes.

The "Epoca" says that General Badoglo has left for Fiume to deal with the situation.

"Beautiful as a poet's gesture" is the "Popolo Romano's" description of d'Annunzio's action. The Allies will probably take a different line of criticism.

£400 WAR GRATUITY.

The demand of the Canadian war veterans for an additional gratuity of £400 per man is growing. Colonel Currie has notified the Government that he will move a formal adjournment of the House on Monday to discuss the question.

A number of threats have been made in different parts of the Dominion of marches on Ottawa by the war veterans if their demand for an investigating commission is not granted.

The Government takes the position that it is unable financially to meet the request, which would mean an additional expenditure of £160,000,000.

NASTY ERSATZ.

The Berlin public received a shock on learning that they had been eating soap-suds when they thought they were eating whipped cream. This knowledge has been vouchsafed by an order issued by the Food Ministry forbidding "Ersatz" whipped cream to be made from soap-foam and sugar without the Ministry's special permission. Permission to make "Ersatz" whipped cream will not be given while the only materials for its manufacture are such unsuitable substances as soap shavings and such scarce raw materials as sugar and gelatine.

FATHER'S VAIN HEROISM.

Joseph Grimes, a labourer, of Baillieborough, Co. Cavan, lost his life yesterday in a gallant attempt to save his children.

Fire broke out in the house and he managed to carry four of his six children to safety. He was returning for the others, aged six and nine years respectively, when the roof collapsed.

The bodies of Grimes and the two children were recovered later.

WOMAN SAPPER.

HOW SHE CONTRIVED TO JOIN THE ARMY.

"Sapper" Dorothy Lawrence, the only English woman soldier, has written a book on her adventures as a Royal Engineer in the 51st Division in France.

She says she joined the Army and saw service as a "tunneller" under fire. Meeting two British soldiers at a Paris café, she persuaded them to get her a uniform, cap, badge, and puttees. She then wrote out a "pass" for herself, she says, and got a passport to Amiens, going there by rail, and cycling thence to Albert. Eventually a sapper helped her to get to the trenches, where she was under fire with a night shift of the R.E.s.

Later a sergeant informed against her, she was arrested, tried at 3rd Army Headquarters, and sent to a convent, where she remained until dispatched to England by the Army authorities.

HENDERSON, M.P.

FIFTH COALITION DEFEAT.

The Widnes by-election has provided the fifth heavy defeat which the Government have suffered since the general election in December last. Its result was announced as follows:—

Mr. A. Henderson (Lab.) 11,404
Mr. F.M.B. Fisher (U.) 10,417
Labour majority... 987.

At the General Election the Coalition Unionist candidate, Col. W. Hall Walker, had a majority of 3,694 over his labour opponent.

Since Widnes became a separate constituency in 1885 it has never previously returned a Liberal or Labour member. Of the 30,960 voters on the register, nearly half are women. There were 5,520 absent soldier and sailor voters on the register.

The cause of the by-election was the elevation of Colonel Hall Walker to the peerage. Its progress was made notable by Mr. Henderson's disclosures concerning his visit to Russia as a member of the War Cabinet.

Mr. Fisher, who did not stand as a "coupon" candidate, but promised to support the Coalition, attributed his defeat to the Government's lack of courage.

SKELETON CASE VERDICT.

The case against William Grant, charged with Alice Grant with the manslaughter of their daughter Connie and with disposing of the body by burying it under the floor, was ended at the Old Bailey on Saturday. Both prisoners were acquitted of the charge of manslaughter but were found guilty of wilful neglect and of disposing of the body with intent to avoid a coroner's inquiry.

Each was sentenced to eighteen months hard labour.

BARONET'S TRAGIC DEATH.

In tragic circumstances Sir James Domville died at Charing Cross hospital on Saturday. He had been conveyed there by the police from the United Services Club suffering from the effects of a bullet wound. His servant had found him lying fully dressed in his bedroom, seriously wounded.

Sir James Domville, whose age was twenty-nine, was the fifth baronet. He was a Lieutenant in the Royal Navy. His name appeared in the the list of Receiving Orders in the London Gazette last week.

HOTELS HELD UP.

Four prominent hotels in the Broadway district of New York, which is exceptionaly well lighted, have been raided by motor bandits. The servants were held up at the points of pistols and the robbers got away without making any great haul. In one or two instances the robbers feigned intoxication and then, suddenly brandishing their revolvers, started to rifle the cash drawers. In every case the hotels were entered by three men while one of the gang remained outside to keep watch. There have been many "hold ups" in the city of late and many valuables stolen. So far no arrests have been made.

FIGHT AT A GRAVESIDE.

An extraordinary scene occurred at a funeral service in a Kirkcaldy cemetery, on the Firth of Forth.

The two chief mourners had words over the open grave, and, stripping off their black coats, had a free fight.

Several women who were among the mourners succeeded in separating the combatants.

HUGE CARGO BOATS.

The Cunard Company has embarked on a large programme involving more than half a million new tonnage. The vessels, orders for a number of which have already been placed, will be of an average gross tonnage of 20,000. In addition to the latest refrigerating plant they will be equipped for burning oil fuel instead of coal.

Signor Marconi and some friends have successfully carried out experiments with pocket wireless telephones.

EUSKIRCHEN CASE.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT OF THE TRUTH.

The War Office has made the following announcement with regard to the reported outrage against British soldiers at Euskirchen:—

A report from Cologne dated September 5, which appeared in the British Press on September 8, purports to describe a recent mob attack by Germans on British troops at Euskirchen, where an explosion took place on August 1 last.

This report mentions the name of a German workman, Kupper, as leader of the attacking party, and implies that he was sentenced to death as the ringleader.

It should be observed, however, that neither the Euskirchen explosion nor the trial of Kupper had relation to any disturbance.

The explosion at Euskirchen of August 1 was accidental, and a Court of Inquiry so found. The man Kupper was tried, condemned, and executed for the murder of a British N.C.O. Kupper's crime had on connexion whatever either with the explosion or with any disturbance. He was in no way the leader of a mob, nor, so far as is known, was he connected with any organization.

The inaccurate reports of these two happenings did not appear in the "Cologne Post".

CHALK PIT CRIME.

TEN YEARS FOR RED INDIAN.

William Jordan, a North American Indian serving with the Canadian Reconstruction Corps, was, at the Old Bailey found not guilty of the murder of Robert Nye, a rag and bone collector, in a chalk pit known as the Grey Hole, near Lewes, but was sent to ten years' penal servitude for manslaughter. The case had been removed from Lewes in order that the trial might be expedited.

Dr. James Samuel Russell, a specialist in nervous diseases, who has knowledge of Indians in South America, expressed the opinion that accused committed the act in a state of frenzy under the influence of liquor, and that he was temporarily out of his mind.

PLANE RAID ON GAMBLERS.

The Naples police have made a brilliantly successful air raid on a baccarat hell on the island of Capri, twenty miles away.

A brigadier and three men landed from an aeroplane towards midnight at a lonely part of the island and made their way to the gaming den unperceived.

They captured the proprietor, a self-styled Englishman who calls himself Alfred Green, as well as his mistress, a beautiful woman who acted as a decoy, and a score of cosmopolitan frequenters of the place, who are well known in Naples. Money and gaming materials were also seized.

PRISON FOR POLICEMAN.

Police Constable Husky, of the M. Division, has been sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment in the second division at Tower Bridge.

He was stated to have entered a Southwark public house at midnight and to have aroused an employee, thrown her downstairs, struck and kicked her, and then to have taken her to the police station and preferred a charge against her of being drunk and disorderly. The inspector refused the charge, and the police surgeon certified that Husky was drunk.

ATLANTIC PASSENGER TRAFFIC.

The giant liner Caronia, 20,000 tons, the largest vessel actually on commercial service which has hitherto been docked in the Thames, has sailed from Tilbury for New York, via Havre.

This voyage marks an important step both in the policy of Trans-Atlantic shipping lines and in the extension of British trade. Before the war the Cunard Company had steamers running periodically between London and Canadian ports but a regular service with large vessels is now to be instituted from the Thames to New York via Cherbourg. This will secure for British bottoms the trade in freight and passengers between the United States and the continent, the bulk of which before the war was in the hands of German shipowners.

DODGING THE EXCISE.

Fines amounting to £400 with costs totalling thirty guineas have been inflicted at Bow Street on three defendants for infractions of the licensing and excise laws by dealings in quantities of rectified spirits of wine. The defendants were Thomas James Fox, chemist, of Portsmouth, John William Chamberlain, of Isleworth, and Frank Cheavey, of High Holborn.

The evidence showed that Fox, as a chemist, was entitled to receive spirits of wine for use in making up medicines. He purchased some hundreds of gallons of spirit and sold the bulk to Cheavey, who mixed it with whiskey and brandy.

PRINCE OF WALES AS OUT-PATIENT.

The Prince of Wales was a patient at the Tuxedo Soldiers' Hospital last week, being treated for a numbed hand caused by the too fervent handshakes of the Canadian public. His right hand has become so sore and swollen that he is compelled to shake with his left hand.

CIVIL AVIATION.

POWERS SIGN INTERNATIONAL CHARTER.

The Air Ministry has issued the following:

The Convention relating to international air navigation was formally approved, subject to one or two minor reservations, by the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference, at a meeting held at St. Germain immediately after the signature of the Peace Treaty with Austria on Sept. 10.

This document, which is one of the most interesting of the agreements made by the Powers taking part in the Peace Conference, is very comprehensive, and deals, amongst other things, with such subjects as: sovereignty of the air, space above territory and territorial waters, international air law, nationality of aircraft, certificates of airworthiness, conditions of admissions of air navigation above foreign territory, rules to be observed on departure, on landing, and when under way, prohibited articles, and institution of an international commission for air navigation.

The signatories to what may be regarded as the charter for civil aviation throughout the world are as follows: United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Brazil, Cuba, Greece, Portugal, Roumania, Serbia.

PALACES FOR SOLDIERS.

ITALIAN KING'S GIFTS.

The King of Italy, in his letter announcing the cession of Crown property for national purposes and in the interests of returned soldiers, says, "A more modest manner of living should now go hand in hand with a greater ardour for work."

The palaces which the King is sacrificing include those at Genoa, Venice, Milan, Florence, Naples, Caserta, and Palermo. The ceded castles are those of Moncalieri and Stupinigi. The agricultural estates comprise especially those at Coltamo, Carditello, Licola, Astrome and Poggio Acajano.

A large portion of these properties produce considerable profits, which will be assigned to the National Organisation for Fighting Men.

LOST NOSE RESTORED.

An unusual story has been been related at King Edward VII Hospital, Windsor. A stable boy named William Robertson, aged 38, of the Broadway, Lambourn, Berks, was preparing a horse to run in a race when the skylight fell and cut his nose clean off. He was taken to King Edward VII Hospital without his nose. The arteries were tied, and the surgeon then asked for the nose. It was stated that it was left behind in the stable at the racecourse. A messenger was immediately dispatched to the stables, where the nose was found in the straw. It was taken to the hospital, where an operation was performed, and the nose was put on again. It had then been off about an hour.

FIRST BUSINESS AEROPLANE.

The first business house in the world to employ an aeroplane of its own as part of its regular organization is that of Messrs. S. Instone and Co., steamship owners and general export and import merchants, of Cardiff. The firm has purchased from the Air Ministry a large machine with Rolls-Royce engines, and have engaged as pilot Lieutenant F. L. Barnard, who holds the record number of cross-channel flights.

Mr. Samuel Instone said that serious delays had occurred during the last three months in the transport of important papers, samples, offers, and light goods, and the firm had decided to start their own service of express communication.

ALLENBY AND THE SALVATION ARMY.

Field-Marshal Sir Edmund Allenby just before leaving Egypt sent the Salvation Army a message expressing his gratitude for ths "great and good work which it has done for the Army under my command." He says:—"The zeal and energy of your workers have overcome all difficulties and their courage has made light of every danger. Their services have been of incalculable benefit to my troops, and their influence has proved of the highest value."

EX-GERMAN LINER UNDER BRITISH FLAG.

The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company's steamer Maldonado, formerly the German liner Thuringia, has left Liverpool for Monte Video with a full complement of officers and men from various regiments.

A number will undertake long second journeys, one being bound for the Falkland Islands, another for Punta Arenas, the most southerly town in the world, and a third for Callao, Peru.

During a violent thunderstorm seventeen blackfaced sheep belonging to Mr. Richard Wharton, farmer, of Bullgill, near Kirkby Stephen, Westmorland, were killed outright by lightning. They were sheltering under a sycamore tree at the time.

TOMMY GOES HOME.

We wonder, what are the thoughts of the German shop-keeper now that Tommy, if he has not already taken his departure, is about to quit the Rhineland for his native heath.

We cannot imagine that the War Secretary's scheme for the reduction of forces is very popular with this particular merchant. It is obvious to any observing individual that many a shop keeper has attained to a minor degree of affluence at least through the spending capacity of the average Tommy, who with plenty of paper money to spend, has seen fit to convert it into souvenirs for the questionable benefit of his wife, sweetheart or friend, as the case may be.

Tommy was always a generous being, verging often on the spendthrift, and as a result has since the dog days of last year built up an impression that his financial backing is very substantial if not unlimited.

The German trader must have come to regard him as one of his best friends. The extremely low value of the German mark has tempted the private soldier to set little value on his share of the proceeds of the pay table and this combined with the poor pay of the average continental soldier has brought grist to the mill so far as the profit and loss account of many a small German business house is concerned.

Tommy was doubtless flattered by the remark, so often overheard, that he had "viel Geld," the greater part of which he naturally converted into kind. But now, that he has gone we wonder what is to become of the large stocks of cheap German souvenirs which are to be seen in the shops and for which men with anything approaching a taste for things artistic would not give a second glance.

The shopkeeper was often primitive in his methods of appeal to the interest of his customers. We recall that which read "Do pleace take a souvenir back home with you" and the vague guarantees, often very imposing, but of little value. These doubtless brought the desired return, but at this time it must be a little disappointing to the shopkeeper, who having fostered the idea that English troops would be in occupation in large numbers for several years, is now dismayed and wondering where his customers in the future are to come from.

This, we should imagine, is a problem, not only with the seller of cheap-jack goods, but with hairdresser, cabaret and café keeper, who have been tempted to launch out and make the most of the Rhineland's new-found prosperity. To them at any rate the new order of things is not very welcome.

THE "WHIP-PET'S" KILL.

BY TANK COMMANDER.

They stood in "line-ahead" formation, eight panting "Whippets," under the fringe of a wood. Upon the petrol tank of the leading "'bus" sat a Tank Commander, clad in overalls and Sam Brown, viewing the smoke-wreathed battle in front with gloomy disgust. Two hours previously, the big Tanks had broken through with the infantry, yet still no orders had come back to unleash the light Tanks. Even a squadron of cavalry, massed in the valley near by, had received their orders, and gone trotting up with a business-like air.

A Section Commander strolled up.

"The eight-inch battery has increased its range a thousand yards," he observed. "We shan't be long now!"

Even as he spoke, a dusty despatch rider chugged round the wood, and made for a group of officers. Two minutes later, the line of "Whippets," their tracks twinkling and glinting, were travelling hard for the curtain of smoke.

* * * *

The interior of the "Whippet's" cab resembled the steam room of a Turkish bath. Over his wheel, hunched up like a racing motorist, sat the driver, his feet on the twin clutches, and his keen eyes roving alternately from his look-out slit to the electric-lit route chart beside him. On the right, the other member of the crew, his chain mask tilted back from his forehead, was busy running a strip into his Hotchkiss gun. The Tank Commander, armed with a map, had his head and shoulders out of the manhole, picking up landmarks as the "Whippet" roared along.

The "line-ahead" formation was lost, now each "'bus" taking the shortest route to its own particular objective.

They were well in the midst of the flotsam and jetsam belonging to the first phase of the attack—bunching of prisoners herding back with stretchers and a stream of walking wounded, who waved cheering hands to the Tanks.

The Tank Commander noted with satisfaction the feebleness of the enemy's barrage. A few 5.9's were spouting spasmodically in the remains of a shattered village, and save for these and some long range shrapnel bursting high, there was a lull in the battle.

Close to the village lay one of the large Tanks, knocked out and still smoking drearily. Another, hopelessly ditched in a sunken road, pointed a fantastic tail to the heavens.

Batteries, rushed up a few moments before, were hastily unlimbering, and already the flashes of those in action were licking through the haze.

"Whirr-up!" said a hidden sniper's bullet suddenly, glancing off the steel cab with a long grating shriek.

Flapping down the manhole cover, the Tank Commander betook himself to a periscope. His objective, a railway embankment well behind the old enemy battery area, was still some distance off. Small knots of infantry were crouching down in shell-holes, some smoking, others steadily munching, waiting for the barrage which was to open the next phase of the attack. Patrols were going out, trickling cautiously from cover to cover.

They were passing over the Boche second line now. Here the trenches had been obliterated, and the ground resembled waves on a stormy sea. The "Whippet" lurched drunkenly, and the Hotchkiss boxes rattled from their stands, clattering the floor. In the line of trenches ahead, a path showed through the wire, easy and inviting.

The driver swung his wheel and made for it; but as Fate willed it, a "Whippet" on the right cut in. She disappeared with a roar and a volcanic spouting of earth.

"Mined!" commented the Tank Commander thoughtfully, and signed to the driver to change direction.

"Rat-tat-tat-tat——" The devil's tattoo of a machine gun rattled against the plates, sending out a shower of blue sparks. By a stroke of luck, the Tank Commander located the gun in a sand-bagged shell-hole, and plastered it vigorously as they passed. The acrid smell of cordite began to pervade the small cab.

Suddenly the driver touched him on the shoulder.

"There's the railway, sir—half left, where that smoke is!"

The Tank Commander looked, and saw a huge cloud of rising steam. For a few seconds he failed to grasp its real significance, and then, suddenly galvanised, hardly daring to believe his luck, leant to the sweating driver.

"That's a cloud of steam—not smoke. It's a train trying to get away, and we've got to head her off. Chance of a lifetime, so get every ounce you can out of the old 'bus!"

The driver opened throttle to its fullest, and they shivered and bumped over the ground. From the radiator in the long, steel-clad bonnet in front, a trickle of steam spiralled up.

Bullets began to rap on the plates; there were Boches here all right. A bunch of grey-green figures sprang from a shell-hole almost under the whirring tracks. They burst into flight like a covey of partridges. One, the twinkling track caught and whirled into screaming oblivion; another, of stouter heart, stayed, to fire desperately, and fell riddled.

"That's the stuff!" cried the delighted right gunner, reaching for a new strip.

The train came into being through a misty haze: and in excitement the Tank Commander bit his lip until the blood came.

"By the Saint of all the Tanks!" he cried. "It's a gun! They're trying to get a big gun away!"

It was touch and go. Busy figures were swarming from the embankment, and climbing on board, as she began to move. Then the "Whippet" got busy. Her Hotchkiss guns blazed and spluttered, spraying the train, end to end, mercilessly.

The Tank Commander fired directly into the engine cab, and smiled grimly as the driver flung himself wildly on to the permanent way. Another ran to take his place, and fell, even as his hand took the lever. The train, however, in spite of all, was still moving.

Then a bright idea struck the Tank Commander.

"Fire into the boiler!" he commanded.

A couple of bursts had immediate effects, and slowly the engine, with its load of an eleven-inch railway gun, came to a stop. The "Whippet" had made its kill!

(From the Tank Corps Journal.)

RETURNING SANITY.

It had come at last. Not to attempt to disguise the obvious, better admit at once that "It" was a release slip.

For months, Private Rodd had waited, not too patiently it must be allowed, for the word "Go!". Since that joke in such questionable taste, made by his O. C., "Spare the Rodd and spoil the Service" its victim had lived on demob. by demob, and for demob.

From the signing of the Armistice his mental fare had consisted, almost exclusively, of tit-bits of news — authentic and rumourous — relating to his pet theme.

He devoured three London papers daily when demob. was on the menu — and rose from the meal with appetite unassuaged. Rapidly was he changing from a human being into a creature of scissors, papers and paste.

He searched and scissored the papers with a zeal worthy of a young Press Clipping Bureau anxious to increase the number of its subscribers.

Yet, now that the eve of his departure had arrived, try as he might, he could not rid himself of an almost inexplicable sadness which, earlier on, he would have deemed impossib le

It was not that he did not wish to return to civil life; he did, most ardently. But psychologically, he was miles away from the thoughts and feelings which had, up to now, dominated his mind.

In the retrospect, he saw things with a better perspective; realized how insignificant were many of the happenings which had irked him during his service with the colours.

But, more than this, he saw now, for the first time, the other side of the picture. He recalled the many friendships he had formed (some, alas! interrupted in action) with men whom he would never have known, in any true sense of the term, even had he met them in civil life.

He looked back on the hundred and one adventures through which he had passed, and found in thus reviewing them a quality which had hitherto escaped him.

Impossible to define it satisfactorily. But it was there—something which comes to all men who, loving life, are yet prepared to lose it, and no less surely witheld from those who are prepared neither to face life nor to risk its loss.

His thoughts, taking a different turn, he smiled happily in the recollection of the strange mixture of humanity which life in the Army had brought into view.

Back to memory came incidents of selflessness, fortitude, courage and that spirit of cameraderie so difficult to foster in civil life, and so natural, it seems, among men united in a common object, threatened with a common danger, purified and strengthened in a common suffering.

He remembered how often he had been compelled to revise his first judgments of the men with whom he had come in contact; how often a "blackguard" in language had proved a gentleman in conduct; and, finally, he saw what is so seldom seen in every day life at home, that even a fool has feelings, and that to "suffer fools gladly" besides being kind to the fools, gladdens the heart of the sufferer.

Thus did he leave us, with the love of man in his heart—the finest antidote to that passing but perilous disease—Demobilitus.

E.J. TELLUM.

THE LITTLE DEVIL.

Many of our troops in Rhineland have acquired "pets." It seems to be bred in our blood. We need, probably from our British spirit of sportsmanship, something alive and moving, with which to amuse ourselves, some animal who will love us, something to follow us and perhaps protect us, something active with which we may play as the mood comes.

I love live, tame things, especially when they are young because they are worthy of study, revealing as they do all the instincts of their savage relations.

I want a little puppy, but since I cannot discover one to my taste, I have gathered about me, in the garden of my billet, seven chickens — and I also have a "Little Devil."

I call him "Little Devil" and the good folk of the house call him "Little Devil." It makes me laugh unrestrainedly when I hear them summon him by this title.

Let me tell you about him! He's a kitten, as full of mischief as a lower-form boy, as crafty as a fox, as destructive as a Bolshevist and yet as innocent as a vestal virgin.

The other night I lay in bed reading. Outside the rain was falling in sheets, "cats and dogs" as we say. I put out the light and settled down to sleep.

I was in that dozy state which is a preliminary to slumber when I was startled by a peculiar scratching noise as of someone or something endeavouring to climb the vine which covers the wall of the house.

I sat up- and my hair sat up! Such noises in the night don't please me at all.

Then, a dark form reared itself over the window-ledge, swaying. Thereupon, I sat more up—and my hair stood upon it's hindlegs, so to speak. But it was only the "Little Devil" bedraggled and wet to the skin.

He whined — and wanted to walk, all wet and clammy, at that time of night, remember — over my face, and say, "How do!"

He hides behind my bottle of stout while my lunch or dinner is in progress; his attitude is that of a tiger. I turn my head for a moment and turn it back again. Yes, something is sure to be missing from my plate.

I play "footer" with him by means of an old tennis ball, but he ignores all the rules of the game.

But his greatest delight is aeronautics; he revels in a "nose-dive". In order to let me understand that he desires a "nose-dive" he leaps upon my window-sill and mews plaintively.—I understand. Taking him between my hands I call the servant, she appears in the garden, one storey lower, with apron outspread and down flops the "Little Devil".

I can hear him giggling all the way down. Then, you should just see him stalking the chickens; to him that is great fun. He approaches them as a tiger would an entelope, stealthily. He drops suddenly upon them from a branch as a puma leaps upon its prey.

Yes, he certainly merits his name but — well, I like him all the same, this "Little Devil."

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,—Does "Bachelor" give a thought to the four years of misery of the wives and mothers, who in some cases (my own for one) have lost her sons in the war. Should she not have a little pleasure now? Why efficiency should suffer I cannot understand, for once a soldier always one. What do others say?

ONE OF THE MARRIED.

Sir,—What is the matter with "Bachelor?" Spiteful old thing! I cannot imagine that he is young.

Why does he not find a wife and bring her along? Then perhaps he would not be so selfish and would understand the delight we wives feel at being together again without the thought that at the end of a short leave we shall be separated. To talk of reduced efficiency is all nonsense.

V.A.D.

THE VALUE OF SPANISH.

Sir,—It is a fact the Germans are now taking up the study of Spanish very seriously with a view to exploiting the commercial possibilities of Argentina and other parts of South America.

In England we have been very backward with the study of Spanish but a decided effort is now needed if we are to compete with other nations for trade in South America.

G. SHERMAN, Principal
G.H.Q. Correspondence School.

THE "K" ENVELOPE.

Sir,— I hold commissioned rank yet can claim not to have used one of the "K" envelopes to which the writer of the article in your last issue refers, for the purpose of private correspondence.

That at least leaves one a day available for the use of an officer whose first attempt to address an envelope to his lady-love falls short of the required standard in copperplate and necessitates a second attempt.

JUMBO.

PROUD TO WEAR IT.

Sir,— It was with great consternation that the boys in the particular billet to which I belong, read the heart rendering appeal of "Tommy Dod". If he could make it convenient to send his address we would only be to pleased to send him a little of this precious ribbon.

We have also a few inches of General Service, Mons and the Long Service ribbon if he would care to accept same.

I might also mention that we have passed a vote of censure on the Leave Club for daving to place a member of H.M. Army in such a position as not being able to wear this particular ribbon on his tunic.

ORDERLY.

WHY NOT REAL GIRLS?

Sir,—I cordially agree with your correspondent "W.W." that many of the concert parties now showing in Rhineland should endeavour to enlist the services of the real girl, in lieu of the imitation one.

Many of these impersonations are, as your correspondent mentions, of quite a high standard, but nevertheless the idea is without a doubt repugnant to many of us.

"Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery" says the proverb, and I myself have noticed a tendency in many of our younger soldiers to become effeminate.

Why not endeavour to recruit the services of some of the girls of the W.R.A.F. or other branches of the women's service?

There must be unbounded sources of talent amongst the girls who have had the pluck to don uniform to help in the good cause.

"HAWKEYE."

THE OUTDOOR LIFE.

Sir,— If B.M.G. will re-read my article re the above, he will find that my views are quite similar to his, and it therefore appears that he has decided to criticise my opinion without studying it first.

I mentioned "that it is naturally not essential to have either the great Mexican Pampas, the periodical interruption of brigands or rebels to arouse our enthusiasm".

Why does B.M.G. therefore repeat my own words antagonistically when our views are both in accord?

I appreciate the fact that B.M.G. has actually to put it in his own words "dodged shells in the first line". He is one of about twenty million odd who have had this "novel recreation" but to suggest that all these men are content to settle down to quiet and intellectual life such as B.M.G. idealises is erroneous.

B.M.G. is not in a position to form such an opinion.

Settling down — or vice versa is chiefly a question of upbringing and constitution and although B.M.G. may have lived tied to an office stool or school-deck in the study of some special ambition, there are, notwithstanding this, others who have lived or long to live in the open air, and some willing to sacrifice all ambition to the shrine of life's greatest desire—health.

LOVE IN THE VALLEY.

Under yonder beech tree single on the green-sward,
Couchs's with her arms behind her golden head,
Knees and tresses folded to slip and ripple idly,
Lies my young love sleeping in the shade.
Had I the heart to slide an arm beneath her,
Press her parting lips as her waist I gather slow,
Waking in amazement she could not but embrace me:
Then would she hold me and never let me go?

TENNIS AT LINDENTHAL.

Inter-Allied Tournament Reaches Concluding Stage.

EXCITING FINISHES.

The semi-finals and some of the finals of the Inter-Allied Tennis Tournament were decided during the week-end, and the remaining games will be played off when the weather is more propitious. There was a large attendance on Saturday when some exciting sets were played.

Major Saul in a very close set, beat Lt. Hole in the semi-final of the Gentlemen's open singles. Rev. Andrews, who beat Capt. Price, is now opposed to Major Saul in the final set.

There was some particularly brilliant play when Miss McMaster, in winning a very exciting final with Mrs. Woodcock, carried off the Ladies' Open Singles.

The finalists for the Gentlemen's Handicap Singles (Class I) are Major Saul and Major Holmes, while Capt. Lindberg and Colonel H.S. Bush are the finalists in Class II.

Playing very cleverly throughout the tournament Mrs. Woodcock won the Ladies' Handicap singles, beating Mrs. Chambers in the final.

The finalists for the Gentlemen's Handicap Doubles are Major Rowntree and Capt. Dickinson and Capt. Jones and Lt. Inglis. In the Open Doubles Rev. Andrews and Major Saul oppose Capt. Godfree and Capt. Miles in the final set.

Miss McMaster and Miss Douglas, after some extraordinarily clever play, beat Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Woodcock in the final for the Ladies' open doubles. In the Ladies' Handicap Doubles Mrs. Pleydell-Nott and Mrs. Lord and Mrs. Owen and Mr. Woodcock are the finalists.

Quite a feature of the tournament were the semi-finals for the Mixed Doubles, open and handicap. In the open Doubles Major Saul and Miss McMaster beat Major Holmes and Miss Bell, 7—9, 6—0, 8—6, in the semi-final for the Handicap Doubles, while Major Holmes and Miss Bell beat Major and Miss Wheatley.

Results.

Appended are the results:

Gentlemen's Handicap Singles. (Class II) semi-finals:—Capt. Lindberg beat Capt. Rose, 3—6, 6—3, 6—1; Col. Bush beat Lt. de Vangelas 6—1, 3—6, 8—6.

Ladies' Handicap Singles, final:—Mrs. Woodcock beat Mrs. Chambers 6—0, 6—3.

Gentlemen's Handicap Doubles, semi-final:—Maj. Rowntree and Capt. Dickinson beat Maj. Swifte and Maj. Bowes-Lyon 6—3, 4—6, 6—4; Capt. Jones and Lt. Inglis beat Lt.-Col. Owen and Maj. Pleydell-Nott 6—3, 6—4.

Gentlemen's Open Doubles, semi-final:—Rev. Andrews and Maj. Saul beat Lt.-Col. Owen and Maj. Pleydell-Nott 6—2, 6—2.

Ladies' Open Doubles, semi-final:—Miss Mc Master and Miss Douglas beat Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Woodcock 6—3, 6—4.

Gentlemen's and Open Singles, semi-final:—Maj. Saul beat Lt. Hole 7—5, 6—3; Rev. Andrews beat Capt. Price 6—1, 6—2.

Ladies' Open Singles, final:—Miss McMaster beat Mrs. Woodcock 2—6, 7—5, 6—4.

Gentlemen's Handicap Singles, (Class I) semi-final:—Maj. Saul beat Maj. Rowntree 6—4, 6—3; Maj. Holmes beat Lt.-Col. McAllister 6—2, 6—0.

Ladies Handicap Doubles, semi-final:—Mrs. Pleydell-Nott and Mrs. Lord beat Miss McMaster and Miss Douglas w.o.; Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Woodcock beat Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. Ferguson w.o.

Mixed Open Doubles, semi-final:—Maj. Saul and Miss McMaster beat Maj. Holmes and Miss Bell 7—9, 6—0, 7—5.

Mixed Handicap Doubles, semi-final:—Capt. Godfree and Miss Hollins beat Rev. Andrews and Mrs. Kennedy 3—6, 6—0, 8—6; Maj. Holmes and Miss Bell beat Maj. and Miss Wheatly 6—3, 6—2.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

VI Corps School Staff v Students.

On Saturday, Capt. Seward, Adjutant of the School arranged a very pleasant afternoon for this fixture. The Deer Park was the venue, and tea was provided under the trees for the teams and their friends.

At first the game was fairly even but soon the superior combination of the Staff began to tell, and at half time the score was 2.—0 against the Students. On resuming the Staff scored again, and then Sergt. Sutcliffe with a brilliant shot gained the Students' only success. The Staff brought their score up to 6 and then some rather wild play ensued, leaving at the call of time the Staff victors by 6—1.

For the Staff good work was done in goal by Mr. Oldbury who on several occasions saved the situation by keenness and judgment. The winners' goals were due to Mr Beale 3, Sergt. Ellis 2, and Pte. Burke 1. Pearce on the outside left wing was of great assistance to his side by the prompt and unselfish way in which he centered. For the Students Sergt. Sutcliffe and Pte. Mazza put in the best efforts, but the team wants pulling together before their individual merits weigh in the mass. The game was clean and fast and with practice both teams should develop really good form in their class.

LIGHT DIV. SIGS. MOUNTED SPORTS.

The Light Div. Sig. Coy. second mounted sports meeting was held at Ohligs on Thursday. The weather was very good and the meeting was a great success. In the mounted wrestling, Dvr. Harwood beat Sgt. Cooper — thus getting his revenge for last week's defeat. The mule races were as amusing as ever, though this time a much bigger percentage of riders succeeded in staying the course. The competitors in all the events showed great keenness. The company cooks must be congratulated on the tea they served up in the neighbouring wood.

A Tough Fight.

A football match between 169 Area Employment Coy. and 42nd Stationary Hospital R.A.M.C. was played on Friday afternoon, and after a tough fight, the match closed leaving the R.A.M.C. the victors by 3 goals to nil.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Tuesday, September 16th, 1919.

Wind North East 10 to 15 m.p.h. Foggy morning, brighter day. Rather cool. Visibility indifferent.

RHINE ARMY SHOOTING.

Final Results Of Successful Meeting At Drove.

The highly successful Rhine Army rifle meeting at Drove came to an end on Saturday, when the last events were decided, and the prizes were subsequently distributed by General Sir. C.W, Jacobs, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., the Commander-in-chief.

For the whole of the meeting the weather was all that could be desired and a never failing keenness in the competitions made the event a very pleasant one.

In presenting the prizes to the successful competitors the Commander-in-chief said he had been much pleased to hear and also to see that the competitions had been keenly contested in a sporting spirit throughout. The number of competitors who participated was about 1,400. Though the standard of shooting was not up to pre-war standard, it was quite satisfactory considering the majority of competitors were young troops.

Whatever developments the future might eventually bring, he personally felt sure that as in the past, so for sometime yet to come, it was necesary that the soldier should receive a good musketry training. The British Infantry Soldier, trained in the use of his rifle and bayonet, would then prove as irresistible as ever.

Finally he wished to thank General Hordern the President of the Committee, Lt.Col. Fortune, Major Cox and Major Hicks of the School of Musketry and Machine Gun School and the members of the Committee and Schools' Staffs for all they had done to make the meeting the success it had been.

Those present included—General Sir A.J. Godley, K.C.B., K.C.M.G.; Lieut. General Sir J.A.L. Haldane, K.C.B., D.S.O.; Major General Sir H.S. Jenduine, K.C.B., C.B.; Major General G.D. Jeffreys, C.B., C.M.G.: and Brig. General F.N. Tandy, C.M.G., D.S.O.

Football wanted.

D.O.S., G.H.Q., F.C. require fixtures for Saturday afternoons from 20th inst. onwards. Write Cpl. G. B. Watts, Secretary, c/o. D.O.S., G.H.Q. British Army of the Rhine.

A WASTED PENALTY.

A friendly game between the 128 Heavy Battery and 303 Siege Battery R.G.A. was played at Bonn on Saturday evening. Both sides showed consistency of form but 128 should have taken advantage of the penalty awarded them in the second half. B.S.M. Bliss in goal for the Heavies repeatedly saved the situation for them. The ultimate result gives a good idea as to the game, the ball moving very rapidly from end to end. The Siege left wing was weak and seems to be the only weak spot in an otherwise good team. Woodward at back for the Siege gave as usual of his coolest and best. The game ended in a draw: 303 Siege Battery R.G.A., 0, 128 Heavy Battery R.G.A., 0..

RHINE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

List Of Draws In Forthcoming Events.

ATHLETICS AND BOXING.

The attached list shows the draws in the various events of the Rhine Army Championships (Teams) to be held on the 17th and 18th September. The events on the 17th will be as follows, and take place before lunch at the P. and R. T. School:—

FAREWELL DINNER.

2nd Southern Division L.T.M. Battery's Function at Strasschan.

In view of the number of men being demobilized, and about to be demobilized, in the near future the 2nd Southern L.T.M. Battery held a farewell dinner at Strasschen on Saturday. The chair was occupied by the O.C. Capt. E.W. Putland, M.C. with B.S.M. A.E. Blackmoore as vice chairman. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion and would have done credit to a first class London hotel. After an excellent repast the following toasts were drunk with acclamation, "The King," B.S.M. Blackmoore; "The Battery," Lieut. E. Hollingsworth, reply Capt. E.W. Putland, M.C.; "Absent Friends," Cpl. M. Crawford, D.C.M.; "The Officers" B.Q.M.S. J. Welsh, reply, Lieut. A.T. Lutley; "The N.C.O's.," Lieut. A.T. Lutley, reply Cpl. E. Bedwell, 2nd Lieut. R.S. Dunford acted as toastmaster and carried out his duties in a most able manner.

During the evening a pleasant little surprise function was introduced. In a short speech B.Q.M.S. Welsh, on behalf of, the N.C.O's. and men, presented the O.C. with a handsome silver cigarette case and cigarette holder as a tangible memento of the good feeling that has always existed between the O.C. and all members of the Battery.

Pleasant Surprise.

In a few well chosen words the O.C. expressed his deep sense of gratitude and appreciation and added another pleasant surprise by asking B.Q.M.S. Welsh, who leaves in the course a few days for demobilization, to accept a gold fountain pen from the officers and N.C.O's.

A musical evening then followed, songs being rendered by Ptes. Bentley Wishart, Borwick, Q.M.S. Welsh, and Pte. McGruer. Before parting it was enthusiastically carried, on the motion of Cpl. Crawford that a message of greeting be sent to the Bde. Commander of the old 87th Bde. Col. G.H. Jackson C.M.G., D.S.O., who always took a keen interest in the welfare of the Battery. A most enjoyable evening, long to be remembered by those who were privileged to be present, terminated with the singing of "God Save the King."

SOUTHERN DIV. CRICKET WEEK.

3rd Southern Bde. Outplay 1st Southern Bde. At Lindenthal.

At Lindenthal on Saturday the 3rd Southern Infantry Bde. completely outplayed the 1st Southern Infantry Bde., beating them by an innings and 10 runs.

Fortunate in winning the toss the 3rd Bde. batted for two hours in the morning in a very hot sun which told heavily on the fielding side. Four wickets were down for 26 runs when Major Westmorland and Sgt. Taylor came together and the score rose steadily until at 67 Sgt. Taylor was bowled by Speed who had been keeping a good length and making the ball get up sharply on the bad wicket. Major Westmorland was not tempted by Bazalgett's slows and was content to score singles and two's. After playing the right game for his side for nearly an hour he was eventually caught at the wicket defending his body against a bad bumper. His 28 was most useful and his partnerships Sgt. Taylor and C. S. M. Samways placed his side in a good position. Later Sgt. Rowe knocked up a rapid 21. Major Bazalgette going off at the pavilion end the last wickets fell cheaply and the innings closed for 138.

1st Bde. Bat.

The 1st Bde. found Goodby's bowling far too much for them. Bowling with the slight wind helping him to come in from the offshe varied his pace imperceptibly and had 5 wickets for 23. He was well backed by a smart field and only Bazalgette shaped against him at all, the side being disposed of for 64 runs.

Going in a second time the 1st Bde. fared no better and Goodby and Godley disposed of them for 64. Goodby bowled from the pavilion end this time and swerved from the leg and then came in from the off. Gotley at the other end bowled his slows with great effect and very few runs were scored off him.

WORTHY WINNERS.

C.P.C. Runners-up Congratulate 17th Lancers.

Lieut. J. Woods, 93rd Bde., R.G.A., Sports-Officer, writes as follows:—

"In common with our Bde. Cricket Team I offer my congratulations and thanks for the very good work you have done in the past cricket season. "The Cologne Post" Cup Competition gave the necessary interest, that made Rhineland Cricket. Our team had many fine games. We lost the final, but this loss was compensated by losing to the 17th Lancers worthy winners and what is still better, splendid sportsmen. I take this opportunity, on behalf of the 93rd Bde., R.G.A., in congratulating the 17th Lancers on their victory and I wish them the very best of luck in the future—they deserve it."

BOXING AT COBLENZ.

In the final of the boxing competition at Coblenz at the week-end Hugh Weyer of the 2nd Pioneers wop in the second round by a knock-out over Ferguson of the Qmrs.

Young of Headquarters and Scott of Qmrs. fought a 4 round draw.

Smith of 8th Infantry Headquarters won over Dooley of Supply Coy of 8th Infantry.

Eddie Gardiner of Qmrs. won over Ironbux of Base Hospital.

Huggins of Base Hospital got a draw with Red Bell of 8th Infantry. This was one of the fastest bouts of the evening.

Flannigan of the 8th Infantry won over Zahl of the 8th. Referee — Stassord timekeeper — Brown; Promotor — Reiss, Y.M.C.A. Coblenz.

CHESS COMPETITION.

The 12th L.N.L. played 6 boards with the Anti-Aircraft Battery on Thursday at Bonn. The former were much the superior team, but both teams were more or less scratch. Big improvements are expected.

Both teams are desirous of further matches and would welcome challenges from other units.

HOCKEY FINAL.

12th L.N. Lancs. v. 13th King's Liverpools.

This final in the Lancs. Div. knock-out hockey competition, played on the latter's ground on Thursday, proved to be as keenly contested as it was exciting. In the first half the Lancs. certainly seemed the better team. C. S. M. Stott (Kings) scored the first goal, but the Lancs. equalised two minutes later. Half time:—1—1.

The second half was certainly the King's Liverpool's. The Lancs. tried several dashes but could not penetrate the defence. The King's right back and C. S. M. Stott were the pick of the team, while Capt. Creagh, R.A.M.C., was certainly the best on the Lancs. side. Lieut. Kennedy, Lancs., made a solo effort in the second half and just narrowly missed the goal. The Lancs. commenced play with good combination and short passes, while the King's were hitting hard and using long passes. Fifteen minutes before half-time the King's took lead. Capt. Creagh, L.N.L., scored one goal and C. S. M. Stott, 15th King's two goals. The King's are now in for the Army of the Rhine.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Sunday at the Deutsches.

Very short notice notwithstanding, there was not a vacant seat at the Deutsches Theatre on Sunday evening, when another delicious musical treat was arranged by Captain Hagarth. First and foremost there was Wilhelm Backhaus, who is all but idolised by the British. His artistry is so superb and he is so free from mannerisms that there is nothing to detract from the sheer beauty of his renderings or his stupendous mastery of his instrument. Take Brahm's variations on a theme by Paganini, for instance, the most difficult composition of its kind ever written. There are twenty-seven variations. each absolutely distinct, and by his flawless rendering of this one item alone Backhaus stands among the greatest of living pianists. His other contributions comprised Brahms' Rhapsodie in G Minor and Mendelssohn and Chopin excerpts.

Barker at his best.

Alfred Barker was at his best. He playen Beethoven's No. 3 (E Flat) Sonata with exquisite phrasing and tone, and though his E string snapped at the outset of the last movement, its absence was not noticed by the audience. This in itself is a tribute to the genius of this popular violinist. In addition to this big classical work he played three of his own compositions — a Reverie, an Oriental Meditation and "Pierette". In spite of a mixture of styles in the second item the pieces are attractive and when published will be appreciated.

A Baker's Dozen.

The third artist of the evening was Mr. Eric Morgan, who sang twelve songs, including a straight flush of six by Roger Quilter, in two instalments. He has a pleasing tenor voice on the light side. We should have appreciated a wider choice. "Three Fishers went sailing", with which he made up a baker's dozen, by insistence of the audience, was the best His accompaniments, and those of Alfred Barker, were finely played by Herr C. Theo Steinbach, who made his first but surely not his last appearance at the Deutsches. It was really a wonderful evening.

Sunday Concert at the Leave Club.

The Band of the 20th K.R.R.C. although rather depleted by demobilization gave a most excellent concert at the Leave Club on Sunday (by kind permission of the O.C.) Their well chosen programme included the overture of "Putspiel," played quite charmingly, an excellent selection from the Mikado and a beautiful overture from "French Comedy." A Piccolo Solo, the "Wren" rendered with much musical feeling was greatly appreciated by the audience who insisted on an encore, which was readily given. Major Bowen, was enthusiastically received, and sang "Capt. Mac," the "Sea Road" and as an encore "If I can live", and Lte. Mearns and Lt. Ramsay greatly pleased the audience with a humorous duet "Tenor and Baritone." Towards the end of the programme, Pte. Gatch gave a beautiful rendering of Dvorak's Humoresque.

Sentiment and Romance.

On Friday a dance was given by Lt. Colonel and Mrs. Howden and officers of Headquarters, 168th Brigade R.F.A. at their beautiful castle at Ramersdorf. The grounds and verandas were artistically illuminated with coloured lanterns. The full moon added a sentimental and romantic glamour to the surroundings, the extensive gardens offering an eloquent appeal for nocturnal peregrinations. Dancing commenced at 9.30 p.m. The ground suite of the officers' quarters was set aside for dancing; one room illuminated by subdued rose light, another by a delicate shade of green gave a decidedly artistic effect, wholly enhancing the beauty of the scene. The string band of the "Pedlars" did yeoman service. In the background, last but not least, the catering department toiled unceasingly. Among the guests were Lady Gataker and ladies of the B.E.L.C., Major-General A. B. Ritchie, C.B. and Staff, Colonel and Mrs. Jackson, officers of the Lancashire Divisional Artillery Headquarters, Lt. Colonel and Mrs. Thurston, Major and Mrs. C. M. Bayne, Capt. and Mrs. Hackforth Jones, Capt. and Mrs. H. C. Terry, Major R. R. Hoare, Major J. O. Williams, and "one Walter Bird, Capt. R.F.A."

JACQUES.

G.H.Q. No. 1 SERGTS. MESS RIFLE CLUB.

The weekly Spoon Shoot took place on the Merheim Ranges on Saturday, the winner being Conductor Luker, R.A.O.C. with a score of 90, which included a "possible" at the 200 metres Range. Teas and refreshments were provided on the Range and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent.

Club Membership is open to Officers and Senior Ranks stationed in or near Cologne. The next Spoon Shoot is on Saturday, September 20th. Meet at G.H.Q., No. 1, Sergts. Mess, Salomon Gasse., 1.30 p.m. prompt.

WEEK-END NEWS IN BRIEF.

Carl Bretherton, Handsworth, beat T.D. Armour, Lothiancurn, by 4 up and 3 to play in the Irish Golf championship.

Grand Parade, The Panther, and Silonyx have been struck out of the Irish St. Leger, to be decided at The Curragh on Sept. 24.

The Victory walk from London to Brighton on Saturday was won by T. Payne, Yorkshire, his time being 8 hrs., 36 mins., 23 secs.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Irish Elegance.

"The best horse I have ever ridden," is Carslake's opinion of Mr. James White's champion.

C.M. Buchan.

C. M Buchan, Sunderland's famous forward, is a candidate for the post of physical instructor to the Sunderland boys' elementary schools.

A French Spur.

An interesting member of the Tottenham Hotspur XI. is Chayriques, a French international amateur goalkeeper of great repute, He is the first Frenchman to play in League Football.

English v. Scots.

For the first time in the history of the Dulwich Bowling Club an English v. Scots match has just been played. There were four rinks aside, and the result was a heavy defeat for the Scots, the being:—English 102, Scots 60.

Withdrawals.

Owing to ground and other difficulties it has been necessary for Highgate Rovers to withdraw from the premier division and R.A.O.C. from the junior division of the Middlesex and District Football League, but the executive has been fortunate in securing the 5st Coldstream Guards (Premier) and Straker Squire (Junior) to fill the vacancies.

Medals for L.C. Winners.

The London Combination have decided to give medals to the winners and runners-up in their competition.

An Extension.

The committee of Division V. of the London F.A. have extended the date for playing the London professional charity fund matches from October 31 to November 13.

Irish Guards v. "Pensioners".

Chelsea directors do not usually let the weeds sprout under their feet, but perhaps they never made a better move than when they engaged the band of the Irish Guards to play at their home matches.

To Restart.

Carshalton F.C. have decided to restart operations. The first eleven have entered for the Southern Amateur League and A.F.A. Senior Cup. Most of the old members are available, including W. P. Gann, G. M. Reay, and F. W. Buckland.

Olympic Trainer.

Walter Brickett, the trainer of the British Olympic swimming team, and a fine all-round athlete, is promoting a swimming gala at Kentish Town Baths on September 22. The 440 yards Southern Counties championships will be one of the features.

Veteran Turns out.

George Boots, the veteran Welsh Rugby forward, is going to turn out again this season, and will captain Newport's second fifteen.

More Pay.

Southern League referees will have more to draw from clubs in future. Their fee has been increased from one guinea to £1 11s. 6d., plus expenses.

Doncaster Features.

A breakdown in the weather; three winners for Taylor as a sort of consolation for the defeat of Buchan, and another brilliant victory for Diadem were the features of Doncaster's concluding stage.

Hockey Amalgamation.

The Richmond and Kingston Hill Hockey Clubs have decided upon amalgamation. They will play on the Richmond cricket ground, and will run four teams each week. Mr. Lindsay Holt, the captain, predicts a boom in hockey this season.

Famous Links.

North Berwick, which is crowded with golfers, used to be the favourite holiday links of Mr. A. J. Balfour until the "mobbing" to which he was subjected became insupportable. When he was Irish Secretary detectives used to follow him round.

To Race Again.

The fact that Sir William Bass gave 550gs. for a Lomond filly—Saindoux appears to indicate that that the one-time owner of Sceptre and other famous animals is again going in for racing.

A Model Handbook.

The Great Western Suburban League have issued a model handbook, which reflects great cricket on the compiler, Hon. Secretary W. G. Gough. It contains the rules, fixtures, list of referees, and other useful information.

Warm Time for Spurs.

Tottenham Hotspur would appear to be in for a warm time when they play Bristol City in Second League matches. "Wait till the City get hold of them," writes a Bristolian. "All local boys bar Howarth. Not a collection from the United Kingdom."

Haki's Improvement.

The wonderful improvement made by Haki has been one of the features of the season. Incidentally, he forms a glaring illustration that it is not always necessary to pay fabulous prices for good horses. Less than a year ago he cost no more than 820 guineas, and his victories this season inlude the Ascot Stakes, the Goodwood Plate and the Prince Edward Handicap.

THE FLUCTUATING MARK.

Sometures the above situation is completel reversed.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Where "Polly" Comes From.

Those who have travelled on the railway from Bonn to Coblenz may have noticed the little town of Apollinarisberg, just before Remagen is reached. This small place is noted for its "Apollinarisbrunnen" a spring impregnated with Carbonic Acid Gas, and discovered in 1851. It is exploited by the English Apollinaris Company Ltd., which has made Apollinaris wares familiar throughout the world, thirty million bottles being exported annually before the war. Special permission is, we believe, necessary for a visit to the extensive bottling works.

The Blindfold Maiden.

A reader says that when visiting Treves last week-end, his attention was drawn to part of the sculpture on the porch of the Liebfrauenkirche. A maiden was depicted, blindfolded, with a crown in the act of slipping off her head. The effect was so strange that it aroused his curiosity as to the history or legend which gave the idea to the old-time sculptor. He asks if any readers can enlighten him as to its origin.

Touching.

It happened at the Divisional Cinema, Solingen, the other night. The play was an oriental tragedy, and to say the best, was full of heart-throbbing and emotional interest. It told the story of an English woman married to a Chinaman, who, when their child was born, callously took it away from its mother and caused it to be reared in Chinese manner. The result was that the poor mother went out of her mind and took to nursing an ugly wooden doll. Twenty five years were supposed to elapse, and the next scene showed the wild-eyed mother in an untidy condition, still hugging the doll. It was all very sad, and heart-stirring and the quietness in the hall was intense. Suddenly the silence was broken by a voice which very audibly exclaimed, "Blimey! the blighter hasn't grown much in 25 years, 'as it, eh?" This unexpected remark caused those within hearing of the speaker to nearly double up with laughter.

Nightmares.

It is difficult for minds bred on old traditions to decide what the latest developments of the young school in Germany mean to them. The violence, aggressiveness and crudity of decoration that one sees about one, existed before the war, but they have developed enormously since, and they exercise a certain fascination. One decides, however, that it would be nightmare to live in a house furnished and decorated by the young German artist, though some of the decorations and hangings are refreshingly bright. Those whose interest in these things goes beyond a casual glance at street posters, may spend an interesting hour in looking at the latest productions of Munich in some Cologne bookshops.

The German Way.

An idea which is the essence of simplicity is adopted by Germans in order to bring to the public notice what is and what is not the correct form of speech. It is brought to everyone's notice by the use of transfers affixed to various parts of the street cars.

The transfers are about eight by six inches in size. They contain a list of common words which are misnamed and the common slang or dialectic words side by side. The whole surmounts a couplet which exhorts people who consider themselves to be German to show that they are German by speaking their native language correctly.

There are several parts of England in which a similar method might be adopted with advantage. The places referred to are of course those which possess a dialect which is to the Man in the Street practically unintelligible until he has been in the neighbourhood for some time.

Re-Echoes.

There was a general rush for the Rhine on Saturday and the bathing crowds were much larger than usual. The bank at certain points resembled a crowded seaside resort.

How many English ladies on the Rhine find the German cup of tea unsatisfying? From comments we have overheard an English café in the best sense of the word would be welcome. The sloppy delicacies offered for sale fall very short of the English standard.

In Cologne, as at home, watchmakers have plenty of work on hand. A month is asked for to complete a simple repair to a watch.

If it is possible to retain a coach for the use of English officers and men going Ostend way, why cannot a similar arrangement be come to for the journey from Ostend to Cologne? This is a question put to us by a correspondent.

"Pity these fellows cannot speak German" said one of Teuton ilk in a tramcar the other night. Yet when he was addressed in his own language he was surprised. Of course, he was apologetic.

Is it a sign of the times that a tram conductor was to be seen yesterday holding up a file of males in order to allow several fräuleins to board his car? As a class, tram conductors are most obliging.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Sergt. C.W. Young, Army Science College, Bonn and Cpl. E.M. Fisher D. of S. and T., G.H.Q. Rhine Army.

"Chinks" and "Fags."—An enormous business in exporting Virginia cigarettes to China is being done. These are for consumption by the natives.

P. M. Back.—When the Prime Minister got to Downing-street he found the tape-machine had been taken away. This is one of the economies put in force.

Where Bishops Differ.—A question in ecclesiastical circles just now is that of the interchange of pulpits between Anglicans and Nonconformists.

Revived.—Victorian women must have had some good ideas, for not a month passes but one of their fashions seems to be revived.

Closing.—The Horse Shoe Inn, once familiar in the old coaching days to passengers between London and Holyhead, ceases to supply thirsty travellers after this month.

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature For The British Woman In Rhineland.

Meeting the Profiteer.

The one-time unthinkable and unimagined has happened. Washing suspended from a line has been seen in broad daylight in the garden of a Park-lane mansion. This is surely the thick end of the wedge? A sign of the times is the steady "undercutting" of the laundries by enterprising old ladies in country villages. These old ladies remember their girlhood days, when they helped their mothers to "wash." Tentatively it has been suggested to them that they might like to earn "a bit extra." And they have jumped at the suggestion. Some of them had not very much to do; they were regarded as very decidedly on the shelf. But the call of the tub has done much to banish the disabilities of age. They are in process of becoming girls again—merry girls who laugh and gossip at the wash-tub. They cannot work as fast as the laundries, but their prices are reasonable, and therefore they are assured of as much work as they want.

On Brushing The Hair.

It is astonishing how many people, to whom the morning tub is an institution as fixed as the laws of the Medes and Persians, nevertheless fail to recognise the necessity of equal cleanliness in the matter of the hair. The skin is everywhere being renewed hour by hour and the dead particles removed by washing and by friction, a process which is just as continuous on the scalp as anywhere else, and obviously here they need more assistance for their removal than elsewhere, more especially if the hair is thick or inclined to be greasy.

Ventilation Of The Scalp.

But apart either from the question of cleanliness or of the desirable gloss produced on the hair itself by brushing there is another purpose to be served—i.e., ventilation. Light and air are essential to the health of all growing organisms, and hair, falling under this category, naturally requires regular brushing in order to enable the roots to be thoroughly ventilated. It is always best to brush the hair in the mornings rather than at night, as when one is tired the muscles beneath the skin relax, and vigorous brushing will then cause the hair to come out. Finally, the kind of brush used is important; long bristles set wide apart are good for heavy, straight hair, while short ones set close are better adapted for curly locks.

Cheaper Dresses.

Women customers of the West End shops have been pleasantly surprised to find that the prices of costumes, street dresses, and blouses have started to drop. Well-made coats and skirts, which would have cost £10 10s. or £11 11s. last spring, can now be bought for £8 8s. or £9 9s.; blouses, although still high priced in some of the more exclusive establishments, are selling for much less than formerly in the larger stores, while under-clothes are 25 per cent. cheaper. Garments which sold readily at £3 are now offered at £2 and less. "Now that a decline in prices has set in," writes the manager of a large West End establishment," I think it will continue steadily. The only articles which remain unaffected by the falling prices are hats, evening dresses, and gloves. Hats particularly are still fetching fantastic sums."

Stick To It.

Women have got to find their job in life, and do it and stick to it. Those who make mistakes of choice are wise to change the nature of their employment; but such changes should not be made merely from freak of desire to do "something different," or merely because somebody else peculiarly fitted for it makes a success of a job. The post-war restlessness which has attacked women, and which is spreading among them, is a dangerous growth, and one which needs to be watched for and guarded against. It is one thing for a woman to be a pioneer and to have the courage of her convictions; but a woman who is constantly jumping from one sort of work to another like a cat on hot bricks injures the mass of women workers.

NEW ARMY PAY WARRANT.

SERIES OF ARTICLES WHICH WILL GIVE COMPLETE DETAILS.

No. 2. OFFICERS HOLDING APPOINTMENTS.

NEW PAY WARRANT.

SECOND ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

Yesterday we gave the bare scales of pay granted by the New Pay Warrant which apply to the bulk of the Army. The figures stated were the minimum rates, which in very many cases are augmented. In order that everyone may have a clear understanding of what he is entitled to—and a large number of queries on the matter have already reached us—we shall publish (not necessarily in sequence) such details of the new Warrant as affect the Army of the Rhine.

GENERAL CONDITIONS.

Among the general conditions attached to the Royal Warrant are the following:

2. In any case in which transfer from the rates of pay and allowances hitherto in force to the new rates involves a loss of emoluments, the officer may continue in receipt of the rates of pay and allowances hitherto in force until such time as, on change of appointment or on account of increment or promotion, or abolition of special war emoluments (e.g., Army of Occupation bonus), the new rates are equal to or exceed the old. An officer who has once accepted the new rates of pay or half-pay will not be allowed to revert to the old rates.

3. The new rates will not be taken into account in the assessment of gratuities under Article 497, Pay Warrant, under the Royal Warrant of 10th February, 1919 (published in Army Order 85 of 1919) or in accordance with the terms of any special contract in connection with service during the Great War. Where dependent upon rates of pay, these gratuities will be calculated on the rates of pay in force prior to 1st July, 1919.

4. For the most part consolidated rates of pay are abolished and in such cases staff officers, in common with regimental and departmental officers, will be eligible to draw allowances under the usual conditions according to the classification of their appointments, or according to their ranks if not otherwise classified.

5. Engineer and corps pay under the new scheme will be drawn only by such officers of the Royal Engineers and Royal Army Service Corps as qualify for these additional emoluments under the conditions laid down in the tables appended hereto.

6. The following are abolished for all officers who draw the rates of pay and allowances provided in this Warrant:—

(a) Guards pay.
(b) Armament pay.
(c) Special rates for officers commissioned from the ranks.
(d) The bonus for the Armies of Occupation granted by Army Order 54 of 1919.
(e) Children's allowance as from 1st January, 1920, for all officers whether they draw the new rates or continue to draw those in force prior to 1st July, 1919.

Up to 31st December, 1919, officers will not become ineligible for children's allowance by reason of the fact that the increase in pay may raise their emoluments beyond the limits laid down for the grant of the allowance. The same ranks and Staff grades and classes as are now eligible will continue to be eligible.

7. Additional pay, extra-duty pay, working pay, charge pay and specialist pay.—The existing rates and conditions will continue for the present, except when specifically modified by the present Warrant, but are subject to early revision. The rate will be reduced by the amount of armament pay hitherto applicable to the rank.

The additional 1s. a day for the senior major and the 5s., &c., a day for adjutants, provided in the existing Warrant, will continue to be issuable.

8. Command pay.—The rates hitherto in force are doubled, unless otherwise specifically provided for by the present Warrant.

9. Rewards for distinguished or meritorious service.—The future application of the funds now provided to meet the cost of rewards under Article 633, Pay Warrant, is under consideration.

10. This Warrant does not apply to officers of the West African Regiment or of the Royal Malta Artillery, to non-European officers, or to any officers who, although drawing consolidated rates of pay, are not specifically provided for in this Warrant. Such officers will, pending further instructions, continue to draw pay and allowances under the Warrants hitherto in force.

Note. The expression "total service" means "commissioned service on full pay," and the expression "service as such" means "full pay service in the rank indicated."

Normal rates of pay for Combatant officers [Table I appeared in yesterdays issue.]

Table II. Pay of Quartermasters, Riding masters, Directors of Music, Commissaries, Deputy Commissaries and Assistant Commissaries of Ordnance, Assistant Inspectors of Ordnance Machinery, Assistant Inspectors of Armourers, Assistant Inspectors of Royal Engineer Machinery, Assistant Paymasters, Inspectors of Army Schools.

Service	Pay per day. Pay
On appointment	19s. 0d.
After 4 years' service	21s. 0d.
After 8 years' service	23s. 0d.
After 12 years' service	25s. 0d.
After 15 years' service	30s. 0s.
When specially promoted Lieutenant Colonel	35s. 0s.

The conditions of existing Warrants as regards the promotion of these officers will continue to apply, with the exception that all these officers other than Commissaries, Deputy Commissaries and Assistant Commissaries of Ordnance will be eligible for promotion to the rank of Captain after 8 years' commissioned service on full pay instead of after 10 years, as at present laid down.

Table III concerns War Office Staff.

Table IV. The rates of pay of officers holding appointments specified in this table will in all cases be those laid down and will not vary according to the rank of the holder. Similarly, allowances will be drawn on the classification of the appointment as shown.

PROBLEM OF SYRIA.

RECONCILING THE DIFFERENCES OF FRIENDS.

Mr. Lloyd George has returned to Paris from Deauville and, assisted by Lord Allenby, will confer with the French Government respecting the future of Syria.

One great difficulty lies in the attitude of the Arabs, who, in common with all the Mohammedan people, are impatient of European control.

The Arabs, like the French, are our Allies, and British policy must be directed towards finding a method of reconciling the differences of friends.

In connection with the Conference Pertinax writes in the "Echo de Paris": "The definite settlement of the Syrian question is probably impracticable as long as the whole Turkish problem remains unsettled. But without further delay there should be a provisional settlement on the following lines:—The recall of the British troops, which occupy both the direct and indirect administrative zone alloted to France in 1916, and the acceptance of the principle that in these two zones the Emir Faisul must do busines only with us in the matter of subsidies. These measures will place us, as regards the Arabs, on a footing of equality with Great Britain."

USING SIR J. BYNG'S FUND.

How General Sir Julian Byng's travelling committee of six will assist him to allot £250,000 for the benefit of ex-service men in Greater London was explained by the members in conference.

The Borough of Camberwell was the first to be approached, and the mayor at once volunteered to be first chairman of the local committee, appointed from ex-service men in the borough, to draw up a scheme of requirements, and they will not be hampered in any respect. Should they desire to have a social club, a swimming bath, a library, an athletic club, it shall be theirs, the only stipulation being that it shall be open to every ex-service man, irrespective of his organisation, creed, or politics. Other boroughs which have been approached in similar fashion are Lewisham, Deptford, Bethnal Green, Stepney, and Islington. More will follow as quickly as possible.

TO THE NATION.

PREMIER'S PLEA FOR A NEW WORLD.

The Prime Minister has addressed the subjoined message to the people of Britain through the medium of "The Future," a national publication issued with Mr. Lloyd George's authority:—

"Millions of gallant young men have fought for the New World. Hundreds of thousands died to establish it. If we fail to honour the promise given to them we dishonour ourselves.

"What does a new world mean? What was the old world like? It was a world where toil for myriads of honest workers, men and women, purchased nothing better than squalor, penury, anxiety, and wretchedness. A world scarred by slums and disgraced by sweating, where unemployment through the vicissitudes of industry brought despair to multitudes of humble homes. A world where, side by side with want, there was waste of the inexhaustible riches of the earth, partly through ignorance and want of forethought, partly through entrenched selfishness.

"If we renew the lease of that world we shall betray the heroic dead. We shall be guilty of the basest perfidy that ever blackened a people's fame. Nay, we shall store up retribution for ourselves and for our children. The old world must and will come to an end. No effort can shore it up much longer. If there be any who feel inclined to maintain it, let them beware lest it fall upon them and overwhelm them and their households in ruin.

"It should be the sublime duty of all, without thought of partisanship, to help in building up the new world where labour shall have its just reward and indolence alone shall suffer want."

"RUTHLESS ECONOMY."

SPLENDID CREATIONS TO BE SCRAPPED.

The Prime Minister has sent a letter to the First Lord of the Admiralty, who is now visiting the dockyards and other naval establishments. Mr. Lloyd George says:—

"It is always an unwelcome task to dispense with the services of men and women who have rendered real service to the country in a time of emergency. It must go to their heart to see the splendid creations of their hard endeavours put by and scrapped, but I know that the patriotic spirit which inspired them to build up will also enable them to face the winding up of enterprises and efforts to which they must be greatly attached.

"When the expenditure of the country as a result of the war debt and war pensions must necessarily be very high, we are driven to economise ruthlessly in every direction. Please explain to these loyal men and women that if we dispense with their services it does not mean any want of gratitude on the part of the Empire for what they have accomplished."

BELGIUM AND HOLLAND.

EARLY UNDERSTANDING PROBABLE.

At a meeting of the Commission for the revision of the 1839 Treaties, M. Swinderen, the Dutch delegate, announced that Holland would support the interpretation formulated by the President. The Commission reached a complete understanding as to the procedure to be followed in deciding the various questions. Belgian and Dutch delegates will meet with experts to consider formulas relating to navigable waterways. Questions concerning the security of Belgium will be considered by the whole commission, which commences the examination of such questions at its next sitting.

An official Note communicated by the Peace Conference allows it to be understood that a spirit of conciliation tends to prevail in Holland. According to special information received, the instructions given by Holland to her delegates are less rigid than formerly. It is believed there is a possibility of soon finding the ground for an understanding. The view which seems to prevail consists in allowing freedom of navigation in the Scheldt for Belgian vessels and even warships. The provision of buoys and beacons would be entrusted to the Belgians, and all Dutch fortifications would be destroyed, including the forts at Flushing.

CANADA AND PEACE.

PARLIAMENT APPROVES TREATY.

The Canadian Parliament has unanimously adopted a resolution approving the ratification of the Peace Treaty. Before taking this action the House rejected a reservation moved by Mr. Fielding, ex-Finance Minister, to the effect that nothing in the Treaty or the League of Nations Covenant should impair the sovereignty of the autonomous authority of the Dominion Parliament. In the course of his speech Mr. Fielding declared that Canada's part in the Peace Conference was a colossal humbug, because she was not a nation and never could be a nation. Major Power, member for Quebec, urged the rejection of the Treaty because the claims of Ireland were not heard.

VICTORY LOAN.

KING'S FLAG WON BY SCOTTISH BURGH.

North Britain has secured a great triumph in the Victory Loan contest for the flag offered by the King for the city, borough, or urban district which had the highest average subscription per head of population.

The burgh of Dornoch, which is as far north almost as it is possible to go, heads the list with the fine average of £272 per head, beating the City of Westminster, whose average was £180 per head.

But that is not all. Fourth on the list is Edinburgh, fifth is Falkland, a Fifeshire burgh with a few spinning mills; six is Troon, the Ayrshire seaport and resort; eighth is Stornoway, the great fishing centre in the Outer Hebrides; ninth is Melrose, known to all tourists; eleventh is Haddington, centre of the great agricultural district of East Lothian; and twelfth is Duns, the county town of Berwickshire—eight names in the first twelve!

The other four are such large and wealthy centres as Westminster, Liverpool, Holborn, and Maidstone, the county town of Kent.

The King has signified his intention of presenting the flag to the Provost of Dornoch.

During the campaign his Majesty promised a second flag to the city borough, or urban district showing the largest number of individual subscribers to the Loan in proportion to the population. As it was found impossible to secure sufficient and accurate information on which to base such an award the King has approved the suggestion of the Chancellor of the Exchequer that the second flag shall be presented to the Borough of Westminster. His Majesty will present this flag to the Mayor of Westminster after his return to London.

AMERICA'S VETO.

MR. WILSON ON BRITAIN'S VOTES.

President Wilson has delivered a speech at Spokave in which he replied to the objection that Great Britain would have a preponderance of voting power on the League of Nations.

He said any possible danger on that score was removed by the fact that the decisions of the League must be unanimous. This was the only way the League Assembly could decide important questions. The opposition to the Covenant was that it was a Covenant arranged for the dominance of Britain, based upon the fact that in the Assembly six units of the British Empire were represented, whereas the United States had only one. "Alike in the Assembly and in the Council," declared the President "the vote of the United States is an absolute veto. We can always veto and always offset with one vote the British six votes. I must say I look with perfect philosophy on the difference in the number of votes."

WOMEN ATTACKED.

ASSAILANT TRACKED BY BLOODHOUNDS.

Two outrages on women, committed on a lonely road near Tring, and the tracking of the assailant by a bloodhound, are reported. The first victim, a Miss Grange, the seventeen years old daughter of a farmer and corn merchant, was pushing her bicycle up a hill when a young man rushed out and struck her. She screamed and struggled and the man eventually made off. The following afternoon an elderly woman, Miss Carter, employed as a cook in Tring, was found unconscious on the roadside, with her head battered. A blood-spattered stone was beside her. She was taken to a nursing home at Tring, where she lies in a serious condition.

A bloodhound was employed to track the assailant. The animal picked up the scent after some hesitation and followed it two miles to a farmhouse. The police subsequently detained a young man named Eggleton. He has recently been demobilized, and is a labourer and the son of a small farmer.

DREAM DELUSIONS.

CAUSE OF A TRAGEDY.

Hearing the sound of firing, the policeman on duty at Canada Dock gate Liverpool went towards the quarter from which it came and saw Samuel Emmett, a young dock labourer, lying on the ground groaning and in great pain. There was blood on his shirt.

Asked if he knew who shot him, he said he had never seen the man before. He died in hospital.

Harry Theman, chief engineer of the American steamship Victorious, went up to another policeman and said: "I shot him; the revolver is in my pocket." He was arrested, and at Bridewell he said: "I had a dream last night. I saw my dead mother, my grandmother and my aunt, and they told me if I went into the street and saw a desperate burglar I had to shoot him, and then I would go to Heaven."

A verdict of Wilful Murder was returned against Theman, who was later remanded.

KISSED THE WITNESSES.

A soldier who was committed for trial at Thetford on a charge of bigamy received permission to speak to the witnesses. A policeman informed the court when he returned that he had kissed them all.

IMPERIAL UNITY.

MAKING AMENDS FOR PAST NEGLECT.

Writing in "The Future," the new national publication, Lord Milner, Secretary for the Colonies, says: "The encouragement of trade within the Empire and the progressive improvement of means of communication by sea and air are the methods by which we must seek to strengthen the community of interests which is the only sure foundation of imperial unity. The time may come when one or more of the British Dominions will equal or even surpass the United Kingdom in wealth and population, as they already surpass it in geographical extent. For want of transport, for want of capital, for want of training, many races of the Empire are not producing one tithe of what they could easily produce. More enterprise, more vigour, more initiative in developing this great estate for the benefit of its inhabitants and for our own people here at home are urgently called for. This side of our imperial responsibilities has been too much neglected in the past. It is the intention, as it is the duty, of the Government to make amends for that neglect. The six million loan for the Sudan, just approved by Parliament, the agricultural progress already effected in Mesopotamia, the projected railway extension in East and West Africa are illustrations of this forward policy. The restoration of peace renders a great increase of such activities possible. Opportunities for them are almost infinite, and the examples of Egypt and Nigeria show with what phenomenal rapidity they produce splendid results. Side by side with the suppression of waste must go the constructive work which is necessary to increase production, and there is no more promising field for such work than the huge undeveloped areas of the British Empire.

RHINELAND CENTRUM.

CONGRESS AT COLOGNE.

On Monday a congress of the Rhineland Centre Party was opened in the Bürgergesellschaft in Cologne. The ministers Dr. Bell and Stegerwald were present. Deputy Trimborn explained the policy of the Centre Party, which can be summed up in the two following points: (1) The Centre Party has accepted the Republic as basis of the state system; (2), the Centre Party has formed the Government in collaboration with the Socialists.

On the first point the Centre Party becomes the adversary of the Nationalists who remain faithful to the monarchy. "We condemn the Revolution," said Deputy Trimborn, "not because it caused our defeat, for the war was already lost, but because the Revolution had a very unfavourable influence on the armistice and peace. To-day many people are afraid that the winter will bring with it a recurrence of Spartacist disorders, because the Revolution has destroyed all discipline in the German people. However, we accepted the Republic which was born of the Revolution, because it was the only way to save the Fatherland. We made peace possible by the creation of a Government able to negotiate."

The Deputy then spoke of the co-operation of the Centre with the Socialists, saying that the black and red block was the best guarantee for the holding together of the Empire. As regarded foreign policy they must try to live in good relations with their neighbours. "We must follow the policy of a League of Nations, not a policy of hatred." He concluded his speech with some remarks about the interior policy of Germany, the question of the Rhineland and the finances of the Empire.

SHARING OUT GERMAN SHIPS.

The Paris "Journal" says: "The allocation of German vessels will probably be discussed at the next meeting of the Allied Supreme Council. The large vessels, which aggregate 188,000 tons, number 10. They have been used for the repatriation of American troops by contract, and the working of them was entrusted to the United States. The contract has now expired, as the task of repatriation has been completed.

"France has been compelled to suspend all shipbuilding during the war, and she likes to think that the Allies, who have maintained and in certain cases even increased their tonnage since 1914, will bear this particular situation in mind."

BOLSHEVIST REPULSE.

The War Office announces that the volunteer army under General Wrengeed, after a successful defence of Tsaritsin against the Bolshevists on the Volga (General Denikin's front) has repulsed the enemy and taken ten thousand prisoners.

FOOTPADS' ROPE TRAP.

While cycling home the other night, Arthur Sweetmore, 17, son of a Macclesfield tradesman, was thrown from his machine by a rope fastened across the road at Cheney Gate, five miles from Macclesfield. Two men came from a field and sat on him while they took from his pockets a £1 note and three 10s. notes, leaving him with 1s 7d. The police are said to have a clue to their identity.

1921 EXHIBITION.

RESOURCES OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

For some time past a movement has been in progress towards the organisation of an exhibition of industries, inventions, products and raw materials of the British Empire, to be held in 1921. A large and influential meeting was recently held in London, attended by the Premiers, High Commissioners and representatives of the overseas dependencies and others interested in the scheme. A resolution was carried that an exhibition on the above lines would be the best means of firmly binding together the peoples of the British Empire and restoring its commercial and financial supremacy to its original position. It has been decided that the exhibition shall be held under the auspices of the British Government, the Prime Minister being president of the Council, Mr. Bonar Law vice-president and Mr. Walter Long president of the administrative committee. Extensive preparations are being made throughout the Empire, and to ensure complete representation local committees have been formed in most of the large centres of industry. No exhibition previously held has had the advantage of such influential support. The British Empire Exhibition will offer the opportunity of demonstrating the magnitude of British resources at the time when such demonstration is most needed.

"A SILLY LITTLE PUSS."

GIRL'S REMARK AFTER SHOOTING HERSELF.

"Am I not a silly little puss for doing this?" remarked Mabel Venn, 22, daughter of a Coventry licensed victualler, just before she died from self-inflicted wounds. Her father stated at the inquest that the girl had assisted in his business. Three weeks ago she cried, and said she wished she were more useful, and he told her to dismiss such thoughts, as he valued her services highly. She was brighter afterwards, but later she shot herself in the left side with a revolver, which he had secured for protection during the recent Coventry riots.—Mr. Venn admitted that his daughter had a young man, but there was no trouble in this respect, as he thought a good deal of him.—The coroner, remarking that the circumstances pointed to a sudden mental breakdown, returned a verdict of "Suicide while temporarily insane."

COMPLAINTS TRIBUNALS.

Any member of the public who has legitimate cause for thinking that a tradesman is charging an unfair profit can complain to his local committee which will investigate the grievance. If the tradesman can satisfy the authorities that he is charging only a reasonable profit, the burden of proof is shifted to the wholesaler, who will have to convince the central committee that he is innocent.

Mr. McCurdy, Parliamentary Secretary of the Ministry of Food, in a speech on the Act, said that although profiteering might not be the most serious cause of high prices, it was certainly the most irritating.

WORK FOR DISABLED.

Complete details of the national scheme for the employment on a percentage basis, of disabled ex-service men which was outlined a few weeks ago have been issued by the Ministry of Labour.

Nearly seven-eighths of these men are already employed, and the memorandum states that it is urgently necessary in the national interest that the remainder—about 100,000—should be absorbed into industry.

Every employer in the United Kingdom who employs ten or more workers is urged to undertake to employ as many disabled ex-service men as possible, with a minimum of 5 per cent. of his total establishment.

MUTINY VETERAN'S DAILY PINT.

An Indian Mutiny veteran, John Richardson, 94, was recently presented with the replica of a war medal which he lost many years ago. The investiture took place at the Bermondsey workhouse, where he has been an inmate for 25 years. Anxious to mark the occasion, the master (Mr. Butcher) asked the aged warrior what he would like for the remainder of his days. "Well," said the old man, "I should like a drop of beer occasionally." Mr. Butcher replied: "You shall have a pint a day for the remainder of your life." The veteran quaffed his first pint with great relish.

SENTRY ATTACKED.

Hearing shots in the early hours of the morning, the guard at Uxbridge Armament School turned out and found the sentry at the transport entrance lying on the ground in a serious condition, as the result, apparently, of blows on the head.

A thorough search of the district was made, but without success. It is believed that the attack on the sentry was made by motor thieves who wished to steal one of the vehicles belonging to the school.

THE "POST" ON THE RHINE.

The opening sentence of our leading article yesterday may have been misunderstood by some.

We all know that the Army of Occupation has been greatly reduced from its early strength. Many of all ranks have gone home, of course, and many are being demobilized at the present moment, but we are maintaining and shall maintain a sufficient force in our zone, in accordance with the terms of the Convention of Occupation.

We wish to make this quite clear to those who wrongly gathered from our opening remarks that the British Army on the Rhine might soon fade away. We think it was evident to most readers that this was not really the impression we wished to convey.

What the ultimate size of the Army of Occupation may be has yet to be definitely decided by the authorities. Many things in this connection necessarily have to be considered with the greatest care, and in any case its sojourn on the Rhine can scarcely be a brief one, by virtue of the Terms of Peace.

The continuance of a sufficiently powerful Army in Rhineland means too, that "The Cologne Post" becomes a necessity, and its future can be in little doubt.

This will be welcome news to all, for its value as the Organ of the British Army on German soil is increasingly admitted and every day its circulation goes further and further afield.

It is being subscribed for by soldiers wherever British units are stationed in all parts of the world, and large numbers of those who have been and are being demobilized are continuing to subscribe to it, so that they may still keep in touch with the days they spent and the men they knew on the Rhine.

"The Cologne Post" is, we know from the numerous letters we receive daily, being appreciated more and more by all ranks. It is the soldiers' own paper—produced by soldiers for soldiers—and looked upon as a personal friend.

The Army on the Rhine and "The Cologne Post" are closely linked and inseparable, and so long as an adequate force is maintained in Germany we hope to carry on our successful existence.

A MATTER OF FORM.

With a sigh of relief the demobilization Officer threw down his pen. For two hours on an unusually warm afternoon he had been busy autographing Z. forms—an occupation necessary rather than delightful.

"Hope these chaps' jobs when they get into civvies won't be as hard as this one is," he yawned, turning to the Sergeant Major. "That the lot?" he continued, languidly.

"All but Private Rawdon's Z18, Sir," answered the S.M. "You said you would consider that after you'd finished the others, if you remember?"

"Did I? Oh, yes . . . . What is Z18? Nominal roll, isn't it?"

For a minute the S.M. struggled furiously with his emotions, won a great victory, and without a trace of the struggle through which he had passed, answered:

"No, Sir, Certificate of Employment During the War. Part 5, dealing with work done, qualifications and skill acquired, is the difficulty. Rawdon's done no work since he came to us a month ago, and though he may be qualified to do some, he's acquired such skill in dodging it, that—well, there you are, Sir."

"What has he been on since he came?" enquired the demobilization officer.

"Red wine at nights and the peg in the morning, chiefly" grinned the S.M. "Enlisted as a loader, but all the loading I've known him do has been after pay parade, and that load has generally proved more than he can carry."

Turning up Rawdon's conduct sheet, he read: "Date of last drunk 10/9/19."

"Um!" muttered the other, "rather an awkward case. Don't like to spoil the chap's chance of getting employment.... What's your advice?"

"Oh, I don't think it'll matter much what you say. Don't suppose he'll worry employers much—more likely to go on the rates after he's spent his furlough money. "Sober and Industrious" is what we usually say in these cases. After all, the Government ale will keep him sober the other side, and he'll have to be pretty industrious before he gets all he wants of it at the present price."

"Very well," answered the demobilization officer, glad to accept any solution of a difficult problem.

* * *

Two months later, the Post Orderly entered the demobilization officer's room and handed him a letter. Opening, it, he read:—

Empire Temperance Club,
Wine Office Court, E.C
16/9/19.

My dear Nephew.

Very glad to hear that you expect leave next month. I do hope you will be home in time for the Friends of Industry and Sobriety League Demonstration on the 8th of October. We've secured a host of speakers—representative of all parties in the State.

By the way, I had occasion recently to advertize for a messenger for our League office. I narrowed down the field of selection by telling only ex-service men to apply. About a dozen turned up, but none of them were total abstainers, and you know how important it is in a league such as ours to have sober employees — particularly for messengers, who have peculiar facilities for obtaining drink due to the outdoor nature of their duties. I had almost despaired of finding any one able to satisfy this essential condition, when, to my surprise, a man arrived and handed me a form bearing your signature. Chap of the name of Rawdon who had, it seems, served in your company. I was anxious, as you can imagine, to take him if suitable, as I remember your remarking what a fine lot of men you had under you, and when I read your report on his character I engaged him on the spot. I wanted him to start at once, but he said that he had to meet his mother-in-law who was up for the day, but that he would report here this morning. I expect him every minute

Your affectionate Uncle,
Fred.

The demobilization officer whistled. If Rawdon turned up, he knew that he stood no chance of even "honourable mention" in his Uncle's will. Bad enough, as things were, with the old man spending his fortune — no small one — in, so to speak, "riotous leagueing", but his nephew saw that even the small legacy he had anticipated would follow the rest of the estate should Rawdon's true character become revealed to his employer, as inevitably it would, if he kept his appointment. "Better defer my leave a little", he muttered to himself; then, brightening, "perhaps he won't turn up after all. Can't be too careful, though," and he started to write:

"My dear Uncle..."

But whether he finished the explanatory letter, whether, if he did, it satisfied his uncle; whether, if he didn't, Rawdon kept his appointment — of none of these matters have we any definite knowledge. All we do know is that the demobilization officer went on leave, and, returning, extended his service for another year. Our own opinion is that uncles are a greatly over-estimated financial investment, and it is to be feared that the demobilization officer, if ready to discuss such a painful subject, would confirm our view.

E. J. TELLUM.

ON LEAVE.

There is no need to dwell on the superlative comfort of the leave train-de-luxe or the pleasant (or otherwise) Channel crossing. Sufficient to say that I arrived home in the wee small hours of a foggy August morning and it was only after numerous tattoos on the door and a cheery assurance that it was I, in the flesh and not a wandering spirit, that I was allowed to cross the threshold of my home.

After a refreshing sleep and a more than appetising breakfast I set out for a walk round my native town.

The first impression I received was that of the conspicuous absence of khaki. Walking along a crowded thoroughfare of a busy northern industrial town I only saw about half a dozen men dressed in the familiar S.D. Uniform.

And this in a place, where a few months previously, khaki had been the predominant colour. They must be demobilizing soldiers after all!—at least that was the conclusion I arrived at.

"Why are you in khaki?" seems to be the question uppermost in male friends minds and when you promptly explain to them that you are not on "demob" and that you have not re-enlisted you generally get a vacant stare of mild interest and drop the subject.

Oh! but that tiresome eternal question asked by the equally eternal feminine. What soldier who has been home on leave from Rhineland and has not heard it? What are the German girls like? Now the answer to this question depends largely upon your position at home and in any case must be answered thoughtfully and tactfully.

If you are one of those poor chaps who have entered the realms of matrimonial bliss it pays you to profess complete ignorance in the following manner, "Ho, my dear, I assure you I have hardly looked at them, let alone spoken to them."

By the single young fellow this question is sometimes relished as a means to an end. By professing undying devotion to his English sisters and renouncing the German girls for ever and a day he will find that the course of true love (even if it is only a sea-side flirtation) will run on oiled wheels.

If you wish to annoy your fair questioner don't say, "the majority are very nice" until your leave is drawing to a close or you will most probably find yourself highly and dryly left on the shelf. "Love laughs at locksmiths" but it doesn't at Fräuleins — in England at any rate.

This article would not be complete without mention of that worst of all fiends — the souvenir collector.

To him it appears rather strange that you have not returned with German bayonets and rifles. His enthusiasm however is rather dampened if you suggest the possibility of your coming home the next time with the Dom in your haversack.

Philosophers tell us however that variety is the spice of life and in my own humble opinion incidents such as described above, add to, rather than diminish the joy of living fourteen days in Blighty.

BOOKLAND IN COLOGNE.

The Rhine Army Bookshop.

Nobody visiting the Rhine Army Bookshop can find anything but praise both for its management and for the vast quantities of books, of excellent selection, which those in charge have been able to accumulate for the benefit of our troops.

The War Office is working admirably towards a splendid goal, the education of our soldiers, many of whom have not long since left school and have still much knowledge to acquire before they proceed to take part in the great battle of life, in their own and their country's interests.

The shop exists at present in embryo, but even in this state, one foresees that it is a most useful institution capable of immense developments.

The Bookshop occupies itself with the sale of instructional books to both students and instructors. There is also a complete Lending Library from which our troops may borrow all manner of works, fiction and eductional, on payment of a deposit of but five per cent. of the value of the book.

A comfortable Reading Room is being arranged in order that students may consult treatises and periodicals at their leisure.

One of the most attractive features of the place consists of the albums of the Photographic Depot which contain British war photographs, photographs of general interest and German war photographs.

The prices, at which these are to be sold will be quite moderate and the delivery prompt.

There are, too, dark rooms which are necessary for photographic development, etc., being fitted up with chemicals, dishes, water and lamps. These are to be controlled by qualified instructors who will advise and offer assistance during the various processes. Only a small charge will be made for the chemicals employed.

Next, an examination of the bookshelves disclosed the fact that almost every subject is represented. There are books upon languages and literature, the various sciences, economy, mathematics, farming bee-keeping, poultry, engineering and various useful works of reference. Fiction may also be obtained.

To the private student as well as to the class student and instructor, the Rhine Army bookshop is well worth a visit. You may call there from 09.00 to 12.30 hours and from 14.00 to 19.00 hours with the exception of Sundays. The address is No 80 Hohenzollern Ring, Cologne.

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,—Seeing in the "Post" of to-day's date, a hint about bachelor's feelings, on the subject of "Wives and Efficiency" signed by Bachelor, I would like to remark that he knows nothing of either.

I have my wife in Cologne with me, and as far as my duty is concerned, I have put in more hours since her arrival than I did before, and would not think of asking a bachelor to relieve me, because I know them, being one myself once.

And as to efficiency, well, it would be a queer man who could not do better, owing to being able to enjoy the pleasures of a real home in his off-duty hours.

But I suppose this is useless information to one who suffers from such an attack of "Sour Grapes."

MARRIED.

ON THE RHINE BOATS.

Sir,—If any of your readers have taken Sunday trips on the Rhine steamers they must have been struck by the enormous consumption of food and drink that goes on all day long by the Germans—mostly I should say the nouveaux riches, judged by their bulky well fed proportions and profusion of jewellery.

I myself saw a party of three consume 35 bottles of Niersteiner wine on the return journey to Godesberg the other Sunday,

I wonder if this is a record?

NOUVEAU PAUVRE.

THE VALUE OF SPANISH.

Sir,—Your correspondent yesterday writes as though the study of Spanish were rather a new thing for the German people.

But I know for a fact that they have never neglected that language in recent years.

I heard that 50,000 German prisoners in England were studying it in their confinement.

Spanish, in my opinion, is much more useful to learn than German, for after English it is more used commercially than any other language.

Why do we neglect it so?

ESPANOLA.

WHY NOT REAL GIRLS?

Sir,—In reply to Black and White's letter re "Real Girls in Concert Parties," does he realize the difficulties that are in the way, especially with a concert party which is continually touring.

Imagine the feelings of a young lady who had to travel thirty or more kilos in a lorry packed full of "props" artistes, and the band.

On arrival, had to be content with a make-shift-meal in the visited battalion's mess-hall, which is invariably the theatre, mess-hall and billet in one.

Had to dress and make-up in any small place, which, of course, would have to be found for her.

Do the same uncomfortable journey back at night after the show, and generally arriving the wrong side of midnight.

For myself, I wish that real girls were possible, but there are too many obstacles in the way of a concert party which is not continually performing at the same theatre.

DORA.

A COLOGNE WRAF'S ALPHABET.

A — Is for Alphabet made by a Wraf
In order that you may indulge in a laugh.
(Editor's note: this verse should be read with a Yorkshire accent.)

B — Is for "bitte" that's German for "please."
(The Wrafs are acquiring this language with ease.)

C — Is for Chiefs, we've a dozen or more
Though I'm sure we could very well manage with four.

E — Is for Empire, the Leave Club in town,
Some Wrafs went there for tea, but, poor things, got turned down.

F — Is for Friseur who shampoos, waves, and curls,
And makes all of us Wrafs look quite beautiful girls.

G — Is for Germany where we are now,
Where a man is a "Herr" and a woman a "Frau."

H — Is for Hoojah, a most useful word
Though it sounds, I admit, most extremely absurd.

I — Is for Ices, which Wrafs all adore,
If you gave one fifteen she would still ask for more.

J — Is for Jerseys, some green and some grey;
We wear them for P.T. and Cricket each day.

K — Is "Kartoffel," that's German for "spud"
The new ones are good, but the old ones are dud.

L — Is for Letters, by Aerial Post
The things that the Wrafs all look forward to most.

M — Is for Music; we have got a Jazz Band
Some think it too noisy, but most think it grand.

N — Is for Newspapers, both of them fine.
The "Post" of Cologne, and the "W.R.A.F. on the Rhine."

O — Is for Opera, loved by the Huns,
Though the Wrafs, someone said, just went there to eat buns!

P — Is for Peter, a wonderful pup.
He eats quite a lot, but is never "fed up."

Q — Is for Quills; they are quite useful things.
Huns make brushes (scrubbing) of dicky-birds' wings!

S — Is for Sports; our favourite's cricket
Though some of us don't know a bat from a wicket.

V — Is "Verstehen" which we hear all day long.
It's proceeded by "nicht," when we talk German wrong!

(Editor's note: It will be noticed by observant readers that several letters are missing. This is accounted for by the author's admission that that she is not quite sure of her alphabet yet.)

SOUTHERN DIV. CRICKET.

Enjoyable Games At Lindenthal: Ideal Conditions.

2nd BRIGADE VICTORY.

Under ideal cricket conditions attractive games were witnessed at Lindenthal in connection with the Southern Division cricket week. On Thursday the 1st Southern Infantry Bde. met the 2nd Southern Infantry Bde., and, winning the toss for the 1st Bde., Major Bazalgetts elected to take first knock. Capt. Petheram and Lieut. Smith opened the bowling for 2nd Bde. the former getting Major Bazalgett's wicket in his first over. At the other end Rev. Tyndal succumbed to Smith and two wickets were down without a run on the board. Things continued to go badly for the 1st Bde. and the whole side was out for 82.

Batting for 20 minutes before lunch the 2nd Bde. scored 29 without loss. The score after lunch was taken to 36 before a wicket fell. Major Williams, the next to bat, gave a splendid display of hitting, scoring his 57 in just over 20 mins. Mills and Smith continued the good work and enabled their side to declare with the score at 240 for eight.

Going in to bat a second time the 1st Bde. had a very bad time Smith making the ball turn awkwardly from leg on a wicket which appeared to have crumbled. The 1st Bde. narrowly escaped an innings defeat, losing 9 wickets for 90.

The best bowling averages were those of Capt. Petheram and Lieut. Smith, a Kent player, the former getting 9 wickets for 39 runs and the latter 9 for 62.

The 2nd Bde. have a very strong side and have several county players.

"BUST UP" FUNCTION.

Fire Brigade Provokes Hilarity.

An excellent "bust up" dinner was provided from the canteen funds one evening last week, for the personnel of the 42nd Stationary Hospital. Col. Collins made an admirable chairman, and the little function was a great success. The O.C. took the opportunity to wish the lads "Goodbye", and during the interval, while the tables were being prepared for the whist drive, much amusement was caused by the fire brigade turning up, some person having rung the alarm attached to the Hospital.

The whist drive commenced at 8 o'clock, and during the whole of it the orchestra played selections that were enjoyed by all during the interval. Pte. Daniels gave a song "Pay-day" which everybody enjoyed, also a few jokes of his own composition.

The prizes were won as follows:—

1st Prize Sgt. Peters (A wrist watch).
2nd Prize Cpl. Collins (a set of Clapp razors).
3rd Prize Pte. Butler (a set of brushes).
4th Prize (booby) Pte. Parker.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Wednesday, September 17th, 1919.

Wind light, between north and north east, misty morning, fine day. Moderate temperature, visibility fair.

BIG RALLY AT RHIEL.

Ex Members of Brigades and Scouts in Rhineland.

On Saturday and Sunday next, a rally of past members of the various Boys Organisations (Brigades, Scouts, etc.) takes place at Durham House Y.M.C.A., Rhiel, Cologne. There must be quite a large number of such members scattered amongst the units in the Rhine Army.

Statistics give evidence of the big part they played in the war. Well over half-a-million men in the two services, Navy and Army, had received their early training in the Boy's Brigade alone—the oldest of the organisations for boys, while the present members, too young for military service, did their bit in many different ways. The B.P. Scouts provided a Recreation Hut at Etaples and a Cinema Hall at Rouen and the Boy's Brigade equipped and maintained largely staffed huts at Rouen and Edinburgh.

Durham House near the Zoo—the venue of Saturday's rally—is the Boy's Brigade Hut of the Y.M.C.A., transferred after four years service from Rouen to the Rhine.

Saturday's programme includes tournaments in tennis, quoits, etc., a photographic competition, tea, while later there will be a smoking social in the library with a discussion on "The Future of the Boy's Organisations." On Sunday there is to be a short service followed by visits to places of interest.

All past members of the various brigades and scouts should make a point of seeing the full programme and seizing the opportunity to meet old comrades and to keep in touch with the old work.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE VILLA?

One Point from five 1st Division League Games.

Many football enthusiasts in the Midlands are feeling perturbed owing to the continued disappointing form of Aston Villa, who with one point for five matches occupy the inglorious position of the bottom of the First Division League Table. "Brum" in the "Sunday Express" writes as follows on the subject:—

It must be confessed that there is a wide difference between the Villa of pre-war times and the Villa of to-day. Most of the famous players who used to carry the colours to victory are still available, but the attack in particular has lost much of its ability to force the ball through the goal. So far the forwards have played raggedly and failed to finish off their assaults efficiently, while the backs have displayed weakness in several of the matches. The Villa at the moment of writing has secured only one point from games. The supporters are beginning to lose faith, and a radical improvement is necessary if the old club is to take its proper place among the great clubs.

D.L.I. SPORTS.

The annual athletic sports meeting of the 9th Bn. D.L.I. has been postponed from Thursday Sept. 18th, to Friday Sept. 19th, commencing at 14.00 hours, on the British Army of the Rhine P. and R.T. School ground at Riehl. Entries for the 440 yards race, open to all ranks of the Allied armies, will be accepted up to 09.30 hours Sept. 19. Refreshments will be obtainable on the sports ground. Two bands will be in attendance. Trams from Deutscher Ring, No. 12; from Hohenzollern Bridge No. 14 to Zoological Gardens, then change to No. 12; from Opera House No. 16 to Zoological Gardens, then change to No. 12.

LAST OF THE SEASON.

The cricket season winds up this week with the match between Yorkshire, the champion county, and the Rest of England, which began on Monday at the Oval. The teams are:—

Yorkshire (from):
D. C. F. Burton, E. R. Wilson, Hirst, Rhodes, Dolphin, Denton, Kilner (R.), Holmes, Waddington, Sutcliffe, Robinson and Williams.

The Rest:
R. H. Spooner (capt.), J. W. H. T. Douglas, D. J. Knight, J. N. Crawford, Hobbs, Woolley, Mead, Kennedy, Hitch, Hendren, and Strudwick.

One half of the proceeds will be given to the Cricketer's Fund, the other half to Yorkshire, to be distributed as the committee desire. The match is scheduled for four days.

EASTBOURNE TENNIS FINALS.

The finals in the South of England tennis championships were played at Eastbourne on Saturday. Results:—Men's Singles:—Mavrogordato beat Mishu 6-3; 6-2; 6-4. Ladies Singles:—Miss Ryan beat Mrs. Satterthwaite 6-1; 6-2. Ladies Doubles:—Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Miss Ryan beat Mrs. McAir and Mrs. Parton 6-2, 6-1. Mixed Doubles: O'Hara Wood and Mrs. Chambers beat Radcliffe and Miss Lee 6-1, 6-4. Men's Doubles:—Woosnam and Turnbull beat Watt and Tuckey 6-0, 6 2, 6-3.

SPLENDID NEW FEATURE.

Striking "Cologne Post" Series of Football Articles.

BY FAMOUS PLAYERS.

A new, and what is likely to prove tremendously popular, feature is being introduced for the benefit of "Cologne Post" readers, and more especially for those—and who is not?—who are interested in football. We shall be publishing periodically, articles treating the great Association game from novel and attractive points of view by eminent authorities on the subject. Altogether there will be eight contributions, six of which will be written by international footballers and the remaining two by men of high standing in the football world. In view of the unprecedented popularity of football this season the articles will, doubtless, prove immensely interesting and will be one of our most pleasing features.

Below we give the names of our contributors, with the titles of the articles in the order in which they will appear.

Contributor	Title
Col. Sir Henry Norris, M.P. Late Chairman of Fulham and Director of the Arsenal Club.	"What Makes a Good Football Ground?"
W. McCracken, Newcastle United and Ireland's Full-back.	"Holding an Advantage."
J. W. Bache, Mid-Rhondda and England. (For many years Aston Villa's Captain.)	"The Cares of a Captain."
A. Donaldson, Bolton Wanderers' Outside-right and Scottish International.	"Can Foul Play be Stopped?"
Horace Barnes, Manchester City, for whom that Club paid £2,500.	"When Science meets Dash."
C. M. Buchan, Sunderland and England. Admittedly the brainiest forward at present playing.	"Football's Silent Signals."
Jesse Pennington, West Bromwich Albion and England.	"Gambling and the Game."
S. Puddefoot, West Ham United and England's Centre-forward.	The feelings of an International.

31st LABOUR GROUP FOOTBALL.

5th Labour Coy's Unbroken Record of Success.

In the 21st Labour Group Football League the 5th Labour Coy. met the 180th Labour Coy. on Friday evening. The 180th Coy. have a very fine record in all the sports promoted by the 31st Labour Group. Last May they won the football knock-out competition when the 5th met them in the final tie.

Interest in the game was very keen, both Coys. fielded strong sides, which were well supported by spectators, especially 180th Coy.

The game started at a very fast pace, both sides striving hard to open the score. The 5th forwards, could make little headway against the home defence, as the backs especially were playing a grand game. The home forwards repeatedly challenged the visitors goal, and but for the fine goalkeeping of Lt. Wilkinson the score would have been more than 1—0 at half time. Stevenson found the net after 15 minutes play.

In spite of the heat, the game on restarting showed no tendency to slacken, rather the contrary, as the 5th men were bent on the equaliser, 180th men were putting all they knew in for No. 2. About twenty minutes of the second half had gone when Stevenson again found the net with a beautiful "left footer." A penalty was awarded against the 5th for hands, but Lt. Wilkinson brought off a grand save from Walker's kick. There was very little doubt now as to the winners for the 180th forwards were showing a marked superiority in combination.

In the closing stages Crabtree (centre half) wormed his way through, and his drive left the 5th goalie helpless.

The final whistle came with 180th Coy. victors by three goals to nil, and, incidentally, leaving them with an unbeaten record in the Labour Group matches.

"B" SIEGE PARK WHIST DRIVE.

The personnel of Headquarters and Workshops of "B" Corps Siege Park held a very successful whist drive in the recreation room at Carlswerk-Mülheim on Monday evening.

Although all tables prepared were not occupied, a good number sat down and a pleasant evening was spent.

Following were the prize winners:—1, Sgt. Bellenger, F.E.: 2, Pte. Cassel, G.C.: booby. Pte. Edwards, P.J.

It is hoped to hold another drive in the near future and judging by the enthusiasm shown by those taking part in the above, a much larger assembly will be expected.

LABOUR CORPS CRICKET.

Presentation of Medals to 180th Company Team.

The 31st Labour Group cricket league was brought to a close on Thursday by the presentation of medals by the Labour Commandant Col. Skipwith. The winning team (the 18th Labour Coy.) was opposed by a team selected from the remainder of the group and most enjoyable cricket was witnessed.

The Group team went in first led by Walker and Wilson who soon seemed quite at home with the bowling. Runs came fairly fast and the pair seemed fit for a long stay. The fielding was not at all good at first but the ground was very hard and the condition of the out-field made conditions very difficult. The first wicket to fall was Wilson's to a good ball from Smart. The next three fell quickly but Walker remained steady and kept the scoring going. A stand was made when Withington joined him and the score was nearly a hundred before Smart spoilt the partnership. Walker's 38 included a 5 and several 4's, an excellent innings which kept his team together. The remaining wickets fell quickly and the side was all out for 92. Smart's bowling was responsible for most of the wickets, his record being 6 for 27.

A Big Task.

The 180th Coy. had a big task before them and the chances were all against a win in the time, though by careful play a draw seemed possible. Smart and Windle opened the innings but the wickets collapsed in a most disheartening way till five were down for less than thirty. When Capt. Brown went in play became more lively and one realised there were still hopes of a draw. He was joined by Hoppe and the pair began hitting in splendid style all round the wickets. The score crept up and with only a few minutes to go stood at 80. Hoppe evidently thought a win was possible, and in the excitement was run out after making 24, including four 4's. Burroughs who replaced him kept up the pace and Capt. Brown soon scored the winning hit. A moment later he was caught and bowled by Werkmen and then chaired off the field. Stumps were drawn at six o'clock when the score was 100. After an almost hopeless start the match was pulled off by Capt. Brown and Cpl. Hoppe who put on 54 between them in half an hour.

After the match Col. Skipwith who umpired throughout the game, presented medals to the 180th Labour Coy. as winners of the cricket league. A most successful afternoon was made the more enjoyable by the presence on the ground of tea and refreshments as well as the company canteen.

Season's Summary.

The following is a summary of the 180th Labour Coy's. cricket season. The team also took part in the "Cologne Post" competition and did very creditably in the Cologne Southern League.

"AUF WIEDERSEHEN."

Battery's Farewell Function and Presentation of Medals.

"C" Battery of the 245th Bde. (W.R.) R.F.A. (T) on Thursday evening took the opportunity of holding a farewell gathering in the Battery's dining hall, Solingen, prior to demobilization. The O.C. (Major J. Powley) was responsible for the happy idea of presenting the medals which the men under his command carried off at the Bde's. sports at Kirchtroisdorf. On that occasion they were the champion battery of the Bde. united efforts bringing off first prizes for officers' driving drill and men's driving drill. Individual prizes won were Dvr. Hodgson first in the potato race, V.C. race, led-horse jumping; Dvr. Ford first in individual jumping and third in the potato race, Dvr. Levin third in the jumping competition, while Dvrs. Hodgson and Ford won first prize for half section jumping.

The O.C. who was supported by Lieuts. Castle, Daubuz, Ritchie and Scroggs, thanked the men for their co-operation with him. Since they had been under his command he said, they had worked very hard and could not have done better. He was very pleased with the spirit in which they entered the sports, and he congratulated the drivers who did so well on that occasion. He would always have happy recollections of the time he had spent with them.

A good repast was provided, on which the O.C. congratulated the kitchen staff. After dinner an excellent entertainment was given by members of the "Imps" Concert Party, Lieut. Ritchie, Sgt. McCall, Gunners Clarke, Bennett and others.

B.S.M. Bedgrave, who excellently carried out the arrangements, made an able chairman.

TWO-DAY-MATCH.

Rhine Army Eleven Prove Too Good For Sixth Corps.

PLEASING CRICKET.

On Sunday and Monday the Officers Sports Club Cricket Ground at Lindenthal was the scene of a struggle between the Rhine Army eleven and the VI Corps. Both sides were strongly represented, and while the Rhine Army were somewhat easy victors, winning by nine wickets, the game was marked by a number of pleasing incidents and really good cricket was the order. The VI Corps won the toss and batted first but were unable to overcome the Rhine Army attack and were all dismissed for the modest total of 60. Col. Montgomery (19) and Capt. Graham (14) were the only batsmen to reach double figures.

Major Morgan and Lieut. Astill each got three wickets while Capts. Dickinson and Fowler accounted for two apiece.

Capts. Stanyforth and Chrystall first represented the Rhine Army at the wicket but the latter remained only a short time. Capt. Dove succeeded him and gave a delightful display of hard hitting; in quick time he reached 74 before being caught at mid-off. Stanyforth meanwhile played steady cricket and compiled a useful 46 when he was dismissed by a ball from Col. Montgomery. A collapse ensued and the only other players to reach double figures were Col. Thurston (21) and Capt. Fowler (18 not out) Col. Hartley bowled in splendid form when he went on a second time and had the remarkable avarage of 5 wickets for 4 runs. The Rhine Army total was 178.

Second Innings.

Brig.-Gen. Tandy and Capt. Graham opened the second innings for the VI Corps and put up 52 for the first wicket; Capt. Graham who was caught contributed 29. Gen. Tanby continued to bat well until a rising ball from Lieut. Astill was reponsible for his dismissal by a catch in the slips. His total was 42. The good example of the first wicket pair was not emulated by their successors with the exception of Col. Hartley who played forceful cricket for his 24. The total was 154, which left the Rhine Army only 35 runs to get to win. Capt. Chrystall and Lieut. Astill, however, failed to reach the total before being separated, but they were obtained for the loss of Capt. Chrystall's wicket, Lieut. Astill being 21 not out.

Football Required.

"B" Corps Siege Park have a few open dates (Wednesdays and Saturdays) and will be glad to play any team in the vicinity of Cologne.

Will secretaries of teams requiring fixtures kindly drop a line to the Sports Secretary of "B" Corps Siege Park who will be pleased to arrange dates.

ARMY FOOTBALL.

Important Fixtures for the Season.

At the annual meeting of the Army Football Association it was decided to run a series of Army matches, and arrangements have already been made as follows: October 23rd v. Cambridge University (away); November 15th, v. R.M.C., Sandhurst (home); November 22nd, v. Oxford University (away); December 27th, v. Corinthians (home); February 11th, v. R.M.A. Woolwich (away); and February 14th, v. Corinthians (away). Other opponents that will be met are the Royal Navy F.A. and the Royal Air Force F.A., Vivian Woodward's XI., Swindon, and probably Chelsea and Queen's Park, Glasgow. The home games will be played at Aldershot. The Army team will be under the direction of Captain F. Martin, of the Grenadier Guards, who for many years was the honorary secretary of the Household Brigade Cup. Owing to the formation of the Royal Navy Football Association, the Royal Marines have withdrawn from the Army Cup.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Oyez! oyez! oyez!

I hope to see a large crowd spending an afternoon of innocent mirth and joy at the W.R.A.F. Revelry this afternoon at Süd-Park, for which I hear a most delightful programme has been arranged. The Wrafs are overflowing with inventive genius and noted for their powers of organisation and it will not be their fault if the affair is not a bumping success.

Another "Buzzer's" Blow.

Demobilization has again dealt the "Buzzers" a severe blow. The inimitable Doctor Dozie (Spr. Unwin) and Tom Gallon have put away their khaki and their departure has left a big gap in the party. Are there any out-of-work comedians in the Rhine Army who would like to fill up this gap? If the party can be reinforced there is no reason why its Buzz should not soon be heard again in the Rhineland.

Can You Act?

Owing to demobilization there are more vacancies for actors in "Strife," and I am asked to publish the following:—"Will any officer or other rank who has the slightest knowledge of acting call or communicate with Lieut. S. E. Percy at Amusements Office, Kommödien Strasse or at the Deutsches Theatre between 5 and 6 in the evening? "Strife" will be produced at the Deutsches Theatre on Monday, October 6th. for one week and full rehearsals of the play will start on Thurday 25th Sept., and take place daily at the theatre from 2.30 to 5 p.m.

"Man and Superman."

Than in their production of "Man and Superman" at the Deutsches Theatre for the first three days of this week the ever popular Rhine Army Dramatic Company have seldom been seen to greater advantage. George Bernard Shaw's play is correctly styled a comedy and a philosophy. While the author's treatment of social and moral questions provides food for a fund of serious thought, there is a wealth of comedy throughout. The feature of the production is the battle of wills between Ann Whitefield and John Tanner, in which the former eventually gains a somewhat doubtful victory. These remarkable characters demand the very highest talent and in Miss Shirley King and Lieut. S.E. Percy this was forthcoming. John Tanner is a unique personality, the impersonation of which calls for the maximum of self-assertion and strength of character, for he is the champion of a philosophy embodying drastic changes in the moral code.

A difficult Task.

Mr. Percy is given plenty of scope for his wonderful powers, the piece being especially suited to his particular style. And by Miss Shirley King the equally strong part of "Ann" was faultlessly portrayed. She sets herself a very difficult task, no less then the subjection of the adamant will of "Jack," but, woman like, she perseveres until her heart's desire has been realised. The other characters were also finally sustained, Capt. Gordon-Blight handled the somewhat difficult part of "Octavius" with great skill and gave a realistic presentation of the weaker, artistic temperament.

The Prudish Old Gent.

Lt. Humphrey-Hope made an excellent Roebuck Ramsden, inimitably representing the prudish old gentleman of antiquated principles. "Violet," with a predominant weakness for the good things of this world, is well suited to Miss Gabriele Paul's delightful mannerisms, while Miss Inez Bensusan in the part of Miss Susan Ramsden, the well-meaning, but easily shocked old maid, is quite at home and displays marked ability. Major A. C. Pollock had a somewhat minor part in that of Hector Malone, but he gave evidence of his capabilities, as did also Lieut. R. D. Linford as Old Malone. The observant cockney chauffeur was well played by Lieut. D. A. Onions. Altogether a very pleasing production, worthy of the reputation of the Company and upon which they are to be warmly congratulated.

JACQUES.

Tom Reece.

Tom Reece, who has been racing a good deal during the summer, gave Doncaster a miss in order to get into strong practice for his many important billiards engagements ahead.

BRITISH ARMY OF THE RHINE ATHLETIC CHAMPIONSHIP

Will be held on 17th & 18th September commencing at 14.30 hours on P. & R. T. School Ground, Riehl, when the following events will be decided:

100 Yards.
440 Yards.
880 Yards.
1 Mile.
3 Miles.
120 Yards Hurdle Race.
1 Mile Relay Race.
Hign Jump.
Long Jump.
Putting the Shot.
Tug-of-War.
Basket Ball.
Cross Country Race.

Boxing Championships will be held at 17.30 hours on 17th and 20.00 hours 18th., in the large Hall of the Burgergesellschaft, near B.E.L. Club.

Refreshments will be obtainable on the Sports Ground.

Trams to Sports Ground.
From Deutscher Ring No. 12. From Hohenzollern Bridge No. 14 to Zoological Gardens, then change to No. 12.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Ready to Challenge.
Alf Felton, the Australian sculler, is now in a position to issue a definite challenge to Ernest Barry, champion.

The Motor-Cycle Trials.
There has been a very fine entry for the Six Days' Motor-Cycle Trial, which is taking place this week. Private owners and manufacturers have entered teams.

Over Six Feet.
Iremonger, the veteran goalkeeper of Notts County, stands 6ft. 5¼ ins; Crabtree, the Blackburn custodian, 6 ft. 2½ ins; and Lawrence, of Derby, another goalkeeper, goes 6 ft. 2¼ ins.

Beckett-Carpentier Date.
Prior to the commencement of the contest between Eugene Criqui and Walter Ross at the Holborn Stadium to-morrow Mr. C. B. Cochran will personally announce from the ring the date and place of the contest between Beckett and Carpentier.

Diadem and Donoghue.
Donoghue scored his first victory since his accident at York when Diadem won a great race in the Town Moor Handicap from Quadrille and Brigand. It was indeed a brilliant performance under 9st 12lb., and it was generally regretted that Lord D'Abernon's mare did not oppose Irish Elegance on the previous day.

Doing Well.
Tottenham Hotspur are at the top of the Second Division table. The Spurs are doing exceedingly well.

Walking Entries.
No fewer than 94 entries were received for the open scratch walking race from London to Brighton for the "Victory" Cup, which started from the Clock Tower, Westminster.

Keysoe.
The St. Leger winner, Keysoe, must now come into the argument for the Cesarewitch. A filly capable of winning the final classic in a trot simply cannot be left out.—"Sporting Life."

The Brothers Gunn.
Following upon the recent announcement of George Gunn, the famous Notts and England cricketer, going to South Africa, comes the news that his brother, John Gunn, is to undertake a similar trip.

Dr. Guttery Again.
Dr. Guttery, president of the National Free Church Council, said an asylum superintendent had written him declaring that boxing was clean sport, and made of the best elements of national life. "An asylum," said Dr. Guttery, "was just the place whence one would expect a defence of modern pugilism."

Thames Week-End.
The programme for the week-end on the river looked more like that for the middle of the season. There were three regattas.

Tall and Heavy.
Of the three goalkeepers engaged by Millwall F. Sparkes, of Newcastle, is the tallest and heaviest man in the side. He stands six feet high, and tips the beam at 12 stone, 8lbs.

Joe Bowker.
It will come as an agreeable surprise to all who love scientific boxing to learn that the famous little ex-bantam-weight champion of the world, Joe Bowker, will be seen in the ring again shortly.

Mr. A. E. Barton's Bloodstock.
Mr. A. E. Barton having disposed of his stallion Ambassador is now going to sell off his mares and foals, and these come under the hammer at the Second October sales at Newmarket.

A Nerve-Bracer.
There can be no doubt whatever that, to the average spectator, football is a nerve-bracer when taken in reasonable doses. Some people it affects detrimentally. Like new wine, it gets into their heads and causes them to talk and behave queerly. Such folk are not numerous, however.

A Different Crowd.
It is very pleasing to be able to record a very welcome change in the manner of the crowds attending the big football matches in England. They are watchful, critical, appreciative, and well controlled.

Quietly Training.
In the delightful surroundings of Wembley, Walter Ross, the bantam-weight boxing champion, is quietly training for his contest with Eugène Criqui, the Frenchman, at the Holborn Stadium tomorrow.

The One and Only.
Portsmouth's defeat by the Palace leaves Queen's Park Rangers with the distinction of being the only club in the three principal leagues that has not yet lost a goal this season.

Like Auld Lang Syne.
There is a prospect of a money match in the old-time fashion between Mayo and Abe Mitchell on the one hand, and George Duncan and Alec Herd on the other.

Where Driscoll Excelled.
People often ask me to explain the secret of Driscoll's cleverness—just where he excelled compared with other champions—and my answer is: "By his wonderful timing of punches and his uncanny judgment of distance."—Charles Barnett in "All Sports Weekly."

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

The Old Rhine Bank.

Just as York water gate in the Embankment Gardens and the Strand itself mark old-time positions of the Thames bank, so we can find traces here of former limits of the Rhine. At the back of the Railway Administration building runs a street called "Altes Ufer." We can trace the old bank again in the street called "Yor St. Martin," somewhat to the north of the Heumarkt; inscriptions on the houses at either end of this street show that the river was once here. It is probably 1000 years since the Rhine flowed in this latter position, as one reads of the river being filled in about this spot in the 10th century to connect the island, on which the earliest Roman altar was erected, with the main land.

A fine Record.

In sport the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. have probably the best record of any unit in Rhineland, thanks mainly to a keen sporting spirit among the men, rightly guided and controlled by their capable sports officer. Last season both their "rugger" and "soccer" teams were undefeated and in the "Cologne Post" cricket cup competition they were only beaten in the final. This is a record of which the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. may justly be proud and of which many other units may well be envious.

The Bootblack.

We all know that the bootblack is an essential part of modern life. At every railway terminus at home he is to be found plying his brushes, but more especially for men. Very rarely does one see a lady solicit this service, a fact which made all the more noticeable an incident near the Cologne station on Sunday morning. Here a bootblack plies his trade on a chair and screened by a huge umbrella. Perched on the chair was a frau who, quite oblivious of the crowds entering and leaving the station premises, was displaying high legged boots for the application of a high polish. Not an extraordinary incident but one many would avoid.

To become Army Schoolmasters.

Competitive examinations to fill about 20 Studentships at the Duke of York's, Royal Hibernian, and Queen Victoria Military Schools, are to be held during the four days, 9th to 13th December, 1919. Candidates must be between 18 and 19 years of age on 30th November, 1919. Applications to be admitted as candidates should be made not later than 20th November, and should be addressed in writing (in unstamped letter) to the Deputy Director of Staff Duties (Education), War Office, Cornwall House, Stamford Street, London, S.E.1., who will furnish intending candidates with any further information they may require. Students at these Schools will be trained for the appointment of Army Schoolmaster. An Army Schoolmaster is eligible, at the discretion of the Board of Education, to be recognised as a certificated teacher should he desire civil employment on discharge.

On Striking Matches.

Many are the ingenious deductions of the detective of fiction, but their observations are often limited and their deductions inaccurate. The theory of Lecocq about the manner in which men and women strike matches is not strictly true. Admittedly, in sweeping lackdaisical sort of manner, woman invariably strikes a match away from her: this is due to the peculiar perverseness of her nature and not from any other reason. Why, even the inveterate female smoker does not deviate from the habit. Then again, have you ever observed a Chinaman, a typical denizen of the East, strike a match? No? Well, he, as is the custom in his country, makes a stabbing movement with his match, which, when the head strikes the box, ignites and he lights his weed. But, then, perhaps our friend Lecocq has never come in contact with Chinamen.

Conceit.

"It would be a great pity if such a charming young doctor would not marry" allmy friends say to me. They also say that I am pretty, lovable, smart even very smart, and possess just enough carelessness and cheerful dispositions to make happy a young lady, etc. So runs a German marriage offer. English ladies should be thankful they are spared this.

Oxen in Agriculture.

The use of oxen in agriculture has now, it is to be believed, entirely ceased in England. A few years ago they were used for ploughing on hill farms of the South Downs about Lewes, but the best of their picturesque race is now gone. In the Rhineland, however, oxen are still largely used, not for agriculture only but for draught purposes. A few days ago the writer of this paragraph saw a yoke of oxen dragging a heavy load up the steep hill from St. Goar to Rheinfels, and another loaded ox cart, driven by an old man who might have come out of the pages of Grimm, drive out of a woodland clearing on the hills between Rhens and Boppard. The slow, impassive beasts may also be seen patiently ploughing many acres, as one goes south up the Rhine. It is a sight that brings pleasant memories of Southern Europe, the creaking ox-carts of Spain and the teams of the Roman Campagnia.

At the Opera.

Smoking, of course, is forbidden in the Opera House, and one's only opportunity to indulge in that habit is to go outside between the acts. Now when promenading outside one does not hear the warning bell preceding the rise of the curtain, and the consequence is much confusion in finding seats in the dark. This is both annoying to the artistes and the audience. A remedy is needed. So why not a coloured warning light placed conspicuously outside? It would prevent the seeming bad form of the late-comers.

Re-Echoes.

The number of War Savings Certificates sold in France and Flanders during the four weeks ending August 23rd, is 8,980 as compared with 7,423 during the four weeks ending July 26th, 1919.

Single medal riband to be worn correctly should be on the left breas midway between the first and second buttons from the bottom of the collar, 1½-in. from edge of tunic. In many cases ribands are being worn immediately over the centre of breast pocket, and when only one riband is worn it is invisible it carrying the pack.

Why can't the orchestras in the cafés give us something new? We have heard "Alexander's Rag-time Band" repeatedly during the last fortnight.

Judging by the amount of handkerchief wavings and leave-taking associated with the departure of the Rotterdam demobilization boat, Tommy is leaving many friends behind in Germany.

The "Hindenburg" carried a huge crowd on Sunday morning and at least one elderly German couple were visibly affected by the departure of one of the boys on board. Their farewell reminded one of the departure of the "Goodbye train" from Victoria.

The fruit stalls near the Dom do a flourishing trade on Sunday morning, depending for the most part on picnic parties bound for the country.

In the month of May 1919 the electric cars of Cologne carried 16,541,782 persons against 16,150,441 in May 1918.

In the week August 31st to September 6th 413 births were announced; that is 33.77 a year per 1000 inhabitant

NOTES FROM LONDON TOWN.

ANOTHER RISE.

Furnishing nowadays is like falling out of the end carriage of an express—you have to be quick or you will be badly left. A "demob.," under the foolish impression that he would feel the draught less if he furnished his flat by stages, ordered half a set of a particular kind of chair last June. The other day, wishing to complete the set, he found that there had been one or two strikes among the chairmongers lately, and the price had gone up fifty per cent. The shopman swore by the bones of Hepplewhite that there is every prospect of a further rise shortly owing to unrest among the men who fill the varnish pots for the men who hold them for the men who varnish.

FROM MONS TO MILE-END.

During an incursion into the East this week I encountered a very pleasing spectacle—at least it pleased me greatly. It was a middle-aged coster, perched up behind a typical coster moke on a small coster cart. The coster was geniall characteristic of his tribe, and on his coat was the Mons ribbon with the still unauthorised rosette and a silver badge. In face and figure he was as good a reproduction of Old Bill as Capt. Bairns-father himself could have asked to meet, and he was obviously as well pleased with himself and life as any man could be who had fought in the Mons retreat and lived to tell the tale in pure Cockney to his friends and his relations down the Mile-End road. It certainly has been a wonderful war. Here was a hero of the grandest epic in the thrilling history of British arms, a man who had served with the Old Contemptibles when the Hun had things nearly all his own way, flipping his whip above the insolent ears of a moke who evidently knew it was all crack and no sting, and selling windmills and toy balloons for old clothes. No doubt he could tell a story about another kind of balloon, and recall glimpses of windmills with tragic histories. But his entire pose was that of complete and joyous restoration to the serious and happy paths of real life. One did not need the burnished badge of the Middlesex Regiment in his buttonhole to identify an old Die Hard. And instantly there came back to memory the tale, long popular on the Western front, of the irate Die Hard who, after a bad ten minutes with his R.S.M., exclaimed: If ever I meet the perisher apres la guerre, I'll bust every single balloon on his barrow.

THE LAST MAN.

Almost imperceptibly the vistas of the Strand resume their old appearance. The Strand has for five long and thrilling years been the chief happy hunting ground and rendezvous of overseas khaki. Only a few months ago there were more men in than out of khaki to be met there at any hour of the night or day. Now already a Colonial soldier in the Strand is once more becoming almost an object of novel interest. Soon the last of these upstanding sons of the far-flung Empire will have gone back home across the ocean, and the Strand will retain only memories of the days when it was a bivouac for Colonial troops. The colour scheme of the famous London street has completely changed in a few months. The autumnal tints of khaki used to predominate strikingly when one looked down from any window over the colour scheme. We all know the last Anzac to leave the Beach in Gallipoli. They were all the last, and so were our own men. But who will be the last Colonial soldier to leave the Strand. It will be an even more conspicuous distinction. Especially if he leaves without an escort.

"LITTLE DOE" AS A GOLFER.

It is generally thought that H. Doherty did not play golf until he had finished with lawn tennis, but that is a mistake. Fifteen years ago I remember meeting him at the Ganton Links, Yorkshire. He had come over from Scarborough, five miles away, before the start of the Yorkshire tournament. Unfortunately, the afternoon turned out wet, and we sat in the club-house waiting for a tram back to Scarborough. There were few motor cars in these days. To pass the time "Little Doe" proposed a novel form of amusement. He opened a window about two feet, took his mashie and pitched a ball through the opening. He soon found someone to "take him on" at his game, and after each shot the window was lowered a little further. You can imagine what the end was. But before the window was smashed the original stake of half-a-crown had risen to a substantial amount. At the time of his death Doherty had a handicap plus three at golf. He played several rounds in the last Amateur Championship at Sandwich in 1914, and in the previous year he won the London Amateur Foursome in partnership with H. E. Taylor.

BUSMAN'S UNDERSTUDY.

Now that happily the danger of a general transport strike seems remote, it is permissible to mention one rather amusing step taken some time ago by our responsible authorities against such a contingency. A circular was privately sent round the Inns of Court to barristers—practising and otherwise—asking whether they would volunteer for some form of public service in the event of national necessity. There was a very gratifying response by the gentlemen of the long robe, I believe, and a great many of the eminent lights of the law seemed particularly anxious to try their hands as bus conductors. It would have been quite an interesting experience to have a K.C or some leading junior barrister standing on the conductor's step and collecting the fares. But I doubt whether it would have worked very well. There is a lot to learn before one becomes a fully qualified and "alive" bus conductor. Among other obligatory subjects are the instantaneous detection of bad and foreign coins, and an instinctive knowledge of where old ladies really want to get off.

GOLF AND THE SEXES.

Should women join golf clubs on the same terms as men? The question is agitating many committees just now. Of course, the general practice where there is not a separate course for women is to admit them to five-day membership at a reduced entrance fee and a reduced annual subscription. This means that they are not permitted to play on Saturdays and Sundays, when the links are most crowded. But during the war, when most golf courses were more or less deserted, this rule was relaxed to a great extent, and though no change was made in the annual subscription, women were allowed to play freely on every day of the week. This privilege is now in process of being withdrawn, and the women players are protesting rather vehemently. The suggestion is put forward that they should continue to enjoy the privileges of full seven-day membership if they elect to pay the same subscription as the men. This seems a reasonable compromise and will probably be adopted in a good many instances. One new club has been started near London, where no distinction whatever is drawn between the sexes, though efforts are being made to bring in girl players with short handicaps who may be trusted not to hold up the course too much by foozled shots. The experiment is being matched with a good deal of interest. So far as it has been tested it is said to have been attended with a considerable degree of success.

HIS MAJESTY'S APPEAL.

MEDALLION FOR PATRIOTIC EMPLOYERS OF SOLDIERS DISABLED IN THE WAR.

ENTENTE DECIDES TO QUIT RUSSIA.

THE KING'S CALL.

COUNTRY'S DEBT TO DISABLED HEROES.

The Government voluntary scheme for securing employment for men disabled in the war came into force on Monday. A proclamation by the King reminds the nation of its duty to the fighting men "broken in our wars."

The proclamation charges.—

"Employers of labour, that they do bind themselves to take into and keep in their service as many, being thus disabled, as their several businesses will allow, not being held back in their performance of this high and solemn obligation either by fear of inconvenience or loss, but rather omitting nothing which will secure that occupation be found without delay for all these whose lack of employment would offend the general conscience

"To this end We have signified Our will and pleasure that the National Roll of those who undertake to employ such men in accordance with the plans prepared by Our Minister of Labour shall be styled and known as the King's National Roll."

It is estimated that 700,000 disabled men are already employed, leaving 50,000 on the labour market, and another 50,000 awaiting discharge from hospital.

A scheme for distributing the men among employers has been drawn up and discussed with the principal trades of the country. In the engineering and shipbuilding trades discussions are still taking place. Briefly, the scheme proposes that every employer having 10 or more workers should have among them a proportion—where possible not less than 1 in 20—of disabled ex-Service men. The employer will then be entitled to a place on the King's National Roll, and may use a "Seal of Honour" on his correspondence, an official device which will show that he is helping the disabled.

The Ministry of Labour states that the disabled men will not be used to dilute skilled labour. Unskilled men are to be trained by the Ministry, or by arrangement in the employer's own establishment. The employer is to be relieved by the taxpayer of the extra liability under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Wages of disabled men are to be fixed according to agreements made on their behalf, with the Trade Advisory Committees. In no case will the possession of a disability pension be taken into account in computing the rate of wages, and there will be no State subsidy to enable the employer to make up the wages to the amount fixed.

Already Government departments employ disabled men to the extent of 4% per cent. of their total permanent and temporary staff.

The "disabled man" is defined as

(a) Any man in possession of a disablement pension.

(b) Any man who has received from the Ministry of Pensions a gratuity for a minor disablement or aggravation of a complaint, and who is adjudged by the Local Employment Committee to be incapacitated, wholly or in part, from following his normal occupation.

All employers are to be circularised with a form of undertaking to join in the scheme.

DEFIANT SINN FEIN.

"WE SHALL GO AHEAD."

"Business as usual" is the Sinn Fein's motto. The staff at 6, Harcourt-street, Dublin where the police made a thorough search and carried away a bulky parcel of documents, are still carrying on.

"The significant part of the raid," said Mr. Arthur Griffith, who is in charge during Mr. de Valera's absence in America, to me, "is that the police seized correspondence and documents relating to trade relations in the course of formation between the Sinn Fein Parliament and firms in America and foreign countries. On the average they make a raid every six weeks, but this is the first time they have seized documents relating to trade matters which have nothing to do with the political side of the question."

"We shall still go ahead," said Mr. Griffith, referring to Viscount French's proclamation of the Sinn Fein Parliament. "As we represent three-fourths of the people of Ireland, it is strange that a British field-marshal should be able to declare these people illegal in their own country."

Dublin is quiet at present. No arrests have yet been made in connection with the murder of Detective Hoey.

CASTLE IN SPAIN FOR CARL.

It is reported from Santander, Spain that the ex-Emperor Charles of Austria and his family are expected there in a few days. The royal Magdalena Palace is being prepared for them.

ABANDONED.

RUSSIA TO BE LEFT TO ITS OWN FATE.

The Supreme Council of the Powers in Paris has approved of the British policy of evacuation of North Russia. The Powers adhere to the principle that Russia must work out her own salvation on her own lines, always provided she does not interfere with the rights and liberties of her neighbours. The recapture of Onega from the Bolshevists has been effected, and there are reports of other successes in the Archangel province, and between Moscow and the Volga.

A TISSUE OF LIES.

The charges made by Mr. William C. Bullitt, formerly of the American Peace Commission in Paris, against Mr. Lloyd George of having misled the public by denying in the House of Commons that approaches had been made by the Russian Soviet Government to the Allies have stirred Mr. Lloyd George into a double denial.

One of Mr. Bullitt's allegations before the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee was that after Mr. Lloyd George's statement in Parliament Mr. Philip Kerr, the Prime Minister's Secretary, had called upon him (Mr. Bullitt) and apologized for his chief's action. Mr. Bullitt affirmed that he had gone to Russia, taking with him suggestions from Mr. Kerr, containing terms upon which peace with the Bolshevists might be considered, and that Lenin sent back proposals "which virtually tallied with the conditions laid down by Colonel House and Mr. Kerr."

"Mr. Kerr explained," said Mr. Bullitt to the Committee, "that when Mr. Lloyd George got home intending to recommend favourable action on the Soviet proposal, he found that Lord Northcliffe and Mr. Winston Churchill had rigged up a Conservative majority which intended to slay him if he did so."

The first denial was from Paris, and in the following terms:—

Paris, Sept. 15.—Reuter's Correspondent is authorized to state that the account given by the American, Mr. Bullitt, to the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations of private conversations between himself and Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Philip Kerr (the Prime Minister's Secretary), as reported in the New York telegrams printed in Paris this morning, is a tissue of lies.

Later in the day the following statement was also issued in London:—

The Press Association is authorized to state that the reports appearing in the Press yesterday of conversations suggested by Mr. Bullitt to have taken place between the Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, and himself are entirely unfounded.

SYRIAN PROBLEM.

BRITISH TO EVACUATE NORTHERN AREA.

As the result of the meeting between Mr. Lloyd George and M. Clemenceau a temporary arrangement was arrived at on the Syrian question, and this has been approved by the Supreme Council. The decisions give full satisfaction to both countries, especially to France. The agreement will remain in force until America announces her intentions regarding the future of the Turkish dominions. A telegram from Paris states that the Syrian arrangement provides that the British will withdraw their troops to Lower Syria and Palestine and will leave the French in Upper Syria. The French will not, however, occupy Aleppo, Damascus or Homs. It is understood, the telegram continues, that the French will negotiate with Emir Feisul concerning the exact boundaries of the region which they will occupy. Great Britain will probably be represented at the Peace Conference by Sir Eyre Crowe, who will be made Minister Plenipotentiary.

ARMY COUNCIL'S RHINE VISIT.

The following telegrams have passed between General Sir William R. Robertson, and the Secretary, Army Council, War Office, London:

"All ranks Rhine Army desire to express their pleasure at the historic visit of the Army Council, and hope that their stay with Army has been an agreeable one."

"Please convey to all ranks Rhine Army the thanks of the Army Council for their message of Aug. 21. The Council have greatly valued the opportunities of personal touch with the troops afforded them by their visit, of which they retain the pleasantest memories. The Council were deeply impressed with the soldierly bearing and the fine spirit shown by the troops under your command, who worthily uphold the best traditions of the British Army."

WAR GRATUITIES.

70,000 PAYMENTS IN SIX WEEKS.

The war gratuity granted in December last has now been issued to the legal representatives of over 100,000 officers and men who died in the War. Of these issues 70,000 have been made during the past six weeks. The cases of all officers and men who died on or before 30th June, 1916, have now been taken in hand, and if the representatives of any of those who died on or before that date have not already received a communication from the War Office on the subject of the gratuity, they should send particulars at once to the Secretary, War Office, Imperial Institute, London, S.W. 7. Until further notice, no application should be made in respect of officers or men who died after 30th June 1916.

In view of numerous applications received from representatives of officers who were appointed direct to temporary commissions, it is announced that a war gratuity is issuable only in the case of Officers who held permanent commissions or were promoted from the ranks to permanent or temporary commissions. Officers appointed direct to temporary commissions are entitled only to the gratuity issuable under the Royal Warrant for Pay and this gratuity is paid when the officers' balances are issued.

108 DEATH SENTENCES.

COST OF INDIAN RIOTS.

At a meeting of the Viceroy of India's Council, sixty questions were asked by Indian members regarding the riots. In the replies it was stated that 852 persons were tried, 108 sentenced to death, 265 transported for life, 104 sentenced to prison for terms over three years, 356 to forfeiture of property, that 18 had been executed, that 488 sentences had been reduced, and 332 forfeitures remitted. Three hundred and one persons had been killed at Amritsar, where the number of wounded was not known. Six were killed and forty-six wounded at Lahore, and fifty-eight persons were flogged at Lahore. Eight hundred and fifty-two persons in the Punjab were tried by the Martial Law Commissions, and 581 convicted; 1,437 were tried by the summary courts, and 1,179 convicted.

The Council expressed its loyal devotion and congratulations to his Majesty, and its heartfelt thanks to the Army and Navy forces.

"PEACEFUL PENETRATION."

GERMAN DESIGNS IN CANADA.

English despatches warn Canada that the Germans are planning, through emigration societies, to make renewed efforts in the direction of "peaceful penetration" of the Dominion as soon as the embargo on the entry of enemy aliens is raised. No official announcement is forthcoming, but it is hardly probable that the authorities would welcome any extensive German peaceful invasion; they are more likely to follow Australia's course of prohibiting the settlement of Germans in Canada during a stated period. The general feeling of distrust towards Germany is as strong as ever, probably stronger owing to the rapid demobilization sending large numbers of Canadian overseas troops home. It is probable that the matter will be dealt with in the present session of Parliament, now that the Peace Treaty has been ratified without useless amendments and reservations.

BELGIAN EX-SOLDIERS DEMONSTRATE.

The Belgian National Soldiers' Federation to-day organised a demonstration at Brussels which was attended by more than 120,000 demobilised soldiers. The object of the demonstration was to protest against the present position of widows and orphans of soldiers who fell in the field, of disabled men, and all ex-soldiers. A delegation handed to the Minister of Finance the claims of the soldiers and a petition to the King, declaring that the Grants Bill was only a lamentable deception. The petition demanded legislation to compel employers to employ demobilised soldiers in conditions which will enable their families to obtain the necessities of life and enable the soldiers to rebuild their homes; greater speed in the payment of gratuities and pensions; the punishment of traitors, informers, and profiteers.

TAR AND FEATHERS SEQUEL.

Lieutenant F. T. Wright, of the Royal Fusiliers, who was the prime mover in the sensational "tar and feathers" drama on June 6, has been released from arrest, and will no longer be obliged to report to the assistant provost marshal.

No information is to be obtained with regard to any decision having been arrived at by the court-martial which tried Lieutenant Wright last Wednesday.

Owing to objections to the Austrian Peace Treaty, M. Bratiano, the Rumanian Premier, has resigned.

The resignation of the Serbian Cabinet is also announced for a similar reason, but has been authorised by the Prince Regent to remain in office until the crisis has been solved.

"DRY" PERILS.

EVILS THAT PUSSYFOOT BRINGS.

Although Prohibition has had no real test in the United States, even after a period of more than two months, much evidence has been obtained of the numerous evils which have arisen as the result of the restrictions placed on the consumption of alcohol. The great majority of cities so far are not deprived of whisky cocktails or wines, because it has been impossible to prevent restaurateurs and public-house owners from getting rid of their stocks to trusted customers, but the poorer classes by this time are really living under prohibition conditions, and, in consequence, many are resorting to harmful substitutes. It is reported by the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness in New York, for instance, that there is an alarming increase in the number of deaths and blindness resulting from drinking wood alcohol as a substitute for grain alcohol. The lesser evil is the increase in chewing tobacco and the gum habit, and the Board of Health is protesting that it is becoming impossible to keep the public streets and conveyances sanitary as a result.

Even the half-hearted Prohibition now in effect here promises to be the most expensive moral crusade ever conducted by the Government, and the Attorney-General and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue between them declare that they require £120,000 a month to enforce it. Americans generally anticipate one or two years "hard scratching" for their liquor, but in the large cities it is confidently believed that before the General Election next year the impossibilities of national prohibition will be so apparent that a Government pledged to nullify the terms of constitutional amendment will be elected.

10,000 HELD UP.

MARSEILLES PARALYSED.

Economic life at Marseilles is almost entirely suspended by the general strike. In sympathy with the dockers, the tram workers struck for a day, and threaten to take further action if the strike is not settled. Forty ships are in the roadstead, as they cannot be unloaded, and with the sailors on strike passenger traffic to Corsica, Tunisia, and Algeria is stopped.

The latest news is more hopeful. It is reported that the Labour Federation and the secretaries of the principal trade unions and the various trades on strike have accepted the proposals previously made by the masters, which they had rejected.

The sailors have no grievances; they have joined the strike movement in order to help the dockers to obtain the increase of wages sought. Their action has caused great inconvenience, for no fewer than 10,000 passengers have been held up on the quays, many of them in a pitiable condition. An appeal was made to the sailors, and as a result several vessels are to start for Corsica, Algiers, and Bizerta.

Huge quantities of food reach Marseilles, and colonial workers are being employed to unload it. It may be that if a settlement of the strike is not reached soon, the Government will intervene. Meanwhile there is trouble at Cherbourg, where the crane workers in the coal port at Le Homet have struck work.

WE WON'T WORK.

Output in the worsted industry of the Bradford district is restricted because the operatives engaged in the first process of manufacture, viz., woolcombing, will not work overtime, although there is not sufficient labour to run all the machinery available. The employers offered increased wages some weeks back and later offered a bonus to those who worked full overtime. The revised offer has, however, been rejected by an overwhelming majority. It was stated after the meeting that they will not work overtime at any price. Wool warehousemen at their meeting held at the same time, accepted the employers' proposals, but there will be little work for the warehousemen if the woolcombers will not work.

FRIEND, FOE, OR NEITHER.

The Swiss newspapers are gravely exercised by a complicated question of international law raised by the return home of Captain von Freudenreich, a member of a well-known Swiss family.

Captain von Freudenreich, during the war, served in the German Navy as commander of a submarine which sank several Allied vessels. Later he entered the Zeppelin service, and was one of the officers of an airship which bombed Paris.

He has now returned to Berne, and the newspapers ask what the Government will do if the Allies ask for his extradition for trial among the other German submarine and Zeppelin commanders.

FROM GERMAN TO FRENCH ARMY.

Among the recruits who will be drafted for service into the French Army this autumn will be 21,000 men from the liberated provinces of Alsace and Lorraine. Most of these have been in the German Army, from which they were released by the revolution last November. Many of them do not speak French, and the officers speaking German will be put in command of them at first till they learn.

GERMAN WAR PLANS.

PROMISES AND THREATS TO DENMARK.

A White-book has been issued in Copenhagen containing the documents relating to the discussions in 1906 and 1907 between Captain Luetken, representing the then Danish Premier and Minister of Defence, M. J. C. Christensen, who is now the leader of one of the Opposition parties, and General von Moltke, the then Chief of the German General Staff, regarding the position of Denmark in case of war.

Von Moltke demanded that better preparations should be made by Denmark to resist a possible attack by Great Britain, and threatened that if Denmark took the enemy's side in a European war it would mean her end. At the same time he promised assistance in resisting Great Britain and every consideration if she took Germany's part.

In a conversation on July 2, 1906, von Moltke said that he had certain knowledge that King Edward had promised M. Delcassé a British landing in Jutland, and in the same conversation he refused to give a declaration that Germany would respect the neutrality of Denmark.

On July 3 von Moltke is represented to have said that a rectification of the frontier of Slesvig could hardly take place until after a war in which Denmark stood on Germany's side.

M. Christensen, in his defence, incidentally says that the King promised him on February 9, 1906, to talk both to the Kaiser and to King Edward about the possibility of a treaty guaranteeing Denmark's neutrality and the preservation of her territory inviolate. King Frederick told him later that he had been unable to secure such treaties.

LEAF FROM LONDON'S BOOK.

DISCIPLINE FOR BOSTON POLICE.

The Boston U.S.A., police strikers have petitioned the municipal authorities for reinstatement on the old conditions, without affiliation to the American Federation of Labour. The authorities, however, refuse this request, and declare that a new force will be organised.

The Attorney-General in his decision states that the policemen lost their positions by striking, which ranks with desertion. Hence reinstatement is impossible. All policemen who want their old positions back again must pass the new civil service examination, and make formal applications for the posts, like newcomers to the force. This attitude is everywhere approved as a lesson in discipline to municipal police throughout the United States.

HOW LONDON WAS SAVED FROM U BOATS.

Interesting revelations of naval warfare were made at Folkestone by Admiral Sir Sydney R. Fremantle. Thirty German submarines were sunk trying to get into the English Channel, said the Admiral, who is in command of the First Battle Squadron. Sir Sydney was speaking at a dinner to officers of the battleships Revenge, Resolution, and Ramilies, and said Folkestone had witnessed the execution of the measures that secured the full effect of the barrage from Folkestone to Cape Gris Nez. Germany had left the bones of thirty submarines at the bottom of the Channel, and gave up the attempt to pass through the Straits of Dover. Had the barrage not been effective, German operations in the Channel would have been greatly facilitated. Seaborne traffic would either have been stopped or very materially reduced. London, as they knew it, would have ceased to exist, and our national life would have been difficult to imagine in the circumstances.

"ALLENBY OF MEGIDDO."

Sir Edmund Allenby in future will be known as Lord Allenby of Megiddo. Megiddo is in Northern Palestine and the scene of one of Lord Allenby's finest exploits. It is said to be identified with the Armageddon of the Scriptures where the last decisive battle will be fought at the Day of Judgment.

DYING POLICE UNION.

Officers and men of the Nottingham City Police to the number of 350 have passed a resolution withdrawing from the Police Union, and the moneys and books have been returned to the head office. The Nottingham men until recently were very active in support of the organization, but with the removal locally of all grievances they have recognized that the necessity no longer exists.

The Dudley and District Branch of the union has also resigned. The decision affects about 150 men in the northern part of Worcestershire.

LAND FOR EX-SERVICE MEN.

Up to last week-end 17,898 ex-Service men had applied for 316,729 acres of land for small holdings in England and 7,473 civilians for 114,716 acres— a total of 25,371 applications for 431,445 acres. Of the 12,322 applicants interviewed by 47 county councils, 10,799 were approved. These comprise over 16,000 who require small holdings amounting to more than 184,000 acres, and 715 who require cottage holdings amounting to 2,430 acres.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS.

(i) Colonels' appointments requiring technical engineering qualifications held by Colonels, Royal Engineers, duly qualified for Engineer pay, will carry Engineer pay in addition to the normal pay for a Colonel (viz., £2 15s. per day), but this additional emolument will not apply to appointments the functions of which consist in the administration of personnel only.

(ii.) Majors and Captains who fill appointments which are classed for allowances, Class 9 (Majors), Class 11 (Captains), respectively, and who as regimental officers would draw the higher rate of regimental pay for length of service, will draw in addition to the normal pay of the appointment the difference between the lower and higher regimental rates.

A Major who fills a Class appointment will draw 2s. 6d. a day in addition to the normal daily rate of pay laid down for the appointment but with no further addition in respect of length of service.

A Captain holding higher rank by Brevet will draw the rate to which he would be entitled if a Captain not holding Brevet rank.

Quartermasters granted temporary combatant rank while filling staff appointments will be permitted to count their service as Quartermasters towards these increments.

(iii) Acting Staff Pay.—The existing rates as laid down in Articles 147-149 and 183 of the Pay Warrant dated December 1, 1914, are abolished. The temporary holder of a staff appointment will in future have his pay increased to the pay of the appointment he fills without any addition to his allowances.

(iv.) An officer who (1) has graduated in the Staff College (p.s.c.) or (2) passed the final examination of the Advanced Class Ordnance College (p.a.c.) will after holding a staff appointment and on relinquishing the pay of that appointment be entitled, while on full pay, to 1s. 6d. a day in addition to the rate of pay laid down for his rank and arm so long as his rank is not above that of substantive Major and he does not hold a staff appointment.

WASHING IN LEMONADE.

A water famine in the mining town of Cowdenbeath, on the Firth of Forth coast, has driven people to great extremities. Inhabitants are actually washing in lemonade. The town's reservoir is practically empty, and the community depend on water from a coal pit and have to carry it to their homes.

HONOUR AND DISHONOUR

The King has made a timely appeal on behalf of the hundred thousand disabled men who are still prevented from returning to work.

It is a touching reminder of the lack of fulfilment of the promise that was made to our men when they left everything to fight in the nation's cause, that none should suffer by serving his country.

Most employers have loyally kept that pledge but many have not. These have placed individual convenience and sordid commercial interest before patriotic duty.

Hence the thousands of disabled who still walk the streets seeking in vain for the job that should be theirs by right.

According to the scheme of the Ministry of Labour for the employment of disabled Service men which the King urges his subjects to support, every employer in the United Kingdom who employs ten or more workers is asked to undertake to employ as many disabled ex-service men as possible, with a minimum of 5 per cent of his total establishment. Those employers who can absorb more than 5 per cent. are strongly urged to do so.

It has to be remembered that the employment of disabled men entails but little hardship on the part of the employer, as experience tends to show that by careful selection of the work, disabled men can, generally speaking, be remuneratively employed. Employers are relieved by the State of any extra liability under the Workmen's Compensation Act which the employment of disabled men may entail.

And the King's proclamation ensures that every employer who gives his support to the national scheme will receive a certificate issued by the Ministry of Labour, and his name will be inscribed on the National Roll referred to in the Royal proclamation.

Every employer whose name appears upon this roll will be entitled to use an official device on his correspondence — a seal of honour — indicating that he recognises the national obligation to the disabled, and that his share therein is gladly undertaken.

This idea has much to commend it and we hope it will have the desired effect of reducing the number of unemployed disabled to a reasonable minimum.

That any appeal from the head of the State should have been necessary is not too creditable to the attitude of many of our business men and in addition to such a Roll of Honour we strongly urge that all who fail to comply with it should be placed upon a Roll of Dishonour.

If there are any employers who still refuse to help the disabled man but for whose gallantry and sacrifice they might not be in business at all, let them bear the public odium of a black list, if no greater punishment is possible.

A GREAT ENGLISHMAN.

To-day is the 210th anniversary of the birth of Dr. Samuel Johnson, "the great Cham of literature," and after six years quiescence, due to more stupendous happenings, enthusiastic Johnsonians have arranged a celebration on an unusually imposing scale. Within the Three Crowns Inn at Lichfield, where the lexicographer and his friend Boswell were wont to pitch their tents from time to time, a sanded floor, candles in brass candlesticks, punch and churchwardens have been requisitioned.

For us, however, the most attractive item in the celebration is the address which Sir Sidney Lee, the new president of the Johnson Society, will deliver at the Guildhall this afternoon. His subject is "Dr. Johnson and Current Affairs."

Had Johnson been alive during the recent protracted struggle one can scarcely imagine he would have been a particularly happy companion, for he keenly resented that curtailment of personal liberty to which we had all perforce to submit.

Great men have sometimes great thirsts, moreover, and Johnson was scarcely partial to milk or lemonade. What was there in Fleet Street and adjacent thoroughfares during Armageddon with which a journalist and man of the world could adequately quench a natural thirst, and what sort of hours prevailed for a confirmed night bird, whose favourite haunts were the taverns of the town? "Fleet Street open day and night," says Mr. Augustine Birrell, "This is what he meant by public order."

Nor, despite the memory of poor Mr. Cecil Chesterton, can we imagine Johnson as a corporal, say, in the London Regiment. No quartermaster in the Army could possibly fit him. The one legislative enactment which would have favourably appealed to him would probably have been the suspension of payments of debt which a kindly Government in its wisdom thoughtfully instituted.

On the other hand Samuel Johnson possessed indomitable courage, a tender heart, powerful mental endowments, unlimited good sense, and a dignity of pride which would have enabled him to weather the recent storm with tolerable ease, and, probably to instil into his fellow-men, if only by his example, that bravery of spirit under vicissitudes, which enabled him to speak of "Death, kind nature's signal of retreat."

The present generation may know more of Jack Johnson than they do of Samuel, but the latter, who is more a personality than an author, is well worthy of the affectionate regard of others besides "lettered hearts." As one critic remarks "his character will bear investigation, and some of his books perusal."

TRAM CATCHING.

A NEW AND EXCITING GAME.

I reside in that peaceful suburb of the Perfume City known as Marienburg, pronounced, so the natives insist, Ma-ree-enbourshl!

My trouble is this; on the remote occasions when I am able to go uptown certain queer things occur. Every tram-car official on No 14 line appears to receive—presumably via telepathy—the knowledge of my intention and thenceforward proceeds to do his utmost to frustrate my desire.

It may be hate, prejudice, or eccentricity; but, on the whole, from rumours I have heard, I am inclined to regard it as a new form of sport adopted to relieve the monotony of their task—anyway, no doubt it is very amusing.

The following little incident takes place every time.

Properly dressed, and with a smart and soldierlike bearing, I stride briskly down Bayenthal Gurtel in the direction of the Rhine embankment, and, upon reaching the rear of the formidable Bismark monument I am gratified to see, invariably, glimmering over the hedge-top, the roofs of a No 14 car—at the moment, stationary at the haltestelle. But there are still a further hundred yards to be covered, and, aware of the object of the game, and of the duplicity and playfulness of my opponents, I make a dash for it!

In a cloud of dust, and perspiring profusely, I whirl round the little decorative garden, trip over a length of water-hose and bound on to the roadway just in time to be mangled by the flying wheels of the aristocratic Rheinuferbahn travelling madly in the opposite direction.

With a brilliant piece of footwork for which, in the ring I am noted, I escape this unpleasant experience, observe that No 14 has disappeared, and lean flabbily against the fence under the sardonic gaze of an adamant Bismark.

The street-car people enjoy themselves even more when, late evening, I, in Cologne, endeavour to return home!

At this psychological moment all the tramway staffs seem to be in collusion!

I have recently noticed that No. 14 stops his car near the Dom, in such a position that he can at once spot me as I approach from around this edifice. No sooner do I come into view than there is a rattle, a crash, a slam on the gong; several would be passengers closely explore the intersticies of the cobbles, and I arrive at the precise moment when the hind legs of No. 14 are vanishing down Bischofsgarten Strasse!

'Still, only fifteen minutes to wait,' I reflect, comfortingly.

Are there?

From that minute Destiny rearranges her entire programme!

After a quarter-of-an-hour has passed I emerge from my brown study and the waiting-hall and search fatuously for my lucky number.

Firstly a No. 6 glides gracefully by; then a couple of No. 18's—a No. 20, following which, Providence having nothing else, at this juncture, with which to provoke me, half-a-dozen No. 6's arrive simultaneously!

A space of a few minutes; and then I am presented with the spectacle of an outlandish road-watering contraption masquerading as a tram-car. This, for an unknown reason, comes to a stop — ostensibly in order that I may inspect same. It departs without an encore and the stage is taken consecutively by a bevy of No. 18's, with a sprinkling, of No. 11's. Then ——

"Gigantic Geraniums! A No. 14!"

To show my independence, and to annoy the strassenbahn humorists, I lounge nonchalantly forward with no semblance of enthusiasm.

I think it was Browning who said —

Someone murmers 'Last car'; the said vehicle moves off with a sudden jerk and clamour; I chase it three-quarters of a mile, and subsequently cling on to its rear with my eyebrows!

No. 14, realizing his defeat, rolls on sulkily until he reaches a particular point. The lights go out, there is a confused roar intermingled with guttural Teutonisms, and my car is unpretentiously shunted into a siding.

A melancholy trudge of a couple of miles, and an undesirable interview with an M.P. or two, completes my Perfect Day.

CLUBLAND IN COLOGNE.

THE VI. CORPS CLUB.

It has had a wonderful history and is deservedly popular. What a boon it was in the old days of warfare. Its record is second to none in the British Army and it will pass into the pages of history and live in the hearts of thousands of officers who have shared its comforts.

Since it was first opened at Avesnes le Comte in August 1916 it has had a chequered career and many homes. A movable club is a novelty and one of the great surprises of the war, a more appreciated one than many others.

What memories are recalled of those palaces of delight at Arras, Behagnies, Bavincourt and other places. To enter the Club after the trenches and miseries of the front line was like being in Heaven.

The jolliest crowd of officers could always be found there and there was always an atmosphere of good fellowship.

During the great retreat of March 1918 the club at Behagnies had to be hastily evacuated, but it is to the credit of all concerned that not a thing was lost, even the billiard tables being carried away.

In our great advance the Club also played a noble part and branches were opened at many places.

A red letter day in its history was its reopening at Maubeuge in November 1918. The armistice was celebrated there in great style. A still greater event was its re-establishment on German soil first of all at Düren in December 1918—Boxing Day—and then at Cologne, on the first day of spring in this glorious year of 1919.

There is no Club in London more beautiful and better conducted than the one in Augustinerplatz, Cologne. It is an ideal spot. The oval garden of trees and shrubs, the massive building with its balcony and Corinthian columns impresses you. It is of regal proportions but above all a home from home, to the crowd of officers who frequent its doors. There is no entrance fee, no financial burdens, no profiteering. Here you can see general and subaltern, nurses, chaplains and doctors, all enjoying the warmth of hospitality extended to them.

You are lost in wonder, love and praise as you make a tour of the rooms. As you enter the swing doors you see the magnificent stairs with the rich velvet pile carpet. To the left is a well-stocked canteen in charge of very courteous orderlies, to the right a splendid dining room which, on the occasion of the dinner to the Army Council, was a wonder to beheld. Such a scene of brilliance has seldom been equalled in any club.

The lounge with its settees, palm trees, and huge mirrors is a delightful place. The clock room is a marvel, the billiard room, with its fine tables and walls covered with hunting pictures is a joy, but the most brilliant and impressive of all is the great chamber used as a tea-, writing-, reading- and dining-room. Here there are the most comfortable chairs and couches. The tables are tastefully decorated with plants. In the centre are huge palm trees. The room itself is richly decorated in gold and white. The balcony running all round, the huge mirrors, the tasteful window hangings and the stately columns at the extreme end are truly glorious. It is worthy of Versailles, a hall of mirrors. In the evening when the seven huge glittering chandeliers are lighted and the coloured lamps on the two stands, the room is flooded with brilliance.

The orchestra is one of the finest in the city and greatly appreciated.

The variety and quantity of newspapers and periodicals reflects great credit on the management. The excellent hairdresser's establishment is a great boon and the staff all that can be desired.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

THE STARING HABIT.

Sir,—It is said that to stare is the outward sign of an empty mind and lack of culture—yet the habit thrives.

One finds one's self quite unintentionally scrutinising one's fellow passengers in train and tram, in hotel and cabaret, not that their conduct is extraordinary, or calling for notice, but because staring has become a habit.

Particularly was this the case in small towns at home. It is claimed that in London one is immune, but from my experience on leave ten minutes on the London tube is sufficient to convince one that here as elsewhere a curious interest is taken in fellow passengers. The only remedy is to carry reading matter.

JUNO.

THE VICTORY RIBAND.

Sir,—How is it, sir, that the victory riband is on sale in certain German shops while it is unobtainable at our regimental institutions?

It seems to me that this opens the way to profiteering; this is a riband which is worn by our Allies, so it seems to me that if representations had been put through the usual channels supplies could have been forthcoming. By such methods we are playing into the hands of the German trader.

WILLIE.

AN EXPLANATION.

Sir,—As one of the lady teachers who are supposed to have protested in the "Cologne Post" against the use of bad language by a Tommy in Ohligs station, I should like to state that we knew nothing of the incident. We did not hear the language referred to, and if we had heard it, the last thing to enter our heads would have been to write to the "Cologne Post" about it.

ORANGE BAND.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,—I as one of the others replying to Bachelor's letter which appeared in your Sunday issue liken him unto a bear with a sore head. I would strongly advise him to try matrimony.

But alas! if he is too selfish to carry on for a pal for an afternoon then I fear possibly he is too selfish to support a wife.

If every Britisher had his selfish sentiments then where would the poor old Empire be?

MARRIED MAN.

Sir,—Judging by the tone of Bachelor's letter one would imagine him to be the champion of the right of fiancés and other members of the weaker sex to make the journey to the Rhine about which we heard so much a few weeks ago.

Having failed to convince the authorities of the desirability of promoting a Rhine matrimonial agency he now discusses the anxiety of husbands to make the most of summer days in relation to the question of decreased efficiency. In other words he claims that he as a bachelor is called upon to perform extra duty because of the presence of wives on the Rhine.

Whatever the calls made upon him in his unit he will as a sportsman admit that many a hubby has at any rate some claim to a respite and a little less regimental duty under the circumstances after as in my case two years of separation apart from leave.

HUBBY.

ON THE RHINE BOATS.

Sir,—The experience of Nouveau Pauvre on a Rhine steamer and his observations as to the enormous consumption of food and drink that goes on during a trip are by no means unusual.

He however asks if the 35 bottles of Niersteiner wine consumed by a party of three is a record. By no means.

A few Sundays ago I journeyed to Godesburg and back by steamer. A decidedly rotund German and his equally massive Frau sat at a table the whole of the day and when the steamer returned to Cologne there was the respectable total of 54 empty bottles in front of them.

VERITAS.

SPELT CORRECTLY NOW.

Sir,—With reference to Not Demobilizable's "waggish" observation in a recent issue of "The Cologne Post", its timely appearance at least proves the power of the Press.

For, lo, instead of an obnoxious and redundant 'O' we now find in its place an extremely shame-faced and bashful 'I'.

GLORY B.

A STAGE POINT.

Sir,—"Turandat", a Chinese fable, is billed for the Opera here on Friday next. I fancy a spectacular play of this title was produced at the St. James' Theatre, London, a short time before the war. Can any of your readers confirm my recollection on this point?

P. Q.

THE STUDY OF SPANISH.

Sir,—I should like to endorse Mr. Sherman's letter as to the necessity of urging the study of Spanish amongst our troops.

Judging by the numbers attending the Spanish classes at the Army College, numbers which increase with each succeeding course, the usefulness of Spanish is not by any means underestimated and it is up to us to see that the great opportunities for business enterprise in South and Central America are not lost through a lack of Spanish speaking representatives.

Spain, too, offers a fair field for business, business which was formerly done with Germany.

ARMY ATHLETICS.

Opening Day's Results: Excellent Talent.

FINE PROGRAMME TO-DAY.

The final stages of the great Rhine Army Athletic Tournament, for that is what it can be most correctly styled, have been reached. To-day at the P. and R.T. ground, Rhiel, the finalists meet to decide to whom the honour of the Rhine Army Championships in the various rounds will go. For the possession of such a coveted title the competition must necessarily be extraordinarily keen and consequently the standard of athletics is expected to be unusually high.

The process of elimination for the championships commenced long ago, the successful battalion competitors passing on to Bde. meetings, where success was a passport to the Divisional contests. The last test was at Corps, the winners of the various events qualifying to compete at the great Army meeting. So that the men who will be competing to-day can safely be said to be the very best talent that Rhineland can produce, in itself a sufficient inducement to attract a large number to the meeting.

Yesterday the only final decided was the three miles, the reason being that some of the competitors had also entered for the cross-country taking place to-day. Other events, yesterday were the semi-finals of the tug-of-war and the first round of the basket ball.

The Results.

In the tug-of-war (light) the 83rd Brigade R.G.A. beat the 5th Royal Irish by two pulls to one, pulls 90, 59 and 60 seconds.

The 35th Brigade R.G.A. beat the 16th Tank Battalion by two pulls to nil, pulls 14 2/5 and 19 seconds.

The 83rd Brigade R.G.A. beat the 52nd Kings (Liverpools) by two pulls to nil, pulls 16 4/5 and 59 seconds.

In the tug-of-war (heavy) the 63rd Brigade R.G.A. beat the 41st Brigade R.G.A. by two pulls to nil, pulls 29 and 31 2/5 seconds.

The 35th Brigade R.G.A. beat the 4th Tank Battalion by two pulls to nil, pulls 20 4/5 and 37 1/5 seconds.

The 63rd Brigade R.G.A. beat the 52nd Kings (Liverpools) by two pulls to nil, pulls 17 1/5 and 11 4/5 seconds.

The three miles race in the athletic sports event was won easily by Cpl. Ward, 9th Tank Battalion in 15.54 2/5 minutes, Hayes, 9th Tank Battalion being a good second and Slade, 41st Battalion Machine Gun Corps (VI Corps) close up for third.

Basket Ball.

A tie in the basket ball event was played in which the P. and R.T. School beat 1/6th West Yorks, by 11 points to 2. The first half was very closely contested and ended with a score of 2 points all, but the better combination and shooting of the P. and R.T. School team told in the second half, though the struggle was keen to the last moment.

POINTS GAINED IN BOXING.

The following were the points gained in the boxing contests, full details of which will appear in our issue of tomorrow:—

32nd M.G.C. (10th Corps).....15
7th Middlesex (6th Corps).....12
51st Devons (2nd Corps).....11½
9th M.G.C. (4th Corps)..... 3

Proceedings to-day commence at 14.30 hours prompt.

FRENCH ST. LEGER.

Baron Rothschild's Stearine Wins in a Canter.

There was a very large attendance at Longchamps for the decision of the French St. Leger, and the famous Omnium, the handicap of the autumn season. Despite her victory at Caen, Baron Rothschild's filly Stearine was not generally fancied for the big race, as it was doubtful whether she could stay the distance. She disappointed in the French Oaks for which she started favourite, but she has at last reproduced the form she showed in her home gallops, and proved herself the good mare they thought her. Hallebardier ran well, but could never get up to Stearine, who led throughout and won in a canter.

Backers made no mistake in the handicap, for everyone was on the winner. A L'Ordre won the race for the Belgian sportsman Baron Baeyens with great ease.

KENSINGTON REGATTA.

The Kensington Rowing Club had a splendid entry for their forty-second annual regatta held at Hammersmith, and the names of many celebrated oarsmen figured on the programme. Amongst them were W.D. Kinnear, the Olympic champion of 1912, H. T. Blackstaffe, Olympic champion of 1908, Major C. E. Liles, the veteran president of the club, and Major Beddington, president of the Coast Rowing Association.

ATTACKS ON CYCLE RECORDS.

Under the auspices of the Kentish Wheelers three important cycle record attempts are to be made at Herne Hill to-day. W. A. Ormston and H. H. Lee (tandem champions) will attack the quarter-mile flying start record; H. Ryan and H. Lance will endeavour to lower the time for the standing start quarter-mile, and W. G. Stewart (the 50 miles champion) will attack the hour tandem-paced record of 30 miles 1.170yds held by W. J. Petts. The racing will begin at 6 p.m.

MANY RECORDS BROKEN.

Records went by the board at a weight-lifting tournament at the Camberwell Palace in aid of the Mayor of Camberwell's scheme to endow a ward in King's College Hospital, "in memory of those who remembered us."

J. Hayes, the amateur champion of Great Britain, broke three world's records, which he himself had set up in the eight-stone class. In the one-hand swing he raised 113lbs., an advance of 5½lbs., while he lifted 132lbs. in the two-hands snatch and beat his old figures of 136lbs. by 4lbs. in the two-hands dead lift.

J. V. Wheeler established a record at 148lbs. in the nine stone one-hand swing. Hayes gained first prize, followed by J. G. Paine, Wheeler, and G. Knights.

Back Stroke Record.

Miss May Spencer, Garston S.C., has set up a new 150 yards' back-stroke world's swimming record for ladies of 2min. 15sec.

TURF STATISTICS.

Present Positions in the Winning Lists.

Lord Derby by the success of Keysoe in the St. Leger last week has greatly improved his position in the list of winning owners, and has now won a little over £4,000 less than Lord Glanely. Carslake rode six winners during the week, but is still a long way behind Donoghue.

Fred Pentland, the well known forward who was coaching a German football club when war broke out, and was interned for a considerable period, has again signed for Queen's Park Rangers.

* * *

Wartime football, though mainly of a friendly character, served to reduce the debt of Bristol Rovers, who had gates of £360 and £325 for their opening games with Queen's Park Rangers and Cardiff City. The carnival held on behalf of the club last month realised over £2,000.

* * *

I cannot see Sheffield Wednesday winning many games with their present forward line. Arnold Birch in goal has made good as Davidson's successor, and the halves and backs, if not brilliant, are quite sound. The front line however will have to be strengthened somewhat if the Wednesday are to rise from their present lowly position in the league.

* * *

In looking through the list of record gates, it will be noticed that in many cases Sunderland were the visiting team. They provided the records at Aston, Burnley, Manchester (Hyde Road), Newcastle (both league and cup-ties), Preston and South Shields. In addition to these they were one of the teams at the Crystal Palace in April 1913 when 121,919 spectators paid for admission.

* * *

Glasgow Celtic, like the famous brook, seem to go on forever. They have already collected 12 points in 6 games, The Celtic and Rangers seem to have the Scottish League Championship safe between them, season after season. Whereas one could, even now, so early in the season, tip the Celtic to win the Scottish League, who would dare prophesy the Club that will head the English League next May.

* * *

Both the "Spurs" and Chelsea are due on Tyneside next Saturday, the former at Horsely Hill the home of South Shields, and the latter at St. James Park, Newcastle. I think it is quite possible that Tottenham will be beaten for the first time this season when they play their return game with the Seasiders, although they managed to win 2-0 last Saturday.

* * *

Mr. M'Kenna has promised to take a team to Turf Moor on September 22 to play Burnley and district for the benefit of Mrs. Hodgson the widow of E. Hodgson, Burnley's famous inside left. As Mr. M'Kenna's eleven will be composed of Mew (Manchester United), Cook (Oldham Athletic), Fletcher (Manchester City), A. Walmsley (Blackburn Rovers), M'Call (Preston), Grenyer (Everton), Turnbull (Bradford), Chambers (Liverpool) Cock (Huddersfield), Smith (Bolton) and Quinn (Blackpool), the opposing side will not have an easy task to win.

* * *

Quaint letters are written to football clubs. Here is one:—"I attended Arsenal v Newcastle match, but though I paid a shilling I didn't see the game. If you don't send me a P.O. for that amount by return I shall issue a County Court summons." Our friend not only failed to see the match, but he also failed to discern the stern declaration "No money Returned". As a result of the bad packing on the terraces, the Arsenal, I reckon, owe quite a lot of money to their patrons.

THE HOLBORN STADIUM.

Ross Meets Criqui at Re-opening To-night.

DIFFICULT PROPOSITION.

The re-opening of the present season at the Holborn Stadium will take place this evening, when a big programme is headed by the contest between Walter Ross, the British bantamweight champion and holder of the Lonsdale belt, and the French ex-soldier, Eugene Criqui, whose game display with Tommy Noble in the same ring last spring will be well remembered, as will his subsequent twenty round draw with the same opponent in Paris. Those two performances stamp the Frenchman as a difficult proposition for Ross to solve, for while we have it on record that Ross in turn defeated Noble in the tenth round of their belt match, the fact cannot be ignored that the loser's hard fight with Criqui in Paris only three days previously, followed by a long journey across Channel and by train to town, must have contributed largely to that defeat.

Boxing Challenge.

Replying to Pte. McMahon 5th Royal Irish Regt. B. Coy. I am willing to accept his challenge at 9 stone 6 lbs. and to meet him about the second week in October to box 10 rounds, the "Cologne Post" to have control of arrangements, says Pte. J. Rayner of "B" Coy. 9th D.L.I. (Pioneers) (T.F.)

Aiken Comes Back.

Tom Aiken, of whom little has been heard during the war period, has decided to enter for the English championship this season, probably for the last time. He hopes to arrange a series of three exhibition matches in Scotland, Inman providing the opposition in two of them.

BATTERIES AT CRICKET.

A/187 Bde. R.F.A. v. C/187 Bde. R.F.A.

A/187 Bde. R.F.A. defeated C/187 Bde. R.F.A. by 37 runs at Eil after an interesting game. "C" Battery's batsmen played with no confidence against the bowlers of the home side. Score:—

DUNCAN IN FORM.

Prince Albert, who is a keen golfer, motored from Balmoral to witness exhibition matches between the famous professionals, H. Vardon and G. Duncan, at Banchory, Kincardineshire.

Vardon, playing the steadier golf, beat Duncan by two up in the morning match, but Duncan had the better of a medal round in the afternoon with a fine score of 68 to Vardon's 72.

CALCUTTA CUP TOURNEY.

The Calcutta Cup tournament commenced at St. Andrews on Tuesday. In the first round the chief matches were:—Mr. Angus Hambro, M.P. (plus 2) v. Major G. Richardson (handicap 4), Mr. V. A. PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

The Italian Front.

The very last subject calculated to arouse interest among those who have been engaged in the war, and are eagerly anticipating demobilization one would imagine is that of war. However on Monday night at the Central Y.M.C.A. in the great hall, Mr. Julius Price, the British war correspondent, deeply interested his audience with his lecture on the war on the Italian front.

The Temple Bells.

The attraction at the Palace Theatre this week is the "Temple Bells," a concert party from Valenciennes. They are presenting a burlesque musical comedy entitled "Oh! Whatever's that" in two acts and five scenes. On Tuesday evening, when they opened the show, there was a full house. There is a big caste and many gorgeous dresses.

Another Madie Scott.

Perhaps the most appreciated items on the programme were the delightfully risque little songs by H. Trevor Smith, whose impersonations of Madie Scott were very good. Cpl. A. C. Strong carried through the part of Reggie very creditably: and in his "gay dog" ditty, accompanied by tortuous perigrinations about the stage, was deservedly encored. J. Reduzzi, as "Dreamy," figured conspicuously in the comedy department. The eight girls were all elaborately dressed:—L. A. Tiller in Egyptian ballad costume, F. J. Maffat, and J. R. Thomas being particularly attractive. Ginger alias Cohen (P. A. Curlender) was responsible for a lot of the humour.

Leave Club Programme.

To-day the Drum and Fife Band of the 2/4th Queens Regiment (by kind permission of the O.C., will play in the garden at the Leave Club from 5—6 p.m. and there will be a whist drive out of doors (if fine) at 6.30 p.m. To-morrow there will be a dancing class from 5—6 in the Music Room and the cinema will be continuous throughout the afternoon and evening There will be an impromptu concert in the Music Room from 5—6 on Saturday, September 20th, followed by a dance in the Theatre at 6.30 p.m.

W.R.A.F. Revelry.

There was much merriment at the Süd Park when the W.R.A.F.'s held their Revel yesterday. It was a function of colour and gaiety; and pretty girls at tastefully decorated stalls told fortunes, ran lotteries, and served refreshments. A military band and pipers discoursed music throughout the afternoon and evening. In the evening the grounds were illuminated very prettily with fairy lights, and after the firework display dancing became the order of the evening. A full and detailed account will appear to-morrow.

"Pleasant Sunday Evenings."

For the Bonn Y.M.C.A. pleasant Sunday evening pleasing pictures are presented and Tommy finds something of a homely nature. A musical prelude of exceptional quality is provided by the musical directors, Mrs. Romer L.R.C.M., and Mr. Charles Seward, followed by a sing-song in which the men join with great heartiness. The creation of the atmosphere of home is the ideal kept in view, and in some measure at least, there is a distinct appr ach to this. Stripped of the artificial and the conventional the service is essentally a democratic one, the musical items being furnished by the soldiers themselves. Soloists of ability are always forthcoming, and the soldiers male voice choir, under Mr. W. Seward's leadership, as heard last Sunday night, gives promise of really effective work.

Tonics Concert Party at Leave Club.

The Tonics Concert Party gave a highly successful programme at the B.E.L.C. on Tuesday evening. Indeed it was striking how the artistes held the audience for hardly anyone left until the end. They knew exactly how to make each turn "tell," the sentimental song after the comic turn and then a wonderful blaza from the "Riehl Jazz Band" which was cheered to the echo. The choruses went with great eclat and the step dancing by Sangar and Fenn was fascinating, also the banjo solos of Sgt. Hallmark were greatly appreciated. "Some Servant" in the largest trousers and shoes ever invented, caused peals of laughter. The pianist, Frank Collinson, was as brilliant as ever. It was altogether a splendid show.

Civilians and Cinema.

Sgt. G. H, Marshall, now in charge of the Deutsches Theatre booking office and late of the Moderne Cinema, wishes, in answer to a letter signed "Tock Emma" to make these points known. That during his management, only three per cent. civilians were allowed in the cinema, and these only under special circumstances. "Tock Emma", admitting having arrived late, could not reasonably expect to have ejected (as is the usual case) a girl accompanied by a Tommy who arrived in time to get a seat. The allegation that 30 per cent. of the audience were German is untrue; even at the afternoon performance, when there was plenty of room, not 10 per-cent. were civilians. Although "Tock Emma" does not mention the name of the cinema, Sgt. Marshall, having conscientiously carried out his duties at the Moderne, is naturally anxious to vindicate himself.

JACQUES.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Thursday, September 18th, 1919.

Wind light Northerly, Mostly cloudy and hazy but with clearer intervals. Moderate temperature. Visibility indifferent.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

I.B.U.

Efforts are being made to start again the International Boxing Union, which was prevented by the outbreak of war.

Balzac and Day.

According to a Reuter's telegram from Paris Bert Day, the London boxer, was knocked out in three rounds at the Nouveau Cirque by Balzac, the French Middleweight champion.

N.Z. Victory.

A delayed Reuter's wire says a return match between the New Zealand Service Rugby team and Western Province at Capetown on Thursday was won by New Zealand by 20 points to 3.

Carpentier-Beckett Bet.

In reference to the assertion of M. Descamps that he will match Georges Carpentier against Beckett for any part of £5,000, Mr. Bernard Mortimer has accepted the bet, and agrees to wager up to £3,000 or £4,000.

Year's Best Sport.

Few people will be inclined to quarrel with the opinion that the Doncaster meeting furnished the best sport seen this year. The performances of Irish Elegance, Diadem and Tetratema will provide discussion for quite a long time, whilst the only regret is that the two first-named did not come together.

London Challenge Cup.

The London Challenge Cup tie between Dulwich Hamlet and The Arsenal will be played at Highbury on Sept. 22.

Bad Luck.

It is bad luck for Tottenham that Cantrell is about to undergo an operation which will keep him out of the team for a time.

Decisive Victory.

In the First League Derby County remain the only side who have not been defeated, and their victory over Bradford City was a decisive one.

Billiards Boom.

Harry Stevenson and Arthur Peall on Monday in Portsmouth Town Hall inaugurated another first-class billiards season that is fully expected to beat all records.

A W. Bromwich Youth.

Millard, the West Bromwich youth, who is leading Birmingham just now, promises to develop into a splendid centre forward. He scored two fine goals against Coventry City on Saturday.

Albert Hill.

Albert Hill may consider his turn has come for winning honours at the longest journey on the A.A.A. championship list. If so, we may have the opportunity of hailing him as ten miles' champion next year.

Brussels Motor-Cycling.

The Brussels motor-cycling championship, over a course of ninety-eight kilometres has been won by Eugene Taymens.

C. Buchan as Cricketer.

Buchan, the Sunderland captain, tops the batting averages in the Durham Senior League with a total of 547 runs. His best score was 138.

Beaten in One Round.

Rather a sensational result occurred at the Ring when Charlie Wood, better known as Young Nipper, beat Fred Housego, of Paddi gton, in one round. Housego, taken unawares with a left hook, was knocked out.

Magic Fails.

Magic Ware has been a disappointing animal to Sir Abe Bailey, but she was fully expected to win the seller, for which Amastris was not pulled out again. Again the filly failed, for when challenged close home by Witchway she curled up, and was beaten a short head.

R.A.S.C. Sports.

Following were the winners at the R.A.S.C. Sports held at Shooters Hill. 100 yards scratch, Lieut. Danbury; quarter mile Sgt. Fox; half mile, Cpl. Slater; one mile, Cpl. Slater; Relay Race R.A.S.C. Tug-of-war:—19th Reserve R.A.F. beat R.A.S.C. Woolwich.

At the Ring.

Bob Mariott, lightweight champion, and Billy Fry (Tylorstown) have been matched for 20 rounds at 9st 12lb for £100 a side at the Ring on October 6.

Heavyweights' Chances.

All the sporting world seems to be speculating upon the chances of the various heavyweights, but strange to say Wales is not able to take a hand in the competition.

Still Undefeated.

In the Southern League, Watford, who were hard pressed to beat Swansea on the latter's ground, and Exeter City, are now the only clubs undefeated, for Brentford came a cropper before Portsmouth at Griffin Park.

Paris Racing.

The Omnion (1½ miles) was run at Longchamps (Paris) on Sunday. Result: A l'Ordre (Sharpe), 1; Eckmuhl (Marsh), 2; Plantagenet (Garner), 3. Won by 2½ lengths.

Worthy Object.

The object of all competitions, trials, and races promoted by the Auto-cycle Union—including the Tourist Trophy Race itself—is to improve the breed of motor-cycles; to make them more efficient and serviceable in the hands of the general public.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

The Black Button.

This is the title of the magazine published by the 18th Battn Kings Royal Rifle Corps which makes its appearance under the guiding hand of Lieut-Colonel H. A. Vernon, D.S.O. It is a bright and breezy publication, one which strikes a note likely to appeal to the men of the regiment. It is essentially, as the officer commanding points out, a record of battalion doings in Rhineland, a chronicle of work and play, and of any subject of battalion or regimental interest. The contents include an admirable resumé of the achievements since the battalion was raised in June 1915; an account of the Paris Victory march; while its articles cover a wide range of subjects from one on "The Rhine Army and its future" to "The City of the Salient". There is much interesting reading between the covers and we congratulate the officer commanding and his assistants upon the results of their endeavour to make the magazine attractive.

For Soldiers' Wives.

To meet the case of many soldiers who are getting their wives to be with them in Cologne and who have difficulty in finding accommodation for them, the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. will in a few days open a Hostel which has been kindly put at their disposal by the British authorities and is now being put into proper condition so that it should be ready for use by the end of this week. Application for admission of soldiers and their wives to this "Central Annexe" should be made, in person or by letter, to Miss E. K. Beale at 44, Friesenstrasse. Wives coming to Cologne from the provinces, and who may have to spend a night in London, are invited to write about accommodation there to Mr. W. H. Drake, Y.M.C.A., Bedford Square, London, W.C., 1; and arrangements are being made to have the travellers met at Ostend and Cologne. Tours will be organised for the residents in the Hostel, so that they may see Cologne and its neighbourhood to advantage; and the soldiers' wives will have the same privileges as the soldiers at the Central Y.M.C.A. For further particulars, soldiers should apply to Dr. Francis.

Reverence and Knowledge.

A special correspondent of the "Church Times" writes in a recent issue: "The official provision for the education of the Rhine Army is admirable and deserves to be understood. It is such as has never been known in the history of our own or any other army. The soldiers are learning every day. Only last week, in speaking of the outdoor procession at Bonn in honour of the Assumption of the Mother of God, a correspondent of the "Cologne Post," the admirable paper published by the Army of the Rhine, commented on the exceeding reverence of the British soldiers who witnessed the solemn function. Since then in the same journal I have seen a sympathetic account of the way in which the carrying of the Viaticum impressed our men, and Sunday's issue contained a delightfully written description of Mass in the garrison church. All this and much more to the same effect, in the paper which is their own, and which every soldier reads regularly, is not without meaning. Surely, in matters religious, as in many another direction, our young soldiers are learning much and can never be prejudiced, narrow-minded islanders, knowing nothing outside their own little island."

The Shoe Shine Habit.

Coblenz is one of the prettiest of the larger towns in Rhineland, though paradoxically it is the domicile of dust and dreariness. So extremely dusty is it that you need to have your shoes shined three and four times a day. No doubt the Americans have inaugurated the system but wherever you go you find the "Shoe Shine parlour." In after years it will be a standard phrase: "Oh yes, remember Coblenz; I had my shoes shined there."

Continued education.

The continuation classes of the ancient capital of Scotland will be well known to many of our readers. Great advancement has been made there in day continuation classes for workers who meet in special schools during the working hours, and in the provision generally of classes in all the staple trades and industries. It is recognised that the three outstanding essentials for our future citizins are (1) skill in trade, (2) soundness in health, and (3) a better general education.

Points to keep in view.

These points have been kept in view throughout the whole continuation class scheme, and this should be particularly noted by any of our readers who are demobilized soon and are contemplating a resettlement into civil life in this vicinity. The fee for the complete session is only 5/- and is returned to those students making 80 per cent of the possible attendances. The subjects comprise an exhaustive list of commercial, technical, domestic, industrial, art, and recreational classes. Full particulars of these can be had from the Education Offices, Edinburgh. Particular attention is being given this year to the training of men and women whose courses of study have been interrupted by the War. The classes begin on the 29th September.

Our Occupation.

Whatever were the fears of the population of the occupied territory when the Armistice was signed, and they knew it would be their fate to be under the control of another nation, they certainly never imagined to be treated as they have been, in a strict but just and even benevolent manner, was the opinion expressed to us by a Cologne resident recently. Most of the innabitants of the British occupied territory seem to appreciate the peace and orderliness they enjoy in comparison with many other parts of Germany and are thankful for it. They have grown quite accustomed to the British uniform and the whims and ways of our Tommies, and from them they have adopted many English ejaculations and slang words which they intermingle in a most amusing way with their own language.

Private Telegrams.

Officers and Other Ranks in France and Flanders who are stationed within the delivery area of a French or Belgian Civil Telegraph Office and are in a position to give a civil address may arrange with correspondents in the United Kingdom to forward their private telegrams through the Civil Telegraph Administration. Of course there are certain regulations to be complied with.

French Street Names in Cologne.

Interesting traces of the French occupation of a century ago are to be seen in the street names, which appear on some old houses in both French and German. For example we can find, "Rue de l'Ecrevisie," "Rue du Joblin de Eereon," "Rue de l'Universite," and "Rue des Casquettiers." It may serve as a useful exercise for some of our readers to turn those into German. The two latter may be somewhat of a problem as the present German name is entirely different. At another point the former Rhine bank is indicated both in French and German.

The enchanting Rhine.

At the moment there has been a slump in the weather, but we are sanguine enough to imagine that it will pick up again. How many, however, during the beautiful evenings of last week discovered in the Rhine embankment a great feast of beauty. True by day heat was well nigh unbearable and wearers of thick khaki serge instinctively turned envious eyes in the direction of the cool, flimsy dresses of the weaker sex. But what of the evening! On those fine September days and nights Cologne by the river seemed a city of enchantment, the Embankment a veiled avenue leading to fairyland. Under a harvest moon the river makes an irresistaile appeal, but so far as one could judge only to lovers.

Re-Echoes.

The sight of our Indian troops walking through the streets in single file quite amuses the Germans. But they weren't so amused when the War was on.

How is it that English shaving soap can be more cheaply purchased in the German shops than in our own canteens? There is something wrong somewhere.

The bootblacks in the centre of the city do substantial business on Sunday mornings with every German anxious to look his best.

Is it a sign of light heartedness that Rhine bathers as a general rule wave their hands and appear to welcome a passing steamer? There is certainly a complete absence of modesty about the female element.

Why do so many tradesmen go out of their way to advise prospective English buyers that they can get so many marks for the pound sterling? Evidently a stock argument to induce purchase from the number of times we have heard it.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give three prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Pte. S. Darling, 482 Great Horton Road Bradford, Yorks, Capt. A.H. Powell II Corps Troops M. T. Coy. and Sergt. J. W. H. Green, 52nd Rifle Brigade, Rhine Army.

Another Medal.—On the signature of peace it was semi-officially stated that a medal and ribbon would be issued to all those connected in any way with the British Peace Delegation.

The Latest.—A milliner says the smart little toque will be fashionable this coming winter. It will fit the head closely, with flaplets over the ear.

A Wright Eleven.—An eleven composed entirely of members of the Wright family, eight of whom served in the war, played in a game of cricket at Kettering.

Will You Buy?—If you want an historic island you can now buy one. The Island of Piel, near Barrow, is to be sold by auction.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

OUR OLDEST GAMES.

The boom in bowls serves to remind us that this is one of our very oldest games. So it is, undoubtedly! Bowling greens and alleys were once plentiful in London. Henry VIII was an enthusiastic bowler, and he caused an alley to be made in Whitehall, and another at Hampton Court, and the game can be traced back at least 300 years before his time. But all mere men's games, nevertheless, must give pride of place as regards antiquity to those played by children. Hopscotch, for instance, is at least 2,000 years old. Some of the "singing games," as, for example. "Sally, Sally Water," are of Norse origin, while tipcat was played in ancient Egypt 4,000 years ago.

VALUATION OF GERMAN LINERS.

According to the New York "Journal of Commerce," the value of 97 German vessels seized in United States ports have been appraised by a Navy Department Board as having a value of only D 34,193,190 (£6,839,000 at the normal rate of exchange). The Vaterland (now renamed the Leviathan), of 54,000 tons, has been valued at D7,020,200 (£1,404,000); the George Washington, of 25,570 tons, at D 2,357,300 (£471,460), and the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, of 19,503 tons, at D1,765,960 (£353,192). The only other vessels which were considered to be worth more than a million dollars were the Cincinnati, Amerika, Kaiser Wilhelm II., President Grant, and President Lincoln. The journal adds that "it is not known upon what basis the appraisals were made, for it would seem that the passenger liners have been given a rather penurious survey."

THE PRINCE'S PRIVATE CARS.

During his tour of Far West Canada the Prince of Wales is living on the special train put together for him by the Canadian Pacific Railway during his 8,000 mile trip. In deference to the wish of King George that there should be no undue ostentation during any part of the trip, all the cars, except two, are the ordinary railway ones, though some of them are quite new. The exceptions mentioned are the two private cars, the "Killarney," occupied by the Prince—belonging to Lord Shaughnessy—and the "Cromarty"— belonging to Commander J. K. L. Ross, each of which has been lent the Prince by its owner.

ANCIENT WASHING DAYS.

There is the Homeric plan still in vogue in many parts of the Continent to which we may yet return unless the British laundries come to their senses. Readers of the Odyssey will remember the delightful scene in which Princess Nausicaa asks her father to let her have a good big wagon and a team of strong mules. "I want," she told him, "to take all our dirty clothes to the river and wash them." So down to the river she went with her maidens in the golden spring-time. Here they trod the dirt out of the linen on the stones and laid the glistening garments on the sun-warmed shingle to dry. "By and by, after dinner, they began to play at ball, and Nausicaa sang to them." It is a picture of a golden age. But a golden age that might well return. For what healthier exercise could young people find than treading out the year's linen on the banks of a running stream?

THE GIRL OF TO-DAY.

Take a pair of sparkling eyes
With lips and cheeks (the whole touched up a bit),
A phrase or so like "absolutely bon,"
A penchant for a boy with whom to sup a bit;
A pair of startling hose,
With dazzle skirt and jazzle jumper gay,
But very little else by way of clothes—
That seems to be the damsel of to-day.

THE BOY OF TO-DAY.

He wears a hat that's dented in,
He strides a motor-bike;
A startling tie bedecks his chin,
His socks the optics strike,
A flapper "Wendy" rides behind
This modern Peter Pan,
Whom boyhood's fetters do not bind;
He "wants to be a man."

A VETERAN STEAM ENGINE.

Amongst the numerous items included in the programme of the James Watt Centenary Commemoration now being held at Birmingham is a visit to Ocker Hill, to examine one of Watt's early pumping engines which will be shown working under steam This engine, which was built in 1776, was originally erected at Smethwick for pumping work in connection with Birmingham Canal, and it remained there until 1893, after working for more than 100 years. When it was taken down it was, due to the action of Mr. G. R. Jebb, at that time engineer to the Canal Company, re-erected at the Ocker Hill Canal Works, where it has been maintained in working condition.

NO WAR METHUSALAHS.

A clever London nerve specialist, with whom I was discussing some probable tendencies of the war, asserted quite positively his conviction that most of us, whether we realise it or not, have suffered considerably from war nerve strain. This applies not alone to those who have been actively engaged in the venture, but rather especially to the civilian population of London and other big towns, particularly those within the area of naval or air raids. In the specialist's opinion there has been a heavy wear and tear on all our nerves, which cannot be without its consequences, and he inclines to the belief that, as a general rule, the generations of the war epoch will not be so long-lived as usual. The number of old people who cracked up under the strain of the war was prodigious, and the strain was equally present in most cases, and must, he believes, operate as years advance, even in the case of younger people. He was not disposed to accept my suggestion that experiencés of this kind exercise a tonic effect on healthy persons by producing excitement, and that the nerves would entirely recuperate in time. But he admitted the sound philosophy in most cases of accepting the prospect of curtailed old age with resignation. Living beyond the allotted span, or sometimes within ten years of it, he agreed, was "no catch as a rule."

SMUTS' DIRECT CHALLENGE.

DEMANDS A PLAIN ANSWER FROM DISLOYALISTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

LABOUR FIRM ON NATIONALISATION.

YES OR NO?

SMUTS' CHALLENGE TO SOUTH AFRICAN SECESSIONISTS.

Before the adoption by the National Assembly of South Africa of the second reading of the Union's Mandate for West Africa Bill, Gen. Smuts, the Premier, closing a long and brilliant reply to its critics, faced Gen. Hertzog, the Nationalist (Opposition) leader, and demanded an explicit reply to the question: "Did the Nationalist Party intend to persist in its effort to secure the secession of the Union from the Empire?"

The House was thrilled. There was a prolonged pause and Gen. Smuts repeated the question.

Gen. Hertzog rose and said that his party was a democratic party, which was bound by the decisions of its congress, and that congress had not yet decided. (Laughter.)

Gen. Smuts, proceeding, said that such a reply was an evasion of a most serious question. He had been challenged to say if the Union had a right to secession. "My answer," said Gen. Smuts, "is an absolute and decisive 'No.' (Prolonged cheers.) Parliament consists of the King, the Senate, and the National Assembly. None of them can separate from the others. Parliament cannot renounce the King nor can the King renounce Parliament." Gen. Smuts, proceding, said only a revolution could bring about secession. The King not only had the right but also was in duty bound to veto any Act passed by the Union Parliament which declared for secession from the Empire. (Prolonged cheers.)

The Prime Minister concluded in grave terms by warning the country that if the Nationalists were not staging a preposterous farce, then they were bent on precipitating civil war. The speech was hugely enjoyed by the Dutch Ministerialists, while British members greatly appreciated Gen. Smuts' almost vehement declaration that South Africa had no right to secede from the British Empire.

HELPING SERBIA.

HUGE GIFT OF CATTLE AND POULTRY.

The largest consignment of live stock for breeding purposes yet sent to Serbia from Britain is leaving Cardiff shortly. It will comprise between 600 and 700 head of cows and a proportionate number of bulls of British breeds, which have been collected by the Royal Agricultural Relief Committee. The animals have been given by British farmers to the farmers of Serbia as a nucleus with which to commence the re-stocking of farms. The cows have been specially selected by experts as being typical of the dual purpose of shorthorns, while the males with which they are to be mated are pedigree stock. They should be of great value in enabling the Serbian peasantry to resume cultivation of the land, as well as in alleviating the milk scarcity in the Balkans. The consignment also includes for distribution several thousand head of the best strains of British poultry. The British Government is providing a vessel for transport.

BELGIAN REVIVAL.

Mr. Herbert Samuel, the British Government's Special Commissioner in Belgium, in an interview given on his return to England, says that Belgium shows a marked revival and all staple industries are at work. Although some of the plants, particularly in the iron and steel trade, were injured so ruthlessly by the Germans during the occupation that the resumption of work is in many cases still only partial, there can be no doubt that a wave of economic activity is spreading over the country and that there is in consequence a far more hopeful spirit among the people. The number of unemployed is still large but shows a remarkable improvement since February. Destroyed houses have been rebuilt here and there, but the progress of rebuilding along the battle front is still very slow. The prospects of Belgium he considers at least as good as those of any other European country. Industrial intercourse between Belgium and Britain is likely to become far larger than existed before the war. He says: "There is among all classes marked goodwill towards the United Kingdom and the desire is constantly expressed for ever closer friendship."

FUGITIVE PRINCE.

Prince Antonio of Orleans, Infante of Spain, who, in defiance of a Royal decree issued last May, recently made his escape from Spain, after five days spent in Lisbon, left on board a vessel specially freighted for London.

LABOUR INSISTS.

DIRECT DEFIANCE OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. J.H. Thomas, M.P., the new Chairman of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress, has made a statement on the main decisions of the Glasgow Congress.

The public would make a very grave mistake if it were not clearly understood that the acceptance of the principle of nationalisation was not only the almost unanimous decision of Congress, he said, but was put forward and accepted as a direct challenge to the Government's position.

"I anticipate that the Congress decisions on nationalisation will be conveyed to the Government in a short time, and the reply, if unfavourable, will then be submitted to a special Congress, which will be called for that question alone," he added.

D'ANNUNZIO'S PRANK.

ALLIES AND FIUME TROUBLE.

The situation which has arisen through the raid on Fiume led by the Italian airman-poet Gabriele d'Annunzio has been discussed by the Allied Supreme Council. It is learned that the British Premier and Signor Tittoni exchanged views on the subject before the Council met, the discussion between them being of such a nature that there is every reason to anticipate a satisfactory settlement of the matter.

Meanwhile the Italian Government is determined to restore order, and General Badoglio who has been sent to Fiume, will demand the surrender of the raiders.

It is difficult to know precisely what is happening at Fiume. According to a telegram circulated by the Serbian Press Bureau. Fiume is at present plunged into anarchy. One brigade of Italian troops who had evacuated Fiume returned without their officers and by force overturned the local authorities and also arrested the Italian General Pittaluga. The union of Fiume with Italy has been proclaimed by Gabriele d'Annunzio, supported by his Arditi (storm troops).

The Serbian authorities still remain at Shushak, which, however, is isolated. The English and French troops in Fiume have barricaded themselves in their quarters, expecting to be attacked. Crowds have torn down the British and Allied flags. The principal buildings are protected by Maxim guns. So far no encounter has occurred between the various bodies of troops, but the situation is serious. General Francois Savi declares he cannot state what turn affairs may take, as the population is greatly excited.

CHAOS IN HUNGARY.

The situation in Hungary is causing uneasiness in Peace Conference circles, for the Roumanians are reported to be about to withdraw from the country hurriedly, and as all the Hungarian military and police forces were dissolved by the invaders, Hungary will thus be exposed to the risk of grave disorders. The Conference has asked the Roumanians to leave a sufficient force in the country to maintain order until the Hungarian Government is able to cope with the situation.

American members of the Conference state positively that Roumania will be held responsible for whatever disorders may occur in Budapest and other parts of Hungary if the Roumanian Government ignores the request of the Conference to leave a limited force in the capital and the surrounding districts, where the extremists are awaiting an opportunity to throw the country back into a state of chaos.

LATEST REVOLUTION.

Reuter's Agency learns that disturbances have broken out in the Republic of Honduras. Definite information as to what has actually happened has not yet been received, but telegrams which have reached London report that the President and his family have escaped to San Salvador. Fighting has occurred, and the town of San Pedro has been partially destroyed. A Provisional Government has been established, and the new administration has granted an amnesty to political prisoners.

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR FOR BERLIN.

A New York paper says it is understood in diplomatic circles that President Wilson has decided to name Mr. George McAmeny as the United States Ambassador to Germany as soon as the Peace Treaty is ratified. Mr. McAmeny was formerly Borough President of New York.

WINESHOP MURDER.

OLD BAILEY TRIAL AND VERDICT.

The trial of Arthur John Biggin, aged eighteen, a Sheffield clerk, who is charged with the murder of John Thomas Gregory, aged fifty-nine, at the Coindale Wine Stores, Hendon, on July 4, took place at the Old Bailey.

"The case will involve our going into certain details which no decent woman ought to remain in court to listen to," said Mr. Justice Darling before the case opened.

A number of women in the gallery at once left the court.

Biggin pleaded not guilty.

Sir Richard Muir, K.C., who appeared for the prosecution, told the story of the tragedy and of the arrest of Biggin at a Sheffield hospital, where he was suffering from the effects of poison.

Sir Richard explained that Sergeant Cooper saw Biggin in the hospital at Sheffield on July 11. Biggin said to the sergeant:—

"Yes, I was expecting this. I tried to take my life because I did not think any one would believe the circumstances in which I was driven to commit the act."

Sir Richard Muir repeated statements made by Biggin to Chief Inspector Neil, in which he said that he met Gregory on June 21, and was invited to the wine shop, where they had cigarettes and wine. Biggin afterwards wrote a note to Gregory, in which he said:—

Dear Old Bean.—I called this morning and found you out. Was very disappointed. Will call later in the week.

A description was then given of a meeting on July 4, a lunch at the wine shop, the drinking of ale and sherry, and the tragedy which followed.

"Biggin alleged that Gregory brought in some coloured mixture," said Sir Richard. "Biggin stated that when Gregory attacked him with a poker he struck Gregory with a bottle in self-defence. He said that he could not remember what took place after that."

The jury empanelled for the trial stayed the night at the Old Bailey, owing to the difficulty of obtaining hotel accommodation. The necessary beds were hired, and meals were supplied by the court caterer.

Biggin, giving evidence, said Gregory eventually seemed to lose control of himself and took up a poker and struck at him. Then they struggled furiously.

"He looked like a fierce, dangerous animal. He called me 'young viper' and said I should pay for it. I was very much frightened. I struggled to get away from him. He was raving and seemed to go absolutely mad. He dashed across to the fireplace and picked up the poker.

"He aimed a terrific blow at me. If he had managed to hit me I would not have been standing here to-day. He again came for me, and I picked up a bottle of wine from the table and struck him over the head with it. The bottle broke, but had no effect in stopping him. I then picked up the tongs to defend myself and guarded his blows from the poker. The tongs were broken by him and I then closed with Gregory in an endeavour to get the poker from him. After a struggle I succeeded."

Biggin said it was not until the evening of the following day that he knew that Gregory was dead. He then saw it on a newspaper placard at Brondesbury. After that he bought cyanide of potassium and went to Sheffield.

After an absence of 20 minutes the jury returned a verdict of Manslaughter with a strong recommendation to mercy on account of his youth.

Prisoner was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour.

Mr. Justice Darling in passing sentence said he agreed with the verdict, but if the prisoner had been an older man he should have passed a much more severe sentence.

MORE PAY, MORE RECRUITS.

The new and increased rates of pay in the Army have already had a marked effect on recruiting. It was noticeable at the London Central Recruiting Office that more men presented themselves than had been the case for some time, and the officials confidently anticipate that a heavy rush will have to be dealt with in the next two or three weeks. Up to the publication of the new rates of pay, about 85 per cent. of the recruits were new men; but the belief is entertained that under the improved conditions a larger proportion of ex-service men will again be attracted to the colours.

PLYMOUTH AGAINST PARASITES.

Plymouth Town Council has decided not to appoint a committee under the Profiteering Act. One member, Mr. Pengelly, contended that by appointing a committee they would be creating an additional army of parasites to bleed the public. Alderman Jacobs said he was told that it would cost thousands to administer the Act, and this would come out of the rates. The Mayor said he thought it would be a futile committee, but it was wise to appoint one.

"OLYMPIC'S" CAPTAIN KNIGHTED.

The King has knighted Captain Hayes, R.N.R., for his valuable services in connection with the transport of troops during the war. Captain Hayes commanded the "Olympic" when that vessel rammed and sank the German submarine U-103.

ALLENBY HOME.

MAGNIFICENT RECEPTION IN LONDON.

London has welcomed Field Marshal Lord Allenby, the victor of Palestine. At Dover Lord Allenby had already had a great reception. Replying to an address of welcome he paid a tribute to the work done by his predecessor in the Palestine command, Sir Archibald Murray. He referred to the cosmopolitan character of his army in which, he said, Christian Jew and Mahommedan were all represented. "Towards the close of the campaign two-thirds of my troops were Manommedans and there are no troops more loyal to the cause and to the Empire." He concluded with a glowing tribute to his men. "To their courage and self-sacrifice I owe every honour and distinction that I have."

At Victoria Station Lord Allenby was greeted by a brilliant gathering of military officers, Including Lord Haig and Sir Archibald Murray. Lord Athlone represented the King. The Coldstream Guards with their band formed a guard of honour. Lord Allenby received a great welcome from a large crowd as he left the station.

"LEGACY OF DAMNATION"

LABOUR LEADER ON LABOUR FOLLIES.

"Restriction of output can only create for the people a legacy of damnation," stated Alderman Beard, of Birmingham, presiding at Glasgow at the triennial conference of the Workers' Union, representing 400,000 workers.

They might not be able to persuade them to break the habit, he continued There was thus the danger that if they nationalised industry instead of making progress the position would simply crumble. They could never unite the workers on such a plan.

Three days would see the end of a general strike of all workers, and then the workmen would, metaphorically speaking, be battering each other's lives out, and children would be crying for bread. Our forefathers had suffered to get the ballot-box; now Labour was organising to destroy it.

U.S. AND PEACE TREATY.

APPEAL FOR RATIFICATION.

When the Peace Treaty came up for debate before the full U.S. Senate, every member of that body received a written appeal for the ratification of the Treaty without delay or amendment. It was signed by 250 men and women of national reputation from both parties. Among them are ex-President Taft, ex-Attorney-General Wickersham, President Lowell, of Harvard University, Mr. Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labour, and financial and business magnates.

LOVERS STABBED IN WOOD.

The condition of the two young lovers — Thomas Evans and Cissie Stradling — who were attacked by a man in a wood near Usk (Monmouthshire) on Sunday night has become so serious yesterday that their depositions have been taken.

They were walking in a wood when a man came suddenly up and stabbed them both in the face with a sharp instrument, after throwing carbolic powder in their faces. Their assailant is alleged to be Richard Mallen, a man of fifty-five, who, it is stated, was jealous of the girl. He has been formally remanded at Usk on a charge of attempted murder.

A FATAL EMBRACE.

On a charge of murdering Matthew Rogers, thirty, demobilized soldier (her husband), Elizabeth Rogers, aged twenty-eight, was remanded at Gloucester.

It was said that late on Saturday evening Rogers' next-door neighbour, with his wife and baby, accepted an invitation to go into Rogers' house to hear a gramophone. Rogers, who was nursing the neighbour's baby, made, it was alleged, some observation which his wife resented, and she went out of the room. Returning a little later she went up to her husband, as if to embrace him, saying, "I do love you, my dear," and then drew a sharp instrument across his throat, nearly severing his head from the body.

NEW CAMBRIDGE CHANCELLOR.

We understand that Mr. A.J. Balfour is to be nominated for election as Chancellor of Cambridge University in succession to his brother-in-law, the late Lord Rayleigh. The Electors are the members of the Senate. It is improbable that there will be any opposition to Mr. Balfour's election.

THIEF UNDER THE STAIRS.

Harold Pearson, formerly a second Lieutenant in the Army, was remanded on bail at Hull, charged with stealing a single stone diamond ring valued at £50 from a jewellers shop.

Detective-Sergeant Burton said he found Pearson hidden in a gas cupboard under the stairs. When arrested he said: "I know all about it."

HIS LAST LETTER.

DEAD BARONET APOLOGISES TO HIS CLUB.

"I much regret that my death should take place in this club, and I should be glad if you would convey this sentiment to your committee, pointing out at the same time that I have paid them the compliment of dressing for the occasion."

Such was the apology—seemingly the last words he ever wrote—stated at the inquest at Westminster to have been left by Sir James Domville, Bart., in his bedroom at the United Services Club.

Sir James was found in a dying condition at the club on Saturday morning, suffering from a gunshot wound. He was conveyed to Charing Cross Hospital, where he died.

At the inquest a verdict of suicide whilst of unsound mind brought about by physical, financial and domestic trouble, was returned.

The first witness at the inquest was Sir Cecil Lionel Domville, the new baronet.

He said that his brother had contracted enteric fever while serving in the Mediterranean in 1918; he was very bad after he came home. On top of that, witness added, he suffered from pyorrhea. He did not know that his brother was in financial difficulties until he read so in the newspapers. He believed that his brother had domestic troubles, and that there was a petition out against him for a divorce.

POLICE BURGLARS.

PENAL SERVITUDE FOR WHOLESALE THEFTS.

Two police officers, Thomas Maxwell and Alfred Shaw, pleaded guilty at the Old Bailey to receiving stolen property, and were each sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

Mr. Travers Humphreys, prosecuting, said the defendants were expert housebreakers on a wholesale scale. Maxwell was a sergeant with 13 years' service, and Shaw, a constable, with 10 years service. They were stationed at Hampstead, where it was the custom for residents who were going away for a holiday to give notice to the police. They used that knowledge to rob the houses themselves. There were five cases in the indictment, and the house of Sir Edward Elgar was amongst those robbed. Maxwell was afterwards found wearing a coat and trousers which had belonged to the composer.

It was stated that the total value of the stolen property was about £1,000, and only about £400 worth had been recovered.

The Recorder, in passing sentence, said the case had come as a great shock to him, as he had always found the police conducting themselves admirably. It must also have been a great shock to the confidence which the public placed in the Force. He would not be doing his duty if he did not pass an exemplary sentence.

DIAMONDS WORTH £80,000 VANISH.

Four small packets containing diamonds valued at £80,000 have disappeared in a remarkable manner. On August 7 a London firm dispatched the gems to a firm in Colombo, but when the vessel arrived at Bombay the packets were missing.

Police authorities have lost no time in taking steps to recover the diamonds, and even at this stage of the inquiries it is possible to suggest that the mystery can be associated with the operations of a gang of expert international thieves. This it not the first case of the kind, for early this year £50,000 worth of diamonds were stolen from a vessel making a similar journey.

"WHITE AUSTRALIA" POLICY.

Mr. Hughes, in the Australian House of Representatives, speaking on the Peace Treaty Bill, said, referring to Japan and the "White Australia" policy, "Our destinies, ideals, impulses, and history are different. I hope Japan will remain on terms of most perfect friendship with us, but we claim the right to say who shall come in and who shall not come. This is our house. Our soldiers sacrificed their blood to keep it for us, and placed the keys of this house in our hands. This war was fought for liberty. We had this right before the war, and we claim the right now."

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.

Here is the latest heart-cry from the "Times" agony column — love at 1s 2d a line: "On Thursday, at about 5.20 p.m., a little vision in blue (?) jumped or glided from a taxi (in which were two others) at top of Burlington-arcade. Having fetched something (?) from a shop halfway down she returned to the taxi, both journeys being done at extreme economical speed. A weary wight in grey (that's me) saw her. I'm sure we both like dancing (when its not so cold), so please change down to first speed next time we meet, and write now."

Romeo did these things better.

ANOTHER ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY.

It is stated that the Supreme Council will send an ultimatum to Germany, demanding that General von der Goltz shall immediately evacuate the Baltic provinces.

ROYAL WARRANT.

OFFICERS' APPOINTMENTS (CONTINUED).

FOURTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

Royal Engineers.—Engineer pay will be drawn by officers who have qualified as Associate Member, Institute of Civil Engineers; Associate Member, Institute of Mechanical Engineers; or Associate Member, Institute of Electrical Engineers, or who have such other equivalent professional qualifications as may be accepted be the Army Council.

3. Royal Army Service Corps.—Corps pay will be drawn by officers who are qualified as Associate Member, Institute of Mechanical Engineers, or who have such other equivalent professional qualifications as may be accepted by the Army Council.

The issue of these rates will not be dependent on performance of the duties of the Corps, but, with this exception, will be subject to the rules for the issue of Staff pay.

4. In the case of officers of the Royal Engineers or the Royal Army Service Corps serving on the date of this Warrant the conditions of drawing Engineer pay or Corps pay will be as follows, pending a further announcement:—

Officers of the Royal Engineers will draw the new normal rate of regimental pay plus the new rate of Engineer pay, for which he would be eligible if duly qualified.

Officers of the Royal Army Service Corps, if not qualified for Corps Pay under paragraph 3 above, will draw the new normal rate of regimental pay without Corps pay, except that a Sec. Lieutenant will draw a minimum rate of 14s.

Further instructions will be issued as soon as possible.

5. Royal Army Service Corps—Inspectors of Mechanical Transport.—These officers will be paid at the rates laid down for Inspectors of Ordnance Machinery.

Tank Corps—Technical.—Corps pay will be issuable to the technical branch of the Tank Corps at the rates and under the conditions applicable to the Royal Army Service Corps.

7. If an officer (other than an officer of the Royal Army Ordnance Corps) is appointed temporarily to act as an officer of the Royal Engineers, the Royal Army Service Corps or the Tank Corps (Technical), Engineer or Corps pay will be issuable under the conditions applicable to officers of those arms who have the requisite professional qualifications.

SEALING HER DOOM.

General Ludendorff's memoirs have evoked lively interest and a good deal of criticism from German statesmen, who are by no means in agreement with all his statements.

This has induced Ludendorff to publish a brochure entitled, "The break-down of the Peace negotiations, August-September 1918." In this he reiterates the accusation levelled against the German Foreign Office of incompetency and failure to follow up the efforts towards mediation set on foot by neutral Powers.

Admiral von Hintze, who filled the post of Secretary for Foreign Affairs during this phase, now comes forward in the "Vossische Zeitung." He states that in the middle of July, in his official capacity, he asked General Ludendorff to give a final and definite reply to the question as to whether he was certain of achieving the final and definite defeat of the enemy by means of the present offensive.

To this question Ludendorff returned a definite affirmative, and this formed the foundation for the policy pursued by the Imperial Government up to August.

About August 13th, however, General Ludendorff informed Herr von Hintze that he no longer possessed this confidence. Upon being questioned on his ideas as to the continuance of the War, Ludendorff stated that a strategic defensive would cripple the enemy's desire to continue the war, and thus gradually to bring about peace.

At a Crown Council held on August 14th however, in which the Kaiser declared for "an unvarnished settlement of the world war," Ludendorff remained silent, and had not a word to say regarding the military situation.

Herr von Hintze proceeds to prove that, until Sept. 29th 1918, Ludendorff and German G.H.Q. never pressed for a speedy peace. Although well aware of the situation, knowing that the Allies would listen to no peace pour-parlers which did not contain an abandonment of all annexations in the East as well as in the West, Ludendorff, as late as August, was still pressing for a virtual annexation of Belgian as well as of Polish and Russian territory.

All this simply goes to prove what we have continuously maintained that it was the military clique with Ludendorff as its figure head which dragged Germany to its doom. And this is his condemnation.

Ludendorff never knew the people—he simply took it for the feudal, conservative and large capitalist circle by which he was surrounded. There never glimmered in his brain the slightest idea that the moral power of the great mass of the people could be reinforced only by the guarantee of freedom and the conviction that, outside the confines of Germany, the German people were fighting for the freedom of the world.

"CHESS-NUTS."

In place of that heated antagonism toward the little party of gentlemen who recently rested from their task of issuing instructions, in order to pay this Army a friendly visit, a sense of injustice now pervades our little circle, or what remains of it—for we can no longer whip ourselves into a fury of anger over the subject of demobilization.

Even the cynical query,—"Demobilization? what does that mean?" has lost its point, for the vacant places at the Mess table where we were wont to foregather have drawn the sting from such remarks, and the fact that release is no longer a hazy speck on the distant horizon, precludes any prolonged argument on the subject.

Hence the feeling of injustice; the powers that be had withdrawn our one interest in life, and left an uninteresting blank between supper and bed; obviously something had to be done, then it was suggested—a quiet game of Chess.

A great deal has been written about chess and its charms, but I may say that the game can be either dull and monotonous, or interesting and exciting, according to how it is played.

Such mediocrities as Capablanca, play the former type in Hastings and other villages.

The board and pieces are set out, there are two players, a large audience, and perfect silence; the players sit down, one at either side of the board and commence to push the pieces about.

There is an interval at the end of each day to permit the players to shave, and next morning they continue to push the pieces about.

After a week or two, the more up-to date newspapers begin to report developments and immediately following this one of the players resigns, (the audience has been resigned from the very first day.)

Such is the game of chess, as played at Hastings,—very dull and very uninteresting.

Now at our Mess, things are entirely different, after supper the board is set out and (at first) there are only two players, but after the first move matters begin to develop and an audience gathers round.

Even in our chess it is almost impossible to criticise the first move, but the omission is more than rectified by the criticism of the second; the spectator on the left shakes his head; the one on the right remarks "Good move."

"Why was it a good move?" asks the first.

"Why wasn't it?" replies the second.

While they are discussing details the original players have executed another six moves, various pieces have become casualties, the remaining spectators are warmly discussing the respective merits of "exchanges;" the possibility or impossibility of taking "en passant" in the middle of the board, and in place of th perfect silence which blessed the Hastings Congress, there are "umpteen" arguments regarding..... Knights, ... Bishops, and other types of pieces which—judging by the "Times" reports—are non-existent at Hastings.

Then No. 1 spectator, in order to demonstrate the weakness of move No. 2, commences to re-arrange the board in order to carry out a "mate" in 12 — to the violent dissatisfaction of "White" who has just calculated that he can "mate" in 3 — if "Black" keeps his Queen on the same square during the operation.

"White" endeavours to keep the pieces in their correct position but without much success, because various spectators are also endeavouring to replace the pieces in their positions at various phases of the game.

"White" gives up all hope of carrying on the game and insists on the resignation of "Black."

"Black" refuses to resign because at the time of the interruption he had an absolutely infallible "mate" in 2.

In the meantime the electric lights twinkle as a reminder that it is time the Mess was cleared, and in one's and two's we retire, all arguing and each convinced that he is perfectly correct in his particular argument.

In bed, preparing to sleep, the pleasant thought strikes us — for two hours we have had no thought of demobilization, or the lack of it.

Chess is a wonderful game!

R. A. S.

A STRICKEN VILLAGE.

There is something particularly poignant about a recent appeal in the Agony Column of "The Times" by the curé of a stricken village on the Somme for funds to assist in the re-building of his church.

Many of us can picture in our mind's eye a particular village or villages away behind the lines where it was sometimes difficult to realise that there was a war on.

Here we were wont to gather in the village estaminet and like the Walrus talk of "cabbages and kinds".

Curiously enough the war was not often a subject of conversation.

The main theme of conversation usually centred round Madamoiselle Suzanne, or perchance, Germaine, the bewitching daughter of the proprietor of the estaminet.

How she mothered us all. Her smiles were strictly meted out to all and sundry, no ration cards being necessary, be he a hot and dusty Despatch Rider who had just looked in for liquid refreshment or one of the regular patrons from the troops "resting" in the village.

Now and again one of the boys would suffer from light headedness after a visit to Suzanne's establishment.

She had been slightly more attentive to him that day, he thought.

He was, in the vernacular, "quids in."

How soon his delusions were dispelled on his next visit to see the fair Suzanne paying hospitable attention to a somewhat dusty and dishevelled looking A. S. C. lorry driver who had dropped in casually in passing through the village.

At times the meeting place would be the establishment where Madame sold such delicious coffee.

Here too the prior attraction would be one of France's fair daughters.

What feats in coffee drinking were performed within its precincts.

How many plates of luscious eggs and "chips" were demolished while one lingered to chaff Madamoiselle on her latest conquest, or to watch Madame's efforts to keep pace with her customers' demands, which at times became most amusing.

And then the tide of war rolled against us. Suzanne and Madame joined the frightened stream of refugees flowing westward.

The Germans heralded their approach with a 5.9 or two, usually directed at the church, and the village then became a place to be avoided at all costs.

For a few weeks the daily systematic shelling went on, local geography quickly became altered and then the dog days over we again went forward, this time to the end.

Alas! what had once been a smiling village was now only a relic. Suzanne's estaminet was represented by a heap of rubble, the church was a mere framework.

THE EPISTLES OF PETER BIRSE, JUNIOR.

A SENSATIONAL VENTURE.

Dear Maister Editor,

Throwin' aside m' "Polis Budget," disgustit mair or less wi' the veeshyus ineequity o' the human race, aw stappit oot the lenth o' the bonny Fowks' Gairden th' ither nicht t'communicawt wi' natyure undefil'd. On a widden sait 'at wad be nane the waur o' a coat or twa o' pint, sat a stoodyus lookin' objeck in solitary grandyure. A pair o' thick, clumsy specks surmoontit his protroodin' nib, a massiv' doam denoatin' intelleck form'd th' upper pairt o' his sin- brunt dial, an' in his lady-like han' was a publicawshun resem'lin a buik o' German poetry.

He was a "Jerry, "an' judgin' b' appairance a pussy-fittit craiter wi' impossibel ideels, unco little in seempathy wi' things mateerialistick. But that's just far aw made a styoupendus blun'er. He was deeply engroass'd in an ultra-mundane volyume on pottygrafick apparawtus.

"Goot evenin' corporal," he said in freen'ly enooch fashun "would you like to make a millionair?"

Th' illustrus Birse faimly, lang afore Docktor Johnson was boarn, was weel ackwantit wi' the vainity o' human wishes, but aw ejackulawtit speedily "Dae ye mean, wid aw like t' mak' masel or you a millionair?"

"Yourself, sarjint, "he confidently replied, promoatin' me on the spoat, whereupon aw anser'd like a pantymime fairy:- "Proceed, illustrious youth, And virtue guard you to the throne of truth."

"Well, Captain" said he wi' conteenit ashoorance an' furtner speedy promoshun, "if you can cooperate viz me in a leettle bizness deal in ze Twisters' Cloister, Köln, you will soon become reech beyond vat you calls ze dreams of ham and rice." (At laist it soondit like that.)

"Indid," says I, raither skeptically, "an' fat wye?" Here he handit me a Canteen De Reszke wi' a grandeeloquint air an' proceedit t'unfold his winderfu' skeem. Braifly his plan was as follos. He was th' owner o' a pottygrafer's styoudio i' the Twisters' Cloister, far he claim'd t' mak' a speeshiality o' tablo pickters, sma groops or figgers, ye ken, representin classickal seens or incidents, th' impersonawtors bein' the sitters 'at cam' t' hae their fottos tane in th' auld-fashun'd, orthodocks menner.

Supposin' m' freen' Sandy Mc Flummocks—fa's been draw'n his oot-o'-wark benefit siller this sax ouks an' maircam' in t' be pottygraf'd, he wid be deckit up t' resem'le Fightin' Mack, General Gordon, Piper Findlater, Judas Iscariot, Abraham Lincoln, Sexton Blake, Old Bill, Landru, Peter the Painter, or some ither celeebrity. Or supposin' half-a-dizzen Toammies cam' in they wid be speedily convertit int' a groop posin' as "The Ten Tumbler Club," "Committee Meeting of Pussyfoots," "Napoleon and his Marshals," "Tym Reads the Grand Remonstrance," "Cromwell and his Ironsides," "Founding the Anti-Demobilization League," "Horatius at the Bridge," "Landing of Julius Caesar without his Embarkation Card," or "Peeping Toms at the Roman Baths."

M' pairt i' this highly arteestick bizness was t' ack, so t' speak, as a decoy duck b' impersonawtin' a karacter in ilka tablo, an' bringin' in aboot ither mugs t' compleet the pickters. For m' services i' the consern 50 per sent o' the proceeds was t' gang t' m' exchecker alang wi' a free fotty in a bonny gowden frame ilka time a tablo was produc'd. He said if aw gaed aboot m' bizness in a sober, industryus, an' workmanlike menner aw wid be able t' buy a civvy soot within sax month o' m' demobilizawshun.

For three days an' three nichts aw thocht the projeck oot, oilin' the brain weel wi' hefty potawshuns o' this, that, an' the neist beverage. Enammer'd tho aw was at the prospeck o' early afflooens, an' mummlin' t' masel mony a time aboot the tide in the affairs o' men, aw had m' suspeeshuns. The bawbees were to come ower aisy, an' aw had m' doots aboot th' legallity o' th' operawshun. T' mak' siccar aw call'd at the company offish, far a corporal infoarm'd me wi' the air o' a Solon 'at the hale bizness was grossly illeegal an' irreglar. M' only chance t' encourage fine art amo' the troops on the Rnine was t' ack in a purely honorary capaisity withoot ony perkwisit or emolumint fatever.

On m' infoarmin' m' "Jerry" freen' he fain'd the deepest sympathy wi' me in m' sore an' sad bereavement, in fack crockodile teers trickl'd doon his oily cheeks saturawtin his fusker like a shoor o' weety sna. Then he mutter'd incoheerently, "As an Art patron, Colonel, vy not help me in my vork without ze prospect of reward?"

That touch'd a weak spoat i' the Birse anatomy an' I ackwiess'd.

A fortnicht syne oor first pickter was produc'd an' aw'll wager 20 marks, it'll be m' last. The subjeck—nane o' m' choosin', tho the sitters a' hurl'd abuse at m' inoffensiv' heid—was "The Sultan in his Harem." I was the Sultan, Maister Editor, as nane o' the mugs wid pey enooch t' be permittit t' play the leadin' role. So far everything in that exotick gairden was luvely, espeeshally the dancin' quoins 'at cluster'd roond the dazzlin throne ticklin' the royal chin. But some dirty snipe o' a craiter i' the tablo sent the pickter hame t' m' spouse!! Noo the fat's i' the Printfield fire, an' aw'm searchin' Coloan for a timely peace-offerin' o' substanshal vailyou an' immediate uteelity. T' mak' things waur aw'm t' be demobileez'd within a fortnicht's time! While thus preparin' for hosteelities on the hame front, aw'll bid you and your readers an affeckshunat' guid-bye. Vale!

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,—I am quite sure my husband who invited me out here last month has not neglected his duties by reason of giving up his time in dancing attendance on me, and I should not think of trying to make him.

He has put in just as many hours in his official duties as before I came—indeed he tells me he has done even more.

I go about by myself in the daytime visiting the points of interest in Cologne and the surrounding country and the evening, when his work is done, is the only time we spend together.

There are, perhaps, wives who are different from me and hamper their husbands in their work. I merely tell you my own case.

H. V. S.

Sir,—Surely after four years of separation except for uncertain leave the married soldier has earned some right to give his wife a good time now that the couple have come together again.

"Bachelor" is, if I may say so, narrow minded. By all means maintain efficiency but I have yet to learn that the number of wives on the Rhine is so large that their presence is likely to interfere with that efficiency which has made the British Army what it is. "Bachelor's" quarrel is with his fellows who have called upon him to undertake extra labour. Surely not with husbands as a whole.

SERGT. MAJOR.

Sir,—V.A.D. says "Bachelor" is a selfish old thing. I do not agree with her. "Bachelor" is quite right and perhaps V.A.D. would think so too if she lost the hours of pleasure I lose through "Wifey." Hubby must go out with her.

Not only myself but others suffer through her. If Hubby did his duty work could finish at 4 o'clock but we must wait and catch him in at dinner.

Let wifey have her pleasure but don't deprive others of theirs.

ONE OF THE SUFFERERS.

WE ARE APPRECIATED.

Sir,—I am now on the eve of demobilization and would like to put on record my appreciation of your valuable paper.

I have followed its career with great interest and appreciate the difficulties under which the staff have carried on.

There is no doubt that the "Post" has been and is an immense boon to all ranks. We have seen many sources of grumbling put right, many improvements made through the publicity of its columns.

Those in authority have been quick to act on suggestions from all grades and have been quick to recognise that many grouses have been justified.

All honour to "The Cologne Post;" it has rendered signal service to us, and I, for one, thank you.

CORPS.

THE ELEVEN O'CLOCK RULE.

Sir,—I had a shock last night—the Germans can now demand to see our passes. You cannot believe it? Then let us deal with the facts.

At 22.15 hours last night—I had been on duty up till that time—it occurred to me that the new regulation extending the hours for the opening of cafes to troops might be taken advantage of. I entered a near by cafe, and was met with a demand to see my pass. I could not understand. It was explained by a very polite and suave individual that after 22.00 hours N.C.O.'s and men could not be served if they had not a pass to show.

Although cafes are open to officers and warrant officers and,—N.C.O.'s and men with passes, until 23.00 hours,—and, although N.C.O.'s and men are allowed out until 22.30 hours without a pass, they cannot enter a restaurant after 22.00 hours sans pass. The possibilities of the situation stagger me—more especially as I had a dry throat and found a blank wall of real Prussianism construing our orders.

J.R.H.

THE VICTORY MEDAL RIBAND.

Sir,—I am in complete agreement with your correspondent as regards the sale of the riband of the Victory Medal.

Surely all ranks of the British Army have waited long enough for permission to wear the riband and it should have been possible for the necessary issue to be made promptly.

Instead we are told that indents for riband will not be submitted until notification is given that supplies are available.

LANCE-JACK.

THE CANTEEN SUPPLIES.

Sir,— At intervals we are apprised of the nature of the goods available for sale at the N.A.C.B. canteen, but, when, oh when, will the officer in charge look round his stock and realise that there are other things required besides cigarettes and toothpaste?

I am not a company shareholder and therefore hesitate to name the articles I have in mind, because of my respect for your advertising revenue, but always it is the same tale, "We are expecting supplies."

I have heard this with unfailing regularity. You, Sir, have been instrumental in securing many benefits for us, and I now put forward the idea that a suggestion board or something of a like nature be hung up in the canteen.

SIGNALS OFFICER.

REMINISCENCE.

I dream of youth and its sparkling rays,
Of life and its beauties — of bygone days
Of carelessness and easy joy
In those glad days when but a boy —
Of tender fancies — happy hours
Spent in woods amidst sweet flowers;
Of ease now gone, of joy now fled —
The peace of soul which now seems dead
Of fancies faded in the past,
As flowers fade in the wintry blast.
For the bright Spring of Youth has now given way
To the Summer's warm blooming breath;
And Autumn — preluding the end of the day
Shall be passed by the Winter of Death.

RHINELAND CHAMPIONS.

Winners of Finals at Athletic Sports Meeting.

Everything favoured the finals of the greatest Rhineland Athletic Meeting at the P. and R. T. Ground, Riehl, yesterday afternoon. The weather was perfect and there was a large and keenly interested spectatorate. As was to be expected, the athletics reached a very high standard, surpassing anything previously presented by the British Army of Occupation.

In the events only the best talent participated, the teams having previously had to show their worth in the eliminating contests held by brigades, divisions, and corps. Each corps was represented by one unit, survivor of the earlier rounds, and the successful team yesterday won for itself the coveted title of champion unit, battalion, or equivalent strength in the Rhine Army.

CORPS REPRESENTATIVES.

The corps were represented as follows:—

II Corps, 63rd. Bde R.G.A.; IV Corps, 5/6 Royal Scots; VI Corps, 41st. Bn. M.G.C.; X Corps 15th Lancashire Fusiliers and Tank Group, 9th Tank Battn. Points were awarded as follows:—1st—3, 2nd—2, 3rd—1, in each event, the unit having the largest aggregate being the winner. Each corps was well supported, revealing a real esprit de corps. The times considering the somewhat indifferent nature of the track, were good.

Delightful music was provided by the band of the 9th D L.I., by kind permission of Lieut.-Col. J. W. Jeffreys, D.S.O., while refreshments were served by the Y.M.C.A.

List Of Officials.

The officials were:—

Judges (for track events):—Brig.-Gen. C.G. Fuller, C.M.G., D.S.O., Lt.-Col. H.C. Maitland-Makgill-Crichton, C.M.G., D.S.O., Capt. M. Brown, M.C., Maj. A.V. Keene, T.D., Rev. C. Wheeler, Maj. M.C. Morgan, M C.

Judges (for field events):—Capt. J. MacSween, S.I. R.K. Starkey, S.I. J.A. Maynard.

Starter:—Maj. W. Delany, O.B.E.

Timekeeper:—Maj. Wheeler, D.S.O.

Registrars:—C.S.M. J. Harper and C.S.M G.E. Ware.

Recorders for cross country run:—Corporal W.J. Perry and Corporal E. Stuckey, R.A.S.C.

Results.

The results were as follows:—

100 yds:—1, R.Q.M.S. Spruce 41st M.G.C., VI Corps (10 4/5 secs.); 2, Sgt. Whetlor 63rd Bde. R.G.A. (2nd Corps); 3, Pte. Hanlon, 5/6 Royal Scots (4th Corps).

880 yds:—1, Pte. Hanlon, 5/6 Royal Scots; 2, Lt. Speedy, 9th Tank Battalion (Tank Group); 3, Lt. Brett, 41st Bn. M.G.C.

Long Jump:—1, 2nd Lt. H. Goodman, 15th Lancs. Fus. (20ft., 1in.) 10th Corps; 2 Major Arkle, 41st Bn. M.G.C.; 3, Cpl. Wicks, 63rd Bde. R.G.A.

120 yds. hurdles:—1, Major Arkle, 41st Bn. M.G.C. (17 2/5 secs.); 2, Capt. Booth, 63rd Bde. R.G.A.; 3, Sgt. Murray, 5/6 Royal Scots.

Basket Ball, semi finals:—The P. and R. T. School defeated the Royal Irish Rifles by 13 points to one.

The 440 yards was an excellent race; the 63rd Bde. R.G.A. representative went away at a great pace and maintained his lead until fifty yards from the tape, when he was overtaken and beaten by the 5/6th Royal Scots competitor who ran an excellent race. Details:—

1, Pte. Hanlon, 5/6th Royal Scots (53 3/5 secs.); 2, Sgt. Whetlor, 63rd Bde. R.G.A.; 3, Sgt. Brown, 41st M.G.C.

High Jump:—1, Major Arkle, 41st M.G.C.; 2, Cpl. Teece, 9th Tank Bn.; 3, Cpl. Booth, 63rd Bde., R.G.A.

1 Mile:—1, Cpl. Ward, 9th Tank Bn.; 2, Sgt. Hay, 9th Tank Bn.; 3, Lt. Riley, 15th Lancs. Ins.

In the final of the light-weight tug-of-war the 63rd Bde. R.G.A. defeated the 35th Bde. R.G.A. by 2 pulls to nil, and in the final of the heavy-weights they were again successful by 2 pulls to nil.

Relay race:—1, 9th Tank Bn.; 2, 41st M.G.C.; 3, 63rd Bde. R.G.A.

Putting the shot:—1, Pte. Ruddy, 32ft. 2ins.; 41st M.G.C.; 2, Lt. Crookshank, Tank Corps; 3, Staff-Sgt. Arnott, 63rd Bde. R.G.A.

Final Points.

The final points for the athletic championship were:—6th Corps, 19; Tank Group, 19; 2nd Corps, 10; 4th Corps, 8; 10th Corps, 4. The Cup was awarded to the 6th Corps by reason of their having the largest number of firsts.

Basket-ball final:—P. and R.T. School defeated 5th Border Regt. by 8 points to 3.

Cross-Country run:—1, 15th Hants; 2, 7th Middlesex; 3, 5/6th Royal Scots; 4, 51st Manchesters.

At the close the prizes were presented by Lt.-Gen. Sir A. Godley, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., commanding 2nd Corps, who apologised for the unavoidable absence of the Commander-in-chief.

EXCELLENT BOXING.

There was a good attendance for the boxing semi-finals at the Burgergesellschaft, Cologne, on Wednesday evening, the competing teams being well supported. The many bouts provided a fund of excellent boxing and excitement ran high. A feature of the meeting was the remarkable display of pluck by Pte. Sprayson of the 51st Devons, who in his contest with Pte. Glinnain was floored in both the first and second rounds and saved by time. During the brief intervals he made splendid recovery and went the full distance despite the maximum of punishment, being deservedly awarded an extra half point for his gameness. The teams engaged were:—51st Devons representing 2nd Corps; 9th Battalion M.G.C. 4th Corps; 7th Middlesex Regt. 6th Corps; 32nd Bn. M.G.C. 10th Corps.

The Fights.

Semi-finals bantam weights:—L/Cpl. Dean, M.G.C., v. Pte. Sutton, 7th Middlesex. The fight ended very abruptly; Sutton immediately asserted his superiority, handed out a tremendous amount of punishment and the referee stopped the fight in the first round.

Pte. Anthony, 51st Devons, v. Sgt. Robinson, 32nd M.G.C. Robinson had all the best of the opening exchanges Anthony being unable to get his measure and only succeeding in getting in one or two decent lefts in return for which he took a deal of punishment. The second round saw a change, the Devon man showing marked improvement and using his left to advantage. It was clearly Anthony's round. The third meeting was fairly evenly contested and the verdict went to Robinson by a narrow margin.

Semi-finals feather weight:—Pte. Woodward, 7th Middlesex, v. Pte. Craik, 9th M.G.C. Both men immediately got busy and there was some very hard hitting. Woodward had the best of the mix up and Craik after being floored in the first round, gave in.

L/Cpl. Sherry, 51st Devons, v. Pte. Whithead, 32nd M.G.C. At the first meeting very little boxing was provided but things livened up in the second round and Sherry went twice to his knees after some lively exchanges. The final round saw Sherry easily master of the situation and he rapidly piled up points and was a good winner.

Light weights.

Semi-final, light-weights:—Pte. Gallagher, 9th Middlesex v. Pte. McKenna 32nd M.G.C. This contest ended in the first round, McKenna getting home a heavy right to the jaw and knocking his man out.

Sgt. Barker, 51st Devons v. Cpl. Stevens, 7th Middlesex. Stevens had the advantage in reach and made good use of it at the opening. Stevens relied on a damaging left whilst Barker replied with a punishing right hook. A really good bout ended in a win for the Middlesex man, Barker being a good loser.

Semi finals, welter-weights:—Pte. Ham, 51st Devons v. Pte. Clarke, 7th Middlesex. In the first round both men sparred for an opening and showed no desire to mix things, but the second set-to, saw Ham using a dangerous right hook which Clarke failed to counter. Clarke was down for two or three seconds but at the last meeting Ham boxed very cleverly; he used both hands freely and earned a popular verdict.

Pte. Ryan, 9th M.G.C. v. Sgt. Ritchie, 23nd M.G.C. Ritchie was the only man in the fight and with comparative ease knocked out his opponent in the first round.

Semi finals, middle-weights:—Pte. Sprayson, 51st Devons v. Pte. Glinnain, 7th Middlesex. Glinnain had a great advantage in height and weight and with a straight left found no difficulty in keeping Sprayson off. For sheer gameness against odds Sprayson was marvellous. He was sent to the boards and saved by time both in the first and second rounds, but he came up for the final meeting and saw the remainder of the fight out. He was awarded an extra half-point by the referee for being such a plucky loser.

Semi-final, welter, officers:—Lieut. Fairclough, 7th Middlesex was knocked out by Lieut. Lee, 32nd M.G.C. in the first round.

Heavy weights:—Cpl. Pollard, 51st Devons v. Sgt. Pearl, 7th Middlesex. This proved one of the best bouts of the evening. Pollard boxed very steadily and got slightly the better of some good exchanges at opening session. Pearl at one time was obviously groggy. There was some excellent boxing at the second meeting both men taking their share of punishment, Pollard still maintaining his lead on points. Pearl was more in the picture at the last set-to but was disqualified for holding after having been repeatedly warned.

Byes were obtained by Sgt. Miller, middle-weight, 32nd M.G.C. Lieut. Hayes, 51st Devons, officers' welter and Pte. Hollinsworth, heavy-weight.

BECKETT AND DEMPSEY.

Englishman's chances in Meeting with Champion.

Beckett is one of the most conscientious and persistent trainers among all the British boxers. He is a plugger who set to work to develop himself with the same dogged determination that marked Jack Dempsey's preparation for Willard at Toledo. While McGoorty, from the accounts, was looking on bright lights, Beckett was working with boxers of every sort and weight who could be induced to join his camp, says an American in the "Sporting Life." The Britisher reaped the just reward of his efforts, and it is well for the game that he did. If England, Australia, and France can develop a few first-class heavies it will tremendously stimulate the interest in that class in this country.

Naturally, the big talk now will be about matching Beckett with William Harrison (Jack) Dempsey. If they should meet Dempsey would be a big favourite in the betting, and properly so, but Beckett might not be an impossibility by any means. Beckett's best asset seems to be a straight right with knockout therein. He is a fairly clever boxer, who is still learning. How well he can use his left to drive back a rushing and powerful opponent is hard to say. The man who beats Dempsey while Dempsey is on top of his form will almost certainly have to do it with straight punches.

Dempsey is a swinger and hooker, but his swings are not of the round-house variety. They are so swift that they come through almost as quickly as a hook. If Beckett has a strong enough left to pierce through Dempsey's swings and hooks and drive him back so that Beckett's right can come into play, then Beckett has a chance with Dempsey; otherwise not.

Fred Fulton.

Fred Fulton, the discredited heavy-weight maker of confessions and repudiator thereof, knocked out Arthur Townley, British heavy, in one round. Fulton made a favourable impression upon the boxing experts in Paris, where Tom O'Rourke took him some weeks ago, and where he gave several sparring exhibitions. He then went to London, and his match with Townley was a sort of tryout.

W.R.A.F. REVELRY.

Merry-go-rounds, Mirth and Merriment at Sud Park.

HUGE SUCCESS.

The Revelry organized by the W.R.A.F's H.Q., for the purpose of raising money for the "Old Comrades Fund" which took place on Wednesday was a huge success. Thanks to numerous willing helpers and to the kindly assistance of the Y.M.C.A. who provided the fairy lights, etc., the entire programme was carried out without a hitch.

From 3 o'clock until "God Save the King" was played the revelry went on apace. It was a scene of gaiety and colour and festoons of bunting; flowers and flags were everywhere. Pretty girls in fancy costumes flitted hither and thither, or presided over the side shows. An Indian maid—but, no, she was addressed as "chief" — sold tickets for a raffle. The W.R.A.F. colours were sold by a Chinese lady and gentlemen. There was plenty of variety in dress—cowgirls, pierrettes, Spanish dancing senoritas, girls in Italian and Tyrolese costumes, charming maidens marked "?" (Why?—well it remains a question) did a manner of useful things.

Then there were the merry-go-rounds and all the kindred attractions of the old village fair. The inevitable clowns were there, grotesquely attired, armed with ratties and trumpets — and other fun provoking things. Under the shade of the trees, in tastefully decorated stalls, delightful young ladies sold buns and lemonade. Teas were provided in gaily festooned tea-rooms.

In the afternoon there was an al fresco concert, quite a happy little affair. And there were a hundred and one other attractions. Meanwhile the band of the 9th Durham Light Infantry and the Pipers of the 15th H.L.I., played intermittently throughout the afternoon.

Towards dusk the crowd increased and the amusement became more brisk. Dancing was indulged in on the green, the D.L.I. band providing the music. The press-photgrapher came and frightened everybody by taking flash-light photographs. Shortly after a whistle was blown and the green was cleared for the firework display.

YORKS. v. THE REST.

Champions' big Task: Woolley's fine display.

Yorkshire went from bad to worse at the Oval on Tuesday in the second day's play of the four days match against the Rest, and though their bowling was good—very fine for the first hour—and their fielding always above par, the Rest held too many guns for the champion county, and taking the lead after the fall of the fifth wicket, were at the close of play 218 runs ahead with one wicket to fall.

Head and shoulders above anybody else—even Hobbs, who scored 101 on his home pastures—stood Wolley, whose 164 (two 6's and nineteen 4's) was the acme of perfection, sharing in the most prolific partnership of the day with J. N. Crawford—116 runs in fifty-five minutes—the Kent man played with that ease that seems second nature to a left-handed batsman.

Hobbs, of course, was handicapped, playing as he did with his left wrist swathed in bandages—a memento of the Scarborough Festival. Added to that Hobbs was at the wicket at a time when the Yorkshire bowling was perhaps at its best. Consequently his 101, which occupied him two and a quarter hours, paved the way for the batsmen who were to follow.

J. N. Crawford played a characteristic innings of 41, hitting the inevitable six; but the polished Spooner failed to get going, and gave Dolphin his fourth victim of the match. During the last half-hour's play Hitch gave his usual electrical display, and the crowd had something to talk about as they left the ground. Incidentally, Waddington took his hundredth wicket of the season during the afternoon:

KEYSOE SCRATCHED.

St. Leger Winner Struck Out Of the Cesarewitch.

Lord Derby's Keysoe, who was installed favourite for the Cesarewitch in the wagering which took place over that event in London on Monday evening, was struck out of the race the following day, the information being on the authority of the filly's trainer, the Hon. George Lambton. No reason has, so far, been assigned for the scratching, but it is learned on good authority that Lord Derby does not wish his beautifully bred filly to have her prospects for her valuable weight-for-age engagements next season in any way jeopardised. Hence it was decided not to put her through the hard work that a Cesarewitch preparation must necessarily entail.

As a consequence of the withdrawal of Lord Derby's filly, says the "Sporting Life," the "market" on Tuesday underwent considerable alteration. A new favourite has been found in the Manton candidate Silver Bullet, the fancy, it may be said, of several of the shrewdest followers of the sport. Silver Bullet, who is, like Keysoe, a daughter of Swynford, has run but three times this year, failing to obtain a place in any of these races; but she was a smart filly last autumn, winding up with two victories. It should not, however, be overlooked that Silver Bullet has a prior engagement in the Newbury Cup, the winning of which would entail a penalty for the Cesarewitch. Others backed at a comparatively short price were Gay Lord, King John, Chuette, and Langdon Hills, all of whom figured at 100 to 7. Royal Welsh and Alasnam were also noted, and the latter, who has the minimum weight, is a quiet tip of the street-corner variety.

SAILORS v. SOLDIERS.

"B" Corps Siege Park v. Rhine Flotilla (Patrol).

A football match was played between the above teams on the latter's ground, Cologne, on Wednesday evening and resulted in a win for "B" Siege Park by 3 goals to 1.

From the commencement of the game it was apparent that the Siege Park were the better team, and although no player exerted himself, all played well. The game had only been in progress a few minutes when Bradburn opened the scoring with a shot that was well placed out of the "goalie's" reach. This proved to be the only goal scored in the first half.

On resumption of play the Park continued to have the best of the game, the sailors seldom crossing the half-way line. Siege Park had the misfortune to lose Elliott from left half, he sustaining a very severe sprain of the left knee which necessitated his admission to hospital. However, the Park continued to press and further goals were scored by Bradburn and Calderbank. With fifteen minutes to play Pte. Bradburn had the goal at his mercy when he stumbled and sprained his ankle, having to be assisted from the Field. With only nine players the Siege Park had a little extra work. Just on time the sailors scored a good goal from a breakaway, the match ending in favour of the Siege Park as above stated.

All players played well, the outstanding lights being the sailors "goalie" and Edwards, Calderbank and Bradburn for the Siege Park.

On the conclusion of the game three hearty cheers were given for the losing team who suitably responded and expressed the wish that the teams meet again at a very early date.

Hockey.

The 51st Bn. Northumberland Fusiliers require hockey matches and their sports officer will be glad to hear from other teams requiring fixtures.

Young Shelton's Challenge.

Seeing that the sports officer, on behalf of Rfn. Jackson (51st Bn. Rifle Bde.) has accepted my challenge, I shall be only too pleased to box him the stated number of rounds (give or take two pounds), the place and date to be arranged at the offices of the "Cologne Post" writes Pte Shelton.

Football Coach.

W. Garbutt, the old Blackburn Rovers, Woolwich Arsenal, and Reading outside-right, who attained commissioned rank and has recently been demobilised, is now in London. He will shortly go to Genoa in the capacity of football coach, to renew the engagement he had there before the war.

A Goal-Getter.

J. Broad, the hero of four goals against Northampton on Monday night, was transferred to Millwall from Greenock Morton at the commencement of the season at a fee which, it is stated, has only once previously been beaten by the New Cross club.

COLOGNE RACES.

"I Know's" Selections for To-Morrow's Meeting.

JOHNNIE WALKER AND REVENGE

"I Know," our Rhineland racing correspondent, sends us the following selections for to-morrow's meeting:—

Dark Prince

did not produce his best form at the last meeting, and he has not much to do in the Delphi Plate (1st Div.). He has only to reproduce his running with "Polly Dear" at the previous meeting to make the race a good thing for him.

Jingling Geordie

engaged in the 2nd Div. of the Delphi Plate may prove to be the best of a very moderate lot, and it is with no great confidence I give him my vote.

Bowman

stands out by himself in the Alma Steeplechase, being of a quite different class to the others engaged. He, however, bolted out of the course at the last meeting in the race won by Winamere and it is only in the event of his repeating this trick that I would advise a saving stake on Remember Me.

Golden Sunset

with all his weight will be hard to beat in the Handloy Cross Steeplechase and if danger does come it will be from Late Report who is good for a place, and would win in the absence of Golden Sunset.

Johnnie Walker

will just about take his revenge on Mascot in the farewell stakes for his Crefeld defeat. Eau de Cologne looks good for a place.

LANCS DIVISIONAL CUP.

"C" Battery 161 Brigade v. 13th Battalion King's.

Played at Beuel on Sunday. This was the third meeting of the teams, the previous games having been drawn 2—2 and 1—1 respectively. The teams were evenly matched and a hotly contested game ensued in which the Battery succeeded in winning by 2—0.

The game opened by a smart run on the right by the gunners which nearly ended in a goal. After ten minutes play the Battery came again resulting in Gilbert registering the first point. This reverse roused the Kings to further efforts and a ding-dong struggle marked the remainder of the first half. The whistle sounded the interval with the Battery leading 1—0.

On re-starting both teams exerted themselves making the game fast and furious. The feature of the re-opening was a brilliant individual run by Baker, which he finished by scoring with a fine shot, leaving the King's goalie helpless. No further scoring took place and "C" Battery earned the right to enter the semi-finals by 2—0. It should be mentioned that the King's had a player badly injured in the first ten minutes of the game and he was unable to participate further.

SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP.

Barry and Felton meet and Disagree.

The projected race for the world's sculling championship came a bit nearer realisation on Tuesday, although nothing was definitely fixed. The backers of Ernest Barry, the holder of the championship, and Alf Felton, the Australian soldier-oarsman who aspires to step into Barry's shoes, met to sign articles if terms could be agreed upon, but after a two hours' discussion the gathering broke up with each man having deposited a cheque for £100 for a match on his own conditions, the point of difference being the question of the time of starting.

AMATEUR GOLF.

Midlands Well Represented at Moseley.

The amateur golfing strength of the Midlands was well represented at Moseley on Tuesday when 19 club teams competed for the Midland Challenge Cup. The competition has not been held since 1914.

The best round of the day was made by Carl Bretherton, the Irish champion, who played for the Handsworth Club, and returned a card of 79.

A 24 HOURS' CYCLE RACE.

The North Road Cycling Club's 24 hours' invitation unpaced road race was won by M. G. Selbach (United C.C.) with a total of 405 miles. F. M. Inwood (North Road C.C.). 382 miles, was second; J. G. Shaw, Sharrow (Sheffield C.C.). 375 miles, third; and F. E. Armond (North Road C.C.). 360 miles, fourth.

The winner's distance beat Harry Green's record by eleven miles, but, the ride being done in competition, the existing record of 394 miles stands.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

The Tonics.

I omitted to state in my report of the performance given by "The Tonics" concert party at the British Empire Leave Club on Tuesday evening, that Finlay danced very successfully with Sangar. Much credit is also due to George Fenn for the assistance he ably gave to Sangar in the comedy doubles.

Village Entertainment.

P.L.S. writes:— It is a consolation to know that there is, at least, one village in which really good concert parties appear and I thank "Playgoer" for his reply. I fully agree with him that the musical talent of the Rhine Army is labouring under difficulties and that one cannot expect the "latest London productions," but there is a limit in all things, and I am only voicing the opinion of my Battalion when I say that the limit has certainly been reached in this village. I still maintain that the outlying districts are having far poorer concert parties dumped on them, than those enjoyed in Cologne. Perhaps other readers will give their views?

New Y.M.C.A. Venture.

Among the members of the staff of the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. are several talented musicians, and they, assisted by Major Bower and the "Central Soldiers' Quartette Party" gave a delightful concert in the great hall on Wednesday to an audience of not less than 1,500 men. This was a new venture, and by the enthusiastic applause that greeted each item of the programme, as well as by a formal resolution an invitation was given to the Y.M.C.A. Central staff to make their own concert one of the features of the Central weekly entertainments. In the Loreley hall there is a weekly classical lecture concert by Miss Merriman (lecturer and violinist), Miss Nash (pianist), Miss Hammond (vocalist), Rev. A. D. Mackenzie (accompanist and music director) assisted by soldiers. This evening (Friday) an impromptu concert will be given in the Loreley Hall by Miss Ada Moore of the British Empire Leave Club.

JACQUES.

OLD SCOUTS NOTES.

The Rhine Army Old Scouts Circle met as usual on Wednesday at Lindenthal Y.M.C.A. and spent a very enjoyable evening. The Scoutmasters' training class did very good work again.

* * *

Last week-end we visited Rolandseck and the volcano crater and had a most enjoyable time. On Sunday a party went to Rossrath and had a good time.

* * *

On Saturday we have been invited to a Rally of all Boys' Organisations at the Durham House Y.M.C.A., near the Zoological Garden and a good programme has been arranged. Roll up old Scouts and bring your cameras.

X CORPS TROOPS FOOTBALL.

Knock-out Tournament: 1st and 2nd rounds draws.

A football knock-out competition has been organised for 10th Corps Troops and the preliminary draws have been made. The matches in the preliminary round must be played by Sept. 21st, the 1st round completed by Sept. 30th and the third by Oct. the 7th.

Following is the draw:—

Middlesbrough F.C. Complaint.

In reply to a complaint from Middlesbrough F.C. against Andrew Wilson being allowed to play for Dunfermline F.C., the Scottish F.A. has replied that there is nothing in the International Board agreement relating to players on the retained list, and that so far as the association is aware, Wilson is not registered for Middlesbrough. In consequence, no action can be taken.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Friday, September 19th, 1919.

Surface wind between south and south west, 10 to 15 m.p.h., weather cloudy, mist at first, probably later; visibility fair.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Donoghue's Wrist.

Donoghue's damaged wrist is getting stronger daily, but he does not intend to overtax it.

Sensational Jumping.

A Reuter's wire from Sydney says there was some sensational jumping at Albury Agricultural Show, when Sundown, ridden by an aboriginal, cleared 7ft. 9in.

Loch Lomond's Future.

The Irish Derby winner, Loch Lomond, will not run again this season, which means that the colt will forfeit his engagement in the Irish St. Leger on the 24th inst.

"Incidents" Sequel.

Owing to several "incidents" in the League match at Dublin a week ago, between the Bohemians and Belfast Celtic, it is not unlikely that the Irish League and Southern League match, fixed for October 4, may be transferred to Belfast.

Wedding Bells.

Southampton's directors were busy making presentations after the match between Southampton and Reading. Dominy, the captain, Andrews, the ex-"Saint," and J. J. Blake were recently married, and as a mark of appreciation of their services to the club the officials presented each happy man with a clock.

Surrey A.C. Winner.

At Stamford Bridge on Monday Hector Phillips, of the Surrey A.C., won the 100 yards open handicap, with 4¾ yards start, in 10 1-5sec.

Lucky Luton.

Luton were lucky in drawing (two goals each) with Cardiff City. They scored the equalising goal in the last minute of the game, when it appeared that all hope had gone.

International Draughts.

The English Draughts Association will meet in Liverpool to-morrow when it will be decided whether or not to accede to America's request for a return international meeting.

Top of 1st League.

Beating Blackburn Rovers at Blackburn on Monday by 2 to 0, Middlesbrough registered their fourth victory in the course of five matches, and as a consequence now stand at the head of the First League competition.

Irish Bloodstock.

The Irish bloodstock market is clearly in a very healthy condition, for without the aid of the foreigners, new records have been made.

Clem Lewis.

Clem Lewis, the popular Welsh and Cambridge University half back, will again be seen in the light blue jersey, but will meantime play at centre three-quarter for Cardiff.

Benefit Match.

The Surrey Committee have decided to give the proceeds of a three-day match next year as a benefit to Mr. J. J. Reid, who has been pavilion attendant at the Oval for the last twenty-six years.

"A Most Serious Rival."

Ernest Barry discussing the probability of Felton, the Australian, challenging him for the world's sculling championship, said: "No one realises more than I do that Felton must be regarded as a most serious rival."

Ilford out of It.

Leytonstone, playing on their own ground on Monday evening, beat Ilford in the first round of the London Challenge Cup by 4 goals to 2.

Indian Rajah's New Purchase.

The Indian rajah General Sir Hari Singh has purchased in Ireland the three-year-old Brickeen Bridge and the two-year-old Rosey Tread, by Tredennis.

Referee's Death at Durham.

Ex-Sgt.-Maj. W. T. McCann, after acting as referee over several contests at Durham on Saturday, collapsed and fell into the arms of the promoter, subsequently expiring.

Advised to Give up "Footer."

The Rev. Alban Davies, who is an Army chaplain in France, now home on leave, has been advised to give up football. The old Welsh international has decided to settle in Canada when he leaves the Army.

Southern v. Irish League.

The Southern League team against Irish League at Dublin on October 26 is: Price (Brentford); Elvey (Luton) and Knight (Portsmouth); F. Gregory (Watford), Mitchell (Queen's Park Rangers), and McAlpine (Millwall); Jefferson (Swindon), Dominy (Southampton), Weir (Swansea), West (Cardiff) and Dixon (Plymouth).

LOOK OUT FOR OUR FOOTBALL COMPETITION, DETAILS OF WHICH WILL APPEAR IN TOMORROW'S COLOGNE POST.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Patience Unrewarded.

Lately the N.A.C.B. gardens on the Rhine Embankment have been retailing English beer. Consequently the greater part of the Rhine Army have lined up outside every evening with unlimited patience. The other evening however an additional unit fell in the long queue in the form of an Indian trooper and awaited his turn with the unruffled calm peculiar to his race. The evening was very warm and the crowd of waiting Tommies beguiled the time with good natured banter at his expenes; all of which he bore with a Puzzling grin. After forty minutes of painful progress he reached the bar and asked for "three cigarettes in packet missie please." Where on the N.A.C.B. damsel prettily smiled and replied: "The other queue for cigarettes please." Perhaps it is as well that she does not understand Hindoostani swear-words.

A Little Knowledge.

This conversation was overheard in the Cologne Opera house recently.

Officer (to lady who had been discussing operas they had seen in Cologne and elsewhere): What strikes me about the productions here is that they are so well staged. Have you seen Bayreuth?

Lady: No, not here. (Sudden silence of officer.)

Crossed Keys.

Many of us in Rhineland must have been puzzled over the meaning of the small circular enamelled plates to be seen on many doors with crossed keys and the words "Kölner Wach und Schliess-Gesellschaft". These refer to an institution which has no counterpart at home. This private company undertakes the watching and locking of the houses of its subscribers. This of course is one of the normal functions of the police in the United Kingdom.

Kegelspiel.

What is it? Every English boy and girl knows it well from childhood, and every English inn within the confines of the Midland Counties, at least, has its "Kegelbahn" — though many in recent years have gone into disuse because the lads of the Village "Kegel" Clubs have been "spieling" with larger or harder "woods." Now, reader, after reading the above lines you will have guessed it is a game of some sort. Well, it is skittles, or as the "kleine Kinder" would have it,—ninepins. In the smaller towns and villages of Germany the game is exceedingly popular and there are quite a number of Clubs devoted to it. In at least one Battalion of the Rhine Army, Kegelspiel takes place on most evenings of the week, and one evening recently there was a tournament between officers and sergeants. The play was productive of keen competition, the sergeants winning by a fairly good margin of points. The alleys are well-arranged, and the German players are mostly expert at the game. The "woods" are of varying size and weight and the game requires a strong arm and "level" eye before the highest form of play can be attained; so that "Kegelspiel" or skittles, forms an excellent pastime for the soldier, where other attractions are limited.

What Caused It?

A reader says that while walking along the pavement during the hottest part of the day, he was astonished to see thousands of caterpillars, all seemingly making in one direction, towards a row of houses. Some of the venturesome ones had climbed up the sides of the sides of the buildings to a height of at least ten feet; others straggling behind but continually on the move, with the strange surroundings and curious back-hunching wriggle appeared rather out of place on the hot pavement. On the opposite side of the road, numerous small allotments depicted their late homes. Perhaps some of the readers can explain the reason of such a strange invasion. Evidently no trifle would tempt these voracious many-legged insects away from the succulent cabbage leaf to the cold realities, and leathershod foot of man in the outer world.

A Sporting Retort.

The following amusing incident has just come to light. Four soldiers were walking along one of the paths in the Zoological Gardens when they saw a young woman coming towards them. One jokingly remarked to his companions, "Isn't she charming?" Imagine his surprise when the young lady turned to him and laughingly said "Yes. Isn't she absolutely tip-top?" The soldier was rather crestfallen and apologised for his rudeness, after which he had a hasty retreat. The young woman was wearing an armlet signifying that she was a British wife, a fact which had escaped the notice of the soldier.

"Dry."

The sun was blazing down from a cloudless sky as a perspiring Tommy, rushed up to one of the numerous "dry" stalls in Cologne. "Lemonade" said Tommy tersely, to the elderly man behind the counter. The stall-holder immediately placed the sparkling beverage before the khaki boy. "Dry eh? said Tommy as he proceeded to swallow the contents. "Ja, Ja," said the German, as he quickly placed two more glasses before the astonished Englander. Tommy was nonplussed for a few seconds and then realising the mistake paid up like the generous person he is after making the mental vow in future to avoid any English which sounds like German.

Re-Echoes.

Owing to the shortage of coal the use of gas for heating and lighting is prohibited in Cologne between the hours of 8 and 10.30 a.m. and from 1.30 p.m. till dusk.

Is any officer or man eligible for "demob" looking for a castle on the Rhine to settle down in? There is one for sale.

We are preparing the details of a football skill contest which should interest all followers of the game. They will be published tomorrow

The large number of subscriptions for copies to be sent to Blighty we are receiving from all ranks proceeding home is gratifying.

In Cologne there is great political activity as in the next ten days new town councillors will have to be elected.

Of great interest and importance to all those whose relations have fallen in the war is the list of cemeteries in France and Belgium with map reference just issued officially.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Pte. J. R. Bell, E. Surrey Regt., Command Pay Office, G.H.Q., Rhine Army, and Pte. A. Mills, R.A.S.C., Cöln Deutz.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

NOT FOR THE PUBLIC.

It will be news almost to everybody that Field Marshal Haig kept a most voluminous and careful diary all through the war. It extends to many thousands of pages, and no matter what the demands upon him, even when Commander-in-Chief, he daily devoted an hour to its compilation. So anxious was he for it to have meticulous accuracy, that he used to send extracts to certain trusted officers, asking them to verify the details of what he believed to be correct. The diary contains literally everything; not only the manoeuvres of troops and a resumé of the discussions at G. H. Q., but also a very complete epitome of his contact with the politicians and Allies. On everybody there is an opinion preserved in a pithy sentence. A good many folk may say that all this is not like "D. H.," but then they do not appreciate the scrupulous care with which he determined to have a reply ready to any attack. Here would be a book on the war of great importance. But Lord Haig will never allow his diary to be printed.

LABOUR.

Here is an item of secret war history. A company of Labour leaders were expected at a French port, under Government patronage, to see something of conditions at the front, and orders had been given for their reception. "Are the members of the Labour party aboard?" hooted one of the reception committee of brass hats through the megaphone as the vessel came in. "They are, indeed, sir," shouted a man on the deck, who, in the staff officer's opinion, looked the part. The Labour men came ashore—seven of them—were cordially greeted, ushered into motor-cars, provided with cigars, and carried swiftly to the local headquarters. "And now gentlemen," announced their chief guide, "I have instructions to introduce you to the Commander-in Chief." "Well," said the spokesman of the Labourities slowly, "that's very kind, but I don't see that we want to see 'im, particular. Me and my mates come over, ye know, to mend some old boom in the 'arbour."

WHO DISCOVERED IT?

Who really discovered Scapa Flow? Sir Walter Scott thought he had done so in 1814 from the deck of the official lighthouse yacht, yet we read over Lord Fisher's signature that once, when looking at a chart in his secluded room at the Admiralty, he lighted on a large inland, land-locked sheet of water, unsurveyed, and nameless. "It was Scapa Flow." What a pleasant surprise for the First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, and how did he know what its name was? That, however, is a matter of no importance, but Lord Fisher's hurried and secret expedition into the unknown was most important, for he thereby discovered that the Admiralty chart was correct.

KEEP SMILING.

["Does the interminable state of unrest in these islands show," asks a weekly paper, "that we Britons are losing our sense of humour?"]

Whatever the cost
Let's discredit the rumour
That Britons have lost
All their sense of humour;
Though the troubles were in East and West, North and South,
Tempt us sometimes to grin
The wrong side of our mouth!

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

Autumnal Renovations.

Washleather gloves can be utterly ruined if not washed with care. Place the gloves on the hands and rub gently in soapy tepid water. Do not rinse, as, by leaving the soap in, the gloves remain, soft and pliable. Coloured ink makes an admirable dye for freshening up faded silk and crêpe de chene blouses. A few drops of red, purple or green ink dissolved in cold water will give a new lease of life to an old blouse. Knitting needles are not as strong as they used to be. When accidents happen and the needles break a piece of sealing wax will soon join the pieces together. With the aid of a small file, the rough edges can be smoothed, and the jumper or sock can be finished with ease. Dainty handbags are those fashioned out of the pieces of material left over from one's evening gown. Stencilled roses was the design employed by an artistic woman on her bag of black charmeuse.

The Ultra-Decollete Fad.

Black silk jersey-cloth is more fashionable than ever. It is used for the most elaborate and expensive evening gowns. For instance, I noticed a dinner-frock made of black silk jersey-cloth and black tulle. The elastic material formed an eel-skin fourreau, and there were billows of tulle at either side to give a Louis XV. outline. The corsage was so small that it hardly calls for description, but there was a wide, folded ceinture of bright scarlet panne, with was caught down at the left side by a cut jet clasp. With a little more corsage it might have been described as ideal. The mania for ultra-décolleté evening dresses is passing all decent bounds. The American buyers, almost to a man, have protested against this fad; it is to be hoped that their dictum will have some effect.

Should the Husband Shop?

An old domestic custom is being revived. Twenty or thirty years ago it was a common sight to see men going on a shopping expedition armed with a carpet bag. The custom, as I say, is being revived and husbands are now doing the shopping instead of their wives. If you doubt this watch the menfolk scuttling home in the evening after a day spent in warehouse or office. You will find that the majority of them are carrying bags or parcels. Do not run away with the idea that Mr. Peace-Year-Husband has acquired the shopping habit willingly. Oh, dear, no! It has been forced upon him. The profiteering shopkeeper is held responsible. Hubby is seething with revolt over the prices which his wife tells him she has to pay the suburban gentlemen who dispense food to suburban households. And so he decides to do his own shopping and at the same time save money.

How to Know a Diamond.

There will be many English ladies who will be tempted to buy diamonds but I would remind them that some imitations of diamonds are cleverly made and, at first glance, it is not always easy to distinguish the real from the false. Here are a few tests by means of which the real diamond may be detected. The first one is simple, and consists in placing the gem in clear water. A real diamond will look almost as bright as it does out of the water, and the cut edges will stand up with great sharpness. On the other hand, an imitation and most inferior stones seem to mingle with the water, and the whole thing looks hazy. Another plan is to place a drop of water on the diamond, and try to move it about with the point of a needle. If the diamond is genuine the drop will retain its globular shape, and it can be rolled about in this state. On the other hand, with an imitation the water spreads all over the surface of the paste article.

Woman's Wander Spirit.

"The Colonies for me directly an opportunity comes!" said a girl the other day. "I'm sick to death of my present job—it's good enough, and has excellent prospects, but I want a change of ideas, change of everything!" she added, laughing. "It just maddens me to sit at my desk all day." That girl is not an incompetent worker, but a specialist in her way. She has been successful, and has a good future before her at her present work, but she is bitten by the post-war spirit of restlessness and adventure which is so strong and prevalent among women workers of all sorts at the present time. Nowadays you constantly hear of girls throwing up good posts in order to take up something new. It may be that they relinquish uncongenial for vocational work—that is all very well. In nine cases out of ten, however, the desire is simply for change, and many women sacrifice substance for shadow—they throw up work for which they are eminently suited in order to take up some other work of which they are more or less ignorant. AGNES.

BENEDICK'S RING.

The suggestion that the wearing of wedding rings by married men should be made "compulsory" is amusing, in that it is surely custom rather than any compelling which makes women flourish the "badge of slavery." If the wearing of the ring is to be made compulsory, let the compulsion be applied to both parties to the contract, or those social philosophers who assert that the law has a ways favoured the woman as against the man will be provided with one argument in support of their contention. Anyway, the custom of the wearing of wedding rings by men has greatly increased of late years—and custom is more potent than compulsion.

BRENT GEESE.

At Holy Island, off the coast of Berwick, there exists a little population which, has descended directly from the pirates of a more adventurous age. There are to be seen old men scanning the horizon with oldfashioned telescopes. Suddenly a signal is given, and the whole island becomes a busy hive of industry. A little speck appears in the sky. In the course of half an hour it has grown to a huge cloud of brent geese from Norway, who darken the air as they descend to rest on the shallow waters off the sandy beach. They are allowed to rest and then the boats creep out and surround the birds. A shot is fired, and over three hundred plump geese fall in a shower. Within a couple of hours the dead birds are on their way to Berwick in a fishing smack.

TRIAL OF THE EX-KAISER.

HE WILL PROBABLY BE LEFT IN HOLLAND TO HIS OWN CONSCIENCE.

PRIME MINISTER ON BROTHERHOOD.

FATE OF EX-KAISER.

EXTRADITION CONSIDERED IMPROBABLE.

The Central News says that no confirmation of the report that the Supreme Council have arrived at an agreement regarding a decision to demand from Holland the ex-Kaiser's surrender and to place him on trial could be obtained in London yesterday. It is understood that the question of the trial has been several times under consideration by the Council and that on each occasion Mr. Lloyd George has maintained the attitude which he originally adopted in demanding that the trial should take place. In this he was supported by M. Clemenceau, but opposition was forthcoming from other quarters.

It was contended by the opposition that the ex-Kaiser had been sufficiently punished, and that by a trial he would be made a martyr and that he was no longer a menace to the peace of the world. In addition it was urged that the greatest difficulty would be experienced in making him personally responsible for the guilt of the war.

It is learned that up to the present no steps have been taken to obtain the Kaiser's extradition from Holland and that there has been no development in the position. In well-informed circles the long delay in commencing proceedings is taken as an indication that despite Mr. Lloyd George's desire to place the Kaiser on trial, the trial will not take place but that Wilhelm Hohenzollern will be permitted to remain in Holland to make peace with his own conscience.

WILSON ON LEAGUE.

DETERMINED TO SEE THINGS THROUGH.

President Wilson, in a speech at Portland, Oregon, declared that if America stayed out of the League of Nations she would do so at a great cost to democracy, and in violation of all her material as well as moral interests.

"Whether you will or not," continued the President, "our fortunes are tied up with those of the rest of the world, and the choice we have to make now is whether we will receive the influence of the other nations, and be affected thereby, or dominate the world with our own influence and lead it." He himself came of those covenanters in North Britain who once signed a covenant to stand by the principles of religion as long as any of them lived. "Now," he went on, "I have seen men from all the nations sit round a table in Paris and sign the solemn league and covenant. They have become covenanters, and I remain one; we are going to see this job through, no matter what evil influences oppose us."

LEVANT'S FUTURE.

LINE OF DEMARCATION.

Before his departure for London Mr. Lloyd George had a final interview with M. Clemenceau, and the "Temps" understands that the two Premiers reached an understanding on the changes to be effected regarding the military occupation of the Levant by French and British troops. It is understood that in accordance with this agreement the British troops will evacuate on November 1st all territories north of the frontier between Syria and Palestine. This frontier is now only of a provisional character and may be re-drawn when the Peace Conference has definitely decided the political organisation of the Levant. British troops will also be relieved by French troops in Silicia, where there are already French units and a French military mission under Colonel Bremont. This redistribution of responsibilities and of the forces of occupation will not affect the subsequent negotiations between the two Governments concerning the political questions awaiting solution in Syria, nor the definite solutions which may be decided upon by the Peace Conference.

COAL FROM SPITZBERGEN.

The steamship Petunia has returned to Scotland with the members of the Scottish Spitzbergen expedition aboard. Mining engineers attached to the expedition report that they discovered a new coalfield in Spitzbergen. Much activity was found at the Norwegian mines on the island, from which 100,000 tons of coal has been exported this year, and it is stated that coal cannot be got quickly enough to meet the demand. The Petunia made the homeward journey on Spitzbergen coal, and her officers report very favourably on its quality.

The War Office intimates that the statement which has appeared in certain newspapers to the effect that all conscripts and youths of eighteen are being withdrawn from the Army of the Rhine by Christmas is untrue.

BROTHERHOOD.

CLEARING THE WAY FOR THE IDEAL.

At the International Brotherhood Meetings now being held in London, Mr. Lloyd George made a great speech on Wednesday night. He said that great armaments must disappear—not only in Germany—or the sacrifice of thousands will have been in vain. He looked forward to seeing waste of every kind disappear, and the long drawn out misunderstanding between Ireland and the rest of the Kingdom disappear also. A new spirit has arisen out of the sacrifices of war—a spirit that will lead us to the land of promise so many of us had dreamed about and which is within our reach. He did not expect to see Great Britain sitting in its armchair with stuffed trophies of its victories around it. He intended to reclaim the wilderness, to clear the jungle of slums, poverty, drunkenness, wrong and tyranny. That was a great career, not merely for a man but for a people.

In reference to the League of Nations the Premier said:

"I know there is a good deal of criticism here, in France, and in America, of the machinery of the League. Well, no proposal was ever submitted or ever drafted by the hand of man but you could find another man who came to say how defective it was and how much better it could have been done if he had done it. They must bear in mind that it was a compromise between opposing susceptibilities, opposing fears, perhaps opposing prejudices.

"A house or structure which is prepared from the designs of a conclave of architects, each with his own particular style, has not necessarily the same unity as a house prepared by one man. All the same that structure will provide shelter for the oppressed of all lands if the nations of the world will loyally guard its ramparts. That is what we want. You can improve and build; later you can beautify it, you can adorn it or perhaps you can pull it down. But that is the best beginning that anybody hoped for years ago. Everything depends on the League being worked, not in the spirit of one nation using it to get an advantage over another, but in the spirit of true comradeship amongst the peoples of the earth. If that is done it will be one of the greatest institutions ever planned by the hand of man."

FIUME COUP D'ETAT.

PLOT HATCHED AT VENICE.

It is learned from an authoritative source that the situation at Fiume is quiet. Firm steps are being taken by the Italian Government to prevent any further untoward incidents. The desire among regular troops to support the insurgents is apparently keen in some districts and in Rome it was due to the efforts of its officers that the Sixth Regiment of Artillery did not join them. The artillerymen demonstrated but eventually returned to their quarters.

The plot to march against Fiume, it is stated, was engineered in Venice and as a result the Prefect there has been removed from office. Fiume is now surrounded by troops and all communication is suspended.

JAPAN AND KIAO-CHAU.

REPORTED ACTION BY U.S.

According to cable advices received at Honolulu by the Japanese newspaper Nippujiji, the United States has asked Japan to fix a definite date for the return of Kiao-chau to China.

The correspondent of the Associated Press at Washington reports that, in the absence of President Wilson and Mr. Lansing, the White House officials refuse to comment on this, but the general impression in official circles is that the report is well founded.

TAR AND FEATHERS CASE.

FINDING OF THE COURT MARTIAL.

The Central News understands that the finding of the Court Martial held at Cambridge upon Lieut. Wright, who is alleged to have tarred and feathered Sub-Lieut. Kinahan, will be published shortly. It is learned that the Court found Lieut. Wright guilty, but in view of all the circumstances the sentence is that he be reprimanded, but without loss of rank or seniority.

The French High Court Commission of inquiry appointed to examine into the Caillaux case has sent it forward to the Court of Justice. It has decided that there is no case against MM. Loustalot and Comby.

OFF TO MEXICO.

GENERAL CRITCHLEY SELECTS HIS PIONEERS.

Between forty and fifty ex-officers met on Wednesday at the Criterion restaurant and were selected by Brigadier-General Critchley to proceed to Mexico and there plant a British colony on an estate comprising over one million acres, situated about 400 miles North of Mexico city.

General Critchley, who sails today, impressed upon the ex-officers that they are in no sense adventurers going out to stir up strife. They are simply going out to join him on the estate. They will be given one year's tuition in whatever branch of ranching they prefer. In their second year they will be ready to commence on their own account and will lease their land from the estate. The prospects are certain but it will be very hard work at first.

Each man will provide £200 for his keep, etc., for the first year, but the money will be entrusted to a committee of themselves, similar to an officers mess. This committee will also have power to fire a man who becomes a nuisance, for goodwill and harmonious working are essentials to success. The party leaves England about the middle of October.

CRIME IN IRELAND.

AUTHORITIES' DIFFICULT PROBLEM.

An opinion is expressed by some people in Ireland that Mr. Walter Long's visit is for the purpose of tightening up the screws of Government. Labour and thoughtful public opinion view with alarm any idea of the proclamation of martial law. They say it is just what the revolutionaries desire to see brought about, for it would then give them the opportunity they have long been seeking, namely, to say that a state of war exists.

It is conceded that the authorities have as difficult a problem to deal with as ever confronted them. The police are of the opinion that they have an organised band of assassins to deal with, and that the isolated murders which have been shocking the country are the work of an organised secret vendetta, direct from a central headquarters, whose partisans strike, not indiscriminately, now here, now there, and leave no trace.

The police and military have arrested John Hogan, farm labourer, and Peter Callaghan in the Ballynoe district in connection with the recent shooting of Private Jones at Fermoy. They are both young men, and were brought under escort to Fermoy police barracks. When charged with the crime Hogan said: "We do not recognise this court."

Large stones were on Sunday found on the railway line near Newry.

In the western suburbs of Cork on Tuesday a clerk of the District Lunatic Asylum and a companion were driving to the institution from the Munster and Leinster Bank with £1,300 for payment of the wages of the asylum staff, when they were stopped by masked and armed men near Wellington Bridge. One of the men held the horse while the others covered the occupants of the car with revolvers and demanded the bag containing the money. Resistance was useless, and the clerk had no option but to hand over the bag and contents. The thieves then mounted bicycles and rode in the direction of the city.

SOVIET PEACE.

PROPOSED FEDERATION OF BALTIC STATES.

Peace between the Baltic States and the Russian Soviet Government is still being debated.

A conference of Lett, Esthonian, and Lithuanian statesmen has been deliberating at Riga, but the deliberations have not yet ended, and no reply has yet been sent or any other steps taken. The peace question, is being considered in close touch with the Entente representatives.

The Baltic federation scheme has already so far materialised that the conference has decided on a customs union and a common currency. The Baltic statesmen have now repaired to Reval, where, it is learned from a reliable source, they have been joined by Finnish representatives. It is understood that the Baltic alliance is under discussion, and the peace question is presumably also being discussed with the Finns, as well as the Russian North-West Government. It would seem that there is certainly an inclination in some quarters in the Baltic States to conclude peace with Moscow, in the absence of more effective assistance from the Entente.

R.A.F. STATIONS GIVEN UP.

It has been decided to relinquish and dispose of the following Royal Air Force stations, and arrangements are being made accordingly:—

Wight, Cowes (aerodrome), London Colney (aerodrome), Beaulieu (aerodrome), Lydd (Balloon School), Dover (seaplane station, temporarily transferred to Admiralty).

RAT CATCHERS 1s 6d AN HOUR.

Two more rat catchers have been appointed by the Surrey Agricultural Executive Committee, making six in all, for the Chertsey district. There are now six, the other four being for the Guildford area. A charge of 1s. 6d. an hour is made to farmers and others requiring the services of the rat catchers.

CINEMA RIOT.

EX-SOLDIERS FIGHT PRO-BOLSHEVISTS.

A free fight took place outside the Clapham Majestic Picture Palace on Wednesday night, where a film entitled "Bolshevism" was being shown. The combatants were a number of extremist Socialists and members of the Discharged Sailors' and Soldiers' Federation. It is said that threats had been made by some members of the Clapham Independent Labour Party to rush the screen to prevent the film being shown, and the management were duly prepared. A special force of police were on duty, and 20 or 30 members of the local branch of the Discharged Sailors' and Soldiers' Federation.

Shortly after 8 o'clock a crowd, numbering between two and three hundred, led by some of the extremists made a rush on the building, but were forced back by some of the discharged men and the police. A free fight resulted, sticks and other weapons being used, and some of the discharged men, many of whom had been wounded, were roughly handled. A number of rushes were made on the building, but each time the invaders were repelled, the police barring the entrance.

The film was meanwhile being shown inside, and during the exhibition there was a protest from a member of the audience, who was ejected.

Foiled in their attempt to enter the place, the agitators held a meeting in a street near by, a crowd of several thousand people assembling. The discharged soldiers and sailors rushed the platform, which they overturned and smashed, effectually preventing any speaking. An official of the Federation said afterwards: "We fought for a free country and we are not going to be ruled by Bolshevists. We have seen enough of that."

AMERICAN POLITICAL FOOTBALL.

Mr. Henry Morgenthau, of the American Mission to Poland, returned to Paris yesterday and in the course of an interview stated that the peoples of Central Europe are in a state of abject despair and are looking forward with dread to the coming winter. It was incomprehensible to Europeans and to those Americans who had studied the situation in Europe that anyone in America should be willing to jeopardise the welfare of their brethren in Europe by using the Peace Treaty as the football of American politics. The actual lives of millions of people and the health and strength of the next generation, in fact their very civilisation, was at stake. He solemnly declared that it is one of the greatest crises in the history of the world. There can be and there must be no delay. The American people must decide promptly whether they will courageously assume their full share of the great task of reorganising Europe or whether they will revert to their former isolation and leave Europe to its uncertain fate of continual warfare, rampant militarism, bankruptcy, and finally exhaustion.

POLICE FIGHT WITH CROOKS.

Three Scotland Yard officers have had a desperate struggle with a gang of men whom they suspected of being "crooks."

The detectives were watching the arrival of the crowds at King's Cross from Alexandra Park race meeting, and they decided to arrest six members of what is spoken of as a "Yorkshire gang." There was a struggle, and other members of the gang came to the assistance of the six men. The detectives were hopelessly outnumbered, and presently one of them—Detective sergeant Wilkins—was dragged on to the line, in front of an incoming train. He was beaten about the head with sticks and was kicked brutally, receiving such injuries that he had to be treated at the Royal Free Hospital. It was then that the crowd interfered to stop the savage attack, and the six men were taken into custody.

"DIRECT ACTION" IN AMERICA.

The United Mineworkers of America have endorsed the Plumb plan for the nationalisation of railroads. The resolution says that the proposed alliance with the railway workers will be for the purpose of "acting jointly in all matters of mutual interest, such as the democratic administration of industries, with the workers having equal representation on the management."

The preamble to the resolution declares that the present worldwide unrest is not the work of Bolshevists and Anarchists, but mainly the justifiable revolt of the workers against well-nigh intolerable conditions.

PENNILESS MILLIONAIRE.

On the same day that he had practically cornered the world's supply of Canadian steel by signing a cheque for £800,000, Mr. Charles Schwab, the steel magnate, was detained in a barber's shop in Pittsburg (Pennsylvania) until a friend came in and lent him the price of a shave. The multi-millionaire, having left home without any money, did not discover the fact until he put his hand in his pocket.

On Saturday night British aviators again attacked the fortress of Kronstadt, which maintained a vigorous but ineffective fire upon the aeroplanes.

"GLORIOUS DEAD."

RAISING THE FIRST GREAT WAR STONE.

The first Great War Stone in the cemeteries of our dead abroad is now being raised at Treport. Sir Edwin Lutyens, A.R.A., the designer of the Great War Stones and of the Cenotaph in Whitehall, has gone to France in order to supervise the work personally.

Like the Cenotaph, these stones will be of simple classic dignity. Sir Edwin himself writes of them:

"I most earnestly advise that there shall be one kind of main monument throughout, whether in Europe, Asia, or Africa, and that it shall take the form of one great fair stone of fine proportions, twelve feet in length, lying raised upon three steps, of which the first and third shall be twice the width of the second, and that each stone shall bear in indelible lettering some fine thought or words of sacred dedication.

"They should be known in all places and for all time as the Great War Stones, and would stand, though in three continents, as equal monuments of devotion, suggesting the thought of memorial chapels in one vast cathedral, whose vault is the sky.

"Each great stone would stand facing westward, towards the graves, on greensward in northern countries, and would be flanked with sentinel cypresses or pyramidal oaks. The graves will face eastward, as our men faced when they fell."

The inscription on the stones is to be:

"Their name liveth for evermore."

It has been pointed out that both the Cenotaph and the Great War Stones are memorials which do not involve sculpture. They are a proof of the power of suggestion and beauty lying in the simple line.

KING AND DISABLED.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S TELEGRAM.

With regard to the recent Royal Proclamation to employers in respect to the employment of disabled men, the following telegram has been sent to His Majesty:

"On behalf of the Executive Council of the National Federation of Discharged and Demobilized Sailors and Soldiers, I beg to tender His Majesty the King our sincere and grateful thanks for the Royal Proclamation he has been pleased to issue on the subject of the employment of disabled men.

"I can assure His Majesty that we will do all in our power to assist the scheme, and feel confident that, given the cordial co-operation of all concerned, a successful solution of the disabled men's unemployment problem will be reached. S. W. Jackson, General Secretary."

SCHOLARS AND KAISER'S PORTRAITS.

The recent notification issued by the German Minister of Public Worship that portraits of the ex-Kaiser must be removed from the schools has had an interesting sequel.

Two thousand five hundred scholars of the higher educational institutions and girls schools at Cassel held a public protest meeting, when, according, to the "Lokalanzeiger," a large number of young workmen intervened. Fights ensued and the police and the troops were obliged to take action.

Trouble also occured at the Maria Magdalena High School in Breslau, where the scholars protested against the removal of two portraits of the ex-Kaiser and hung up two Kaiser portraits of their own, to the singing of the National Anthem. In another class room of the same school, the "Schlesische Zeitung" states, the picture of President Ebert and Herr Noske in bathing costume was hung.

GERMAN GOLD IN BANK OF ENGLAND.

It is understood that £4,500,000 in German gold has reached the Bank of England from Germany by way of Amsterdam. The coins probably came from the store of gold in the Spandau tower, near Berlin, where the indemnity paid by France in 1872 was kept intact.

Some of the gold is believed to be already on its way to Canada, in payment of food-stuffs sent to Germany from Canada.

FIRST PIONEER BATTALION.

Over one thousand men employed on the North Eastern Railway system who served in the 17th Battalion Northumberland Fusiliers as pioneers were entertained at Hull on the occasion of the anniversary of their departure for France in 1915.

A telegram was read from Sir Eric Geddes eulogising the service of the battalion, which was known as the first pioneer battalion in the army.

TWENTY ACRES OF BLAZING OIL.

One of the greatest and most spectacular fires Jersey city, N. Y., has ever experienced, swept the Standard Oil plant on Sunday last and quickly spread to the U. S. Industrial Alcohol and other factories. The damage is estimated at five million dollars. Fourteen hours elapsed before the fire was got under control and at one time twenty acres of oil tanks were blazing.

ROYAL WARRANT.

OFFICERS' APPOINTMENTS (CONTINUED).

FIFTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

These rates will be applicable to officers appointed permanently to the Corps, and to those on probation, provided, in each case, that they have qualified as laid down in Article 407, Pay Warrant. If they have not so qualified they will receive these rates, less 5s. a day.

If an officer is appointed to act temporarily as an officer of the Royal Army Ordnance Corps, he will receive the ordinary emoluments laid down for the arm to which he belongs without additional pay, unless he is qualified under Article 407, Pay Warrant, for appointment as Ordnance Officer, in which case his pay will be made up to that of his rank in the Royal Army Ordnance Corps.

In the case of officers holding temporary commissions in the Royal Army Ordnance Corps the rates of pay will be as laid down in Table I. of this Warrant without any additional pay.

In the case of the Royal Army Ordnance Corps the civil professional qualifications required in the case of the Royal Engineers and Royal Army Service Corps are replaced by the service qualification laid down in Article 407, Pay Warrant.

The special consolidated rates of pay which were granted to certain officers of the Royal Army Ordnance Corps serving with Expeditionary Forces will cease as from 1st July 1919, and the officers concerned will draw the pay and allowances provided in this Warrant for their grade (substantive or temporary) in the Royal Army Ordnance Corps.

Commissaries, Deputy Commissaries, and Assistant Commissaries of Ordnance will be paid at the rate shown in Table II. with no additional pay. They will remain eligible for 2s. 6d. a day extra-duty pay when performing the duties of an officer of the Directing Staff under the conditions laid down in Article 428, Pay Warrant.

DREAMLAND JESTS.

One of the pleasantest, and certainly one of the most health-giving features of normal Army life is the generous amount of time one can devote, if one chooses, to "Nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep."

And the repose which we seek on our virtuous couches can in many cases be not only lengthy but secure, as a guard is frequently furnished to protect our portals. There is nothing quite so tranquillising in the life civilian.

Our dreams, assuredly, if not so richly fanciful, so poetically fantastic as those of Coleridge with his sunny pleasure-domes, incense-bearing trees, and enchanted chasms, ought neither to be tame nor prosaic.

No need is there for that mortification of soul which the poverty of his dreams brought to Charles Lamb. No cause should exist for such a troubled soliloquy as Shakespeare puts into the royal mouth of Henry IV.

We might even aspire to that ecstatic frame of semi-consciousness when we could concoct a merry jest in our dreams and—better still—remember it in the morning.

Such is the happy achievement of a correspondent who relates to the Editor of the "Observer" an account of this all-too-rare experience. Could the priceless habit be cultivated, the world we venture to think, would be a happier place to dwell in.

Certainly the breakfast-tables of the universe would be the resort of more cheerful beings. In view of the fact that Man is the only jester in Creation, he does not joke enough.

As it happens, the sparkling jest to which the "Observer" correspondent gave birth in his twilight sleep, is not unconnected with our sojourn in Rhineland.

He dreamt he was on a beach frequented by many bathers and covered with heaps of clothes. Suddenly a young rhinoceros, as agile as it was fierce, appeared on the scene, and everybody getting into the sea he vented his rage on the clothes. Then he stalked away bearing triumphantly on his horn on old gentleman's gold watch and chain.

"What do you make of it?" asked a sporting looking young man of the dreamer, who replied that he did not know. Whereupon the sportsman ejaculated, "I know, it's the watch on the rhino'!"

Some may think that burial alive, so fashionable at one time, would be the most fitting reward for the perpetrator of a joke of so frivolous a character. But it is the frivolous things that are often so difficult, and Gilbert Chesterton spoke good sense when he asserted that it was easier to write a "Times" leading article than a "Tit-Bits" joke.

The point, however, is that the above quoted jest was conceived in the dark solitudes of night in the midst of a dream and recalled without difficulty with morning light. It seems to us a fitting subject for Professor John Adams and the cognoscenti generally who make a profound study of the psychology of dreams.

THE CALVARIES.

One day, I walked over fields that were fresh and green and through woods rich and luxuriant with their opening leaves. The flowers were springing up at my feet, and the breeze, laden with a thousand delicate perfumes, rustled softly by.

Birds filled the air with twittering music and the hushed voices of nature whispered gently in my ears. The sun, radiant and glorious, in the full strength of summer, shone upon a world at peace. Neither in sound, colour nor movement was there a discordant note to break the restful harmony of the scene.

I reached the cross-roads and there, nestling among the beauties of nature, were a Calvary and a wayside shrine. With lips that trembled and with a heart prepared by the hallowing influences of nature, I sought Him of whom the Calvary was the symbol and towards whom nature in her silent moods ever leads the responsive soul.

* * *

Some time after I walked these fields again and traversed the same path through the woods. But I saw no flowers, and the grass, trampled by thousands of feet, was dead.

The trees were splintered and torn as by a giant's blows and the ground, erstwhile so smooth, was scarred and ploughed and blackened by the destroying hand of war.

The debris of the battlefield lay everywhere around. Amid the desolation and discord I could not detect a single note of harmony or joy. The birds had fled, and, in their place, guns bellowed forth their discordant notes and shells shrieked defiance at the skies.

The glory of the sun was hidden behind dark and lowering clouds, and the wind moaned heavily like a thing in pain, carrying on its bosom, instead of the perfumes of flowers the stenchof death.

I looked for the Calvary and the shrine but they were missing. A heap of bricks and dust and twisted irons alone marked the place where they had stood.

But, near by, was a mound of earth, long and narrow; and, at one end of it, a wooden cross. Roughly pencilled by an unskilled hand, it bore the simple words, "To an Unknown Hero."

I remembered that, once before, amid the beauties of nature, impelled by those influences that spoke of peace and God, I had knelt and worshipped there.

So, by this tiny mound, clasping the wooden cross, I prayed again; for this, like the broken Calvary, spoke of sacrifice and love even unto death.

* * *

They say that, centuries ago, the noblest man the world has ever known offered Himself — a sacrifice — upon a cross of wood. That cross has perished, though the fact remains, and millions worship Him to-day.

Yet it may be that the Calvary of years ago and this poor wooden cross mean very much the same. Perhaps there is some relationship between that "Noblest Man" and this dead "Unknown Hero."

Who, then, can say that one was nobler than the other or did a greater work? Did not they both do all they could and give their utmost mite? And who dare say that the utmost sacrifice of one of whom we know shows greater love than that of one whose grave is nameless and whose death unmourned?

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

BLESSED ARE THEY.

A PARABLE.

(With apologies to the allotment system of Cologne Opera House seats.)

The games at the Amphitheatre were about to commence; the tiers of seats were being rapidly filled by the wealthier Germani.

Never had the ancient city of Trèves known such prosperity previous to the invasion of the Romans. The Romans had honoured it by making it the seat for the General Headquarters of the Roman Army of Occupation. Magnificent buildings were being erected, and to crown all, a huge Amphitheatre had been built on the slopes of the hills rising above the city.

On this particular day, a great show was being given in the Amphitheatre in honour of Jupiter. Numerous gladiatorial combats had been arranged, and it was rumoured that several hundred prisoners of war were to be thrown to the lions. It was truly to be a great spectacle.

The Roman soldiers naturally expected a prominent place among the spectators. Their hopes, however, were dashed by a mandate restricting them to fifty places; these seats to be allotted in turn to the respective legions.

On hour before the commencement of the show, a little queue of legionaries had gathered at the entrance. A look of subdued hope was on their faces. Military dignitaries, resplendent in burnished steel and waving plumes passed them with high disdain and swept to their respective boxes, some accompanied by beauties of the Germani. Even the Germani themselves passed this patient queue with haughty indifference. Who are these men, and why do they wait thus? They are those upon whom the gods do not shower allotments, and are standing like mendicants, to claim any crumbs falling from their master's table, in the shape of unclaimed seats.

Pudens, the centurion, waiting in the queue, complained to the gatekeeper that his legion never received an allotment. "There is little accommodation for the foot soldiers, the real fighters," he said, "Why do the gods favour the man of peace in preference to the soldiers? Why do these Germani, who have been our enemies occupy thousands of seats, while we struggle for fifty?"

The gatekeeper shook his head. "I understand it not," he continued, lowering his voice, "but a few denarii in my hand will secure you a seat."

The centurion laughed, threw down some coins, and said, "One has to bribe Cerberus to enter Hades, so I shall have to grease your palm to enter here."

So he went into the Amphitheatre, vowing an extra sacrifice to Jupiter for his good furtune, while the little queue of men, his former comrades in distress, went on standing without the door.

Half an hour later, the gatekeeper turned to these patient waiters and told them that all the seats were filled. The men, disappointed, turned away, and one was heard to mutter as he left, "Blessed are they who expect nothing, because their expectations will be realised.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

ON THE RHINE BOAT.

Sir,— Recently Nouveau Pauvre asked if the 35 bottles of Niersteiner wine consumed by a party of three whilst on a Rhine steamer is unusual.

Veritas says this is by no means a record. A robust German and his massive Frau, he states, consumed 54 bottles between them in one day.

But, Sir, on a recent voyage to Coblenz, I observed a German sitting by himself whose proportions were Falstaffian. He consumed 158 bottles of Rhine and before we reached Coblenz. Alone and unaided he did it. I came back by train. I feared the boat might sink on the return trip.

NIX VERITAS.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,— Your correspondent "Bachelor" has drawn attention to an interesting fact. My own experience in the matter is similar to his and I quite agree with him as to loss of efficiency.

No wives were allowed in France when serious work was on foot. The powers that be who issued this order were particularly concerned with efficiency and sought to remove distractions. A principle which is right one year cannot be wrong the next and one therefore concludes that the married man does suffer in efficiency.

V.A.D. suggests the letter was written by a spiteful old thing. Perhaps he is, but that hardly proves him to be wrong. To abuse the opposing side when you have no argument is, I believe, tactically sound but is not very convincing.

Another correspondent states that some husbands spend more time at their duties since the arrival of their wives. If such is the case they have my sympathy.

I am sure no one grudges the happiness of the married reunited, but that has but little to do with the subject. Lateness in the morning is one which might be included in the half dozen little items which make for reduced efficiency. MARTINI.

Sir,—Re the letter from "Bachelor" concerning wives, I take it that the writer is a youngster of perhaps eighteen years or so, and does not understand the meaning of the word "wife" nor yet the value of one.

It certainly does not mean inefficiency, because Tommy has his wife here, but the reverse. I should say leave it to his C.O. if he neglects his duty.

Again I would remind "Bachelor" that every soldier is entitled to one half day off a week. Even if he were asked to do a little extra for a married Tommy he ought to be proud to do it.

I consider the whole thing to be sheer jealousy on the part of "Bachelor" who by the way ought to be taxed. As I said before, he is doubtless a young man who is getting double the money that we got during the war, and is too miserable or too mean to make a woman his wife.

A WAR GUNNER, R.F.A.

THE OUTDOOR LIFE.

Sir,—P.H., in his second letter on this subject, remarks that his own views are in accord with mine and to a certain extent he is right; although afterwards our ways lie in quite different directions.

If P.H. refers to my letter again he will see that he has inadvertently quoted me wrongly. I spoke of my period in the trenches as a novel experience and not as a novel recreation. Nobody would regard it in this latter way, unless he were a particularly ferocious or bloodthirsty person.

P.H. states that I am not in a position to form an opinion on this subject, but this is a pure conjecture. I, at one time, thought an adventurous and out-door life the ideal existence, but my experience has shown me what a fallacy it is.

The greatest objection is not the hardship and dangers experienced— one gets used to them—but the intense mental pain caused by the separation from all interest in life, and the absolute stagnation of the mind which ensues.

One may follow a sedentary occupation, and yet, by means of suitable and regular exercise, attain and enjoy perfect health, and what is more—keep it. B.M.G.

GERMAN EMIGRATION.

Sir,—Just lately there have been several German publications dealing with future German emigration. One, by Carl Hagenberg, enitled "Where shall we go?" states that all the world is now closed to Germans. South America seems the only place open to Germans, in particular Mexico and the Argentine.

Dr. Stichel has just published his book on the Argentine through a Hamburg publishing company. In it, he deals very fully with the prospects offered to Germans in the Argentine. He mentions the interesting fact in 1914 Argentine contained 2,357,952 people of European nationality. There were only 17,407 Englishmen and 18,945 Germans there. Italians and Spaniards numbered more than half a million each.

It is clear that Germany intends to develop her connection with the Argentine, and the study of Spanish is becoming a matter of importance in Germany.

In the "Cosmopolis", the monthly review published in Madrid for the month of April, it is pointed out that the study of Spanish is taking priority in the United States. In England, however, the study of Spanish has been very much neglected. If we are to explore all the possibilities which South America offers, we must pay greater attention to the study of Spanish.

The Germans mean to make every effort to utilise South America to the utmost.

TIMES GO BY TURNS.

The sea of Fortune doth not ever flow,
She draws her favours to the lowest ebb;
Her time hath equal times to come and go,
Her loom doth weave the fine and coarsest web;
No joy so great but runneth to an end,
No hap so hard but may in fine amend.

Not always fall of leaf nor ever spring,
No endless night yet not eternal day;
The saddest birds a season find to sing,
The roughest storm a calm may soon allay;
Thus with succeeding turns God tempereth all,
That man may hope to rise, yet fear to fall.

OUR NEW COMPETITION.

Test of Skill for Followers of Football Form.

So keen is the interest taken in football by almost everyone in the Rhine Army that we have decided to start a prize competition in which readers can show their skill in judging the form of first-class English football teams.

Below will be found a coupon giving twelve matches which are to be played on Saturday, Sept. 27th. All that competitors have to do is to strike out in ink the names of the teams they think will lose. If, in the opinion of the competitor, any match, or matches, will be drawn, the names of both teams should be left untouched.

Coupons which must be accompanied by an entry fee of 1 mark per coupon must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 1
COLOGNE POST
A.P.O., S./40 Rhine Army

and must reach that address not later than Thursday, Sept. 25th. The total amount received in the entry fees (without any deduction whatever) will be paid out to the senders of the correct, or the nearest correct, forecast of the results of all these matches.

List Of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Thursday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 1.

Date of matches, Saturday, Sept. 27th
Closing date, Thursday, Sept. 25th.

Blackburn Rovers	v. Woolwich Arsenal
Bradford	v. Aston Villa
Chelsea	v. Burnley
Derby County	v. Bolton Wanderers

LIEUT.-COL. BARRY IN FORM.

Rhine Championship Finalist does well at St. Andrews.

Lieut.-Col. A. G. Barry, D.S.O., M.C., (plus 2), the amateur golf champion of 1905 (of the 41st Bn. M.G.C.), who was recently defeated by Capt. Read in the Rhineland Golf Championship, played capital golf at St. Andrews in the Calcutta Cup Competition. He met J. A. Shaw (plus 1), the winner of the Cup in 1901, on the opening day and it quickly developed into a very onesided affair, the ex-champion playing well and steadily, while Shaw was frequently weak especially in driving. Lieut.-Col. Barry was 6 up at the turn, and won easily by 8 and 6. He also won his afternoon match comfortably, defeating Commander R. D. Cox (scratch) by 5 and 4.

BEATEN IN 3rd ROUND.

The feature of the third round on Wednesday was the defeat of Lieut.-Col. A. G. Barry (+2).

He was beaten by F. D. Maitland-Heriot (10) by 3 and 2. The latter went down in the fourth round, and the "survivors" at the end of the day were A. V. Hambro (+2), H. E. Taylor (+1), P. R. Selby (3), and W. A. Sievwright (scratch).

A Boxer Suspended.

Mr. J. R. Bell Hart, hon. sec. of the British Boxing Board of Control issues the following:—"The conduct of Alf. Mansfield in his contest with Doyle at the Ring on July 21, having been considered by the British Boxing Board of Control, the evidence of both parties and their witnesses having been taken, and a representative of the management having been heard, it was decided by the Board that Alf. Mansfield be suspended for three years."

GERMAN LAWN TENNIS CRACKS.

Herren Froitzheim and Kreuzer, two famous lawn tennis players, and representatives of the Fatherland in the Davis Cup competition of 1914, are showing splendid form, and can still be reckoned as the two best exponents of the game the country possesses.

It is not generally known that Froitzheim, who was an officer in the army, and Kreuzer, who held non-commissioned rank, took no active part in the war. Thanks to the Navy, Germany's tennis stars were waylaid and removed from a neutral liner bound from New York to Genoa. After spending some time on the hospitable Rock at Gibraltar, Froitzheim was transferred to England and sent to enjoy the amenities of the now famous Donnington Hall.

LIGHT v. SOUTHERN DIVISION.

There will be an interesting cricket match to-morrow at Lindenthal between the Light Division and the Southern Division. Both divisions have selected strong sides and the match should be well worth seeing.

U.S. Boxing.

At Jersey City Johnnie Kilbane, the featherweight champion defeated Frankie Burns of Jersey City, knocking him out in the fifth round.

Sheldrich to McMahon.

Seeing that Pte. Shelton already has a match on hand with Rfn. Jackson (51st Rifle Bde.) and so cannot accept McMahon's challenge just now, Pte. Billy Sheldrich will box him ten rounds, and will attend the "Cologne Post" office at any time, to make arrangements.

YORKSHIRE STRUGGLE.

On Thursday Yorkshire were struggling hard against the Rest of England but with four wickets to fall they still required 23 runs to avoid an innings defeat. Scores:—
Champion County 246 and 224 for six; Rest 493.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Saturday, September 20th, 1919.
Changeable. Dull. Some rain. Visibility poor.

MID-WEEK FOOTBALL.

First League.

At Middlesbrough: Bolton Wanderers 3, Middlesbrough 1.

Southern League.

At Gillingham: Southend United 1, Gillingham 0.
At Luton: Merthyr Town 4, Luton Town 0.

South-Eastern League.

At Portsmouth: Portsmouth 2 (Shaw, Warden), Watford 2 (Toone, Barnes).

Scottish League.

At Ayr: Ayr United 4, Albion Rovers 0.

London Challenge Cup.

At Tufnell Park: Nunhead 3, London Caleys 0.

GLASGOW CUP,

Playing in the Glasgow Cup competition on Tuesday evening Partick Thistle defeated Clyde by 3 goals to 1.

EX-SOLDIERS' SPORTS.

The first section of the first annual meeting of the National Federation of Discharged and Demobilized Sailors and Soldiers was decided on Wednesday at Stamford Bridge, when a championship trophy, presented by Mr. J. M. Hogge, M.P., President of the Federation, was won by the Metropolitan Division, with 40 points. V. D'Arcy, the Polytechnic crack, won the sprint in 10 3-5sec, R. C. Lightwood the half-mile in the good time of 2min. 3 2-5sec., Percy Hodge the two miles steeplechase in 12min. 35 2-5sec., L. Cummings the three miles in 15min. 20 3-5sec., and A. Hanson the quartermile in 52 4-5sec. H. J. Storey did well to win the mile in 4min. 36 3-5sec.

A ONE-HAND JOCKEY.

Capt. Shirley Gives a Fine Display at Warwick.

A novel and plucky spectacle was seen at Warwick this week, when an amateur with only one hand made a surprisingly good attempt to win on his own horse. This was Capt. Shirley, on his mare Sari Bahr. He held his mount remarkably well in spite of his great handicap, and waited in the rear of his field for the Corinthian Handicap until halfway down the straight, where he brought his mount up on the rails to make a good race of it with Killesher. It is not by any means the first mount Capt. Shirley has had, for he won the Amateurs' Plate at the Curragh in June on the same animal. The unusual spectacle appealed to onlookers, who accorded the rider of the second a great reception on his return to the paddock. They also had a cheer for Mr. Eccles, who acknowledged the compliment by touching his cap to the occupants of the stands.

OVERATH HORSE SHOW.

Successful Event Held By London Division.

FULL PRIZE LIST.

The London Division held a successful Horse Show at Overath on Tuesday. The day was fine and bright and pleasantly warm. Judging commenced at 10 a.m. and terminated at 5 o'clock, when the Divisional Artillery School gave an admirable display of vaulting and trick riding. The prizes were then distributed by Major-General Sir Sidney Lawford, K.C.B. The competition in the various classes, especially the jumping, was very keen. The Divisional Commanders Cup given for jumping open to officers of the London Division went to Major C.E.G. Woollcombe-Adams. Some of the lighter events such as musical chairs on mules, and the mule scurry, afforded considerable amusement. There was a good attendance of spectators throughout the day. The Officers of the London Division were "at home" during the afternoon.

The following are the prize winners:—

Six Horse Team R.F.A. Gun or Wagon:—1, C/190th Bty., R.F.A.; 2, A/187th Bty., R.F.A.; 3, D/187th Bty., R.F.A.; H.C., B/187th Bty., R.F.A.

BOXING CHAMPIONSHIPS.

32nd Bn. M.G.C. Win Rhine Army Cup by One Point.

SPARKLING BOUTS.

The Rhineland unit, battalion or equivalent strength, boxing championship was decided at Burgergesellschaft on Thursday evening when the finals of the competitions were fought. The struggle resolved itself into a neck and neck race between the 32nd M.G.C. the 7th Middlesex Regt. and the 51st Devons. When the semi-finals were concluded the previous evening the issue was very much in doubt and not until the last fight was the trophy made secure for the 32nd M.G.C. The final points were:—

32nd Bn. M.G.C.	21
7th Middlesex	20
51 Devons	18
9th Bn. M.G.C.	3

The hall was full to overflowing long before the programme commenced and the machine gunners were very much in evidence. Each team however, came in for a fair measure of support and good performances, whether of winner or loser, were enthusiastically greeted. The boxing was even better than that of the previous evening; there were some eleven exhibitions of the noble art, while, without exception the contestants fought pluckily and gamely.

The officials were:—

Referee:—Lt.-Col. J. Betts, D.S.O.

Judges:—Major A. V. Keene, T.D. and Capt. M. Brown, M.C.

Timekeeper:—Captain G. Hibbert, O.B.E., M.C.

M.C.:—Major W. Delany, O.B.E.

Recorder:—Major M. C. Morgan, M.C.

Asst. Recorders:—C.S.M., E. C. Peirce and C.S.M., J. T. Harper.

Dressing Room Stewards:—C.S.M., H. Butcher and S.I., R. K. Starkey.

Ring Steward:—C.S.M., A. P. J. Howlett.

Whip:—C.S.M., G. E. Ware.

i/c Seating:—R.S.M., A. Stevenson; Q.M.S., E. Watkins; Q.M.S., A. J. Helsdon; Q.M.S., F. J. Hammond, D.C.M., and Q.M.S., P. R. Making.

Hon. Sec.—Lt.-Col. H. C. Maitland-Makgill-Crichton, C.M.G., D.S.O.

M. O.:—Captain D. C. Scott, R.A.M.C.

The Fights.

Bantam-weight (other ranks):—Pte. Sutton, 7th Middlesex v. Sgt. Robinson, 32nd M.G.C. At the opening session Sutton had the best of matters and though he was at fault with a number of his swings, he got in several hard blows to the body receiving little in return. Early in the second round Robinson was knocked out.

Feather-weight (other ranks):—Pte. Woodward, 7th Middlesex v. L/Cpl. Sherry, 51st Devons. The first meeting was fairly evenly contested, Woodward countering well. Sherry went to his knees four times to avoid punishment and was warned by the referee. In the second round both men dealt some hard blows, the Middlesex man continuing to have slightly the better of the exchanges. The final meeting saw Sherry using his left to great advantage, and, though he had the better of the round, he failed to work off the points piled against him early on, and Woodward was a winner on points.

Light-weights (other ranks):—Pte. McKenna, 32nd M.G.C. v. Cpl. Stevens, 7th Middlesex. Stevens did most of the leading but McKenna countered splendidly and shewed superiority at close quarters. In the second round McKenna repeatedly got through Steven's guard, and neutralised the advantage his opponent had in reach. At the final meeting Stevens showed improvement making use of a damaging left swing to the head. The fight ended somewhat tamely the verdict going to Stevens.

Welter-weight (other ranks):—Pte. Ham, 51st Devons v. Sgt. Ritchie, 32nd M.G.C. Ritchie had considerable physical advantages and made good use of them in the early stages. He got home repeatedly with both hands. Ham relied on a favourite right swing with which he was successful on two occasions. The second session saw some really good boxing in which the machine gunner continued to lead on points.

Ham was the more aggressive, but Ritchie countered well with damaging upper cuts. In the in-fighting he also handed out more than he received. In spite of the punishment he had received, Ham fought very strongly in the last round getting home repeatedly with both hands; it was his round. The verdict went to Ritchie, but Ham was awarded an extra half-point for being a good loser.

Welter weight (officers):—Lt. Hayes, 51st Devons, v. Lt. Lee, 32nd M.G.C. Hayes, who has an exceptionally fine physique, went all out from the commencement dealing heavy blows with both hands. Lee went down in the first round and the referee stopped the fight.

Middle-weight (other ranks):—Pte. Glinnain, 7th Middlesex, v. Pte. O'Rourke, 32nd M.G.C. This fight also ended very abruptly; O'Rourke started very aggressively but was no match for the Middlesex man who accounted for him in the first round.

Middle-weight (officers):—Lt. Woodward, 32nd M.G.C., v. 2/Lt. Daw, 7th Middlesex. Daw did most of the attacking, but Woodward showed fine defensive powers and blocked most of his opponent's leads in the early stages. Daw, however, had slightly the best of matters and won on points.

Heavy weight:—Cpl. Pollard, 51st Devons, v. Pte. Hollinsworth, 32nd M.G.C. Hollinsworth started very briskly but Pollard soon got his measure and with heavy rights to the jaw sent him down twice in the first round. The end came at the next meeting when the Devon man had Hollinsworth at his mercy and after dealing him tremendous punishment the referee stopped the fight in Pollard's favour.

The cups and prizes were subsequently presented by Major General Sir H.S. Jeudaine, K.C.B., C.B., who congratulated the competitors on the excellent show they had put up, winners and losers alike had shown hearty good-will and the right spirit. He also thanked the officials and those responsible for bringing the tournament to such a successful conclusion.

GREAT AUTUMN DOUBLE.

Back-end Handicaps—Small Sums At Big Odds.

BY "JERRY M."

Now that the "Leger" is over all interest in future events is centred on the "Back-end Handicaps" the Cesarewitch and Cambridgesnire. Many are amusing themselves by investing small sums at tremendous odds on likely doubles. There is always the chance "It may come off."

The chance of gaining a fortune with a small outlay has always appealed to the public fancy. The annual Calcutta Derby sweep is perhaps the best proof of this. In latter years the subscriptions to this sweep reached such tremendous proportions, that it became necessary to confine the tickets to members only.

But the amount of money that yearly changes hands over the last two big handicaps at Newmarket if it could be calculated would no doubt make the Calcutta affair look "very small fish."

Of course the odds against a successful choice being made are huge but nevertheless it is an amusing and occasionally a profitable pastime. I know one lucky punter who took 1,800 to 1 to 10 S., Air Raid and Zinovia last year. He bought a very nice house and appropriately called it "Zinovia Lodge."

The eagerly awaited acceptances for this years events appeared on Wednesday but there were no sensational developments at the first stage. Most of the fancied ones remain in.

An Excellent Chance.

A careful study of the handicap in the Cesarewitch leaves me with the impression that in taking Chuette, Keysoe, Silver Bullet and Silonyx against the field we have an excellent chance of including the winner.

But a final choice is necessary, Keysoe has earned a 10 lb. penalty by her easy victory in the St. Leger. But she won so easily that I am loth to discard her. Chuette is a grand filly that seems to improve each time she runs. Silonyx too made a good impression when winning at Ascot. But I prefer an older horse in spite of the good display the 3 year olds made last year, and as I am assured that Silver Bullet will, bar accidents, bel. Manton's best, I make him first choice.

So, our first string in the "double" iwil be Silver Bullet quoted in my list to-day at 33 to 1 which I think fairly good odds.

In the Cambridgeshire I like most the chances of Zinovia, Bruff Bridge and Sir Douglas.

Zinovia has certainly been leniently treated with those she won from last year, whilst Bruff Bridge appears to have been pitchforked into the race on some of his form. In the "Free Handicap" at the end of last season he was reckoned near the top of the tree, whilst his earlier efforts this year, will bear close inspections.

There is at the moment a cloud over Sir Douglas who would probably have gone very close in the Leger.

So for the time we must discard him, leaving Bruff Bridge to carry our hopes. This one is quoted at 50 to 1, so our double Silver Bullet and Bruff Bridge works out at 1,650 to 1. So quite a modest outlay would show a substantial return if our luck is in.

THE SCOTCH DERBY.

Felim Wins The Leading Event At Ayr.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Rush for "Damaged Goods."

Owing to the enormous demand for seats for "Demaged Goods" at the Deutsches Theatre, four extra performances will be given of this great play next week—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. On Friday and Saturday "Man and Superman" will be repeated by special request. "Hindle Wakes" will be produced during the week of the 28th and "Strife" the following week.

In Another Part.

In my comments on the Rhine Army Dramatic Company's fine presentation of "Man and Superman" at the Deutsches Theatre, for the first three days of this week, Miss Inez Bensusan was shown as having taken the part of Miss Suzan Ramsden, This character, however was excellently portrayed by Miss Francis Chisholm, while Miss Bensusan was seen to great advantage in the minor part of Mrs. Whitefield.

Leave Club Whist.

The weekly whist drive was held at the British Empire Leave Club and as usual was largely attended and went very well. The gentlemen's prizes were won by the following:—1st, Pte. Day (149); 2nd, Pte. P. K. Sherton (142); 3rd Pte. W. Hudson (142). The ladies prizes were won by:—1st, Pte. J. Teasdale (148); 2nd Pte. S. Greaves (148); 3rd, Pte. W. G. Delamont (147). Many thanks are due to Pte. Beales, R.A.S.C., M.T. for his splendid work as M.C. and above all to Lt. Halley, who has organised the whist drives from the early days of the Club. He is leaving Cologne very shortly and will be greatly missed.

Leave Club Programme.

On Sunday, the Rev. C. E. Wheeler will talk to the men in the writing room from 5 to 6 p.m. followed by a concert by the band of the Southern Division. Miss West has kindly consented to play a violin solo and Major Greenless and Bombardier Ruston are singing solos. There will be an impromptu concert on Monday, from 5 to 6 followed by a practice dance in the theatre from 6.30. On Tuesday, a dancing class will be held in the theatre for beginners from 5 to 6 p.m. and at 7 p.m. the Jingle Johnnies Concert Party will give a show.

An Evening with Heine.

At the Y.M.C.A. one evening this week Miss Muriel Smith, lecturer on German Literature at St. Andrews University, gave a critical appreciation of Heine as a man and a poet and of the Liberal movement of his time. The Rev. A. D. McKenzie and Pte. Brickwell and Miss Muriel Smith herself sang a number of Heine's songs as rendered into English, and by request of the audience the lecturer sang some of the songs in the original German. One of the most interesting features of the evening was the singing in German of "Die Lorelei" in which many of the soldiers, members of Miss Smith's German class, heartily joined. Miss Smith has been asked to speak next week on the Rhine legends.

A Magic Man.

The visit of Mr. Hugh Herring, the Y.M.C.A. illusionist, to Bonn, furnished a really first class entertainment, and, for a large gathering of soldiers provided two hours capital enjoyment. As an entertainer, Mr. Herring has quite a reputation, earned after nearly four years among the troops under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., penetrating even to the firing line in the days of war. The soldiers in Bonn gave him a great reception, and, in return, were served with a programme laden with magic and merriment where thrill succeeded thrill in almost constant succession. To old conjuring tricks Mr. Herring is able to impart an added charm, improving upon old methods, and introducing many new and thoroughly up-to-date turns, while all the while a reserve under-current of humour is finding its way to the surface and proving the quality irresistible.

Impressions at Sud Park.

I spent an hour at the W.R.A.F. Tattoo the other evening; the function appealed to me as a series of impressions. It was a pretty sight. Pin wheels performed weird revolutions amid the trees, coloured flares were lit and the reflection turned the foliage to red, to green, to blue, and rip-raps cracked at intervals in the darkness. Suddenly all was still, and a dazzling searchlight focussed its rays on a distant coppice. There was a whirl of pipers and, right in the range of the light, the band of the H.L.I. swung into view. How weird yet beautiful, is the sound of the pibroch at night! The scene changed. The band of the D.L.I. struck up a stirring military march, then from out of the trees on either side came figures carrying fairy lanterns. Round and round they marched, now breaking into picturesque evolutions, now counter-marching, ending finally in line. It had a most charming effect.

Morris Dances.

The music of the march ceased and again there was quiet. Presently one could hear the faint tinkle of the piano and the limelight, focussing once more on the green revealed a small group of girls dressed in blue and yellow. With a graceful charm, and in perfect concord, they commenced a Morris dance. The light changed from red to blue and from blue to orange in turn and the effect was almost magical. How refreshing were those old world dances after the strenuous present-day jazz madness. The dance was perhaps the most appreciated feature of the evening and the dancers were loudly applauded. Once more the pibroch sounded; again the fairy lanterns flitted through the trees like will o' the wisps; for the second time the fireworks cast their fiery fervour; and finally the band of the D.L.I played "God Save the King."

JACQUES.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Clear Goals.

A team that wins by 4—1 does not win by three clear goals. The only three clear goals win is 3—0.

Scotch Racing.

It is not often that Scotland has more important racing to offer than the predominant partner, but such is the case this week.

Regrettable.

It is much to be regretted that, at a time when international interests of lawn tennis are expanding im most directions, there are obstacles in the way of the Lawn Tennis Association officially recognising the Argentine L.T.A.

Voysey's Injury.

Voysey's injury, which kept him off the field at Sunderland on Saturday for a total of some fifty minutes, is rather serious, and will be a distinct handicap to the Arsenal team for a month or six weeks.

"Aussies" in S. Africa.

It is stated that the Australian Imperial Forces team, which has now completed its tour in England, will play in South Africa on its way home. The Australian military authorities have laid down conditions for a six weeks' tour, and these have been accepted by the South African Cricket Association.

Remarkable Things.

There were several remarkable things about the lawn tennis tournament which started at Hurlingham on Tuesday.

Mike Blake to Ross and Criqui.

The supporter of Mike Blake is prepared to match him against the winner of the Ross and Criqui bout for £100 a side if desired.

Maisons-Laffitte.

The meeting at Maisons-Laffitte was a huge success and the attendance large. There has been but little racing since Deauville, and the horses having had a well-earned rest, they turned up in large numbers.

Welsh Rugby Rule.

The Welsh Union has decided that those who played for a particular club during the season 1913-14, and are desirous of transferring from that club, must obtain a transfer from the Union before doing so.

Autumn Golf.

A popular feature of autumn golf will be the "Ladies' Field" Victory knock-out foursome tournament for ladies, which will be held at Ranelagh on October 20, 21, and 22. Entries will be accepted until October 11, but already many well-known players have signified their intention of playing.

Retiring.

Glyn Stephens, the Neath and Welsh international Rugby forward, is retiring from the game.

Bdr. Wells as Swimmer.

At the Port of London Gala, at the Old Kent-rd. Baths, Bdr. Billy Wells, the well-known heavy-weight boxer, won the 75yds. Open Handicap from the 12sec. mark, his net time being 57 3-5sec.

Licensed Victuallers' Asylum Tourney.

A tournament in aid of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum will take place at the National Sporting Club on Tuesday, Nov. 18, when the programme will include three open amateur competitions at 8st, 9st, and 10st 4lb.

Pole Vault Record.

Frank Foss, Chicago A.A., put up a new world's record in the pole-vault at Chicago on August 23, when he cleared 13ft. 3 9-16in. Another notable performance at the same meeting was the mile run by Joie Ray in 4.18 2-5.

A Post-War Fashion.

Before the war it was seldom one heard clapping of hands on a racecourse when a popular favourite wins. It seems quite a new fashion, and Little Boy and Lane were the recipients of this form of applause at Warwick when returning to the paddock after the race.

All-American Team.

The All-American football team is still in Scandinavia, and has another couple of matches to play before its return to the States.

Hotel Sports.

At Stamford Bridge the West End Hotels, Clubs, and Restaurants Association held their annual sports carnival. A programme of interesting events was provided.

Appeal Against Baldoyle Decision.

An appeal has been lodged with the Stewards of the Turf Club against the decision of the Stewards of the Baldoyle Meeting in disqualifying Stage Favourite, who came in first for the Strand Plate at the fixture last Saturday.

An Amateur's Lost Ride.

Mr. Sandy Blair was to have ridden Killesher in the Warwick Corinthian Handicap this week, but, motoring from town, he had a puncture, and reached the course just as Mr. Eccles was presenting himself at scale.

Hurlingham Lawn Tennis.

The first lawn tennis tournament ever held by the Hurlingham Club was begun this week. The entry includes S. N. Doust, P. O'Hara Wood, P. W. Dawson, M. J. G. Ritchie, and N. Mishu in the men's events, and Mrs. McNair among the ladies.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Returning Fit.

Repatriated German prisoners of war on a train which stopped near Hohenzollern bridge last night were to be seen handing out cigarettes to their compatriots who had gathered round. Their general physical condition was in striking contrast to that of those who have stayed at home and gave the lie direct to the stories which have been drummed into the ears of the German public. "1915" was one of the inscriptions chalked on a carriage and the writer must have been gathered in early on. Doubtless his compatriots who arrived at a later date were quashed by the old argument "Before you come up."

Confirmation in Cologne.

The Chaplain General of the Forces, the Right Rev. Bishop Taylor Smith, D.D. is on a visit of inspection to the Army of the Rhine. On Sunday next he will preach at both morning and evening services at the Military Church, 57 Schilder Gasse, Cologne He will also hold a Confirmation service in the same church on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A Fine Series of Photographs.

All who are interested in photography should make a point of inspecting the series of photographs, not yet complete, by the way, at the Army bookshop in Hohenzollern Ring. The fighting soldier is able to view many photographic scenes which are familiar to him, sidelights of "Wipers," Albert, Peronne and Amiens, to quote a few, and bring back to mind many little escapades of war. One gets a certain amount of pleasure from these and one hundred and one scenes showing the lightnearted Tommy under all conditions. Of course, additional pleasure is derived from recognition of individuals, places and units, but even the civilian will find a perusal entertaining. There is no posing for the photographer, so often the case with the miserable specimens of war photography to be seen in the German shops, but a natural chronicle of life in and about the various war zones. One word for the efficiency and courtesy of the staff of the bookshop. This makes a visit all the more pleasurable.

An Infatuated Fraulein.

Just how Tommy does his lovemaking we do not know but with the language difficulty, he must at times find words fail him. That the difficulty is overcome is to be seen any evening where courting couples foregather. But as a gem of composition the appended takes some beating. It was written by an infatuated Fraulein:—

"My Deer Charlie, waffor jou chelles mit mei. Ich denken jou lov mi un ei lov jou. ei kann never louck wunn jou louck chelles. pflis komm for 1 minute in Restauration. jou lov Elisabeth."

A Muzzled Cat.

Much has been heard of late re the muzzling of dogs, but the idea of applying the order to cats is estimated to be not only inconvenient to the quadruped named, but also to the general community, as the following incident will show. In the quiet hours of the morning between a certain billet and the cookhouse, a most unusual sound was heard. The cook who had just got settled down to sleep, after drowsing and beating off the "flies," was in a state of alarm. What could it be. Surely no one come to steal. And the noise was not at all like a returning Tommy with a heelplate lose. No, an unfortunate cat had chanced to put its head into a Standard sized "Pork and Bean" tin. No one saw how it got its head there, but the tinkling of the tin on the concrete pavement was sufficient to proclaim the fact that it could not get it out. The boys in the billet having heard the clatter went to the rescue of the cook and pussy with her well-covered head was bouncing herself at the cookhouse door. The tin is now on the way to the incinerator. The cook will once more be able to sleep.

Changing Over.

During the past week an interesting phase in the migration of population has been taking place in Germany. As is generally known, throughout the war there has been a large element of Italian ice cream vendors living in the more prominent towns of Germany. Berlin and Cologne have had their full representation. During the past few days Cologne Italian ice cream vendors have been leaving the district for their sunny homeland and their Berlin confreres have been taking over their establishments. These it is said in their turn will give place to others in Germany, all making eventually for Italy.

Low Water In The Rhine.

Anyone who has renewed their acquaintance of the Rhine during the last few days will have been struck by the remarkable drop in the water level, due, no doubt, to the almost tropical conditions which have prevailed during the past few weeks. This has been a source of enjoyment to the adventurous bather who if of average stature has found it quite easy to walk along the bed of the stream at given points. It has its disadvantages however, for with the low water the river bottom is visible and a considerable quantity of debris has been left on mud banks. Tin-kettles, tin-pots and other river rubbish is to be seen in large quantities. The present affords a capital opportunity for cleansing at least the mud banks of the Rhine.

A Battalion Garden.

The 18th Battn. King's Royal Rifle Corps is amongst the first units of the Rhine Army to take up gardening on a big scale. A start was made about the middle of May when two acres of land were taken over. The plot was on the left of Worringen-Dormagen Road. Lance-Corporal Frere, Riflemen Humphrey and Simmons had the job in hand under the supervision of Lieut. Reader who has had long horticultural experience. The ground after being broken, thoroughly manured and cleared of weeds was sown with beans, turnips, marrows, beet and onions. Some days later the first sowing of flower seeds in several varieties was made.

Not Abandoned.

Just as the gardeners were looking forward to the fruits (or vegetables) of their labour, and had begun to make calculations of their marketable value the battalion was ordered to Solingen, the Worringen area being taken over by the H.L.I. To have abandoned this scheme in the hour of its success was unthinkable, so the gardeners were left to continue the work, and, if possible to break down the proverbial tight-fistedness of the Scotsmen when the time comes for selling their wares. Reports of the garden's continued progress are to hand and there can be little doubt of the ultimate success of this novel venture.

Financially Successful.

The experiment has been eminently successful not only as a financial venture, but as a means whereby every rifleman interested in horticulture was enabled to learn at first hand the rudiments of gardening for pleasure or for profit. Many there were who spent three or four evenings a week at the plots, learning in the easiest possible manner some of the mysteries of gardening and making a groundwork for more advanced instruction.

The Essentials.

The following was overheard in a certain G.H.Q. Office the other day:— "I say old chap, why do you always type your letters?" To which the reply was: "Saves brain fag deah, Boy. You see I just put 'My Darling' and then tap away at the jolly old X, and then—well, there you are."

Re-Echoes.

Our letters on "Wives and Efficiency" are attracting as much attention as the famous "Agnes" correspondence recently. "The Daily Mail" has just devoted some space to it.

Are you a follower and judge of football form? If so the skill competition on the previous page will interest you.

Returning German prisoners yesterday were to be seen waving Union Jack pocket handkerchiefs.

A correspondent would be obliged for information as to whether the 1/6th North Staffordshire Regiment is still with the Army of Occupation.

The fares on the Rhine steamers are a hundred per cent. higher than before the war.

Some idea of the immense pile of correspondence dealt with by the staff of the Army Post Office can be gathered from the loads dealt with at the Railway Station prior to the departure of the Cologne-Boulogne leave train.

Those individuals who desire to get rich quickly at the expense of the mark, will find that purchases of postal orders are limited.

In the same connection only English sterling or cheques are taken in the purchase of war savings certificates at Army Post Offices.

Queries relating to demobilization continue to reach us in shoals! For the benefit of correspondents whose questions are ignored may we point out that we cannot undertake to answer them. These queries would be best directed to the orderly room.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Cpl. H. F. Farren, R.E. Signals, 245 Brigade R.F.A., Rhine Army and Pte. W. Hallam, R.A.S.C. (M.T.), Rhine Army Siege Park.

PHOTOGRAPHY.

(XXIV.)

By LIEUT. W. ROBERT PATTERSON.

This week the question of developers arises. For the sake, not only of economy, but of interest in anything chemical, many of us prefer to mix our own solutions.

There are several standard types; those principally used are Adurol, Amidol, Hydroquinone, Metol, Pyro and Rodinal.

Adurol is clean, does not stain, and is in two solutions. Take one part of a, one part of b and one of water.

(a)	Adurol	85 grains,
	Sulphite of Soda	1¾ ozs.
	Water	10 ozs.
(b)	Carbonate of Potash	1¼ ozs.
	Water	10 ozs.

Amidol (diamidophenol) produces fine black tones. It is a very practical developer for warm weather work, but does not keep well in solution so that it is better made up as required.

Amidol	50 grains,
Sulphite of Soda	1½ ozs.
Bromide of Potassium	10 grain.
Water	20 ozs.

Hydroquinone (quinol). The following solution is a good one. Add to it a ten per cent solution of bromide of potassium in cases of over exposure and water alone for under-exposure,

Hydroquinone	90 grs.
Sulphite of Soda	2 ozs.
Carbonate of Soda	2 ozs.
Water	10 ozs.

Metol is fast; it is very useful in cases of instantaneous exposures, since it gives detail in the shadows without rendering too dense the high-lights. Use equal parts of both a and b.

(a)	Metol	75 grains.
	Sulphite of Soda	1¼ ozs.
	Water	10 ozs.
(b)	Carbonate of Soda	1¼ ozs.
	Bromide of Potash	8 grains,
	Water	10 ozs.

Pyro (pyrogallol). The usual formula is styled 'Pyro-soda' of which the stock solutions are as follows:—

(a)	Water	10 ozs.
	Potassium metabisulphite	½ oz.
	Potassium bromide	60 grains,
	Pyro	1 oz.
(b)	Sodium carbonate	2 ozs.
	Sodium sulphite	3 ozs.
	Water	10 ozs.

Use equal parts but increase the quantity of b for under-exposure and of a for over-exposure.

Rodinal is prepared from paramidophenol. It is a highly concentrated developer in one solution, much used here in Rhineland.

Warning! Avoid, as much as possible, personal contact with your solutions. Several bad cases of skin-eruption, attacking the fingers, have come to my notice.

OPINIONS OF THE MOMENT.

REUNION IMPOSSIBLE.

Dr. F. B. Meyer, speaking on the subject of a religious rapprochement, said he felt thankful for signs that the Anglican Church had gone as far as it would and might. Free Churchmen did not regret it, for although perfectly willing to remain on a basis of co-operation, friendship, and brotherly love, they absolutely refused to be incorporated, and would take no further steps towards reunion with the Church of England so long as she remained attached to the State. They reciprocated very heartily the advances made by leading Anglican friends. The reply of Free Churchmen was co-operate in the betterment of the national life, but as for incorporation in the Church, it is not to be thought of.

EMPLOYMENT OF THE DISABLED.

Mr. William Arnold, a well-known boot manufacturer, speaking on the subject of the employment of disabled soldiers, said he did not think the request to employers was an unreasonable one. His own firm had taken back every man who joined the forces and had returned, irrespective of any physical disability which might have been caused through the war. The employment of more disabled men was a matter of organization. It was no use discharging men at present employed to engage disabled men, and, at the moment, the boot trade was in a difficulty with regard to engaging men, because of the shortage of labour.

READING ALOUD.

Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, professor of English Literature at Cambridge, writing on "The teaching of English," says: The English teacher must cast away shyness in conducting the child's first reading lesson, and having chosen some simple and beautiful passage, show how winningly the words can fall from his lips. There, oddly enough, lies a great part of our troubles. We have fenced our literature off like a Turkish woman. We are shy of speaking it out. As for training the young to enunciate their own magnificent language, well, listen to the clergy, what noises they make! I know well enough the value of silent reading, and our want of it in our elementary schools. It is the master key of all knowledge. But let us read aloud as well, and learn to read aloud that we may be able to teach.

NOT TAUGHT AT SCHOOL.

Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the Chief Scout, in a letter to parents, says "What shall I do with my boy?" is a question that puzzles most fathers. I expect that you feel as I do, that it is a bit of a responsibility to be the father of a boy. The lad may be working all right at school, yet if one looks back at one's own schooling and then at the way in which one had to make one's way in life afterwards, one feels that, although that schooling teaches him, among his classmates, a lot of the three R's (reading, writing, and 'rithmetic), it doesn't definitely teach him, as an individual, some other things that are quite as necessary to success in making a career. I mean such things as—character, handicraft and skill, physical development and health knowledge, helpfulness to others and sense of duty to the community. These are things that are left to the father to impart, or, what is too generally the case, if he is a busy man, to the boy to pick up as best he can in his out-of-school or out-of-workshop time. It often results in his not doing so at all, and thereby becoming a failure.

MUST WE TRADE WITH GERMANY?

Mr. Hartley Withers, the Editor of "The Economist" pointing out how a boycott would injure our country says:—Must we trade with Germany? We cannot help it. Whether we like it or not, we are bound to receive and pay for a large number of German goods unless we forbid the import from all countries of any goods of a kind that is grown or made in Germany. Even if the Government chose to put a special tariff upon goods of German origin and to make a rigorous examination of certificates of origin at all our ports of entry, this would happen; much more so if the attempted boycott were worked through voluntary action on the part of people who do not want to buy anything German. Fraud and evasion would be rather difficult in the former case, but would certainly happen in either case. If the prices at which German goods can be sold in this market are high enough to attract them, they will come here But with this difference, that if we try to keep them out they will come through neutral countries and disguised as Swiss, Dutch or Scandinavian articles. The neutral broker will take his toll on the transaction.

CURSE OF SLACKNESS.

Mr. G. B. Hunter, of the well-known Wallsend firm of shipbuilders, in a letter discussing the serious effect American shipbuilding may have on British industry, says:— Unless the miners and shipyard workers, as well as others, spend less and do more work, it is certain that the prosperous times they are now having cannot last. Mr. John Hill admits that the higher paid workmen in the shipyards are working less than 44 hours per week (he should have said less than 3.). Why is it that so many are not at work on Mondays? Was it from causes beyond their control that the shipyard men took three days instead of one for the peace celebrations in July, and a large number of them another day after it? Counting holidays the members of Mr. Hill's society in the shipyards do not average more than four and a half days' work a week, and that is not from causes beyond their control.

IF WOMEN DIDN'T GO TO CHURCH!

The Rev. D. Kennedy-Beel, thinks that if women left off going to church, the nation would sink into materialism. He says:—If women didn't go to church it would mean that the bulk of our population ceased to believe in a God. The most beautiful sight in the world—that of a mother hearing her children say their evening prayers—would be seen no more. The coming generation would be reared on a gospel of materialism. May Heaven avert that day! We are told that we never really value anything till we have lost it. Britain would soon realise what she had lost if she let go her Christian faith. There is hope for a people that has shown so keen an appreciation of the words "duty" and "self-sacrifice" as we have done during the past five years. And it is the women of Britain, perhaps even more than the men, that have made her what she is; for a man is very largely what a woman makes him. They teach us the best that we learn, and much that they teach us they have learned themselves through going to church. May we not, in our anxiety to secure the men, undervalue the attendance of the women, for our nation and Empire would be the poorer if women stopped going to church.

ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY.

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY TO ENFORCE OBEDIENCE TO ALLIES OR TAKE THE CONSEQUENCES.

BRITISH AGREEMENT WITH PERSIA.

BALTIC STATES.

ENTENTE DECIDES ON STERN MEASURES.

The Allies have at last decided to bring to an end the situation created in the Baltic provinces by the stubborn refusal of General von der Goltz to remove his troops from those states and take them back to Germany. The "Echo de Paris" of yesterday says that Marshal Foch, who was present at the last sitting of the Supreme Council, gave energetic advice which gained the day. He has therefore been authorised to notify Germany that the occupation of Lithuania by the army of von der Goltz constitutes a violation of the armistice for which the German Government at Weimar will be held responsible. If Germany persists in asserting that von der Goltz refuses to submit to its authority the Entente will then adopt the necessary measures.

It can be seen that this Note is a veritable ultimatum. The "Matin" also describes the Note as an ultimatum, which, according to another telegram, has already been sent.

In the meantime, while von der Goltz and his officers continue to pretend that their object is to protect the Baltic provinces against the Bolshevists, part of the German press declares his aims to be reactionary and that he is really preparing the way for a Monarchist restoration, using the Baltic provinces as a base for the organisation of an attempt in favour of the Hohenzollerns. "Vorwarts," for instance, yesterday published a communication received from a Social Democrat just returned from the the Baltic provinces stating that when he left there a week ago a large number of officers and men were arriving there daily from Germany, where they had been enlisted. In Courland even the smallest villages are occupied and there are more troops now than at any moment of the war. The plans for these German forces are admitted quite openly. He himself saw in the offices of the military command placards saying that the soldiers were to fight for the Kaiser against democracy. In order to give an appearance of acceding to the Government's instructions a few of these forces have been dissolved. These men are being sent to join Koltchak's army.

HERTZOG'S DISMAY.

S. AFRICAN NATIONALISTS' SET-BACK.

Signs are accumulating to prove that the Republican movement in South Africa has received a severe set-back. One of the South African party delegates at the late Reunion Congress makes the interesting statement that they were given clearly to understand that the Nationalists were prepared to drop the Republican cry, but the resolution passed was left rather vague, and some Nationalists have now tried to construe it in another sense.

It is evident that General Hertzog has made the dismaying discovery since his return that the feeling for restoration of political unity which is now common among the Dutch leads the more moderate section of his supporters to deprecate persistence in Republican propaganda as fatal to reunion. Hence his plea that it is for the coming Nationalist congress to decide what shall be the future policy of the party.

AUSTRIA OFF THE MAP.

"GERMAN ALPINE LANDS."

The Austrian Chancellor, Dr. Renner, speaking at a conference in Vienna, said the name "German Alpine Lands" would best correspond to the State's territorial composition, and the German-Austrian lands would probably in future be so described constitutionally. The way to union having been momentarily postponed, their State had the same geographical, legal, and economic position as Switzerland; and it would most likely be expedient for them to organise the State as a federation of self-governing towns and provinces.

STRIKE AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

On Friday night there was no performance of Arlecchino and Turandot at the Opera House as the choir declined to work in consequence of the Town Council having refused the demands of the choir and ballet. These demands were 6,000 marks a year for the men and 5,400 marks for the ladies. They were rejected because the Town Council held that such salaries would be disproportionate to those of other municipal employees. As the matter could not be settled at once the performance of Zar and Zimmermann was also cancelled. Money paid for tickets for the Friday and Saturday performances will be refunded.

PERSIAN AFFAIRS.

TRUTH ABOUT BRITISH AGREEMENT.

Lord Curzon, speaking on the Anglo-Persian agreement, said that in some quarters suspicion had been aroused as to the real character of the agreement. This arose in the main from misconceptions. It was stated that the agreement amounted to a protectorate by Great Britain over Persia but that was not the case. He would have opposed any idea of a protectorate as contrary to our repeated agreements, and he would have opposed it in the last resort because he would have regarded it as inimical to British interests. As a result of the great war Britain would have enough to do in the Eastern parts of the world without having to assume the responsibility of a protectorate over Persia. Those who believed that Great Britain as a result of this agreement was going to sit down in Persia to Anglicise or Indianise or Europeanise it were grossly mistaken. All they wanted to do was to give Persia expert assistance and financial aid which would enable her to carve out her own fortune as an independent and still living country. He had also seen it stated in some quarters that the agreement was a disparagement or a deliberate neglect of the League of Nations, to which most of us looked forward with such keen anticipations as the one agency which might save us in the future from the horrors of recent events. He contended that this was not the case. He said emphatically and on behalf of the British Government, and after a conversation with his Highness the Persian Minister that both the British Government and the Persian Government accepted unreservedly Articles 10 and 20 of the Covenant. When the Treaty of Peace was ratified and as soon as the Council of the League of Nations came into effective existence, it was the intention of both Governments to communicate the agreement to the Council of the League of Nations with an explanation and full defence of its conditions.

The Persian Minister, speaking in French, referred to his country's century-old friendship with Britain, which he said had not been the result merely of geographical circumstances, but also and above all of the unshakable devotion with which the British Government had upheld the Persian nation in its efforts for progress, liberty and prosperity.

FRENCH FINANCE.

REMINDER TO THE ALLIES.

France is perturbed concerning her industrial position after the Peace Treaty. "It would be too cruel that France, victorious on the field of battle, should be left destitute on the field of finance" said M. Viviani in the Chamber in a striking appeal to the Allies to help in his country's restoration. M. Viviani ridiculed the views of those who believed that Germany could suddenly raise thousands of men in spite of the Allies control, and added:—"Can you think that Germany would dare to provoke France in the face of mighty England and in the face of mighty America?"

The speaker drew a graphic picture of the economic situation in which France had been left by the war, and said that it was essential that the Financial Section of the League of Nations should become a reality. M. Viviani referred to the efforts made by the British, the Italians and the Americans at the side of France, and asked the Allies to remember that France was the bulwark of liberty.

FRENCH OFFICER DEGRADED

Capt. Castellbon, of the 14th French Colonial Infantry Regiment, has been condemned to five years' penal servitude and military degradation. On the eve of the offensive before Verdun on February 20, 1916, he surrendered to the enemy and thus involved his company.

Capt. Castelbonn, the War Council was informed, was slightly wounded, and affected by the violence of the bombardment and liquid fire. He refused to engage the enemy, notwithstanding the order to fight to a finish.

SUBMARINE DETECTORS.

A new corps of specialist submarine detectors is to be started in the Navy. They will be drawn from the present personnel, and no one outside the service will be enlisted for the work. The corps will start with sixty men, who will be drafted to the listening school at Portland in batches of twelve, training taking three months. The men, when qualified, will be entitled to extra pay of 3d., 6d., or 1s. a day according to the skill in detection with hydrophones which they attain.

FINSBURY MURDER.

WARREN SENTENCED TO DEATH.

Two seamen—Frank George Warren, alias Burke, a ship's cook, aged forty-one, and Harold Horatio Morgan, ship's steward, aged nineteen—were before Mr. Justice Darling at the Old Bailey charged with the murder of Mrs. Lucy Nightingale at Prah-road, Finsbury Park, on the night of Sunday, July 27.

The murder took place at the house of a man named Ball, where the woman was lodging. She was visited by Warren, and in the early hours of the following morning her body was found in the bedroom, bound, gagged and strangled.

Warren met at Cardiff a young woman named Olive Parton and brought her to London. Morgan followed. The two prisoners met Ball and Nightingale at the Blackstock public-house, and Warren and the woman went home together.

During the night screams were heard in the bedroom, and at a quarter past one Ball, who was very drunk, went upstairs, where he found the body of Nightingale lying on the floor.

At a quarter past two in the morning Warren and Morgan returned to Parton's lodgings. Next morning Warren gave Olive Parton three rings, which were undoubtedly the property of Nightingale. She noticed that Warren had a scratch on his face.

Nightingale was in the habit of secreting her money in unlikely places, and £9 was afterwards discovered hidden in an orange box.

Olive Parton told how, when out with the two men, she noticed a placard: "Woman Strangled at Finsbury Park." Warren and Morgan also saw it and looked at each other and smiled.

"I said to them 'My God; you have had nothing to do with that, have you?' Warren said: 'Why should you think we had anything to do with it? I said: 'It seems rather funny, but you came home in the early hours of the morning.'"

The trial was here interrupted by the witness fainting.

Henry Ball, of the Prah-road house, in his evidence said his recollection of the events was hazy until the Sunday night, when he woke up in the darkness and shouted for "Lizzie." He then found the woman's body.

Warren was sentenced to death. Morgan was found not guilty of murder and of being an accessory after the fact and was discharged.

Addressing Morgan, the Judge said: "Let me say a word to you. You have been in a very unpleasant position for a long time owing to the company you keep, and to your own immorality. You are now undergoing sentence for theft from your ship, and when you come out, make up your mind to lead a better life."

Morgan: Yes, sir.

The jury were only seven minutes absent in considering their verdict.

The judge, in passing sentence, said that Warren, who was already a thief, had made up his mind to rob the woman and strangle her.

Warren received the sentence unmoved.

GABRIELE DEFIANT.

DESTRUCTION BEFORE SURRENDER.

The Roman Idea Nazionale says that D'Annunzio's army consists of 10,000 regular troops, besides four battalions of Fiume volunteers. D'Annunzio has occupied the fortified line round Fiume as well as strategic positions. The National Council has seized stocks of foodstuffs lying in the harbour warehouses, and announces a blockade. There is a lack of meat but abundance of flour, rice and sugar. The soldiers and citizens have now thrown in their lot with D'Annunzio, and are determined to go to any extreme rather than give up Fiume.

Measures are being taken to destroy the town should resistance prove impossible. General Badoglio, Italian Military Commissioner, has arrived at Fiume. It is believed that the Government mean to starve out the town. General Diaz and the Duke of Aosta have been summoned to Rome.

GERMAN NAVY OUT.

For the first time since the war a German warship, viz., the small cruiser Regensburg, is to make a trip abroad. The Regensburg will, according to the Zeitung am Mittag, be ready to leave next week for South America, where she will first ascertain whether all the men of the interned crews of German merchantmen have been liberated, and next, the paper adds, conduct investigations into the question of the re-establishment of commercial relations with Germany.

BATTUE OF MOTOR BANDITS.

A sensational story, reminiscent of the doings of the motor bandits Bonnot and Garnier, comes from St. Germain-les-Arpajon, France.

Imitating these famous criminals, three young men drove up to a bank in a motor-car, and as soon as they were presented to the employee in charge covered him with revolvers and ordered him to give up all money in the bank. Not at all afraid, however, he defied the bandits, who fearing arrest, made off, pursued by the employee and another man. During the chase one of the would-be robbers fired several revolver shots, wounding both pursuers. Gendarmes subsequently organised a battue in La Folie Wood, assisted by sportsmen and a fusillade began. One of the bandits was shot in the breast and died in hospital. Another was arrested, and the third man escaped.

"DRY" CHICAGO.

TWO THOUSAND EXTRA POLICE ASKED FOR.

A favourite contention of pussyfoot orators is that prohibition lessens crime. This does not seem to be the experience of America. The Chicago Chief of Police has requested the city authorities to permit the addition of 2,000 constables to Chicago's police force because of the great increase in crime since prohibition became effective. Last month's crime records were 50 per cent. higher than those of any winter month this year, and 58 per cent. higher than in August of last year. Prohibition became effective on July 1 of this year, since when there has been a constant upward trend of criminal activities.

The same conditions exist in New York, where there has never before been such a series of daring and reckless crimes perpetrated as during the past two months. Burglary insurance companies report a 50 per cent. increase in business over that of last year because of the wide-spread alarm caused by the prevailing lawlessness of New York. The reason is said to be that the criminal classes are satisfying their craving for intoxicants by taking far more drugs than ever before, and while under the influence of the drugs they become practically irresponsible and engage in criminal activities which they would never have contemplated under the old conditions.

WYCOMBE LOCK-OUT.

CHAIRS BURNT IN STREET.

Disorderly scenes in connection with the furnishing trade lock-out at Wycombe, culminated in several disgraceful acts. A party visited the bowling green of which Alderman Walter Birch, chair manufacturer, is president, and smashed gates, threw a lawn mower into the road, also a sprayer, smashing both, and deck chairs. The unruly gang then went to a neighbouring chair manufacturer's premises, breaking windows, and Police-Sergeant Cordery narrowly escaped serious injury, being struck with a stone near the eye.

At a third furniture factory the crowd broke down the iron gates of a timber yard, overturned immense stacks of timber, and, going into the factory, took possession of a number of rush-seated chairs, smashing them up and setting fire to them in the public street. The mob pelted one of the heads of the firm with fish, which had been distributed during the morning by the Salvation Army to relieve distress in the town.

DEMORALISING DOLES.

Inquiries at Labour Exchanges show that unemployment doles have a demoralising effect on workers generally. While some men scorn the dole as they would the workhouse, others deliberately refuse work.

An employer who urgently required a cabinet-maker was put in communication by the Labour Exchange with a man who described himself as an aeroplane propeller finisher. "But you must have been a cabinet-maker to do that sort of work," said the employer. "I'll give you 3d. an hour above the trade union rate if you will take the job." The man refused, maintaining that his trade was that of an aeroplane propeller finisher. "This is the type of man who is a snow-shoveller in summer and a hay-maker in winter," said the disgusted employer. "We shall not make any real progress until the Government doles are stopped. They make wasters of honest men."

COMRADES AID EVICTED SOLDIER.

Extraordinary scenes were witnessed in Upper Clapton in connection with the impending eviction from his house of a discharged soldier with his wife and child. The man in question is ex-Corporal Saggers, who has a record of fifteen years' service. He is totally disabled, and despite every effort to find rooms elsewhere, has been unable to secure accommodation.

In anticipation of Sagger's goods being put into the street, a number of ex-service men yesterday paraded the thoroughfare carrying boards on which were printed posters with the words "Thou shalt not evict a disabled soldier," "Where are the homes for disabled heroes?" "The country's gratitude—eviction after fifteen years' service."

The reason given by the landlord for evicting the tenant is that he requires the premises for his own use.

1,000 DEAD IN STORM.

A heavy death roll and great damage to property are reported as a result of a tropical storm in South Texas on Sunday. The commander of the National Guard on duty on the coast has telegraphed that reliable information has been received that at least a thousand bodies are strewn along the shores of Corpus Christi and Nueces Bays.

In the neighbourhood of Corpus Christi the damage done to property is estimated to amount to three million dollars ($600,000) and 5,000 families are homeless.

News has been received that an aeroplane while trying to land in the Residency at Quetta crashed to the ground and burst into flames. As passenger, Captain Steele, and two Brahmins were killed. The pilot, an officer of the Air Force, was severely shaken.

DISABLED MEN.

SIR R. HORNE DENIES THEIR GRIEVANCES.

Should disabled men receive larger allowances while undergoing training for occupation in civil life?

A deputation from the Discharged and Demobilised Sailors' and Soldiers' Federation has urged on Sir Robert Horne, Minister of Labour, the need for increased grants, with a minimum of 40s a week.

The deputation complained that the allowance at present given includes the pension to which the disabled man is entitled. This, they held, was unfair.

Sir R. Horne pointed out that under the scale a single man in training received in all 40s. a week, plus 5s. bonus; a man with a wife and no children received 50s. a week, plus 5s. bonus; a man with a wife and three children received 69s. 6d. a week, plus 5s. bonus. He said he did not believe that these rates would be regarded as unreasonable, especially when it was kept in view that a man who had before the war been so skilled as to earn high wages was entitled to claim an alternative pension, the amount of which under the new scale came to the full wage he made before the war, with the addition of 60 per cent.

The claim put forward by the deputation, on the other hand, involved such a anomalous result as this—that a man with three children, being 70 per cent. disabled, but still capable of taking training, would receive 123s. 1. d. per week, plus the free training, while a man in similar circumstances completely disabled, and who was rendered incapable of taking any further active interest in life, would be receiving only 69s. 6d. He regretted that he was unable to meet the suggestions of the deputation.

UNITY OF POLICY.

COMPLETE ACCORD ON SYRIAN SETTLEMENT.

The "Times," in its principal leading article, welcomes a grateful change in the tone of French newspaper discussion on the Syrian question. Fuller explanations have cleared up all misunderstandings, and as the "Times" remarks it would have been "a stupid misprint on the page of history" had this not been done. The lesson to be learned from the matter is that "candour is the talisman of friendship."

The Emir Feisul has arrived in London as the guest of the British Government, and the "Times," after expressing the hope that his visit will afford an opportunity of bringing the new agreement into accord with Anglo French unity of policy, continues: "There was a time when France distrusted our motives, both in our Palestinian and our Arabian policy, and the same reasons that have brought the French to see that in Palestine our policy is unselfish and purely liberal, will incline her to honour the spirit of our engagements with the Arabs. Alike in Palestine and the northern portions of Arabia the joint motive of England and France is to see strong and independent states arise. If the Arab rule in Syrian towns can maintain order and conditions of progress there will be no French military occupation and the French interest will limit itself to securing the communications between the Syrian coast and its hinterland and to assisting Northern Arabia to make itself strong, independent and wealthy. France does not, any more than ourselves, want any extension of her military responsibilities in the East. There is delay in fixing the trans-Jordan frontier of Palestine as near as may be to the edge of the desert. We shall be careful not to sever communications between Arabia, Syria and the new federated states which lie to the South. Our motive will be to secure a good military frontier for Palestine and an eastern port on the Syrian desert to enable us to fulfil our mandate in Mesopotamia."

LIVING 115 PER CENT. UP.

It is reported in the Board of Trade Labour Gazette that the average increase in retail prices of the principal articles of food at Sept. 1 was 116 per cent., as compared with July, 1914, the corresponding figure for Aug. 1 being 117 per cent., taking the pre-war standard of consumption. For all the principal articles ordinarily entering into the pre-war working-class family budget the average increase in retail prices (including rents) was about the same as a month earlier, viz., about 115 per cent.

WAYS OF THE PROFITEER.

At Marylebone Police Court Mr. Biron passed sentence of three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, on James Smith, 28, a coal carman, for stealing two hundredweights of coal. The prisoner was sent out to deliver four half-ton loads of coal to poor people, but in two instances he delivered one sack short, and afterwards offered to sell the sacks for 5s. One of the customers he cheated was an invalid who was unable to check the number of sacks of coal put into her cellar.

£100 FOR A GLASS OF BEER.

For selling beer by glass instead of by imperial measure the maximum penalty of £100 was imposed by Rugby magistrates on a publican named George Tebbutt. The prosecuting solicitor stated that with a turnover of £300 weekly an illegal profit of £6 would be made by the practice adopted by Tebbutt.

ROYAL WARRANT.

OFFICERS' APPOINTMENTS (CONTINUED).

SIXTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

TABLE IX.

Royal Army Chaplains' Department.

The rates are under consideration and an early announcement will be made.

TABLE XI.I.

West Coast of Africa.

New regulations as to extra emoluments during service on the West Coast of Africa will shortly be issued. In the meantime officers serving on the West Coast of Africa will remain in receipt of the emoluments admissible under existing Warrants and will not draw any increases granted by this Warrant.

When new provisions are settled they will have retrospective effect, where possible, from 1st July, 1919.

ALLOWANCES.

TABLE XIV.

1. The following new rates and conditions will apply as from 1st July, 1919, unless otherwise stated, for all officers who draw the revised rates of pay provided in this Warrant. The existing classification under the Allowance Regulations will remain in force (except that a Colonel will be Class 5 in all cases), unless provision is made to the contrary in this Warrant. In the case of staff or other appointments allowances will be drawn on the classification of the appointment and not on the rank of the officer holding the appointment unless where provision to the contrary is made in this Warrant.

2. Ration Allowance.—Rations in kind or an allowance in lieu will be issuable to all officers serving at home or abroad for each day for which full pay is drawn.

3. Forage Allowance.—Staff officers whose pay under this Warrant is not consolidated will be eligible to draw forage or the allowance in lieu for the number of horses laid down for their appointments.

4. Hospital Stoppages.—From the date of this Warrant these stoppages will be made under normal peace conditions as laid down in the Allowance Regulations. The rates are subject to revision.

5. Furniture Allowance.—Married officers of the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel and below and all married officers of higher rank not already provided for under paragraphs 268 and 269, Allowance Regulations, will, when not drawing consolidated rates of pay, be granted a furniture allowance of 2s. per day when occupying unfurnished quarters, or when drawing lodging allowance.

A Director, Class A, at the War Office will not be eligible for furniture allowance.

Quarters for unmarried officers will be furnished as at present.

The daily charge for furniture in furnished quarters and messes is permanently cancelled.

For the definition of married officer see paragraph 8.

6. Lodging Allowance at Home Stations.—For married officers as defined in paragraph 8:—

2nd Lieutenant, Lieutenant	Classes 13 and 14, 3s. 6d. per day.
Captain, Major, Lieut.-Colonel	Classes 6 to 12, 4s. 6d. per day.

For higher ranks and unmarried officers of all ranks the rates will remain as at present.

A married officer will not forfeit lodging allowance by reason of not occupying a single officer's quarters except that if he declines to occupy a single officer's quarters allotted to him under paragraph 9 he will not be entitled to the allowance in lieu.

7. Fuel and Light Allowance at Home Stations.

For married officers as defined in paragraph 8:—

	Winter Daily rates s. d.	Summer Daily rates s. d.
Class 1	5 3	2 9
" 2	4 9	2 6
" 3	4 3	2 2
Classes 4 and 5	3 5	1 9
" 6 to 12	2 4	1 4
" 13 and 14	1 2	0 8

For unmarried officers of all ranks the rates will remain as at present.

8. A married officer for the purposes of furniture, lodging and fuel and light allowances is one who is, or has been, married and is 30 years of age or over; but all officers serving on the date of this Warrant who are then or have then been married will be eligible for the grant irrespective of age.

9. When, owing to the exigencies of the service or to the absence of accommodation, it is impossible for the family of a married officer to be with him at the station at which he is serving he will be eligible to draw furniture, lodging and fuel and light allowances at home rates laid down for married officers in paragraphs 5, 6, and 7. He will, in addition, be entitled to the provision of a single officer's quarters for himself or, if he cannot be provided with such quarters, to the rates of lodging and fuel and light allowances laid down for an unmarried officer at the station at which he is serving.

10. Servant Allowance.—The rate will be 2s. a day, for each European servant, at home and abroad. This rate will also apply to the allowance in lieu of a mess servant provided for in paragraph 521, Allowance Regulations.

(To be Continued.)

Provisional figures of the weekly tonnage output of coal during the four weeks ended Sept. 6 are given in the "Board of Trade Journal." The production for the week shows an improvement of 154,000 tons.

EACH AND ALL.

The cry of Reconstruction is becoming almost as tedious as that, now happily forgotten one of "Business as usual," so common at the commencement of the war.

But whereas in the latter there was much that was really despicable, a steady disregard of hard facts, there is much that is thoroughly praiseworthy in the former.

No one but a fool would close his eyes to the fact that Reconstruction is necessary. And the facts have been faced and the Government has tried to deal with them. Yet little has been done.

And where does the fault lie? One is impelled towards the answer that it is in the individual. We are not, as individuals, taking the strain as we should be doing. We are not pulling to the last ounce.

Never were advantages so great and so numerous in the Service as to-day for a young man to fit himself to take his place in the ranks of British citizenship. If he wants more training in the arts, the schools are there to give it him, if in the trades, the shops are ready to help him. And though one is bound to admit that many come forward for training yet there are many more who should do so.

There must be men left in the ranks, who at some time, perhaps at no too far off a date, were members of a public school. Do they think that because they have left it and gone into the Service their training is completed? They owe a duty not only to themselves but also to the State. They hold advantages many would give their all to possess.

They should, therefore, endeavour to reconstruct themselves by completing as far as in them lies possible, the training begun at school and probably all too soon cut short.

And the same thing applies to those who were apprentices. No knowledge is ever wasted. Some day an opportunity will atise where the knowledge of a certain small fact will be of use.

Lastly, there are those who have seen more of life and its duties than the majority of their comrades. They are running with the youngsters with the handicap of years. But it is never too late to reconstruct one or two ideas.

Age should bring with it experience and discretion, and hence, in acquiring fresh knowledge the older man will not rush off after some new and fascinating idea without bringing the microscope of a balanced mind into the judgment on the matter.

If every individual member of the British Army were to adopt this personal attitude towards the question of Reconstruction the character of the British Empire would be revolutionized within five years.

Miracles are said not to happen to-day. Possibly that is so, but it would be a great thing if only one out of every five who read this would attempt to follow out the idea.

A DAY IN WIESBADEN.

There is about Wiesbaden an air, an atmosphere, a "je ne sais quoi" of entrenched luxury and rich refinement, and it does a poor man good to dwell for a week-end in this mansion of the blessed.

Having determined to visit Wiesbaden, one takes some food for the train, leaves Cologne at 7.30 hours, and five hours later one is at Mainz. Opposite the station in this benighted city, one catches the tram that, in half an hour, lands one opposide the Kurhaus in Wiesbaden.

The tram will be full, because the ladies of Mainz shop in Wiesbaden; it is much cheaper. Also, the ladies of Wiesbaden shop in Mainz; it is not so dear. My private opinion is that Ali Baba was the founder of both cities.

Accommodation in Wiesbaden is no difficulty. There are many and good hotels, and everyone speaks English.

Waking up early, one goes to the Kaiser Friedrich baths. One could spend four hours there undergoing the treatment that, with vast labours, leaves fat men fat, and lean men lean. But I suggest just a soak in the famous hot spring, and then a plunge in the white, blue and gold swimming bath on the Pompeii pattern.

A WONDERFUL PROSPECT.

After that, a walk to the top of the Neroberg is essential. About half an hour it takes; and on the top, from the observation tower, one gazes at a landscape of wide extent and the rarest beauty. Amid tossing hills and valley covered with forest and vine as far as the horizon, one sees the whole toy town of Wiesbaden at one's feet, Bieberich and Mainz extending from it, and the silver ribbon of the Rhine winding in and out at the base of the further foothills, and beyond them the mountains of Lorraine.

The Neroberg is clad with stately firs and oaks, and from the observation tower can be seen, through an avenue in the trees, the golden minarets of the Russian Church erected by a Grand Duke of Hesse-Nassau to the memory of his wife, a Russian Princess. The gold of the minarets will now be eclipsed by the tints of Autumn; man's art seems insignificant beside Nature's tribute to dying summer.

A ROMANTIC WALK.

I had a friend once, who loved with a deep and abiding love, a maiden fair. The maiden plighted her troth to him, but there appeared a wealthy lover, and the maiden broke her troth and spurned the rich offering my friend had laid at her feet. My friend for five years travelled and laboured the world over, thinking that the heat and burden of the day would dull the anguish in his heart. And then, heart-whole, he took a holiday in Wiesbaden, and walked the same walk that I recommend and, having gazed his fill upon the wonderful carpet that Nature spread in front of him, he walked pensively into the green forest. And there, on a bench in a secluded spot he found the maiden of his thoughts. She had married her wealthy lover, and they had been unhappy, and the marriage had ended; and now she was crocheting the story of her love and sorrow, her treachery and retribution, into a table-centre of wonderful design. Shortly afterwards she married my friend.

GLORIOUS SINGING.

Walking in the woods of the Neroberg one green and golden Sunday, there burst on my enraptured ears the full tones of a male choir. Service was being given in the open. The singing was beautiful, and the full chords of the choir and melting tones of the tenor were wafted to me through the glades between the greenfringed trees. The sun, the sky and the forest joined in a paean of praise to the Maker of them all. Parsifal before the Grail was not more entranced than I at this singing in one of Nature's Cathedrals.

For lunch, I leave the tourist to his own devices. Salmon and Niersteiner or periwinkles and beer are equally delightful in those surroundings. And besides, it is one's sentiments and not one's soup that make a dinner.

Tea is taken only on the Marble Terrace of the Kurhaus. Orchestras discourse sweet music, the patisserie is exquisite, and the grounds are alive with the colours of frocks and flowers. Wiesbaden is sunning itself.

BACK TO LOUIS XIV DAYS.

Dinner is also to be had in the same place. The choicest wine, music heard affar off, the illuminations of the grounds, the chic toilettes of the Wiesbadenoises, and the atmosphere of well-bred gaiety take one back to the Court of Louis XIV. There has been no war, nor could anything disagreeable happen in this Dresden China world. Why, at the next table there are two Princesses of the House of France. They have glanced once or twice—not unkindly I thought—in our direction during dinner. Ah! for a moment's intimacy with those peerless creatures, gazing deep into those languishing eyes, fringed with long lashes that droop occassionally on a velvet cheek. But no; without the ceremony of an introduction it never could be. There is a sedate old lady with them.

A dance will take place in the Kurhaus to-night. The music starts, A thrill of expectancy raises all heads. Princess Louise looks at me again with the faintest entreaty in her eyes. Drinking hurriedly a glass of champagne to nerve myself, I rise and make my bow to the Chaperone, and ask if Madame will pardon the liberty I am taking. But there is dancing, and I would sell my soul to dance. Would she allow Mademoiselle, if Mademoiselle would care?.....Avec plaisir!

There is an opera at Wiesbaden, and a theatre, and a museum, and many walks of interest. What avails it to write them here? Are they not written in the Chronicles of the Book of Baedeker?

"NUMPUS."

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

THE DREAM—AND THE REALITY.

It was Saturday evening in Cologne. Doubtless, it was Saturday evening in other places also, but nowhere was the usual bustling, frolicsome, cork-popping atmosphere of that joyous week night less in evidence than in Cologne on this particular Saturday.

As 19.00 hours approached the waiters in the cafés rubbed their hands in anticipation of the usual influx of Tommies and the tips which invariably followed the serving of the wine.

At 20.00 hours, the waiters were still rubbing their hands, but more slowly, and, so to speak, reflectively, their countenances mirroring the anxiety in their minds.

At 21.00 hours they were wringing their hands in depair, and at 22.00 hours they had given up hope of Tommy and were making valiant efforts to cut their losses by assiduous attention to the requirements of their compatriots.

In the same cafes, during the same hours, many a disappointed Fraulein mingled her tears with her wine, weeping for the cavalier that was not; eventually, bereft of hope, astonishing her relations by the unusually early hour of her return home.

At the Deutsches', Shaw was played to an audience even smaller than was customary with him in the days when he was a fad rather than a habit. The Opera House was in scarcely better case.

The cinemas "reeled" under the blow of diminished audiences; Charlie Chaplin cut his customary capers, whilst Mary Pickford smiled her sweetest; but of Tommies few were there to pay tribute to the the humour of the one or the sentiment of the other.

In the large hall of the Central Y.M. the position was tragic. The Francis-Mackenzie combination met, but found no subject for jest in the empty seats confronting it.

Each party blamed the other's witticisms as responsible for a situation which each claimed to have predicted more than once.

For the first and last time, the Doctor lost his usual good humour as no front line of resplendent cigarrette cases opened to his view.

Finally, not a cigarette queue was seen — a fact affording conclusive proof of the extraordinary state of affairs which prevailed.

* * *

Yet, despite appearances, the Rhine Army had not gone home. There was practically the same number of troops on the Rhine as on the day previous to this Saturday of unhapoy memory.

Some were in their billets, a few were in klink, a few, more fortunate, were in the Excelsior; but by far the greater number crowded the writing rooms of the different Clubs and Institutes.

But wherever they were, they were all feverishly at work. Never had there been such a craving for buckshee note-paper; never so extraordinary a demand at the A.P. & S. Depot for A.B's 152; never had the unfortunate duty men there so envied their comrades' freedom.

Throughout the whole area of British occupation pencils were flying over paper as fast as the Allied aviators flew over Germany territory during the later stages of the war. The Rhine Army seemed to be writing for dear life.

To such a state of chaos had the "Cologne Post" reduced the Forces by the innocent, harmless-looking question, "Can you write?"

* * *

The Editor woke with a start. Turning to his Sub, he enquired:

"Our last appeal brought in anything?"

"Only one article, Sir," replied the Sub, and he handed his chief this.

The Editor cast a sleepy glance through it.

"Oh! shove it in if nothing decent turns up" he muttered, and resumed his slumbers.

E. J. TELLUM.

THE LIGHTER SIDE.

THE DOCTOR KNEW.

The conversation in the village hostel had turned on war, when one of the company asked: "Which is the most war-like nation?" "Vacci-nation," replied a doctor, "it's always in arms."

HIS REASON.

New Recruit (to Quartermaster): "Can I have my puttees changed, sir?" Quartermaster (eyeing puttees): "But your puttees are new—you've only had them a few days. Why do you want them changed?" New Recruit: "They're too tight, sir."

BEATEN.

Yankee: "You talk about your buildings here, why, I saw our skyscrapers put up in a week!"

Britisher: "That's nothing; I was going to work yesterday morning and I saw the builders starting on a row of 50 houses, and when I came home at night, what do you think was being done?"

Yankee: "Oh, I guess they were drawing the foundations out."

Britisher: "Nay, they were turning the tenants out for the back rent."

SPOLLING THE PLEASURE.

Sandy: "There's no muckle pleasure in smokin', Jock."

Jock: "Hoo, dae ye mak' that oot?"

Sandy: "Well, ye see, if ye're smokin' yer ain 'bacca ye're thinkin' o' the awfu' expense, an' if ye're smokin' some ither body's yer pipe's rammit sae tight it winna draw!"

UNANSWERABLE.

Doting Father: "What my dear, a new gown and outfit for your confirmation? Won't your last dress do well enough?"

Wheedling Daughter: "Now, papa dear, how could you think of it? Surely you wouldn't have your little pet confirmed in her old habits?"

A MILITARY JOKE.

In giving vent to his feelings on his discharge, an old soldier wrote to his late colonel:—"Sir,—After what I have suffered, you can tell the Army to go to hell." In due course he received the following:—"Sir,—Any suggestions or inquiries as to movements of troops must be entered on Army Form 123 XYZ, a copy of which I enclose."

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

THE MEDAL HABIT.

Sir,—We notice that it is proposed to present a medal and ribbon to all those connected in any way with the British Peace Delegation.

If medals are to be given for a well-paid trip on the Continent under practically normal conditions, little wonder some Tommies are too disgusted to wear the medals they fought so hard for on the battlefields of France and Flanders.

ROSE AND THISTLE.

A STRICKEN VILLAGE.

Sir,—I read the article under the above heading with a certain amount of interest and am glad to find that Hawkeye cherishes sweet memories of at least one estaminet, but I readily call to mind estaminets — at least they were called by that name — whose owners must now look back on the presence of English troops in their locality with a certain amount of satisfaction.

Profiteering was a word little used in those days but then Tommy had not his daily newspaper. Prices out of all proportion to the value of the article were asked and Tommy had no alternative but to pay up. Other readers have doubtless had some experience of Belgian shopkeepers.

SCHOOL CAMP.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,—What must be the thoughts of many English wives when they read letters written by individuals of Bachelor's kidney?

Have not these same wives and many hundreds of others done their bit at home, carrying on without the excitement which at least buoyed up officer and man in the line? Many must have spent weary hours of anxiety.

No right-thinking individual will deny that they have not earned some right to that consideration which our respected C-in-C has extended to them in allowing them to come to the Rhine.

Better this at any rate and extra work for Bachelor than Fraternisation. I have yet to learn that that makes for efficiency. What has Bachelor to say on that point?

ASTRAL.

Sir,—As far as I am concerned, I wish my hubby, who is a Signals officer, was one of those who neglect their duties to take me out.

I should be having a much nicer time if he would, but he is conscientious and keen on his work, and as his wife, although I believe he is glad to have me here, I suffer.

I have not had one joy ride with him and am left to my own devices. After a week or two of this existence on the Rhine one feels a bit home-sick. I shan't stay as long as I intended.

I expected the time of my life, but regret to say I'm not having it. I feel envious of other women I see who are thoroughly enjoying themselves. Please don't print my name.

SECRET.

A PAY CONUNDRUM.

Sir,—With regard to the joyous tidings contained in "The Post" could some kind super-mathametician reply to this riddle?

If a soldier receives 4 3 per day under the present scale of pay, how much will he be in credit if the scale is altered to 2 9 and dated back to July 1st, and can he draw the credit accruing in hard cash, War Loan or surplus rolling stock!

GIFT HORSE EXAMINER.

ON THE RHINEBOATS.

Sir,—A point seems to have been made of the supposed distinction existing between the Germans and English in their eating and drinking capabilities. Your correspondents are evidently out to make the average German appear a mere gourmandiser; he lives for eating and not eats to live.

In the interests of fair-play I protest against this libel on the German people as a whole. It is quite easy in England to pick out isolated instances, as your correspondents have on the Rhineland steamers, of Englishmen who set themselves out to beat records in either eating or drinking.

I have heard of Englishmen who have sat down and drank thirty and forty pints of beer, but do the English or the Germans as a nation eat or drink to excess?

I say that the Englishman eats far more than the German. Your correspondents should remember that in a German household breakfast is practically unknown. It usually consists of a cup of coffee and perhaps a piece of bread and butter. Lunch or dinner is a very small affair and it is only in the evenings that the German partakes of his main meal of the day.

The average Englishman usually has a breakfast consisting of porridge and egg and bread and butter and marmalade at eight o'clock. Then at twelve o'clock he has fish, cold meat, vegetables and sweets. At four o'clock he has tea, bread and butter and generally cakes and at seven o'clock soup, fish, meat, two or three kinds of vegetables, sweets, cheese and dessert.

You mention these facts to an average German family and they are aghast at what the Englishman eats.

FAIR-PLAY.

LOVE AND LIFE.

All my past life is mine no more;
The flying hours are gone,
Like transitory dreams given o'er,
Whose images are kept in store
By memory alone.

The time that is to come is not;
How can it then be mine?
The present moment's all my lot;
And that, as fast as it is got,
Phillis, is only thine.

Then talk not of inconstancy,
False hearts, and broken vows;
If I by miracle can be
This-live-long minute true to thee,
'Tis all that Heaven allows.

ROCHESTER.

COLOGNE RACES.

Capital Sport At September Meeting At Merheim.

A threatening morning developed into a delightful afternoon for the Cologne September race meeting at Merheim yesterday. The races have been increasingly popular since their inauguration early in the year, and in spite of a depleted army of occupation there was a huge attendance, including a larger percentage of English ladies.

The programme was well up to the usual standard and for the various events the most noted Rhineland performers had been entered. Consequently the quality of the sport provided was very high, some excellent racing being witnessed.

There was a chilly autumn atmosphere and "British warms" were for the first time very much in evidence.

2.00 DELHI PLATE. (1st DIVISION).

5,000 marks to the winner; for horses of the Army of the Rhine which have never won a race and to be ridden by officers qualified to enter. To carry 11 stone; 5 furlongs straight.

Remember Me., 11st., Maj.-Gen. Tudor 1 (Lt. Campbell Russell, R.A.S.C.).
Flaming June, 11st., Owner . . . . . 2 (Lt.-Col. M. Stopford, Rfle. Bde.).
Dark Prince, 11st., Capt. Stanyforth . 3 (Capt. C. Wynne-Jones).

Also ran:—Cunning Katie, Jane, Debility, Lily, Lady III, Nigger, Jimcrack, Billet Doux, Daylight, Betty, Fidget, Pretty Jane and Hellan Laddie.

Winner:—16 to 10, Places 12—10, 27—10 and 13—10.

Remember Me led from the start, Maj.-Gen. Tudor, hugging the fence for the full distance, and won comfortably by two lengths, one length second and third.

2.45 THE ALMA STEEPLECHASE.

4,000 marks to the winner; for horses of the Army of the Rhine that have never won a Steeplechase or Hurdle race and to be ridden by officers qualified to enter. To carry 11.7 stone; about 2 miles.

Sindorf Lad, 11st. 7lbs., Lt. Usher . . . 1 (Lt.-Col. C. Terrot, Innis. Drgs.).
Maori, 11st. 7lbs., Owner . . . . . 2 (Capt. J.C. Humphrey, Innis Drgs.).
Agag, 11st. 7.bs., Owner . . . . . 3 (Lt.-Col. C. Alban, Kings Regt.).

Also ran:—Stanton, Remember Me, Tango, Old King Cole, Rubylight, Splinter, Grey Bird, Greater Britain, Patricia, Poobah, Old Man, Mike II, Sticks, Roy, Ballingtaggart, Paddy II, Bobby III, Civil, Light Brigade, The Parrot and Bowman.

Winner.—24—10, Places 17—10, 43—10 and 57—10.

Sindorf had made most of the running and, though challenged at half distance, shot ahead again, winning by two and a half lengths from Maori. One length second and third. There were several horses in close proximity at the finish.

3.30 DELHI PLATE. (SECOND DIVISION).

3,000 marks to the winner; for horses of the Army of the Rhine which have never won a race and to be ridden by officers qualified to enter. To carry 11 stone, 5 furlongs straight.

Geebung, 11st, Maj.-Gen. Tudor . . . . . 1 (Lieut. C. Rees).
Jingling Geordie, 11st 11b Owner . . . . 2 (Lieut. W. Kennis, Inakg. Drgs.)
Why Not, 11st Lieut. Lumsden . . . . . 3 (Maj. C. Lemon, R.F.A.)

Also ran: Pongo, Harmony, Peach, Gordelphus, Squirrel, Fife G, The Apostle, Patchwork and Polly III.

Winner:—25—10. Places, 12—10, 14—10 and 15—10.

Major-Gen. Tudor brought home his second winner in this race. Jingling Geordie got well away and led until near the post when Geebung successfully challenged and won by half-a-length. Two lengths divided second and third.

4.15 HANDLEY CROSS STEEPLECHASE.

5,000 marks to the winner. A handicap steeplechase for horses of the Allied Armies and to be ridden by officers qualified to enter. About 2½ miles.

Late Report, 10st. 6lbs., Owner . . . . 1 (Lt. R. Bulteel, 17th Lancers).
Firefly III, 11st. 7 bs., Lt, Bloodworth 2 (Capt. J. Birkenshaw-Idle, R.A.V.C.).
Golden Sunset, 13st., Owner . . . . . 3 (Lt. R. Usher, Innis Drgs.).

Also ran:—Rednal, Blaze, Double Ruff, Morning Star, Patsy and George.

Winner:—20—10, Places 11—10, 13—10 and 12—10.

From the fall of the flag Late Report led, Firefly III lying second. Golden Sunset was well to the rear. Midway Firefly assumed the lead and Golden Sunset was creeping up. Late Report was not to be denied, came to the fore half a mile from home, and won comfortably. Golden Sunset struggled hard for a second place, but a magnificent effort failed by a good head. It was a great race.

5.00 SOUVENIR CUP.

5,000 marks to the winner; together with a cup value 3,000 marks for horses of the Allied Armies other than the British Army and to be ridden by officers qualified to enter. To carry 11 stone.

Radius, 11st, Owner . . . . . 1 (Cmdt. H. Comte d'Oultremont, 1st Guides)
Batuclan, 11st, Owner . . . . . 2 (Lieut. de Garffien, 2nd Guides)
Paulette, 11st, 5lbs. Owner . . . . . 3 (Lt. L. Servais, 1st Guides).

Also ran: Peck and Silex.

Winner:—15—10. Places 12—10 and 19—10.

Of the small field Radius and Batuclan proved themselves superior and this pair made all the running with Radius leading. Radius won in a canter by three lengths, and five lengths separated second and third. After the race the cup was presented to the successful owner and rider amid applause.

5.45 FAREWELL STAKES.

5,000 marks to the winner; A handicap for horses of the Allied Armies and to be ridden by officers qualified to enter. One mile.

Ballyhooley, 10st 9lbs Lt. Bloodworth 1 (Lieut. W. Fenelly, R.A.V.C.)
Polly Dear, 11st 7lbs Owner . . . . . 2 (Maj.-Gen. Tudor)
Johnnie Walker, 11st 12lbs Owner . . 3 (Lieut.-Col. T. Melvill, 17th Lancers)

Also ran:—Billy, Eau de Cologne, Digby Grand, Golden Syrup, Sindorf Lad, Romeo II, Byron, Swansong and Peach.

Winner:—51—10, Places 13—10, 12—10, 15—10.

Ballyhooley took the lead at once and maintained it to the post. Byron kept in close attendance for a time but failed to stay, and Polly Dear and Johnnie Walker then came into the picture and finished second and third, a length and a half dividing them. By two lengths.

LANCS. DIV. ARTILLERY.

Gymkhana Cup Presented to "A" Battery 168 Bde.

An interesting presentation was made on Friday to "A" Battery, 168 Bde., R.F.A. in the shape of a handsome silver cup inscribed "Lancashire Division Gymkhana Cup presented by Brig.-Gen. T.A. Tyler, C.B., C.M.G., won by A/168 Bde. R.F.A. Bonn 1919."

Gen. Tyler, who was accompanied by Major Burne (Brigade Major), in handing the cup to Major Hoare, made some very eulogistic remarks on the Battery's success in the Divisional show. In the course of his speech, he referred also to the good work of the Battery in all departments during the year, and especially to the quality of its horeflesh, than which he thought no better would be found in the Army of the Rhine.

The General, who is a lover of sport and actively participates in golf, running, swimming, fishing, polo etc, was greeted with rounds of applause when Major Hoare received and thanked him for the cup on behalf of the Battery,

THE "WHIP-HO'S" WIN.

The Grunting 127 H.B. Heavies unbeaten Record.

The heavy tug-of war team of the 127 Heavy Battery reached the zenith of success by defeating by two pulls to nil the team representing 35th Bde. R.G.A. and VI Corps at the Rhine Army Championship meeting, thereby winning the Rhine Army heavy-weight tug-of-war trophy. Both teams entered the final unbeaten in all the eliminating competitions. Great credit is due to Sgt. Higginson (coach) and the team, for their hand work in training. All honour is due to them for remaining as a Battery team; what with the coach, the battery war-cry of whip-ho and the famous growl, they carried all before them. The majority of the team will shortly be demobilized, having stayed behind to pull right through to the final, but they take away with them pleasant memories of their stay on the Rhine and the sportsmanlike spirit that runs through all ranks and units.

WALTER ROSS DEFEATED.

Criqui Knocks out British Champion in 15th Round.

AN EXCITING FINISH.

At the Holborn Stadium Eugene Criqui, of France, knocked out Walter Ross, the British bantam-weight champion, in the fifteenth round after an exciting contest. On the result of the contest £800 in side stakes depended and a purse of a similar amount. Criqui showed his superiority from the commencement; his form was a revelation to those who had seen him in his contest in the same arena with Tom Noble, and had judged him accordingly. He showed cleverness, strength, and speed, and helped by his height and longer reach he frequently got through Ross's guard to the face with a fast and accurate left, while once in the second round the little champion was countered splendidly with a right on the chin.

At long range the Frenchman had distinctly the best of matters, shooting out his left to the face with precision and power, and side-stepping his opponent very smartly and cleverly. Having been very successful with his right in the early stages of the bout, he became rather too fond of that hand, against which Ross was well on guard by now, for he was not again "caught" by it until the ninth round. In this round, however, Ross did some damage on his own account, a left hook opening a severe cut over Criqui's left eye. This naturally became a target for Ross subsequently, and, partially blinded for a moment in the tenth round, Criqui fell into a hard right to the jaw which unsteadied him, and then made him run into a clinch. Indeed, the Frenchman seemed a bit tired about this time, and often held, and lay on his man, Mr. Corri parting the pair half-a-dozen times in the twelfth round, in which Criqui got home with his right on the jaw almost as the bell rang, though Ross just turned his head sufficiently to avoid the full force of the blow.

A Sensational Finish.

The "fatal thirteenth" came and went without incident. There was again some holding and laying-on by Criqui, who meanwhile was gaining his second wind, and half-way through the fourteenth round, on breaking from a hold, he suddenly flashed a left to the jaw and a right to the other side. Ross was obviously shaken, and a few seconds from the end of the round received two similar blows which sent him down. At the count of "seven" the round ended, and the gong sounded, but as no one had heard the counting it was assumed that Ross had been counted out, and Criqui's friends crowded into the ring to congratulate him. Mr. Corri was informed of the circumstances, and of course, after the proper interval ordered the men to "box on." Criqui was alive to the situation, but Ross was not, and was an easy prey to a right-hand blow on the jaw which put him down for the full count.

GREAT BOXING FIXTURES.

Beckett and Carpentier to meet in London in December.

Prior to the contest between Walter Ross and Eugene Criqui at the Holborn Stadium, Mr. C. B. Cochran made two important boxing anouncements. He said that having been unable to obtain a date at Olympia until next May he had arranged for the Carpentier-Beckett match, at great financial sacrifice, to take place at the Holborn Stadium on Thursday December 4th. He was anxious for the contest to be decided this year in order that the winner might meet Jack Dempsey at Olympia in May for the world's title.

BIG TRIO FAIL.

Vardon, Taylor and Braid Go Under at Sonning.

Three of the most famous players in golfing annals, Harry Vardon, the present and six times champion, J. H. Taylor, and James Braid, both five times champions, failed to qualify in the Southern Section's thirty-six holes eliminating competition for the Professional Golfers' Association tournament for £590, presented by the proprietors of the "News of the World," at Sonning.

Vardon took 157, Taylor 158, and Braid 162. Another ex-champion in Jack White failed with 156.

The only ex-champions to qualify were Edward Ray and Alec Herd, and these two shared the top position with the home professional, Abe Mitchell, at 146. The best return for yesterday's eighteen holes was 72 by Ray, and the young assistant, A. Boomer, from St. Cloud, France.

THE CALCUTTA CUP.

The semi-final stage of the Royal and Ancient Club's competition for the Calcutta Cup was entered upon at St. Andrews in the first match, Augus Hambro, M.P. (plus 2), beat H. E. Taylor (plus 1), and in the second W. A. Sievwright (scr) beat P. R. Selby (handicap 3) by 1 up.

In the final, Augus Hambro, M.P. (plus 2), beat W. A. Sievwright (scratch), by 4 up and 2 to play.

SUCCESSFUL SPORTS.

9th Durham Light Infantry Hold Annual Meeting.

The 9th D.L.I., considered themselves very fortunate in getting the use of the British Army of the Rhine P. and R.T. ground at Riehl on Friday. As the event took place the day after the Army Championships Meeting considerable labour and trouble was saved in finding and preparing another ground elsewhere. With this initial advantage, a good list of entries, and an all-round keenness the meeting might have been one of the most successful held in the history of the battalion had the rain kept off.

Headquarters Company just managed to beat "B" Coy. for the Company Athletic Challenge Cup, while Pte. Gurnett, "A" Coy. succeeded in winning the Champion Athletic Cup.

At the close Mrs. J. W. Jeffreys distributed the prizes. The band of the 52nd Durham Light Infantry played during the afternoon (by kind permission of the Commanding Officer).

OUR FOOTBALL FEATURE.

Attractive Series Of Articles To Commence Shortly.

We are able to announce to-day that the first of the splendid series of football articles, being published for the benefit of our many readers who are football enthusiasts, will appear shortly. As previously announced the articles are written by great international exponents of the game or by men of equally high standing in the football world, and, dealing with the great game from attractive points of view, cannot fail to prove immensely interesting.

HOCKEY FRIENDLY.

13th King's Liverpool Regt. defeat 1st King's Bde. School.

The above friendly hockey match was played on Wednesday last at Beuel. The first half was evenly contested, only one goal being scored by C.S.M. Stott, 13th Kings. The second half was all in the favour of the 13th and with the exception of one breakaway from which L/Cpl. Bebe scored, the Bde. School were kept on the defensive. The combination of the 13th King's forward line was excellent and had it not been for the sound defensive play of Lieut. Potter a bigger score would have been compiled. Two goals were added by C.S.M. Stott the result being 13th King's Liverpool Regt. 3 goals, 1st King's Bde. School, 1 goal. For the 13th, 2/Lt. Heriot, C.S.M. Stott and Sgt. Marsden were the outstanding players, while Lieut. Potter of the Bde. School played a great game at right back.

GIRLS' GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

The Girls' Open Golf Championship—the first event of its kind—which was brought to a close at Stoke Poges on Thursday, ended in a victory for Miss Audrey Croft, of Ashford Manor, who in the final beat Miss Christiana Clarke, of Reddish Vale, by 1 up. Miss Croft is 17 years of age.

A CHANCE FOR ALL.

Our new Football Competition a Test of Judgment.

SEND YOUR SELECTIONS.

Are you a judge of football form, and if so have you made your selections for next Saturday's matches? Our Competition is a real test of judgment and skill and a rare opportunity for displaying an intimate knowledge of the great game.

Below will be found a coupon giving twelve matches which are to be played on Saturday, Sept. 27th. All that competitors have to do is to strike out in ink the names of the teams they think will lose. If, in the opinion of the competitor, any match, or matches, will be drawn, the names of both teams should be left untouched.

Coupons which must be accompanied by an entry fee of 1 mark per coupon must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 1
COLOGNE POST
A.P.O., S./40 Rhine Army

and must reach that address not later than Thursday, Sept. 25th. The total amount received in the entry fees (without any deduction whatever) will be paid out to the senders of the correct, or the nearest correct, forecast of the results of all these matches.

List Of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.

2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.

3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.

4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.

5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.

6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.

7. Any entries received after Thursday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mis aid or delayed Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.

8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.

FAST FOOTBALL.

A very fast and interesting game took place on Thursday between 1st Northern L. T. M. B. and 2nd Northern L. T. M. B. on the latter's ground at Blucher Park.

After twenty minutes play Capt. Moore opened the score for the visitors with a splendid shot; hereabouts the visitors outside left had a fall which made him a passenger during the rest of the game.

A very ding-dong struggle ensued during the second half but both defences prevailed leaving the 1st Northern L.T.M.B. the winners of a hard fought match by one goal to nil.

Amusement and Recreation.

"Damaged Goods."

Departing from the usual three-act comedy, the Rhine Army Dramatic Company are presenting something new. On Thursday last they commenced a run of "Damaged Goods" by Brieux; there was an air of expectancy, a feeling of suspense that savoured of a first night. The nature of the play, its outspoken dialogue, and the fearless honesty of the author left the large audience curiously anticipatory as to the portrayal of the various characters.

The Plot.

Of the plot there is but little to say. Unique in theme, it seeks to visualise the ravages of a perplexing malady in its relations to family life. A young Parisian, not a profligate, but a comparatively clean living man, becomes a victim of the dreaded scourge, and disregarding the warning of his physician, marries with disastrous results. His wife and child become contaminated—the old story of the sins of the father being visited upon the children. Thoughtful throughout, the play is punctuated with dramatic incidents.

New Members.

Most remarkable was the initial performance of Sgt. A. Shilsky, playing the part of the Doctor, one of the most difficult characters; he gave a wonderful portrayal. Lieut. Hope as the young Parisian, George Dupont, was clever; though I think he is more suited to the part of an elderly character. As Henriette Dupont, Miss Francis Chisholm scored yet another success. Miss Edith Ry and, who made her first appearance with the R.A.D.C., is to be congratulated upon her performance. In a part that called for rather delicate treatment Miss Gabrielle Paul gave abundant proof of her histrionic talent. Capt. C. Spiegelhalter played the part of Loches with his usual ability, and the only sprinkling of humour in the production was provided up Miss Inez Bensusan as the nurse. Playing in the smaller parts Miss Shirley King, Lieut. H. L. Farnell and Lieut. E. G. Stevenson were equally good.

Four Crumps.

Despite depleted numbers "The Crumps" managed to fix up a programme to entertain the boys at Wahn on Thursday evening. "Dora" (Harry Harris) gave several good numbers including a dance. "Tolly" de Mache was funnier than ever and was seen at his best in the song "Nobody Noticed Me." The single items, also the duet of "Tina" Whetten and Ted Moody, were greatly appreciated, while a violin solo by G. Goldswain and a trio by R. Rendall (cello) G. Goldswain (violin) with Harry Loveday at the piano, completed what was an altogether pleasing little performance.

Miss Ada Moore at Y.M.C.A.

Miss Ada Moore of the British Empire Leave Club conducted an impromptu concert on Friday evening in the Loreley Hall of the Central Y.M.C.A., Cologne. Miss Moore sang songs that were asked for by the audience. A most delightful evening was spent and Dr. Francis, in proposing a vote of thanks to Miss Moore expressed his great satisfaction in having a member of the Leave Club staff associated with the Y.M.C.A. in an entertainment for the troops.

A Suggestion.

In his remarks Dr. Francis hoped that on an early occasion, in the Y.M.C.A., or the Leave Club, a united entertainment would be given by the musical members of the staffs of all the associations with the Rhine Army, by way of giving an outward and visible sign of their unity of aim and effort. The Loreley Hall was crowded both downstairs and in the galleries, and the vote of thanks and Dr. Francis' suggestion were adopted unanimously.

JACQUES.

SEVEN TO ONE.

"D" Coy. 11th Royal Scots too good for T.M.B.'s.

Quite good sport was witnessed at the tussle at Duren on Thursday between the 2nd Lowland T.M.B. and "D" Coy. of the 11th Royal Scots. The "Tock Emmas" have suffered much in their football personnel from demobilization, and on the present occasion several of their best remaining players could not resist the big attraction in Cologne in the shape of the British Rhine Army Sports. "D" Coy. of the 11th Royal Scots had a strong side. A large number of spectators added to the interest of the game by their encouraging remarks, and if the T.M.B. representatives were of necessity greatly in the minority they shouted the louder.

Play opened with a sprint from the Trench Mortars towards the opposing goal in which fine footwork was shown by McInally, but the move came to nothing. For a long time both sides took it in turn to press and well on towards the end of the first half blood was drawn by the Royals, L/Cpl. Paterson sending the ball from the centre into the net. This nettled the "Tock Emmas" who determined to equalize, but when the whistle blew for the interval the Royal Scots were three goals ahead.

In the second half the T.M.B. side showed better play and good work was put in by Stanton Bradshaw and Mac Dougall. For the Royals the outstanding players were Cpl. Kingsley, Barbour and the Melville brothers, one of whom had three goals to his credit. Towards the end of the second half McInally scored for the T.M.B. The game ended with the following results:—"D" Coy. 11th Royal Scots 7 Goals; T.M.B. 2nd Lowland 1 Goal.

Y.M.C.A. FOOTBALL SHIELD.

Wahn Survey Detachment played 2/4th Queen's in above competition at Wahn on Thursday, the result being a win for the home team by four goals to nil. The game opened up very fast and continued keen throughout. Cpl. Jones scored with three fine shots after breaking through the defense, and Spr. Clayton scored from a corner kick.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Welsh Amateur Cup Draw.
Entries for the Welsh Football Cup and Welsh Amateur Cup constitute a record.

Keysoe.
Keysoe, it is stated, is to run in the Irish St. Leger and the Jockey Club Stakes at Newmarket.

Yacht Measurement.
The International Conference on Yacht Measurement will be held in London on October 20 under the management of the British Yacht Racing Association.

Australian Lady Swimmers.
Fanny Durack and the other Australian lady swimmers have cancelled their proposed tour of America, as they declined to swim in scratch events except where a championship title was involved.

The Late Tom Pepper.
Mr. Watkins Williams's Tom Pepper, winner of the Chester Cup this year, died recently. He was a four-year-old bay colt by Lemberg—Back Answer, and belonged to Mr. Reid Walker when he won the important handicap referred to.

Girl Golfers.
Some amazing golf was seen at Stoke Poges on Wednesday, when sixteen girls, under 21 years of age, drawn from all parts of the British Isles, took part in the Girls' Open Championships and for the trophy presented by Princess Mary.

National Hockey.
When the council of the Hockey Association meets on September 26, the revival of international matches will be discussed.

Cub Hunting.
Cub hunting by the rival Whaddon Chase packs has been begun in the vale of Aylesbury, and is arousing considerable interest.

Yarmouth Surprise.
At Yarmouth backers had an unpleasant beginning, when the despised Seamstress brought off a 20 to 1 chance at the expense of the much-fancied Rose Lad.

Sporting Guns.
A courageous bid for the world's trade in sporting guns is being attempted from Birmingham, one of the traditional homes of the industry.

Pointless.
Coventry City are the only team in the three big leagues without a point. Aston Villa and Newport County are little better off, neither having won a match, and only once succeeded in sharing the spoils.

Hurlingham Tourney.
Both M. J. G. Ritchie and S. N. Doust got through two rounds of the Men's Open Singles at the Hurlingham Tournament on Wednesday, and N. Mishu advanced another stage. The final should be contested by Mishu and either Doust or Ritchie.

A Go-Through Player.
Morris, the West Bromwich Albion centre forward, is the sturdy, go-through player who scored so freely for Watford in the early days of the war.

Racing Pigeons.
All the finest strains of English racing pigeons are descended from Belgian stock, but both the French and American officers considered that the English-bred birds put up the best work in the war.

"Off-Side."
The suggestion offered by "The Daily Mail" that a quarter line be introduced in the football field of play and that forwards cannot be declared off-side until they are over it is finding a great deal of favour.

"Brum's" New Centre.
Birmingham's new centre, Millard, is a West Bromwich boy who was wounded several times in the war. He is doing so well that Godfrey, recognised as the regular leader, may not be called on for some time to come.

Millwall's Centre.
Southern League full-backs are not too fond of meeting Broad, the Millwall centre. He has a knack of being in the right place at the right time, and his first-time efforts with either foot have already brought him a nice bag of goals.

Old-time Jockey Well Again.
Tom Osborne, the old-time jockey, came out of hospital this week and is looking forward to enjoying the Newmarket back-end meetings.

Braid Takes a 7.
To what he called a short hole, Braid took a 7 in the first half of the Southern Section of the Professional Golfers' Association tournament at Sonning.

Top of the League.
Middlesbrough have so far done extremely well in League warfare, and their success against Blackburn Rovers by 2—0 at Ewood Park makes their fourth victory in five matches.

Driscoll v. Ledoux.
The contest between Driscoll and Ledoux, which was to have been held at the National Sporting Club, Covent Garden, on September 20, has been postponed until some date, yet to be decided, in October.

Popular "Rugger."
The revival of the London Scottish affords further testimony to the power of Rugby football. Every member of the first fifteen of the 1913-14 season was either killed or wounded in the war, which took almost equally tragic toll of the men who played for the "A" and other teams.

AN IMPRESSION OF THE COLOGNE RACES.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Literary Wrafs.

The amount of literary talent among the Wrafs in Rhineland must be considerable. Their monthly magazine is full of gems. We printed one only the other day, and its Editor in calling upon the overseas units of the W.R.A.F. in other theatres of action to contribute, hints that it may be possible to unearth another Ethel Wheeler Wilcox or an Edith M. Dell. By the way, Major General J. F. A. Higgins, C.B., D.S.O., A.D.C., Commanding the R.A.F. in Rhineland, has sent the Editor of "The Wraf on the Rhine" a cheering congratulatory message in which he says that the introduction of the W.R.A.F. into the Army of Occupation has been an unqualified success in every way.

Overheard In An A.P.O.

Uniformed one:— Ten War Savings certificates, please!

Postal Official:— English currency or cheque, please.

U.O :— Won't you take marks?

P.O.:— Contrary to orders, Sir.

U.O.: Oh, nothing doing then. Good morning!

A Photographic Essay.

His enthusiasm burst out suddenly a few days ago when he purchased a camera intended as a gift to a friend. Yes—he would do some photography himself, so he again visited the shop and purchased the necessary developing stuff refills and mounts, and some patent flares for night photography. Forthwith he determined to test his camera. At the bottom of the garden is a delightful arbour white enamelled, standing between trees, quite a nice spot for a backround, so he invited four of his friends to have their photographs taken. Off they hasten adjusting their attire on the way; and are placed for the photograph. He fetches a chair to rest the camera on and props the camera with a potato. We are all ready—silence—click—click—finished. Its a good job he didn't give us his long exposure or we would have been there now. The next day we see the result. Some one described it as four machine gunners in a smoke barrage on a dark night. Anyhow we think the friend will get the camera.

"Rod, Pole or Perch."

Attached to the main wall of the Hahnentor is a public standard measure, a Prussian half "Ruthe," dated 1816. "Ruthe" is German for "rod" and is the equivalent of an old school friend the "rod, pole or perch." The use of the "rod" as a measure dates back to the days when the ploughman carried a goad with which to prod the oxen, and the goad was employed as a rough and ready measure for the width of the strips of arable land allocated annually to the householders in a manor. As this system of land tenure prevailed in early days over most of Europe we naturally find the "rod" used as a measure not only in England but also in France, Germany, etc.

The Appeal of Boxing.

As a draw so far as Tommy is concerned the noble art takes first place. Rig up the usual appointments to boxing, fix up a few bouts and there is no need to worry about supports. Tommy will flock in crowds. Whatever objections may be heard so far as opponents to the art go, we cannot call to mind a more manly sport, and things will be lacking if weekly tournaments are not promoted in the Rhine Army during the coming winter months. Such will form a usual counter attraction to the cheap cabaret and give our lads on the Rhine something clean and wholesome to think about. Whether in unit or formation such efforts will have our support and the fullest publicity.

Guide Book English.

Evidently the German is doing his utmost to "educate" the Army of the Rhine. With laudable endeavour an enterprising tradesman has produced "A Guide to Cologne" which he considers "almost" indispensable for the troops of occupation. Its pages contain a feast of good things, due mainly to the compiler's scanty knowledge of English. But he courageously maintains that he has given what the English officer and soldier requires "the most," and presumably he knows. At any rate his pages on the Cologne churches are charming. St. Gereon's church he describes as a "special architectonic attraction" with a "sacophage" under the altar, and other churches are just as remarkable. As to the "Tales and Legends" with which this offering to the British soldier is enriched, these must be read to be appreciated.

Cologne Town Council.

The old Town Council of Cologne held its last sitting on the 18th at the Gürzenich, an important date in the history of Cologne. The first meeting of a Town Council was in 1846 when the members were elected according to the three classes system. The number of inhabitants of Cologne was then about 90,000 as compared with 650,000 at present. The municipal expenditure each year was about one million marks as compared with 1,516,000 at present. The election of a new Town Council will take place on October 5th.

Re-Echoes.

There was a rise in the value of the mark yesterday morning.

Five francs (France and Belgium) now equal 2s 10d English money.

Near Deutz numerous grenades and arms which were thrown into the river are to be seen owing to the low river level.

When an English hubby had failed to make himself understood, a German official tried a last resort in an appeal to "Fraulein"—an English wife.

A request for hatpins in a Cologne shop the other day was met by the production of every class of pin ever put on the market. Yet the German shopkeeper is always polite.

Fares have to be paid by all women of British nationality—except those in uniform or wearing official brassards—travelling on tramways in the area of the British Army of the Rhine.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give three prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Pte. B. M. Gilbert, 9th E. Surrey Rgt., Rhine Army, and Cpl. E. Fisher, D. of S. and T., G.H.Q., Rhine Army.

THE LION LEADS in CURING

During the strenuous times of the past few years

Burgess' Lion Ointment

has more than maintained its reputation, it has gained increased commendation for its marvellous efficacy in removing pieces of shrapnel, splinters of bone, etc., from old wounds, healing them permanently from underneath.

Nature will always assert itself

It is useless healing a wound until it is thoroughly cleansed; it must break out again worse than before. The great success of

is that it will not heal till it has thoroughly cleared away all morbid matter. There is no danger to life in curing a bad leg by this remedy, as it does not throw back humour into the system. It cures without lancing or cutting, bringing all disease to the surface and healing from underneath in all cases of Ulcers, Abscesses, Whitlows, Boils, Carbuncles, Fatty or Cystic Tumours, Piles, Fistula, Polypus, Poisoned Wounds, and all forms of Skin Disease, Eczema, Ringworm, etc.

Unequalled as a General Household Remedy for Cuts, Burns, Stings, &c.

Proof. At 59, Gray's Inn Road, E. BURGESS has a Museum of Extractions, consisting of Tumours, Polypi, and diseased Bone; also numerous Photographs of most serious cases, which have all been cured by the Lion Ointment. E. GREAT BRITAIN UNDER SNOW

BULGARIA KNOWS HER FATE—RAIDS IN IRELAND

TROOPSHIP DRIVEN ON THE ROCKS

GREAT SNOWFALL.

HARVEST SUSPENDED BY SNAP OF WINTER.

Snow fell on Saturday in many parts of Great Britain. In Paris there was a further drop in the temperature, which was five degrees below normal.

The extraordinary sight of snow during harvesting operations was witnessed on the Yorkshire Wolds. After sunrise the corn standing in stucks was white with hoar frost, and at ten o'clock snow fell in heavy flakes for a while, the weather being bitterly cold.

Holiday-makers had the unusual experience of snow in September. No one had anticipated the sudden change to winter condition, makintoshes generally being the only adjunct to the usual seaside attire. There were heavy falls about nine o'clock, and later it was bitterly cold.

In the east of Scotland snow lies half an inch deep in many districts.

Five and six degrees of frost were recorded in the Thames Valley.

LINER AGROUND.

ONE THOUSAND TROOPS IN DANGER.

During a gale on Friday night the White Star liner Vedic went ashore off North Ronalshay, Orkney. She was refloated at 4.30 a.m. early on Sunday morning. The Vedic was bound from Archangel to Leith. She had about a thousand troops on board but the majority of her passengers were British civilians coming home from Russia. She is proceeding to Leith under her own steam and is only slightly damaged.

The United States warship Turkey and the three British destroyers Lark, Robin and Wildgeon went to the Vedic's aid and with the powerful admiralty tug, Alliance, helped to refloat her.

The Vedic, which is one of the White Star Company's 9,332-ton new cargo vessels, was taken over by the Ministry of Shipping recently for use as an additional troopship during the evacuation from North Russia.

GERMAN FINANCES.

SUGGESTED REMEDIAL MEASURES.

Dealing with the extraordinary fall in the exchange rate, which is still the subject of much concern in Germany a representative of the Finance Ministry in the "Lokalanzeiger" urges the necessity for increased taxation, a funded loan, an increase of productive work, and for a healthier balance of foreign trade. The Finance Ministry, he states, intend very shortly to issue a loan. He incidentally complains that the Entente are admitting quantities of goods into Germany in defiance of the import prohibitions, and declares "the hole in the West must be closed by the establishment of the old customs frontiers."

SUCCESS ON MURMAN FRONT.

The War Office states that on the Murman front a successful operation has been carried out by British, Serbian, and Russian troops, which has resulted in the capture of Kavgora and Lijma (twenty-three miles south of Kapeselga). Our total captures include 512 prisoners, two field guns, and several machine guns. Our casualties reported up to the present amount to eight wounded.

The Bolshevist fleet of fifteen vessels, which sailed north-east from Petrozavodsk to intercept one of our columns which was being landed on the west shore of Lake Onega, was attacked by our aircraft with machine guns and bombs, and forced to return to its harbour in confusion.

EGYPT RUMOURS DENIED.

A recent German wireless message stated as follows:—

The Egyptian Committee has advised the Swiss newspapers that the Egyptian revolution has broken out afresh. The suppression of the last rising has led to a revolt of the Egyptian population without distinction of class.

There is no confirmation whatsoever of this report, and a Reuter telegram of Thursday's date from Cairo does not suggest that the situation has undergone any change, for better or worse.

WHERE IS MRS. PANKHURST?

Mrs. Pankhurst landed in New York last Monday in connection with propaganda work against Bolshevism. She is now reported "missing" by the New York Press.

BULGARIA'S FATE.

DELEGATES RECEIVE THE PEACE TERMS.

The Allies' Peace Terms were presented to the Bulgarian delegation on Saturday morning at the French Ministry for Foreign Affairs. The Bulgarian Delegates have been given twenty-four days to make such observations as they wish. The Bulgarian Premier Theodoroff, made a speech in which he said "We understand the full extent and gravity of our responsibility. History will say that the policy of ex-King Ferdinand and of ex-Premier M. Radoslavoff was the exercise of violence against the wishes of the Bulgarian people. If an overwhelming majority of the Bulgarian people are innocent yet the Bulgarian State is responsible. We recognise Bulgaria's fault and the excesses committed, the authors of which we will ruthlessly punish whatever their rank. We regret that our people through compulsion of our Government should have found itself at war with its neighbours in the opposing camp to the coalition of right, and democracy."

The terms provide for an indemnity of two milliard francs whereof two hundred and fifty millions is to be in gold. Payment is to be spread over thirty-seven years in yearly instalments, with five per cent interest.

Territorial cessions on the west to Greater Serbia and on the south (in Western Thrace) to the Allies, who will decide as to the final settlement;

The reduction of her army to 20,000 men and the annihilation of her naval and air forces;

Restitution to Greece, Rumania and Yugo-slavia of all records, artistic and archeological articles stolen during the war.

The supply of 50,000 tons of coal annually to the Serb-Croat-Slovene State, and payment of the cost of the Allied military occupation and of the various Control Commissions appointed to supervise the execution of the Treaty provisions.

IRISH PAPERS SEIZED.

RAID ON DUBLIN OFFICES.

Three Dublin printing establishments where Sinn Fein and Labour journals are produced were raided by the police and military on Sunday. At least six journals are concerned. The vital parts of the machinery were removed and all copies of the papers found on the premises were seized. It is assumed that the publication of the prospectus of the Sinn Fein loan is the cause of the raids. All the type for next week's issues of the "Voice of Labour," which is Jim Larkin's paper, and the "Republic" was melted down. "Nationality," the organ of Mr. Arthur Griffiths, is another of the papers suppressed. No exciting incident marked the operations.

BRITAIN'S PART.

PART OF THE PRICE WE PAID IN FRANCE.

The War Office, in an official communiqué, refutes the suggestion made in certain quarters (notably in the French newspapers) that Great Britain, in order to make sure of a firm footing in Palestine and Syria, employed an undue proportion of her military strength in this theatre in 1918, and thereby left her Allies to bear the brunt of the fighting in Europe.

The communiqué points out that, whereas the British losses during the German offensive from March 21 to May 31 amounted to 343,000 men, yet on June 1, these losses had been more than replaced, and the British army in France was stronger than it had been before the German offensive began. The same applied to armament. The Germans during their offensive captured 981 guns from the British, but on June 8 the British guns in France numbered 6,698, against 6,083 when the German offensive opened.

Again, British losses in men between May 31 and the date of the armistice were 358,000, but on November 11 the British army in France numbered only 10,000 less than at the end of May.

The communiqué also points out that, whereas the British in 1918 took 254,000 prisoners and 2,840 guns, the French captures for the same period were only 160,000 men and 1,830 guns.

"It is not true to state that an undue proportion of the strength of the British Army was being employed in Syria at the expense of the western front, whether this statement applies to the year 1918 or to the whole war."

"The military prestige of France stands so high that it can suffer no hurt from a plain statement of the truth. In the victorious campaign of 1918 in France there is glory enough for all, and the claim here made for the due share that belongs to British arms cannot in any way harm the mutual friendship of the two countries which has been cemented by common sacrifice and common achievement."

PONTEFRACT.

COALITION WINS EXCITING BY-ELECTION.

The coalition has managed to hold Pontefract, though by a reduced majority. The by-election was caused by the death of Sir J. Compton-Rickett, Paymaster-General, and the result was declared as follows: Adderman Forrest (Co. L.) 9,920; Mr. Isaac Burns (Lab.) 8,445 — Coalition Majority, 1475. Mr. Burns contested the seat at the General Election, when the Coalition majority was 3,014.

The electors on the register in December last numbered 29,841, while the register on which the by-election took place contains 30,833 names. The total votes cast at the by-election, however, have increased by 4,757, and of the increase the Coalitionist has secured 1,359 and the Labour candidate 3,398 votes.

Excluding Oxford University, eight by-elections under the new Parliament have now been fought in Great Britain, and the Coalition have retained three.

JUTLAND HEROES.

DANISH MEMORIAL TO BRITISH.

On the suggestion of the British Red Cross, the Scaw municipal authorities have put forward a proposal for a permanent memorial in honour of the British sailors washed ashore on the Danish coast after the battle of Jutland and buried in the local churchyard. The Scaw County Council has taken upon itself the future tending of the graves.

No monument as yet marks the graves of the British sailors who were washed ashore at Scaw, though the German Government has long since commemorated by a great granite memorial the German seamen whose bodies were buried by the Danes after the Jutland battle.

NO SEPARATE PEACE.

BALTIC STATES TERMS.

Representatives of Esthonia, Lithuania, and Latvia have decided at Riga on a joint policy as regards the Bolshevist peace offer. They agreed not to conclude a separate peace with the Bolshevists; Not to enter into peace negotiations until the Bolshevists had agreed to guarantees against propaganda in their countries; in the event of peace not to establish formal diplomatic relations with the Bolshevists; that there must be a neutral zone between Russia and the Baltic States.

It is not believed that the Bolshevists will agree to these demands.

The next Baltic conference will be held at the Esthonian university town of Dorpat, when it is probable that Finland will also be represented, and possibly Poland. The question of the relations between the Baltic States and the Bolshevists is complicated by the continued activity of the Germans in Courland under General von der Goltz.

THE BALTIC MENACE.

GOUGH REPORTS ON GOLTZ.

The Supreme Council has received a report from General Gough on the situation in the Baltic States. General Gough states that investigations made on the spot show that all people in the country are dominated by the presence of German troops, who find in the Baltic provinces a political basis for German intervention in Russia. German soldiers have created in the country a dangerous situation from both the military and political point of view. The report finally records General Gough's opinion that the German Government, if it so desires, can perfectly well make its troops obey its orders and can recall Von der Goltz's soldiers,

FIUME REBELS.

HAS ULTIMATUM BEEN SENT?

According to reports via Laibach and Vienna, all the warships of the Allies, after a conference between the Allied Commanders at Abbazia, left the harbour of Fiume, and levelled their guns on the town.

It is assumed that an ultimatum has been sent to the rebels, according to which Fiume must be evacuated within twenty-four hours, otherwise steps will be taken against the mutineers with all the means available.

CONGRESS THANKS PERSHING

The galleries of the House of Representatives at Washington were crowded when General Pershing, attended by every member of the Senate, received the formal thanks of Congress for his services in the war. Glowing tributes were paid to the General by the Speaker, Mr. Gillett, and other Congressmen.

General Pershing in his reply said: "The generous assistance of the seamen of Great Britain in the arduous task of transporting the American forces overseas deserves lasting appreciation." He also declared: "Our admiration goes out to our war-worn Allies, whose tenacity after three years of conflict made possible the effectiveness of our effort. Through their loyal support and hearty co-operation a general spirit of comradeship sprang up among us which should firmly unite the peoples as it did their armies."

MASKED BANDITS.

TWO DESPERATE YOUTHS IN THE DOCK.

The violent attack by two masked men on Mr. W. J. Curry, clerk to the governors of Guy's Hospital, when he was in his office on June 20, was described at the trial at the Old Bailey.

Peter Albert Vincent, aged twenty, and Natale Auda, aged eighteen, were placed in the dock on indictments which charged them with:—an attack with arms on Edmund George O'Flaherty, manager of the Elysée Restaurant, Coventry-street, and Jaques Abden Holden, a night watchman, and the theft of £430 from a cafe; robbery with violence from Horace Byard on June 14 as he was walking down Belsize-lane, Hampstead; and an attack on William James Curry, clerk to the governors of Guy's Hospital.

Mr. Curry stated that he was in his office between five and half-past on the afternoon of June 20, when two masked men entered and shouted "Hands up." "I thought I would take my chance," he said, "and stepped towards the man on my left, who was holding a revolver close to my left side. The man on my right side was shorter, and I immediately closed with him. We then struggled to the hall, and I received a heavy blow on the head with a steel weapon. I received many other blows, and lost a great deal of blood. I then became unconscious and the men broke away."

The hearing was adjourned.

IRONFOUNDERS OUT.

BIGGEST STRIKE FOR 15 YEARS.

There has been no eleventh-hour settlement last night of the ironfounders' dispute, and, as the notices of 50,000 men have now expired, yesterday saw the beginning of a strike which, if it is protracted, will have incalculably serious results. Unless an early settlement is reached, engineering output will begin to decrease, shipbuilding will slow down, repairs will be delayed, and before long a number of industries will be dislocated. The fight is with the Engineering Employers' Federation, who have uncompromisingly refused even to discuss the demand of the ironfounders for an advance of 18s. per week. On the men's side, a section of the executive plunged into hasty action and committed the union to a procedure which quickly led to a deadlock. There has been no such great strike of ironfounders for fifteen years.

BRITISH PLANES LOST.

AIR RAID ON KRONSTADT.

British fliers who left the naval base at Bjorko, Finland, to bomb Kronstadt, encountered a gale of wind and rain. Two failed to return. Their fate is unknown. Two landed in Finnish territory, and one crashed in three feet of water at Bjorko, the pilot being killed. The rest of the airmen reached Kronstadt and dropped their bombs.

The Bolsheviks claim to have brought down one aeroplane of a very large type, near their forts. The airman was drowned.

NAILING DOWN BULLITT.

The American journalist, Mr. Bullitt, has just received a striking refutation. He did not hesitate to declare before the United States Foreign Relations Committee that the American delegates to the Peace Conference were in total disagreement with President Wilson on the majority of questions.

The American delegation, which includes three of its leading members in Paris, Colonel House, General Bliss and Mr. Henry White, has signed the following declaration: "The American delegation seizes the opportunity to put an end to all remarks which have been attributed to it, or invented, by giving both the Peace Treaty and the Covenant of the League of Nations the complete support and mature judgment of its members."

ANNUITY FOR MRS. BOTHA.

The Senate of the South-African Union has passed the third reading of the Mandate Bill for South-West Africa.

On the motion of General Smuts the House of Assembly unanimously voted an annuity of twelve hundred pounds sterling to Mrs. Botha in consideration of the late Premier's distinguished and valuable services to the Union. Addressing a crowded House in moving the grants, General Smuts said he hoped the annuity would be passed by general consent as a tribute to the memory of General Botha. He said the late General never spared himself and died in harness. He devoted himself to the service of the State and not to his private affairs.

NEW POLISH NAVY.

Organisation of a Polish Navy with a definite naval programme will be carried into effect by the Polish Government after the final ratification of Peace. According to details which have reached London, says Reuter, the Baltic force will consist of four armoured cruisers and twelve large torpedo boats. Crews will number 3,500 including 150 officers,

The former German liner Prinz Friederich Wilhelm has been turned over to the White Star Line.

PLAGUE IN POLAND.

RISK OF IT SPREADING OVER EUROPE.

Most great wars have been followed by an epidemic, induced by privation and the lack of hygiene inseparable from operations in the field. It is a curious fact that devastating epidemics always sweep from East to West. Those, and they are many, who fear that history will repeat itself are very apprehensive about Poland and Western Russia. They consider that unless a determined effort is made to combat the epidemic at present raging, there is grave danger of Western Europe being swept by a plague which would be more fatal than the ravages of the war.

The Inter-Allied Medical Commission sent by the League of Red Cross Societies to investigate the situation created by the typhus epidemic in Poland has just returned to Paris. Colonel Cumming, Assistant Surgeon General of the American Public Health Service, who is Chairman of the Commission, expressed the opinion of members of the Commission as follows.

The epidemic is continuing, nothwithstanding the conditions, and fresh cases are constantly being introduced from the East by refugees, prisoners of war and repatriated people. The Polish Ministry of Public Health and the Army Medical Service are carrying on an active campaign against typhus but have insufficient personnel and supplies. The hospitals throughout Poland are deficient in sheets, blankets, drugs and other essential equipment. Not only typhus but relapsing fever, typhoid and dysentry are prevalent and the Commission considers that very severe epidemics will break out this winter unless the most energetic measures are taken to deal with the situation in Poland and prevent the spread of typhus and other diseases to Western Europe and America.

LUNATIC TAXICAB DRIVER.

The allegation was made at a Southwark inquest that a woman was killed by a taxicab driven by a lunatic.

The inquest was on Mrs. Lucy Taylor Hawkins, aged seventy-three, of Weston-street, Bermondsey, who was knocked down by a taxicab without lights as she was crossing Old Kent-road. It was stated that the taxicab, which was proceeding at a fast pace, did not stop, but Lieutenant Charles Schwerdt, of the Naval Staff College, Greenwich, who was driving a car, went in pursuit and found the taxicab outside a public house near Great Dover-street. A policeman afterwards stated that the driver had been taken to Champion Hill Infirmary, to be kept under observation as a supposed lunatic. Detective Inspector Story told the coroner that the taxicab driver would probably be certified as insane, and the inquest was adjourned.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF GRAVES.

The Secretary of the War Office announces that the Directorate of Graves Registration and Enquiries is unable to receive any further applications for photographs of graves in the various theatres of War, but that it is hoped that the requests already received will be completed before the close of the present year.

The work of photography was originally undertaken by the Directorate owing to the prohibition on military grounds of the use of private cameras in France and as otherwise relatives would have had no other means of obtaining a photograph of a grave. Moreover, as there is now no pronibition on the taking of photographs, the necessity for the work done by the military photographers no longer exists.

Since the work was undertaken, 120,000 photographs taken in France and Belgium and 2,400 photographs taken in other theatres of war have been supplied to relatives. The outstanding requests that have still to be dealt with number 35,795.

'PLANE HITS GOVERNESS CAR.

A remarkable disaster, in which an aeroplane and a governess car were involved, has occurred at Llanelly.

David Watts, a retired tradesman, of Llanelly, took his three children for a drive in his governess car on the beach. An aeroplane was preparing to make an ascent close by, and the pilot apparently misjudged his clearance, or else had no time to avoid the mishap, for the bottom part of the machine as it rose caught the governess car. Mr. Watts and two of the children were badly injured. The father, after lingering for a week in hospital, has died.

KIAO-CHAU RUMOURS DENIED.

It has been authoritatively stated that there have been no exchanges of Notes between Washington and Tokio regarding Shantung since the statement made by the Japanese Foreign Minister, M. Uchida, on Aug. 2, in spite of the rumours to the effect that the United States and Japan had been in communication concerning the fixing of the exact date for the return of Kiao-chau to China.

FATAL MOSQUITO BITE.

The first case he had heard of in which a mosquito bite had caused death, was the comment of the Wimbledon Coroner in returning a verdict of Accidental death on Mrs. Annie May Taylor, nineteen, of 89, Haydons-road, Wimbledon.

ROYAL WARRANT.

OFFICERS' APPOINTMENTS (CONTINUED).

SEVENTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

11. Mess Allowance.—The allowances granted under paragraphs 534 to 543, Allowance Regulations, in aid of officers mess expenses, is abolished as from July 1, 1919. The special allowances under paragraphs 544 and 545, Allowance Regulations, will continue to be issuable.

12. Subsistence and Travelling Allowance.—The new rates are as follows:—

	Up to 8 nights in one place	After 8 nights	Daily 5 to 9 hours	Daily over 9 hours
Classes 1 to 5	30 0	15 0	6 0	15 0
" 6 to 14	22 6	12 6	4 0	11 6

13. Travelling.—The cost of removal of officers' families and their baggage (within the authorized scale) by land, on change of station will be borne by the public. This concession is limited to married officers as defined in paragraph 8 above. The scale of baggage allowed for married officers will be revised shortly.

14. Outfit Allowance.—A grant will be made to all officers on first appointment to permanent commissions in the Regular Army towards the estimated cost of provision of the necessary outfit. The rates will be promulgated in due course.

15. Field Allowance.—From October 1, 1919, the conditions of issue will, except as provided below, revert to those laid down in Allowance Regulations, and the special conditions of issue laid down in Army Order 337 of 1914 and Army Order 501 of 1914 will cease to apply. The rates will be subject to early revision and possibly to reduction.

The existing conditions will, however, continue to apply to officers serving on or after October 1, 1919, in an area of active operations. The areas to which this rule will apply will be determined by the Army Council, and will be published from time to time.

16. The issue of lodging and fuel and light allowances, under the provisions of Army Order 501 of 1914 to officers while serving with an Expeditionary Force, irrespective of whether free billets are provided or not, will continue up to March 31, 1920, or the "statutory end of the war," whichever comes first, after which date they will universally cease. Up to that date married officers, as defined in paragraph 8 above, if they draw the revised rates of pay provided in this Warrant, will draw the rates laid down in paragraphs 6 and 7 above, and unmarried officers, and married officers not in receipt of the new rates of pay, will draw the rates at present in force. The grants made under this paragraph are not in addition to those under paragraph 9.

17. Paragraphs 4, 15 and 16 apply to officers who retain the existing rates of pay and allowances as well as to those who draw the new rates.

Officers who elect to retain the existing rates of pay and allowances will not be eligible for the new allowances and rates granted under paragraphs 5, 9, 10 and 12, or for the new concessions for married officers, while they continue to draw the existing rates. Paragraph 11 above will not apply to these officers.

HALF-PAY.

TABLE XV.

The rules as to the conditions of issue of half-pay will remain as at present.

The rates will be uniform for all arms as follows (except for certain ranks in the Royal Army Medical Corps as stated below and for Royal Army Chaplains' Department):—

A STEP IN THE DARK.

Less than six years ago many of us were looking forward to a future more or less definitely planned. Those unfortunate or fortunate enough to have to earn their own livings had decided upon the means to this end. The trade or profession to which our energies were to be devoted in order to win the necessaries of life had been chosen; many had already embarked upon their careers and prospects of success for some were particularly bright.

Then came the great European upheaval and in a trice the hopes of every budding business man and promising professional pupil were revolutionised.

With the declaration of war the clarion note was sounded claiming the young blood of the nation to sterner duties and by millions the call was readily heard and answered.

In the hour of the country's danger the ruination of personal prospects was only a minor consideration and individual ambition gave place to national necessity. In the following years many were destined to sacrifice far more than their dreams of success in the sphere to which they had belonged—thousands were fated to fall in freedom's fight.

Those of us who have survived the conflict have much for which to be thankful; at times we cannot help wondering why we have been allowed to come through the fire unscathed while other and better men have fallen and lie buried on the battlefields of France and Flanders.

At the same time, however, the lot of the man, who though perhaps of good education has by reason of his long absence, no trade business or professional knowledge sufficient to guarantee him a living wage on return to civil life, is not an enviable one.

For many such, demobilization is a step in the dark; the future is full of uncertainty and fraught with endless anxieties. Does it mean that after five years nobly spent in the service of his country a man has to return and start afresh where he left off?

That the period spent in the Army is to be written down as of no account and that his value professionally or commercially is to be guaged from his pre-war experience?

Such appears to be the attitude of many employers of labour at home and this attitude is probably responsible for much of the unrest and unemployment at present prevailing.

After enduring the hardships and horrors of the hell of modern warfare he is confronted with the unpleasant prospect of his inability to command a living salary. Many of the lads who used to seal the envelopes and lick the stamps in pre-war days, by reason of their having been unfit for military service, are now elevated to positions of responsibility and a return to the same business house would probably mean the receiving of orders from the erstwhile office boy.

Such a position, of course, is an impossible one and there is a plain need for strong action on behalf of such men. Much has been done by the Government; University courses have been organised with the object of giving an opportunity to make up for the lost time, but this cannot be said to entirely meet the case as meanwhile more valuable time, which could be better spent on practical work, is being lost.

What is required is a full realization of the unique position by employers. They and only they can satisfactorily solve the problem and make the necessary adjustments. It is for them to realise that technical knowledge is not the only qualification, and that in the men returning there is a wealth of untapped genius and ability which, rightly cultivated and applied, would more than compensate for lack of experience. In the strenuous period of reconstruction ahead we require the full utilization of our best brain power if Great Britain is to keep her place in the great world race. There is room in the great machine for every man of ability, who is willing to work, and it is for those who have it in their power to see that good material is not wasted. All must agree that no man should be penalised because he has fought for his country.

CLUBLAND IN COLOGNE.

THE SOLDIERS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION CLUB.

You can find it at 19, Apostelnstrasse, in this city by the Rhine. It is a magnificent building and was formerly a popular restaurant. The outside impresses you, but you are charmed when you enter its doors. The windows are of stained glass depicting country scenes, the ceilings are richly ornamented and the walls panelled in dark wood.

It is one of the most popular clubs in Cologne and is always crowded with men. One Tommy described it as "a veritable Elim in the desert" and even a gay city can be a desert at times. It is a home from home and no man is ever denied admittance. There is a real social and spiritual atmosphere about it.

The large tea-room is quite a picture with its little tables and chairs. The canteen is in one corner and here you can see the fair lady workers, representing England, Scotland and Ireland, attending to the wants of the men. How fatigued they must be at times! Their winsomeness, kindly disposition and devotion, have won for them the intense admiration and grateful appreciation of all ranks of the Rhine Army.

There is a well stocked library and a side table, with a plentiful supply of all kinds of newspapers and periodicals, also little writing tables where paper is provided free of charge. On the walls you will see the appropriate notice "Have you written that letter to mother?

The large classroom is charmingly decorated with flags and very comfortable. A service is held here each night, and to show that it supplies a real need, I might add that it is always full. On Sunday a Bible class is held at 2.30 and in the evening a "Sing-Song" and service. These services are always characterised by great earnestness, the men themselves taking a part. The genial Superintendent is the Rev. Walter Millar, who has seen nearly four years war service, and is loved and respected by the boys, who appreciate his great work. He is ably assisted by Mr. A. Baker.

There are several other clubs in Rhineland, Bonn, Linz, Wahn and Siegburg. The General-Superintendent of the whole area is the Rev. George Harper of Edinburgh who has rendered excellent service and shown himself to be a brilliant organiser.

The Siegburg Hut is run entirely by ladies and there is a much appreciated Bible class held here weekly for officers; this I think is unique in every respect.

Mr. Donald Cornack, an old Argyle and Sutherland Highlander, who has done a great work amongst our men on active service since 1916, is shortly succeeding the Rev. George Harper as the leader of the movement in Rhineland. The Soldiers' Christian Association has been established for 33 years and it is under the patronage of Field-Marshal H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught. Amongst the Vice-Presidents are many famous Generals. The Chairman is Col. D.F.Douglas-Tones R.A.; the treasurer Capt. G.A.K. Wisely R.E.; the Secretary Mr. G.J. Byrnell, who has recently visited Cologne.

During all these years it has done a magnificent work amongst our men in many lands, and there are numerous centres, especially in India. Throughout the war it was represented in nearly every Battalion and even in trench and dug-out its members had their little meetings. Who can measure the good, that has been done through this distinctively soldiers' association?

Each month it publishes a record of Army work in a delightful magazine named "Ready" and this is well known to our men.

We have described in our Army of the Rhine paper, the work of all our philantropic and religious organisations and we gladly pay our tribute to one of the very best—the Soldiers' Christian Association. G.K.

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

SHOPPING.

The Rhine Army is rapidly disproving the old saying of foreigners that the English will not learn their language so they have to learn ours. Ever since the war the majority of us make attempts, however painful to others, to parley to the natives in their own tongue.

The possible exception to this is Bimbo.

Bimbo is a terrible example of an Englishman. Anything that isn't English is rubbish, "trash" and therefore not worth troubling about. He is quite amazed if a foreigner doesn't understand a remark of his made in English.

Behold him, then, entering the portals of the famous firm, "Dankershun and Bittershun," in quest of a box of drawing pins for the blankets in his too brilliant dark-room and (the remainder) for some rather flabby targets in the miniature range.

Mr. Dankershun greeted him with a polite "Gooten tag."

"Morning," growled Bimbo, "I want a box of drawing pins."

"Bitte?" Mr. D. was apologetic but slightly fogged.

"Have you such a thing as a box of drawing-pins?" Bimbo had great faith in changing the phrasing. "You might hit upon the right one by luck," he holds.

Mr. D. became mildly puzzled. He grinned sheepishly and slowly shook his dead. "Nix fasteen."

"Do you speak English?"

Again that inane grin and head shaking. "Nix!"

Bimbo began to lose patience. This was too absurd. The fellow can't even speak English. So he braced himself up to explain matters. The old idiot knows what a drawing-pin is; it's only a matter of driving it into his thick skull.

"Look here! Don't you know what a drawing-pin is? Fasteen Dra-a-aw-ing Pin?"

Mr. D's head indicated that he didn't.

Patience began to ooze rapidly out of Bimbo. He had quite expected "Fasteen" to do the trick. He glanced wildly round the shop for a possible illustration.

Mr. Dankershun meanwhile began, in a dazed manner, to dig up from some dark depths behind the counter an assortment of razors, paper-knives, miniatures of the Dom, some post-cards, and helmets, in the vain hope that Bimbo only wanted souvenirs after all.

Suddenly Bimbo darted across to the window, followed by the flustered but eager Dankershun, and began violently to hammer the edges of the curtain. Mr. D. hesitated, murmured something about "moment," and shuffled off to the next room. While he was away Bimbo took the opportunity to groan aloud, "These stupid foreigners!"

Despair seized Bimbo as Mr. Dankershun brought in the affable Mr. Bittershun instead of the drawing-pins.

Bowing and smiling and rubbing his hands, Bittershun opened his barrage.

"Gooten tag."

"Morning. I want a box of drawing-pins."

"Parlez vous Francais?"

"No! I want some drawing pins! DRAWING-PINS!!"

Mr. Bittershun told Mr. Dankershun to try him again with a razor. Bimbo swept this aside.

"Damn!"

"Ah! Ja! Damn, nix goot," remarked D and B, chuckling. They understood that.

In despair. Bimbo's bulging eyes swept the room once more. Why won't these beggars understand. Surely the thing's plain enough. Drawing-pins! Any child of six would understand him in England. Then a sudden light sparkled in his eyes. A chair! The very thing! With a bound he reached the chair, sat quickly down, and then leapt up in the air, at the same time giving vent to a blood-curdling scream. Dankershun hid behind the counter; Bittershun stood rooted to the ground, pale as death.

"Pins! do you see? Now do you get me?" Then with great condescension he did it again. "Look here. Ich sitten down; Pin pricken me; ich jumpen up again. Fasteen?"

The colour came slowly back to Bittershun's cheeks, his face lit up, and with a "Ah! Ja, Ja! Fasteen" he went behind the counter and brought out a packet of pins.

"That's better! Now then. Nix dis. Uders like dis, Fasteen?"

Dankershun and Bittershun searched the cupboards and drawers like ferrets while Bimbo looked on, perspiring and out of breath, but rather pleased with himself. The fellows knew all the time, of course. Idiots!

Out came packets of safety-pins, tie-pins, needles, and everything else with a sharp point. The stock of Dankershun and Bittershun seemed inexhaustible. At last came a box of drawing-pins! Bimbo pounced upon this.

"How much?"

"50 Pfennigs."

While Bimbo was paying this fabulous sum, Bittershun, smiling and self-possessed once more, asked the "Engleesh for dis?"

"Drawing-pins."

Even then Bimbo didn't ask him the German for it. But Bimbo is an exception. WILFORD.

THE FALLEN SAUSAGE.

The history of German sausages is instructive. Formerly Germany, undoubtedly, was a country, where sausages were eaten with pleasure and in great quantities. It was for instance the custom at Königsberg in Prussia that at the new year the butchers presented the bakers with a giant sausage. The chronicle of the town tells us that the sausage of the year 1558 was carried by forty-eight persons and had a length of about 130 yards; the sausage of the year 1595 had to be carried by 85 persons and weighed 454 German pounds, its length was 417 yards. The fattest butcher at this sausage festival marched in front, having the end of the sausage round his neck as a necktie. He was followed by the other members of the corporation carrying the sausage on their shoulders. A band accompanied the procession. But "tempora mutantur". A joke told about the 1919 sausages is that a man bought a sausage in a Berlin shop. It was so small that it was almost necessary to take a magnifying glass to see it. As the buyer had no paper to wrap it in he took his tramway-ticket for the purpose; but as he went home he noticed he had lost the sausage; it must have slipped out through the hole made in the ticket by the tramway conductor.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

SALUTING DIFFICULTIES.

Sir,—I try to do my duty as a subaltern in saluting my superior officers, but often, I regret to say, inadvertently pass an officer of field rank without giving the recognition I should, for the simple reason that it is difficult to know what his rank really is.

With the regulation uniform bearing the marks of rank on the cuff, it is easy enough to distinguish whether anyone is a Lieutenant, Captain, Major or even something higher. But now it seems increasingly the fashion to wear plain sleeves and merely have the stars or crowns or both on the shoulder strap.

The result is that until one is abreast of an officer it is practically impossible to see what he is wearing. A crown looks almost the same as a star some yards off.

Once age used to be some guide as to rank, but to-day we have majors and colonels of twenty—and subalterns over fifty.

Personally I wish the Army authorities would put their foot down and stop the style of wearing badges of rank on the shoulder straps. K.R.R.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,—Your correspondent Martini has committed the common error of building up a perfectly sound fabric of reasoning on a rotten hypothesis.

His comparison of the conditions in France during the war with those in Germany after it, is most unhappy.

Does he not realise that very few of the officers who have their wives with them in Occupied Germany were ever, during the war, in an area even comparatively safe for women.

Martini must really try to stretch his imagination beyond an Army or Corps Headquarters; he will then realise the weakness of his argument.

His worn-out gibe regarding lateness in the morning is contrary to fact. My experience is that the married man who goes to bed at a reasonable hour gets to work earlier than the unfortunate bachelor or grass-widower. BENEDICTINE.

Sir,— Your correspondent "Bachelor" asks the question, Do wives in Rhineland make for efficiency? I would like to point out to Bachelor that it is none of his business. The commanding Officer of the unit is responsible for the efficiency off all its members.

If Bachelor is so devoid of moral backbone as to be unable to say "no" when unwilling, his subsequent fatigue, if any, is the reward he merits!

Perhaps, with Bachelor it is a case of sour grapes! SHORTY.

Sir,—Though I am a single man myself, I do not agree at all with Bachelor. Why should wives cause inefficiency now, any more than before the war?

Apart from this I heartily deplore the spirit in which Bachelor has been attacked by some correspondents.

By all means let us air our views, but let us refrain from unpleasant epithets and personal abuse such as has marred an otherwise interesting discussion. TOUJOURS LA POLITESSE.

TALL STORIES.

Sir,—'Nix Veritas' states that he saw a German consume 158 bottles of wine on the Rhine trip from Cologne to Coblenz, but that he returned by train for fear the boat should sink. That was a pity as he would have witnessed as I did, the same "human being" indulge in another little drink to the extent of 51 bottles on the return journey thus having the grand total of 209 bottles to his credit. S. P. A.

Sir,—Reference the tall yarns in your column of the Germans' unquenchable thirst.

I once saw in a railway journey in 1913 between Cologne and Berlin one German consume 500 bottles of champagne.

This man afterwards made a fortune in empty bottles. Y. M. D.

THE VALUE OF SPANISH.

Sir,—I do not agree with "Espanola" that this language is more useful to learn than German, only in so far as it is used extensively in South America.

The two languages usually taught before the war were: French (most important) and German, to the needful acquisition of which latter we have recently awakened, it having been "taboo" during the European struggle.

Spanish is a fine and high-sounding language, having an accent and pronunciation difficult to attain directly, but as easy as Italian when French is mastered.

Personally I would study all the Latin tongues in preference to the guttural German, whose relation to the mother medium is more obscure, but the consideration of its commercial advantages is entirely different to a question of taste.

I note, in conclusion, that Spanish is now being taught extensively in the German schools. W. B. LAVENGRO.

A MATTER OF SPELLING.

Sir,—The Army establishment on the Rhine embankment about which 'Not Demobilizable' and 'Glory B' were pleased to be facetious, has now, fearful of the intense notoriety it is gaining, hung out still another legend — which is tersely to the point.

Eluding any complexity of spelling it now reads: 'Demob'! 'PASSER-BY.

THE ENCHANTMENT.

I did but look and love awhile,
'Twas but for one half-hour,
Then to resist I had no will,
And now I have no power.

To sigh and wish is all my ease;
Sighs which do heat impart
Enough to melt the coldest ice,
Yet cannot warm your heart.

O would your pity give my heart
One corner of your breast,
'Twould learn of you the winning art,
And quichly steal the rest.

London Clubs' League Match Successes.

SPURS' FINE WIN.

The London clubs in the First Division of the League were engaged in the return matches, on Saturday with the two North Eastern clubs, the first encounters of which both resulted in drawn games. Arsenal were at home to Sunderland and won by the odd goal in five after being a goal down at half-time. Chelsea failed to hold their own with Newcastle, in fact being badly beaten by 3 goals to nil. The feature of the other games played was the away wins of West Bromwich Albion and Liverpool.

Not one of the Southern teams in the Second Division suffered defeat. The outstanding feature of the day's play was the fine win of the Spurs at South Shields where the home team had not lost a goal on their own ground. Fulham and Bristol City scored runaway victories over Leicester City and Lincoln City, whilst West Ham also won by a narrow margin at home. One of the best performances of the day was Clapton Orient's draw with Wolverhampton Wanderers at Wolverhampton.

BATTERY FOOTBALL.

A/187 Bde. R.F.A. v. D/187 Bde. R.F.A.

A friendly game was played between A/187 Bde. R.F.A. and D/187 Bde. R.F.A. on the former's ground at Eil. The play at the start was fairly even, but after about 15 minutes play, A Battery's right wing got away; and from a nice cross Dr. Garner opened the scoring. The remainder of this half was pretty evenly contested and neither team managed to increase the score.

Shortly after the opening of the second half, the visiting centre forward who had all along been playing a good game got away, and, after getting clear of both backs, scored a fine goal. After this the home team pressed and added No 2. They continued to press and were unlucky on several occasions in not increasing their lead. For the visiting team the centre half, left half and centre forward were conspicuous, while for the home team Sgt. Winter at right back and Drivers Goudie and Garner on the left wing all played well.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

OUR NEW COMPETITION.

Big Prize Assured for Opening Contest.

"Some mail" exclaimed our office-boy as he struggled with yesterday morning's post. It contained a weighty response to our Football Competition, No 1, and so numerous were the coupons that a fairly substantial prize is assured to the winner, or (in the event of ties) the winners.

The results of Saturday's matches which we publish to-day should be a further indication of the current form of play. To-morrow we shall publish the various league tables.

The rules of the competition appeared in Saturday's and Sunday's issues.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 1.

THE Y.M.C.A. SHIELD.

93rd. Bde. R.G.A. v. 1/6th. West Yorks At Kalk.

These teams met in the above competition at Kalk on Friday. During the first half the crafty methods of the Gunners backs decidedly upset the "Tykes" forwards, in that they were repeatedly pulled up for offside. However, not to be dismayed, they kept pegging away and Wraithby finally scored with a lovely daisy cutter from 30 yards range. Half time arrived with the Yorkshire men leading one goal to nil. During the second half the Tykes played clever and nippy football and L/Cpl. Butterill, their centre forward, who played a thrustful game, performed the hat trick, the final score being: 1/6 West Yorks 4; 93rd. Bde R.G.A. nil.

35th. Bde. R.G.A. v. 187 Bde. R.F.A.

The 35th. Bde. R.G.A. played a tie in the 1st round of the Y.M.C.A. Football Cup Competition and were successful in defeating 187 Bde. R.F.A. by two goals to 1. The match was played on Friday on the 35th Bde. ground at Haus Vorst.

G.H.Q., SERGEANTS MESS RIFLE CLUB.

The members of the above club spent another enjoyable afternoon on the Merheim Ranges on Saturday last. Conductor Luker, R.A.O.C., won the spoon for the second week in succession with a score of 91—handicap 9 points.

The next Spoon Shot will take place on the above Ranges next Saturday. Meet at No 1 Sergeants Mess, Salomongasse, at 1.30 p.m. prompt.

41st BATT. M.G.C.

High Standard Of Athletics At Konigsforst.

RAIN CAUSES ABANDONMENT.

An unpropitious morning was followed by a dull afternoon and rain in the evening, somewhat damping the ardour of the M.G.C. enthusiasts at their sports meeting at Konigsforst on Sunday. The cold weather, however, was conducive to sport, and, with a fine field, and well trained competitors some excellent running was witnessed. There was a large attendance, including many ladies. Numerous side-shows and competitions added gaiety and variety to the entertainment. The catering was admirably carried out by the Y.M.C.A. The names of the officials were:—

Referee:—Maj.-Gen. Sir S. T. B. Lawford, K.C.B.

Judges:—Lt.-Col. G. M. Lindsay, C.M.G. D.S.O., Maj. A. V. Keene, Maj. A.D. Needham, O.B.E., M.C., Maj. D. Boumphrey, M.C.

Starter:—Capt. G. G. Zeigler, M.C.

Time Keeper:—Mr. Cutbush, Y.M.C.A.

Clerks of the Course.—Sgt. T. Morley, Sgt. J. McChesney.

Recorder:—Pte. H. Murray.

Owing to the rain the sports were abandoned at 6 o'clock three events remaining for decision, and the presentation of prizes had to be deferred.

A QUOITS CHALLENGE.

A challenge of interest to quoiters has been made on behalf of Wm. Watters, Lochgelly, Fife in which he offers to play any man in the world for the championship and a stake of anything up to £1,000. At present Watters holds the titles in Scotland for both 18yds and 21yds.

WINDSOR RACING.

Challow Wins Royal Borough Handicap.

Excellent fields turned out at Windsor on Saturday. The chief event attracted eight runners, and of these Challow was made favourite. Ridden by Donoghue, he quickly gained a leading position, and never being dispossessed of it won by half a length. Results:—

Queen Anne's Welter Handicap.—1, Svindune (10—1); 2, Double Dew (7—1); 3, Sans Atout (100—8).

Herne Oak Nursery Handicap:—1, Mexican Eagle (9—2); 2, Ambassadress (4—1); 3, Tivoli (10—1).

Royal Borough Handicap:—1, Challow (7—4); 2, South Parade (7—1); 3, Ninon (7—1).

Merry Wives Nursery Handicap:—1, Flittervil filly (4—1); 2, Illuminator (11—2); 3, Dayspring (9—1).

Falstaff Handicap:—1, Storm Witch (5—4 on); 2, Prevovant (11—2); 3, Londoner (7—1).

Castle Maiden Plate:—1, Auramine (9—2); 2, Digby (100—30); 3, Treasury Bill (20—1).

IMPORTANT SCRATCHINGS.

Irish Elegance and Silonyx withdrawn.

Two more scratchings though fully anticipated, will be noted with a parting pang by early seekers of a likely double, were Silonyx from the Cesarewitch and Irish Elegance from the Cambridgeshire. Silonyx could not be trained, and it has been strange to see him paraded in the market.

There is a limit to everything, and it would have been unfair to ask Irish Elegance to carry 10st. 9lbs. Naturally it is going to be a difficult matter to place him now, but he has been entered for a Newmarket sprint and also for the Norwich Handicap over the Cambridgeshire nine furlongs. He has been given 10st, 10lbs.

RACING NOTES & NOTIONS.

By "Jerry M."

Our double candidates "Silver Bullet" and "Bruff Bridge" are progressing in their preparations in capital form. I have received most satisfactory news of the latter and I am somewhat confident that if facing the tapes fit and well he will trouble the best of the others. "Silver Bullet" says one well-known regular punter is only waiting for the word "Go" and if this is for the Cesarewitch then many will have a fleeting vision of the "Bullet's heels."

Appearance would suggest that Lambton erred in his judgment with regard to the St. Leger situation, but there are other points to be considered in connection with the "Classic Race."

Many experts declare it was a badly run race; "Keysoe" was allowed to get too far ahead. The riders of Buchan and Dominion were waiting on each other and they waited all too long! The consequence was that, as between these two, the affair finally resolved itself into a tussle for speed and it is certain that Dominion is the faster of the two. Meanwhile "Keysoe" continued on her own and refused to be "pegged back." Had Buchan been made more use of in the earlier stages quite another story might have to be told. But all honour to the winner—a grand filly.

After the drastic action taken by the Stewards in the Batho and Mullen cases trainers are going very gingerly—for a time!!!

At the jumping meeting to be held in the Isle of Wight next month there are two races confined to riders who are, or have been, officers in his Majesty's Services. This type of event originated at Sandown Park and proved such a big success that other managements are making them quite a feature of their programmes. This should certainly be the case when "the jumps" get into full swing. "Over the sticks" was ever a popular pastime with amateur riders, and they helped greatly to place the sport on its present sound foundation.

ARMY BOXING.

Criticism of the Method of Point Scoring.

INFORMATION WANTED.

The following letters have reached us with reference to the Army Boxing Championships held recently in which considerable doubt is expressed as to the Army method of point scoring. We publish them in the hope that some readers will volunteer the information required.

Sir,—The method of point scoring in the Army Boxing championship seems, to put it very mildly, rather extraordinary to an outside individual. The winning team viz: the 32nd Machine Gun Batt. won one contest as compared to 5 wins by the second team and 2 wins by the third. The 32nd M.G. Batt. had an advantage of 2 points over the second team by reason of a walk-over in the semi-final and their bantam-weight who scored 3 points although he was 4 lbs. over weight, was protested against and should not have been allowed to enter the ring.

They then won the championship by one point although, as stated, winning only one competition and being to the onlookers an obviously inferior team.

If there were ever "moral" champions who did not earn the title, the 7th Bn. Middlesex Regt., are the "moral" boxing champions of the Army of the Rhine.

"Wondering."

Sir,—I should like to ask any of your readers their opinion of the result of the Army of the Rhine Boxing tournament. There were eight fights during the evening of the eighteenth, and all these were finals.

The results were as follows—7th M'sex Regt 5 wins, the wins for the remaining 3 fights being divided between the other 3 teams.

This would appear that the 7th M'sex were easy winners, but instead of their being awarded the first prize, it was given to the 32nd Batt. M.G.C., who had only one win to their credit.

Could any reader inform me under what rules the tournament took place.

Yours etc.,
"A Neutral."

MORE BOXING CHALLENGES.

Cpl. Syd Marshall issues a challenge to any man of his weight, 9 stone 9 lb. in the Rhine Army. He bars none; all communications to be sent to Sports officer, 5th Royal Irish Regt. Rhine Army.

At 10st. 7 lbs.

L/Cpl. Stuckey, 4th Field Survey Batt. R.E. is prepared to meet any man in the Rhine Army at 10st. 7lbs. Four ozs. gloves preferred.

A Disappointment.

The Sports President 35th Bde. R.G.A. writes:—Some short time ago we accepted on behalf of one of our gunners a boxing challenge which came through your columns from L/Cpl. Corbett, R.A.S.C. Will you please note that we are unfortunately obliged to disappoint Cpl. Corbett owing to the gunner in question being demobilized.

JIMMY WILDE'S ADVICE.

What was described as Jimmy Wilde's farewell before leaving for America attracted a big crowd to the New Brighton Tower Theatre, when the popular little Welsh champion boxed a couple of exhibitions, and made a short speech, in the course of which he advised his hearers—speaking of his American engagements—that "if they didn't back him, not to back the other fellow."

THE £590 TOURNAMENT.

J. H. Turner (Frilford Heath), E. Bannister (Sandy Lodge), B. Seymour (Molesey Hurst), and D. Ayton (Clacton-on-Sea), who tied for the last two of the twenty-six qualifying places for the £590 Golf tournament, played off over eighteen holes at Sonning.

Bannister and Seymour qualified with scores of 77 each, Ayton taking 79 and Turner 86.

GEORGE ROBEY AND FOOTBALL.

George Robey celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his birth on Saturday. The vigorous health he enjoys is attributed by him to the whole-hearted manner in which he has played various outdoor sports.

In his time an Association player of no mean ability, he made his first appearance for the Millwall F.C. nineteen years ago, and in commemoration of this, and of the fact that it was his fiftieth birth day, he signed a Southern League form for the club in whose welfare he has for so long taken a deep interest.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

"The Prongs."

On Saturday evening I looked in to see "The Prongs" (92nd Bde. R.G.A.) Concert Party at the Central Y.M.C.A. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity and there were many unable to gain admission. The show was very bright and versatile, and in many respects, quite different from the other parties I have seen. The concerted numbers are clever, the vocalists are good and comedy abounds, while the dresses, effects, and production leave nothing to be desired. The manager and producer is Bert Rudd.

A Versatile Party.

Although I have seen Jimmy Robinson on several occasions I don't think I've seen him in such form as he is at present. In the sketch he created roars of laughter. Bert Rudd, is also conspicuous in the comedy department. Will Pawson, a clever ventriloquist, Charles Castle, L. Arthene, J. Norton, and E. J. Bailey make up the male portion of a very capable party. Fred O. Bayman, the female impersonator, has a pleasing voice, and suitable mannerisms, and is a big favourite.

At the Palace Theatre.

Last night "The Jesters" Concert Party presented their show to a crowded house at the Palace Theatre. An excellent party from London, under the auspices of the N.A.C.B., they proved themselves capable of providing an exceedingly bright entertainment. It is gratifying to see that "The Jesters" after amusing us since 1915 have not yet deserted us. By the bye you should book early if you want to see the show at the Herzogstrasse Theatre.

Leave Club Concert.

An excellent concert was given on Sunday night by the Inniskillings, when the hall was absolutely packed. Owing to an accident to the transport the band were not able to arrive before 7.30, but Miss Ada Moore kindly gave one of her delightful impromptu concerts during the interval, and was encored to the echo. Among other items, she sang "The Kingdom within your Eyes" and "Wake up." Sgt. Hugh Williams sang delightfully "Follow the Golden Star" and "Once More.' The band then gave some charming selections. The rendering of "Tangled Tunes" was received with tremendous applause, as was also "The Voyage on a Troop Ship," which was very realistic. Bdr. Ruston sang the "Lute Player," and "The Trumpeter" as an encore, both given delightfully, and received with much applause.

The way of all things.

Frequenters of the Y.M.C.A. Central and British Empire Leave Club will learn with regret that the "Merry Micks", the concert party of the 5th Royal Irish Regt. is now no more. Haworth (tenor) and Armes (comedian) have been demobilized, and Livingstone (comedian and business manager) has gone into hospital. The "Merry Micks" gave their final performance at the Kaisersaal Solingen, on Saturday, before a packed house. Several new numbers were introduced, and an original song by Livingstone entitled "O her Face" being one of the features of the evening. This comedian has a style all his own, and his facial contortions are extremely funny. Although quite a small troupe the party ranked as one of the foremost in the Rhine Army, and their loss will be felt by all concert goers, particularly in the Light Div.

In few words.

I understand that McCracken, Weeks, Livingstone and Armes of the "Merry Micks" will shortly make their bow on the music hall stage in "Blighty."

JACQUES.

BY THE ODD GOAL.

R.A.O.C. Companies Cologne v. Detachments Nippes.

Played at Nippes; this was the first match of the season for the Nippes men and although beaten by the odd goal in five they put up a very creditable performance. The homesters were the first to score and this put new life into the visitors who on the resumption immediately transferred play to the homesters goal. The second goal of the match was obtained by the Companies from a corner. Half-time scores equall.

The Nippes men outdoed the lead from a breakaway; a scrimmage ensued in front of the goalmouth and one of the halves handled. A penalty was awarded and McGowran, who was entrusted with the kick made no mistake sending the ball well out of the goalie's reach at a terrific pace.

Nettled by this reverse the visitors again took up the running and kept play in the vicinity of the home goal. Their forwards played very nicely together and some fine combination was seen. Time after time they seemed on the verge of scoring but the homesters backs and goalie cleared. Not to be denied however the visitors came again and pretty play by the right wing ended in the Companies notching their second point.

The visitors got away again and with 15 minutes to go obtained their third and winning goal. The ball was taken down by the left wing and from a splendid centre the Companies centre forward headed in nicely.

INTER-COMPANY FOOTBALL.

Keen Games Provided by Royal Irish Regt. League.

Inter Company league football provided the 5th Royal Irish Regt. with keen games, Headquarters v. C Coy. being the tit-bit. The game was fought out at a fast pace and ended in a fitting result, a draw of one all. For Headquarters Cpl. Norris, the well-known London Amateur, showed brilliant form at right back. Murray, who has played in Irish football, was a success at outside left, an unselfish pass from him let his partner L/Cpl. Gregory through to score with a rocket drive. Allen the goalkeeper was heartily cheered for his performance. For C. Coy. Sullivan was the man of note, a splendid solo effort by him resulting in the equalizing goal.

B Coy beat A Coy.

The B Coy and A Coy match, while splendidly contested, was won somewhat easily by the former, who put on three goals to their opponents 1.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

London Rugger.
Most of the London Rugby clubs played practice matches on Saturday.

N.Z. Rugby Victory.
The New Zealand Service Rugby football team last week defeated Natal by 11 points to 4.

Golf Tourney.
Abe Mitchell, Harry Vardon, James Braid, and Ted Ray will take part in a professional golf tournament at Edgware on October 8.

Sloley for Aston.
R. W. Sloley, the Cambridge University and Corinthians forward, played for Aston Villa against Liverpool on Saturday and in future will be in the team as regularly as possible.

Cycling Records Stand.
Attempts to beat cycling records failed at the Kentish Wheelers meeting at Herne Hill. Ryan and Lance were a second outside the previous best for the quarter-mile tandem start.

Hat-Trick for Ordnance.
Brompton were outclassed by Royal Ordnance in their replayed F.A. Cup tie at Chatham and lost by three goals to one. Clarke scored twice in the first half for Ordnance, and completed his hat-trick early in the second half. Brown scored Brompton's only goal.

Unfortunate Spurs.
Tottenham Hotspur have only 26 players from which to select their two teams.

Miss Shirley-Kellogg's "Gee-gee's."
Miss Shirley-Kellogg's horses that have left P. Hartigan's stable for France will be trained at Chantilly by Davison.

Corinthians at Golf.
A number of famous footballers were golfing at Stoke Poges on Friday, when the Corinthians held an eighteen-hole stroke competition.

Another Victory.
N. Misbu, the Rumanian lawn tennis player, whose original methods have proved successful of late, gained another victory in the final of the men's singles at the Hurlingham tournament.

Derby's Reserve Goalkeeper.
Good side as Derby County are this season, they are lamentably short of reliable reserves. The directors, recognising this fact, have engaged James Kidd as a possible deputy for Lawrence.

Northern Nomads.
Northern Nomads F.C., one of the leading amateur clubs before the war, has been revived this season. They opposed Everton in a friendly at Goodison Park last week, and were defeated 3—1. B. H. Baker, the high jump champion, is still a prominent member of the side.

White Prince Sold.
S. Pickering has disposed of White Prince privately to Sir Abe Bailey.

French Fly-weight Boxing.
In a boxing match for the fly-weight championship of France, Bouzonnie, the holder of the title, beat Cram, who retired in the sixteenth round.

Too Small a Course.
Rapidan did not run in the Sebastien Grand Prize, his owner realising that his colt could not do himself justice on that course, which is too small.

Wonderland.
Wonderland is being rebuilt after many years. Great crowds gathered at that resort before it was burnt down, and no doubt it again will be the scene of stirring contests when it reopens.

Referee's Death.
The death has taken place at Nottingham of Mr. Wm. Proctor at the age of 65. He was at one time a well-known linesman and referee, and was for many years associated with the Notts F.A.

All about the F.A.
The Football Association Handbook and Referees' Chart for 1919-20 have made a welcome appearance. They contain in concise form all the information which officials and players can require and are invaluable as works of reference.

Mr. J. Hare's Loss.
Mr. James Hare has lost his two-year-old filly, Martin's Daughter, who recently put her hip out, and had to be destroyed.

Diabetes Prevalent at Newmarket.
Veterinary surgeons at Newmarket are rather puzzled to know the cause of so many horses suffering from diabetes.

Man of Many Clubs.
T. Knighton, an inside forward, who has played for the 'Spurs, Watford, Grimsby, and Glossop in the past, has signed amateur forms for Lincoln City.

An Army Centre.
Coventry City have signed on Harry Thompson, who, when playing for the British Army as a centre forward, distinguished himself by scoring four out of five goals against the Belgian Army.

Jockeys Replaced.
The special from Paris to Maisons-Laffitte was late in arriving, and two jockeys, Marsh and MacGee, who had mounts in the first race, had to be replaced by Clout and Garner.

Corinthians Meet.
A meeting of the Corinthians Football Club was held at Stoke Poges. Mr. C. Wreford-Brown presided. The meeting elected thirty-four players and gave power to the committee to complete the full number of fifty during the season.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Cologne Chamber of Commerce.

A special meeting of the members of the British Chamber of Commerce in Cologne, was held on Friday the 19th September 1919 in the Hotel Disch at 9 p.m, in order to discuss matters relating to the internal organisation of the Chamber. After a careful examination and discussion of the points raised it was decided that the majority should be dealt with at a larger meeting, owing to the important nature of the questions involved. In this connection therefore a special meeting of the members of the Chamber will be convened for Friday the 26th. inst., at which the presence of all members is earnestly requested. The attention of officers and men of the Army of the Rhine, who are shortly to be demobilized, and who intend returning to Cologne for business purposes, is drawn to the existence of the Chamber and their future membership cordially invited.

The Barrier.

Officer, anxious to afford his batman the chance of improving his education:—"Why don't you go in for learning German while you are in Cologne?" "Well, Sir, I don't see as 'ow it would be much use. If they wants anything off us they always makes us understand all right; but if we want anything from them it's always 'nix versteen'!"

American Impressions.

A writer in a recent issue of the "Amaroc News" talking of the question of "Impressions of Germany" says it is full of odd quirks and turns, lights and shad ws. Their methodical practices, resulting in many material conveniences such as excellent roads, fine water transportation, extensive electrical development, productive farming, and many other conveniences, deserve admiration. On the other hand, their lack of courtesy toward women, their suppression of the individual under the caste system, their simple-minded credulousness of almost anything spoken by those in authority, and their decidedly commercialized manner of thought, excite the severest condemnation in the minds of the American who has come into close contact with Germans during the war and here in the Rhineland.

On the Water.

Apropos of a recent article on Germans at indoor games, it is a peculiar fact that, although on the whole the German does not care for most sports that tend to violent exercise he is none the less singularly partial to the joys of boa ing. A visit to the lake at Lindenthal Park, particularly on Sundays, will show all the boats occupied by Herr and Frau and all the kinder, and Herr apparently enjoys pulling the heavily laden craft round the lake no matter how hot the day. Probably, however, what will strike the average Englishman most forcibly is to see children of almost tender age rowing crowded boats about with the greatest of skill and a minimum of effort.

A Slump in the Weather.

At the time of writing the purveyors of open-air pleasure cannot be very sanguine folk for with a decided drop in the temperature the temptation was to spend the weekend indoors. On the whole, however, we cannot grumble for King Sol has been generous and the Sundays of the last few weeks have been all that could be desired in the matter of weather. The shortening days tell of the approach of winter, a fact which will become more apparent with the end of the month when summer time will cease. Many are inclined to the view that in view of the serious shortage of coal, which naturally affects gas and electric light, it would be a great boon to householders this year if summer time were extended to the end of October. They argue that during the autumn the mornings are much lighter in proportion than the evenings, and it is light at six o'clock in the morning when it is dark at six o'clock in the evening.

Tank Corps N.C.O.'s And Artificers.

The War Office makes an urgent appeal for a limited number of ex-non-commissioned officers and artificers who have served in the Tank Corps to fill certain non-commissioned officer and artificer vacancies. Those accepted will be required to serve for 2, 3, or 4 years. Physical and educational standards for the Tank Corps are very high and only the best type of ex-soldier can be accepted for these vacancies. There is every probability that those who present themselves early and possess the necessary qualifications will be permitted to re-enlist in their former rank. Application should be made to the nearest Recruiting Officer.

Run on Fish.

Many messes were without fish on Saturday. A perspiring batman who had made a round of the few fish establishments in the city reported that supplies had been disposed of by 10.00 hours. The reason was to be found in the fact that there was a shortage of meat, with the result that the German house wife turned her attention to the other staple source of diet rather than incur the displeasure of her Lord and master. What is wanted is a union of P.M.C.'s.

Royal Military College.

The following War Medals and prizes have been made in the Senior Division of the Royal Military College: Under Officer Young, F.W., awarded the King's Medal and Sword. Gentleman Cadet Misselbrook, V.L., awarded the Normal Medal. Under Officer Brooke, R.A.L., awarded the Sword of Honour. Gentleman Cadet Wyatt, A.W., awarded prize for Military Administration. Under Officer Nugent, O.St.G.P., awarded prize for Military Law. Under Officer Young, F.W., awarded prize for Tactics, etc. Gentleman Cadet Hewitson, D.A.J., awarded prize for Hygiene. Gentleman Cadet Beedle, E.B., awarded prize for Musketry. Gentleman Cadet Lindley, H.G., awarded prize for Bayonet Fighting, etc., Under Officer Nugent, O.St.G.P., awarded prize for Drill. Corporal Beech, G.J., awarded prize for Riding.

Sunday in Rhineland.

Sunday was not an ideal day on which to parade the country in a set of white ducks and a thin vest, but there were several parties to be seen in the neighbourhood of Cologne on Sunday. They were carrying banners and though not large parties swung gaily along the road and appeared to be enjoying themselves. "Sport" was the ultimate object of these bands but just what sport we were unable to ascertain, owing to our imperfect study of the language. One could not but admire their keenness and the animation they put into their parade as though trying to outdo the rival parties in smartness.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Pte. D. Clark 1/6 West Yorks Rgt., c/o 41 C.C.S. Ward B2., Rhine Army, and Lieut. W. Bronson R.A.S.C., Investigation Dept. G.H.Q., Rhine Army.

NOTES FROM LONDON TOWN.

A FAMOUS RESTAURANT.

"Stone's," the famous Bohemian restaurant in Panton-street has been sold. For more than a century it has been a meeting place for many celebrated men. Oliver Goldsmith and Edmund Burke frequently dined here, and the place was known and recommended by Dickens. It is stated that for 30 years no woman has been known to dine at Stone's, and another tradition is that in the thirties of last century it was the only restaurant in the West End where clay pipes were allowed to be smoked. Panton-street derives its name from Col. Panton, a famous gamester, who, having realised a sudden fortune by keeping a gaming house in Piccadilly, had the good sense to invest his money in land and houses in the street, which at that time was avoided by respectable people after dark on account of the robbers who infested the neighbourhood.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.

The artificial flower-making industry which is mainly carried on in London is one of the trades whose prosperity is threatened by the opening of the door to unlimited competition. Before the war the trade in artificial flowers was largely in the hands of German merchants. When their products were prevented from coming in the number of British manufacturers considerably increased. Thousands of women are now employed and earn a good wage on piece-work. German and Austrian products are admittedly good in quality, but the methods and conditions of work result in very much cheaper production. Most of the manufacturing trade is situated in country towns in Saxony and Bohemia.

ETON MILLINERY.

The latest London sympton is an ultra-fashionable hat shop in Mount Street, in the exclusive purlieus of Piccadilly, opened and run by an Eton boy still in his 'teens. This precocious young artist calls himself "Artist-Milliner," all the models exhibited in his window are of his own design, and workmanship, and the West End connoisseurs declare that his hats are "simply too charming." This enterprising young gentleman is a son of the late Mr. William Allen, head of the well-known poster printers, who married Miss Cissie Graham, the popular and very clever actress, and no doubt inherits business capacity and artistic sense on both sides. Mrs. Allen was a great help to her husband in his business during the latter years of his life, and we may reasonably suppose that the charming lady is also taking more than a passing interest in her son's venture. But all the same it is rather wonderful, and, no doubt, we shall be told, quite a sign of the times.

WESTMINSTER BRIDGE.

Westminster Bridge, after years of strain through the increasing volume of wheeled traffic, has developed noisy vibrations in its superstructure. Engineers will tell you that there is nothing to be alarmed at in an iron bridge shaking, or a suspension bridge swinging under the weight of traffic; but Westminster Bridge does more than that. It rattles and groans, and makes a noise like stage-thunder. To quote the words of an eminent City engineer, who inspected the bridge, "it vibrates like an Atlantic liner and the vibrations are not only visible but audible."

DEMOBILIZING THE MOTORS.

A pageant akin with the procession of Victory Day through London is going on daily now. From far off on the London Road, at about breakfast time, there is a rumble. It comes nearer, and then for two or three hours there goes past a roaring string of skeleton cars of a heavy build, like land relatives of the bluff Thames tugs. There is sometimes a hiatus for a matter of five minutes; but a lady of half-an-hour gives the average result of one per minute. They generally come in threes, purring along each with a spare man on the driver's seat. They start from Bellingham (and a few from Slough), and go to Dover and Folkestone.

WHAT THE MODERN GIRL READS.

The girl in one corner of the carriage was reading Charlotte Brönte's "Villette." Her companion was buried in the first volume of "Sinister Street." These girls were not exceptional; they were typical. From careful observations in train and tube, tram and bus, one comes to the conclusion that there is little doubt but that the modern business girl is cultivating a taste for the finer things in literature. A suburban bookseller, questioned on this point, remarked that the sale and circulation of the more ephemeral type of novel is as extensive as ever, but its chief patron is the middle-aged woman.

MISSING LANDMARK.

The thermometer which for years has hung just inside Burton's screen at Hyde Park Corner has disappeared from its place. There are numbers of clubmen and other habitués of the neighbourhood who have never failed daily to consult this instrument, and who have felt all the better for knowing what the lowest temperature was during the preceding night. There will miss it badly. When people have nothing to do it is remarkable now a little self-imposed task like this will help to get one through the morning. It is to be hoped that the authorities will restore the thermometer to its old position without delay.

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

Winter Frocks Ready.

One of the first autumn shows of models has been held at Paquins, and left little doubt that the most notable change in women's gear in the coming winter will be that of width at the hips. The gowns were invariably broadened at each side below the waist line by pleated bunches, paniers, folds orfrills. But let nobody imagine that this means better times for the plump woman. Slimness is still essential to the new silhouette, for while what an architect would call the front and back elevations of a gown have a wide aspect the profile is no wider than before.

Still Short.

Gowns are still short. The Paquin winter models were as short as the early autumn frocks of the potential purchasers who sat about the white salon while the tall mannequins made their rounds. None, however, were so narrow as to hinder a moderate stride. Other notable points are that velvet, in rich sober tones, makes nearly all the hats, which still pull well down on the head, that wrap coats have very wide arm-holes and large collars, and that embroidery appears on nearly everything from gloves to hats. The the dansant fashion has evolved a type of afternoon gown which is so low-necked and fragile that the evening frock must be designed with great splendour or originality to give it distinction from the tea frock.

Topsy Turvy Fashions.

We are in for a topsy-turvy winter—and this in more senses than one. In the world of dress there is an extraordinary tendency to put unexpected materials to unexpected uses. For example, it is "the correct thing" to use furniture fabrics for elaborate gowns and to utilise thin crêpes, and even muslins, for pillow covers, chair covers, tablecloths, and so on. There is quite a craze for evening dresses made of furniture brocade and printed material—half cotton, half silk. I have also seen heavy metallic braids adopted for girdles and as borders for evening frocks! But the most curious fact of all is this: we are using organdie muslin for every possible and impossible purpose, very specially for pleated frills on satin, taffetas, serge, and duvetyn dresses."

Velvet Popular Again.

Velvet has come into its own again. It reappears this season as the fabric of fabrics for the indoor gown. Also it makes a further bid for favour as a hat material. Black velvet definitely leads the way for the first-mentioned purpose, but where the indoor dress is not black the richest possible colourings are chosen, either for the whole dress length or combined with the fairest of tulles and most fragile laces. Brocades, tissues, and flowered minons play a part in velvet evening wraps. These last are very voluminous affairs, much collared with linings so wonderful that one would fain reverse the position of the two materials, or else discard the cloak on the smallest possible pretext in order to display its beauties over theatre stall or chair-back.

Our Recipe.

By way of response to the expressed wish of a correspondent, we make a feature of a cookery recipe. Pick and wash two pounds of spinach, and cook it till tender; then drain, press well, and chop finely, or pass it through a sieve; season to taste with salt and pepper, and reheat with a little milk. Poach six eggs in water, containing a little salt and lemon juice to flavour. Butter the same number of scallop shells, and put a tablespoonful of spinach in each. Upon this place a poached egg, and spread over more spinach. Sprinkle the top with a little grated cheese and bread-crumbs. Place here and there a tiny piece of butter or margarine, and bake in a hot oven or brown under a gas grill for a few minutes. Dish up, garnish with sprigs of fresh parsley and serve. AGNES.

CABARET MUSIC.

"Why can't orchestras in the cafés give us something new? We have heard "Alexander's Ragtime Band" repeatedly during the last fortnight." Extract from "Cologne Post."

I.

O, Herr Conductor, can't you see
You're boring me to tears?
Why can't you play a melody
Less stricken grey with years?

II.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band," I know,
Is music classical;
But Adam sang it, sweet and low,
To Eve before the Fall.

III.

I cannot and I will not stand
The strains of "Parlez-vous;"
And, had you lived in the Holy Land
In B. C. Umpty-two,

IV.

You would have heard Methuselah
With all his bosom pals,
Strumming it on his guitar,
And singing to the gals.

V.

"Après la guerre finie," at best,
Has whiskers on it, hairy,
So play it not, but let it rest,
Or, if you do, — be wary!

VI.

For oft in dreams, I've heard it yelled
By shades of Julius Caesar,
Who, after he a war had held,
Sang to his wife to please her.

VII.

Poor Wife! — but that is not my yarn,
I would not start a quarrel;
So, if you would my pleasure earn,
Just listen to the moral.

VIII.

Don't play these tunes of Ancient Rome,
And ditties old as Eve,
I'd rather far hear "Home, Sweet Home,"
Or Vesta's "Six Day's Leave."

IX.

Let Ragtime yowling be taboo,
And syncopated measure;
I cannot stand the hullaballoo
Of darkies taking pleasure.

X.

So play the songs my father knew,
The songs that were my uncle's;
But don't play rags, whate'er you do,
Or I'll drown you in my "dunkels."

KING ALBERT INTERVIEWED.

FORCIBLE OPINIONS ON FUTURE RELATIONSHIPS BETWEEN BELGIUM AND GERMANY.

TAR AND FEATHERS COURT MARTIAL.

KING OF BELGIUM.

INTERVIEWED BY ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT.

The King of the Belgians, who left Ostend on Monday on a visit to the United States, consented to be interviewed in Brussels by Mr. Greenwall, the "Daily Express" correspondent.

King Albert, who spoke in English, said he was going to return the visit paid by President Wilson and to thank the American people for what they did for Belgium.

"We Belgians," he said, "can never be sufficiently grateful to England and the English people for what they did for us during the war. And your Press, too; not only did it keep up our morale but it afforded us very material assistance. The British Navy played a very great and decisive role in winning the war and I consider it a pity that people throughout the world are not more conversant with the part your Navy played. Your soldiers, of course, were magnificent, as we knew they would be when England came into the war for Belgium's sake. And your flying men! Do you know that one day I saw a solitary Englishman attack a whole German squadron? But that was not out of the way. They were always attacking and flying in all kinds of weather. Your airmen were best of all."

The correspondent asked the King to say what he thought of the future of Belgium's relations with Germany. "Hatred of the Germans must continue for years" he replied. "No doubt commercial relations will be resumed. That is natural; but hate — can you imagine what it is like? The worst thing the Germans did, after violating Belgium's neutrality, was the shooting of civilians, about six hundred of whom were shot. Then there was the wanton destruction of factories and the deportation of civilians, which took the Germans back to primeval times. These things will never be forgotten or forgiven."

In reply to the correspondent's remark on the wonderful courage of the Belgians who were working whole-heartedly to repair the damage done to their country, King Albert said: "My people are among the most industrious of the world. In 1830 we had only three and a half millions population: to-day we have seven and a half millions."

Asked for his opinion on the League of Nations the King replied that wise statesmen believed in it but he agreed with Mr. Lloyd George that its success depended on the spirit in which the nations entered it. "Your Majesty," the correspondent asked, "Should the League of Nations not be successful and should war again threaten Europe, would your people act as they did in 1914?" "The King," says the correspondent, "looked me straight in the eyes and speaking in a most emphatic manner said 'There is no doubt of it, no doubt at all.'"

BOLSHEVIST EXCESSES.

Reuter's correspondent at Poltava sends details of Bolshevist excesses in that district. Peasants in the surrounding villages were threatened with death unless they denounced "landowners." Huge levies were made on some villages, one being fined seventy thousand roubles. Grain was confiscated wherever found. When evacuating Poltava the Bolshevists threatened to shoot all males between fifteen and forty-five unless they joined them. Most refined ladies were arrested and imprisoned with the lowest class of criminals and prostitutes. Every kind of property was seized for the needs of the Red Army, even including ladies' hats, dresses and underclothes.

SMUTS' DECLARATION.

The special session of the South African Parliament concluded with another speech by General Smuts, After hinting at the possibility of new elections he appealed for a new start. In South Africa they had ample scope as a free nation. He urged the close o-operation of the Whites, declaring that never again would he be a party to racial division in South Africa. He emphasised the fact that the great task ahead was not a racial but an industrial one. South Africans, while preserving their sacred national traditions, must join in the world's great work.

GENERAL HOOTED.

When General Mannerheim, the Finnish General, arrived at Stockholm from Helsingfors on Wednesday big crowds assembled on the quays. They were composed chiefly of Socialists and greeted the General with whistles and shouts of "Long live the Republic" and "Down with Mannerheim." Three arrests were made.

The freedom of the city of Edinburgh is being presented to President Poincaré during the course of the next month.

TAR AND FEATHERS CASE

COURT MARTIAL DECISION.

The decision of the court-martial in the tar and feathers case was announced to Lieut. F. T. Wright at the military headquarters, Cambridge, by Major Braithwaite Wallis, the Assistant Provost Marshal, in the presence of Major Minchester, commanding the Provisional Company of Royal Fusiliers at Cambridge. The court found Lieut. Wright guilty and sentenced him to be reprimanded.

Lieut. Wright said in an interview that both officers shook hands with him and congratulated him on the result. He expressed himself quite satisfied with the result. Neither his rank, seniority, nor pay was touched.

He expects instant recall to his military duties in the East. To the suggestion that he must have found the affair expensive, he said that from beginning to end he had not spent more than £12, and he had never had better value for the money. His biggest expense was £4 15s. for the chain with which Sub-Lieut. Kinahan was fastened by him to a tree in Harvey-road, Cambridge.

GERMAN EXPORTS.

CARGOES MAY GO TO ARGENTINA.

Among the questions decided by the Allied Supreme Economic Council at Brussels at its meeting was: That in cases where no Allied cargo is available, ships formerly belonging to Germany which are going to the Argentine to load with cereals for Germany shall take out German goods.

This concession was made at the request of the German Government.

Among the other questions studied were the supply of medicines to Poland, the coal supply and transport of Central Europe, and the requests for supplies by Germany and Austria. The measures proposed by the Committee on Maritime Transport for the distribution and handing over of German oil ships to the Allies was approved. The immediate suppression of the black lists suspended since April 28 was decided. A long discussion also took place on the Allied policy with regard to raw materials and the situation created by insufficient production and defective distribution.

PRISON FOR PROFITEER.

Reginald Bevan, butcher's manager, of High-road, Streatham, London, summoned by the Wandsworth Food Control Committee in connection with an excess charge of 4d. a pound on a joint of veal, was sentenced to twenty-one days in the Second Division at the South-Western Police Court, London. His employer, Harold Rogers, was fined £50, with £5 5s. costs, and Frank Elliott, shopman, was fined £5.

The magistrate said that there had been a deliberate attempt to override the regulations. Notice of appeal against the sentence on Bevan was given.

TROTZKY'S WAY WITH GUARDS.

Stockholm telegrams from Petrograd state that the Soviet has received an official communication from Trotzky saying that in the near future several Bashkirian divisions will arrive to reinforce the Petrograd garrison and the troops on the North-West front. The Soviet has sent its congratulations to the Bashkirian Republic in South-West Russia and has resolved to grant the Bashkirs special pay, rations and accommodation. These Bashkirs will either replace or reinforce the Chinese Communist battalions which act in rear of the Red troops in order to compel them to go in to attacks.

GABRIELE CUT OFF.

According to the latest reports, the situation at Fiume is unchanged, no reliable information regarding what is actually happening in the city being obtainable, as all communications are cut off. It is estimated that D'Annunzio has about two thousand troops under his control, including a hundred sailors.

A Rome newspaper says that no volunteers have left Rome for Fiume and from other towns there has only been one volunteer, an officer who formerly served under D'Annunzio.

GERMAN CRUISER NOT TO SAIL.

A Berlin evening newspaper recently announced that the German cruiser Regensburg is being prepared with a view to bringing back from South America all the Germans interned there. The Board of Admiralty announces that no permission has been given for the Regensburg to proceed to South America under the armistice terms.

SMILLIE'S LATEST.

STILL SHORTER HOURS AND MORE PAY.

The disregard of Mr. Smillie, President of the Miners' Federation, for the elementary laws of economic, becomes more fantastic. Speaking at a demonstration in Hanley Park, Staffs, he said they were going to nationalise the mines in spite of the Duke of Northumberland. Under nationalisation they would be able to increase the output of coal and reduce the price to the utmost possible limit. If the miners could obtain nationalisation by the influence of public opinion and by the support of other Trades Unions without a strike they would be only too pleased, but whatever happened they were absolutely firm in their demand for nationalisation. The miners, proceeded the speaker, wanted a still shorter working day and more pay.

A resolution was carried unanimously calling upon all concerned to support the Federation's endeavours by all legitimate means to secure nationalisation, an effective voice from the workers in the control of industry, reduced hours, substantial rates of wages, adequate compensation for the injured, pensions for the aged, the elimination of profiteering, and improved inducements and facilities for increasing output.

RISKS OF AUSTRALIAN FLIGHT.

General Borton and Captain Rossmith, of the Australian Flying Corps, have returned to England and presented the report of their mission (the surveying of the air route between Calcutta and Port Darwin) to a conference of representatives of the Air Ministry and the Australian Government Royal Aero Club in connection with the flight from England to Australia for a prize of ten thousand sterling offered by the Australian Government.

They report that beyond Calcutta the country is very unfavourable for flying, the only landing grounds between Calcutta and the Dutch East Indies being the racecourses at Rangoon and Singapore. Beyond Singapore the only possible landing place is Bandoorg and thence to Port Darwin, a distance of 1,760 miles, there is no landing ground. General Borton said that only an aeroplane with a range of at least two thousand miles could make the attempt with any hope of success. The route between London and Delhi is more favourable but owing to the abnormal weather conditions after November competitors might have to fly via Malta and the North coast of Africa to Cairo, entailing greater difficulties between there and India owing to the vast stretches of uncivilised country.

MARSHAL JOFFRE.

TO VISIT COLOGNE TO-DAY.

We understand Marshal Joffre is paying a visit to Cologne to-day, and that he will arrive on the square in front of the Cathedral at 5 p.m. where he will be received by the Commander-in-Chief. Two troops of the 6th (Inniskilling) Dragoons, the 20th Bn. of the Durham Light Infantry, and a unit of the Tank Corps will be on parade in the square.

HALDANE PROPHESIES.

Addressing the Manchester Liberal Federation Viscount Haldane said the Liberal Party is not in a good way. It had been too conservative. While the by-elections showed a general determination to turn out the Coalition they did not indicate any desire to put the Liberals in.

He prophesied that the next election would result in the formation of six groups in the House of Commons. There would be about 150 Liberals, 120 Labour members, 100 Lloyd-Georgites, 100 Progressive Conservatives, 100 old Conservatives, and 100 detached Irish members of various shades of opinion.

The Liberals really needed to shake off traditionalism. Only so would they regain their lead. He concluded by saying that underlying essentials, the necessity of the nation was to increase production.

EXIT WAR OFFICE TEMPORARIES.

It is reported that by the end of this month practically all temporary officers employed at the War Office will be demobilized. In most cases their duties will be taken over by regular officers whereby considerable economy, it is hoped, will be effected. The Treasury has issued a White Paper relating to the staffs of various Government departments. As compared with the numbers on July 1st, August showed an increase of 2,237. The Ministry of Munitions, Ministry of Labour, Admiralty, War Office, and Board of Trade show decreases, but the Post Office and the Pensions Ministry large increases.

A NEW SHAW PLAY.

Mr. George Bernard Shaw is shortly publishing a new play under the title "Heartbreak House," which is described as a fantasia in the Russian manner on English themes. Mr. Shaw explains in a long preface why the play, which was written during the war, could not then be produced. The war, he says, had completely upset the economic conditions which formerly enabled a serious drama to be produced in London.

FRENCH ARMY.

CONSCRIPTION REGULATIONS REVISED.

In the French Army Senate Commission M. Doumer communicated the text of a note, from the sub-Committee on Armaments, dealing with the reorganisation of the French Army. The note says that the army will be recruited in the first place by calling up of the annual class for active military service (reduced to one year), which will yield two hundred thousand men instead of six hundred thousand as previously. In the second place enlistments for the regular section of the army are expected to yield one hundred and fifty thousand, making the total strength three hundred and fifty thousand.

Six infantry divisions will be kept in the Army of Occupation, including one each from the North African Army and the Colonial Corps. The cavalry will be reduced to four divisions, including one for the Rhine.

Thus on a peace footing the French Army will number three hundred and fifty thousand and on a war footing one million three hundred thousand. Territorials and reserves will constitute a further force of about two millions for possible emergencies.

NO MORAL SENSE.

BOY PUSHES HIS BROTHER INTO THE WATER.

The story of a boy who did not know the difference between right and wrong was told at an inquest at Horwich, near Manchester. The inquiry was into the death of a six-year-old boy named John Ferris, whose body, with his ankles and wrists tied, was found in a weir.

This discovery was made six days after the boy was missed, and his elder brother Harold, aged 12, had taken part in the search for him. Afterwards, according to the police evidence, Harold said he met John near the water and, saying to him, "Let's play," tied his hands and feet with string and "pushed him into the water and left him." He did not know what made him do it, Harold added.

The headmaster of the school Harold attends said he is in Standard VII. but "apart from his lessons showed utter callousness and did not seem to know the difference between right and wrong."

SMARTEST THIEF IN ENGLAND.

"You are one of the smartest men in England," said Mr. Montague Sharpe at Middlesex Sessions, to Harry Frank Young, 27, a well-dressed man, who was charged with stealing two motor-cycles and £5 10s. at Hendon. He induced the owners of the cycles to let him try them, and he never returned.

The prisoner had confessed to having stolen twenty-five other motor-cycles and to fourteen cases of cheque fraud. The cheques were made out to ex-soldiers and were to the order of the Ministry of Pensions.

He is said to be one of the cleverest motor-cycle thieves in the country.

Mr. Sharpe said had prisoner not asked the court to take into consideration all his offences he would have, on completing one sentence, been brought up to answer another charge, and so he would have spent the rest of his life in prison. He ordered the prisoner five years' penal servitude.

ADMIRAL'S RETORT COURTEOUS

Lord Fisher's latest letter to the "Times", written in his usual breezy but obscure vein, is followed by one from Admiral Sir Arthur Fanshawe, who doubts whether "so unnecessary a number of forcible adjectives not usually employed between gentlemen and certainly hitherto never employed between naval officers in the many controversies of the past, can promote either respect for himself or add force to the opinions he expresses."

NO VOTES FOR FRENCHWOMEN.

The French Senate Commission has rejected the Bill passed by the Chamber of Deputies granting women the right to vote and stand for election.

A munitions explosion at Park Royal shook the Northern and Western suburbs of London. Many windows were smashed. One man was injured.

A Geneva paper states that marriages are being arranged between Princes George and Paul, two sons of the ex-King of the Hellenes, with heiresses of humble birth residing in the Canton Vaud.

The Rev. H. J. Martin, vicar of Holy Trinity, Old Brompton, has been fined £2 and costs for assaulting a servant girl in his employ. It was alleged that he kissed her in the bathroom.

8,000 men are to be discharged from Portsmouth Dockyard by the end of next March. This will bring the Dockyard establishment to its pre-war numbers of about 12,000 men, excluding officers.

Antiquities valued t £30,000 have been stolen by burglars from the William Tower at Dillenburg, Holland, where a collection of objects associated with William the Silent and the House of Orange-Nassau were preserved.

The British Government has promised to advance £500,000 to foster the treatment of spelter in Australia, it is intended to make a systematic scientific search for oil in Australia and in the new Pacific possessions.

BABY FARM.

HEAVY SENTENCE ON INHUMAN WOMAN.

The trial of Henry Melville Hatchard, 52, a clerk, and Beatrice Hatchard, 47, his wife, for the manslaughter of two children and the neglect of four others, was ended at the Old Bailey in the man being acquitted and the woman being sentenced to five year's penal servitude.

When the police entered the prisoners' house in Carlton Road, Leytonstone, they found nine children in a terrible state, and one baby dead in a perambulator. The children were removed to the workhouse, where four of them were so ill that they had to be placed in the infirmary.

The male prisoner, giving evidence, said he worked early and late and went to the Salvation Army meetings three times on Sundays. He had not been in the upper rooms for two years, and only knew of three children being in the house. They were always well and strong.

The woman declined to give evidence.

Mr. Justice Darling said the evidence showed that the children were underfed and kept in a state of almost incredible filth.

If the woman had been indicted for murder she would have stood in very grave danger.

BRITAIN'S AID TO FRANCE AND ITALY.

Many fascinating and hitherto unpublished facts are contained in the British War Cabinet's second annual report. It is made known that in 1918 France had the equivalent of over one million tons gross of British shipping in her service, that 43 per cent. of the total imports into France and 45 per cent. of French imports of coal were carried in British ships.

Out of 2,732,000 tons, 1,725,000 tons of cereals for human consumption were carried in British ships in the cereal year ending August 31, 1918, to France. France had in her service over 400,000 tons gross of neutral shipping obtained by our assistance.

The following facts are given in respect to Italy. Italy had the equivalent of about three-quarters of a million tons gross of British shipping in her service. About 49 per cent. of her total imports, 79 per cent of her coal, and 960,000 tons of cereals for human consumption out of 2,774,000 tons were carried in British ships.

BRITISH MISSION CAPTURED.

A British mission has been captured in Arabia. The mission, of about twenty to thirty members, which had been sent to the Iman of Yemen, was captured by the Ouhra Sheikhs at Bajil.

Their lives were at first threatened, but it is now reported that no harm was done to them, and their release is probable. It is expected, however, that the Sheikhs will make use of the fact that they hold this mission prisoners to extort better terms from the Imam with regard to the points on which they differ.

SPANISH LINER SUNK 450 MISSING.

It is feared that the passengers and crew of the Spanish steamer Valbanera, sunk in the Gulf of Mexico, have all been lost. She had been missing since the hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico a fortnight ago. The hull has been found off Rebecca Shoals light Florida. The vessel was on a trip from Spain to Havana.

Divers report that the name Valbanera is plainly discernible. There is no trace of the 300 passengers and 150 crew which the steamer had on board. The vessel lies in 40ft. of water. Nothing has been heard of the Valbanera since she appeared off Morro Castle, Havana, on September 9, and put to sea, endeavouring to ride out the storm.

WOOLWICH DISCHARGES.

Discharges from Woolwich Arsenal, which have been somewhat heavy during the past few weeks, are again numerous. Probably more than a thousand employees were paid off on Saturday. The protest committee, which appointed a deputation to wait upon the Prime Minister, was received by Mr. Lloyd George on Monday. It placed before the Premier the view of many workers that the assurance given in December last that alternative work should be given to the Arsenal is not in process of fulfilment.

GOOD NEWS FOR DOGS.

The Board of Agriculture is preparing orders to remove entirely the dog muzzling restriction from that part of Essex included in the London area, a small portion of East Surrey and a number of parishes in Middlesex, Hertfordshire and Buckinghamshire. The whole of Kent, Devonshire and Cornwall will be freed from the control orders.

The ironfounders strike commenced on Monday, no settlement having been reached. Some fifty thousand men are affected.

Delegates representing eighteen South Wales tin plate works met at Cardiff and decided that work shall cease on Saturday next unless all employees benefit under the recent 12½ per cent award.

ROYAL WARRANT.

OFFICERS' APPOINTMENTS (CONTINUED).

EIGHTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

Officers already holding vested rights to special rates under the Pay Warrant, dated December 1, 1914, will continue to retain them under the same conditions as hitherto in force.

RETIREMENT AND RETIRED PAY.

TABLE XVI.

1. Retired pay will consist of two parts, (a) a service element based on the officer's total service; (b) a rank element for the rank from which the officer retires. An officer with less than 15 complete years' service will not be eligible for retired pay.

2. For combatant officers, other than those mentioned in subsequent paragraphs, the scale will be as follows:—

(a) Service element—£150 a year after 15 years' service, with an increment of £15 a year for each completed year over 15.

(b) Rank element:—

Rank from which retired.	After completing 1 year's service in the rank.	After completing each additional year's service.	Maximum rank element.
	£	£	£
Major	12	12	120
Lieut.-Colonel .	150	50	240
Colonel	290	50	390
Major-General .	440	50	540
Lieut.-General .	590	50	690
General	740	50	840

The retired pay of an officer retiring with less than one complete year's service in the rank from which he retires will be assessed as though he had retired from the rank below.

Maximum rates of retired pay (a) and (b) together:—

	£
Captain and Subaltern	300
Major	450
Lieutenant-Colonel	600
Colonel	800
Major-General	1,000
Lieutenant-General	1,200
General	1,400

An officer with 10 and less than 15 years' commissioned service may retire with a gratuity of £100 for each completed year of commissioned service.

3. The scale of retiring pay in paragraph 2, will also apply to officers of the Royal Army Ordnance Department, of the Army Pay Department, the Army Medical and Veterinary Services, to Inspectors of Ordnance Machinery and Mechanical Transport, to the Military Accountant officers, and to officers of Military Detention Barracks and Military prisons.

It will also apply to Quartermasters, Ridingmasters, District Officers, Royal Artillery, Coast Battalion Officers, Royal Engineers, Directors of Music, Assistant Paymasters and Inspectors of Army Schools, but in the case of these officers the only rank element will be that for the rank of Major.

It will not apply to officers of the Royal Army Chaplains' Department, to Inspectors of Works, or to officers of the Royal Malta Artillery. The rates to apply to these officers are under consideration.

4. The gratuities and retired pay of officers commissioned from the ranks during the Great War as shown in Article 572a of the Pay Warrant, will be modified as follows:—

(1) The gratuities will be increased by 50 per cent.

(2) The retired pay will be £50 instead of £80.

(3) In addition to the gratuity as calculated under (1) of this paragraph, the sum of £200 or £500 will be paid to Majors or Lieutenant-Colonels respectively on retirement under Article 572A provided the rank had been held in the aggregate for 182 days, any period less than 182 days as Lieutenant-Colonel counting towards the qualifying period for the extra gratuity of £200 as Major.

Increases of gratuity under this paragraph will apply to officers who retired under Article 572A before April 1, 1919, as well as to those who retire after that date.

5. The rates of retired pay in the foregoing paragraphs will be payable as from April 1, 1919, to all permanent regular officers who, being otherwise entitled, have given paid military service to the satisfaction of the Army Council during the Great War, including officers who, having retired on retired pay, before the war, have been re-employed as officers during the war and have thereafter reverted to retirement. The retired pay of the latter officers will be reassessed on their service prior to original retirement.

Retired officers taken into employment during the war under Article 496, Pay Warrant, will not draw the new rates of retired pay while they are in receipt of full pay (either of their rank or of the appointments they hold while re-employed) in addition to retired pay. Officers employed before the war under Article 499, Pay Warrant, who continue to serve under that Article, will be eligible for the new rates, notwithstanding that they draw pay under Article 499.

The position of officers who have, under Article 120 and 482A of the Pay Warrant, been retained beyond the date on which they became liable to be retired is under consideration.

6. The present regulations as to counting of service, the age of service at which voluntary retirement in the several arms and ranks is allowed, and the conditions for compulsory retirement will remain as at present in the absence of instructions to the contrary.

(To be Continued.)

The French General Election will be held as soon as possible after the ratification of the Peace Treaty.

THE WIFE ON THE RHINE

"Do you understand women?" asks a cynical character in one of the works of a gifted and popular author, to which the person interrogated boldly answers "Yes." "Are you married?" is the next query, to which the reply is again in the affirmative. This brings the parting, categorical shot, "Oh, then you don't understand women!"

In our correspondence columns the everlasting subject of women has been unquestionably the topic most fruitful of discussion, some of it serious but most of it gay.

The latest theme, which has not gone unnoticed in our "sea-girt isle", where the "Daily Mail" and other newspapers have given it publicity, concerns the presence of soldiers' wives on the Rhine, and whether they interfere with the military efficiency of the partners of their joys and sorrows.

Some of the critics manifestly understand women, but others do not. After a separation, which in many cases has not only been lengthy but painful, the opportunity has arrived for a welcome reunion, albeit on alien soil, of husbands and wives.

Who shall ever plumb the depths of tearful sorrow, bitter anguish, poignant distress, fitful melancholy, and nerve-racking anxiety experienced by thousands of lonely heroines at the domestic hearth when the lord and master went forth to battle for kith and kin?

"It were better for me to go down to the grave if I lose thee," wails Andromache to Hector in the "Iliad" on the eve of his departure for the fray, "for never will any comfort be mine when once thou, even thou hast met thy fate, but only sorrow."

Thousands of hitherto happy homes, from the lordly mansion to the humble tenement or flat, housed a Hector and Andromache, whose grief no immortal Homer has sung in priceless verse. Who can recall without a heavy heart the last day, the last meal, the last tearful embrace?

Who is he at this late hour who will deny them the happiness of the conjugal state almost under any circumstances?

For years the British Army has provided for the living together of husbands and wives, which is ample proof that in the eyes of the authorities no impairment of efficiency has resulted. If in Rhineland, as is alleged, a husband here and there, owing to the propinquity of his spouse and the attractions of the Perfume City, is not performing his duties satisfactorily, there are official ways and means by which the delinquent can readily and easily be chastised, and obliged to reform his erring ways.

It is inevitable that the voice of the croaker must ever be heard in the land, but his grievance concerning the wife on the Rhine is ungenerous, unmanly, and uncalled for. Let him find another windmill, or if necessary another petticoat, at which to tilt.

WHAT TO SEE IN RHINELAND.

THE CHURCH OF ST. GEREON.

Many people imagine that when they have visited the Dom, they have exhausted the city's treasury of ecclesiastical architecture: in reality they have only just begun.

There at at least five of the Parish Churches which are quite as interesting, for they are much older, certain things far more worth seeing, and in many ways are much more beautiful. These are St. Maria im Capitol, the Apostles Church, St. Ursula, St. Martin and best of all St. Gereon.

The Church of St. Gereon, which one can easily reach by taking a No. 18 car from the Dom, is a building of extraordinary beauty and interest and is certainly one of the most wonderful churches in Europe.

As one approaches it from the Unter Sachsenhausen one is at once struck by the picturesque effect of the arrangement of the East-end, with its two slender towers, and its miniature gallery, showing behind, the bulk of the decagonal Nave, but the exterior, beautiful as it is, does not prepare one for the wealth and richness of the interior and few will forget their first glimpse of this early Christian fane.

The entrance is through a quadrangular vestuble which contains a beautiful mediaeval "Entombment" (which should be compared with the one at St. Maria im Capitol) and a striking modern Pietà.

Passing through the iron screen one enters the Nave; it is decagonal in shape, and lighted by four tiers of windows filled with richly coloured stained glass. In recesses all round are small chapels which hold the stone coffins of the martyrs, half built into the walls. In the East-Chapel but one on the right, a door leads to the octagonal Baptistery, a jewel of early Gothics, which contains some defaced mural paintings.

The High Altar is approached by a flight of 19 steps, and behind is a long Romanesque Choir (11th century). This contains some most beautiful fifteenth century stalls, each of which is worth a minute inspection, for the carving is very remarkable: and in the walls above under gilded arabesques are arranged the skulls of the martyrs whose bones rest in the stone coffins in the chapels of the Nave. On the right is the 14th century Sacristy.

But even yet the interest of this wonderful Church is not exhausted, and descending to the Nave, we take our way to the Crypt. This is approached through two archways on either side of the steps leading to the Chapel. It consists of three aisles divided by eighteen light and delicate Romanesque columns, and it contains a very interesting Mosaic Pavement of great antiquity, with scenes from the lives of Samson and David, and also the Signs of the Zodiac.

The best time to visit the Church is in the early evening when the sun is pouring through the Western windows and lighting up the paintings on the ceilings and walls; it is a perfect riot of colour: and the best view of the Church is obtained by climbing up the organ top over the West door.

A.B.S.

MY GREAT IDEA.

A COMBINED SOLUTION FOR AND FIXING DEVELOPING.

I have worked on it for years! Ever since, as a boy of ten, I possessed my first No. 1 Brownie I have believed it possible.

Lately, with the extensive leisure which the Army gives to its devotees, I have been actively engaged in research on the subject. Judge then my intense chagrin when I find myself forestalled: when I see the idea that I thought was mine alone, casually given to the world in an article by a Photographic Expert.

But mine was to have been such a wonderful solution. Daily for months have I sweltered in the "fug" of my dark-room for the benefit of photographers in general and my pocket in particular.

Daily were new and powerful properties added to the solution till at last it was ready for the market. There only lacked bottles and labels; now it is of no use.

Every spot of spent developer, every ounce of used up hypo have I carefully conserved in my huge collecting tank, ensuring intimate admixture by a laboriously constructed electrical device of my own. Cigarette ends and pipe dottels have added their quota of valuable coal-tar products and alkaloids.

The unexpended portion of numerous shaving-sticks and the washings of innumerable hair-oil bottles have secured a remarkable cleanliness of working and brilliancy of results, while a large consignment of No. 9's, secured at great personal risk from the Medical stores, has given a speed of action never before equalled in any photographic process.

Thus have I dreamed of greatness. I, the inventor of the world's first effective "Combined Developing and Fixing Solution." But my bubble is pricked. The "Cologne Post" Photographic expert in his casual "Developed and fixed in hypo" has shattered my dreams.

It is so simple, so amazingly simple that only the greatest of minds could have conceived it.

Generations of chemists and photographers have spent untold wealth in devising weird and wonderful solutions for the development of negatives — to be afterwards fixed in hypo — when all that is really necessary is to "Develop and fix in hypo."

I don't think I shall have the heart to try it.

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

THE TRACTOR DRIVER.

AN INCIDENT OF YPRES.

It is seldom that Field Artillery men have very much connection with Mechanical Transport although they may often envy the motor car of their Garrison brethren dashing off to the nearest large town for officers' mess or canteen stores.

In November 1917, however, in moving one of our guns from one horrible position on the Steenbeck to an almost equally bad one near Langemarck, the guide forgot that at one place the road had completely ceased to exist, and the way should have led on fascines round a twenty-foot shell-hole.

In the dark the team, limber and gun plunged into the hole and it was only with difficulty that the drivers got their horses out of the clinging mud.

As soon as it was light enough to see, next morning, the gunners were busy attempting to get them out, but although with the united efforts of the men of another battery of the brigade, the limber was pulled out of the mire, even with the aid of five garrison gunners,—the really "hefty" six-foot-three-inch sort — who happened to be passing we only pulled the iron hooks of our drag ropes straight, and the gun remained firm.

The whole of the ridge behind the Steenbeck on which we were working being in view of the enemy, the work was hampered and finally stopped by the attention paid by the enemy Artillery to our waiting team—C sub's prize Greys—which had been ordered up in anticipation of the gun having been salved. Further work with spades and levers next morning only seeming to have the effect of settling the wheels more firmly in their bed, it was finally decided that help should be requested. At no other place on the whole British front should we have dreamed of such a thing, although there had been some soft spots on the Somme, but at Ypres that winter abandoned guns in shell holes, etc., were only too common.

It is probable that at "Kansas Cross" on the Passchendale side of the Salient, the number of "derelicts" at one time averaged over a dozen per thousand yards square.

We had heard rumours of Tanks being sent to the aid of such guns as ours, but on reporting the position to the Brigade Head Quarters we were speedily paid a visit by a young A.S.C. subaltern. After consuming a rather hurried breakfast with us in our tiny pill-box, he was able to inspect the road and promised if we could mend various holes therein, he would send up a real live "Holt" caterpillar tractor. Dates and hours having been arranged, he departed with our blessing.

Throughout that and the following day we worked at every possible moment carrying pit-props, bits of concrete from demolished pillboxes and every other kind of solid material we could lay hands on, and dumping it in the holes. By night we had made quite a passable job of it and were able to report "All ready."

At dawn next morning the tractor arrived—certainly at that moment the most advanced tractor in that part of the British front.

Unfortunately we had reckoned without the Bosche gunners, a lucky shell from whom, during the nightly "hate," had pitched on the road about thirty yards from the gun, not merely making a hole, but blowing away part of the side of the road.

There were neither materials, nor the time available to mend it, so the tractor driver stopped, saying that the remaining portion of the road was too narrow to carry the machine. There was nothing else to do but to try and reach it with his cable, but after two wire hausers and some odd lengths of chain had been paid out, we still wanted about five feet to reach the trail eye. Although doubtful of the result, we had to use doubled and trebled drag ropes to complete the connection. On the signal being given, the driver slowly let in his clutch and took the strain, but with a loud "crack" the drag-ropes snapped like tinder.

This was very discouraging and we were still debating what we should do next when we heard a sudden snort and a roar behind us and found that the trusty driver had succeeded in some mysterious way in making his unwieldy-looking machine leap across the narrow part.

It was only a matter of a few seconds to now connect up the chain direct to the trail, and on the signal again being given, with a "pop" the old gun came out of the mud like a cork out of a bottle.

Before the morning mist had rolled away to reveal them to the Bosche, both gun and tractor were well away beyond "Iron Cross," the former to the wagon-line for a thorough cleaning and the latter to its home in some old ruin near Elverdinghe.

We never knew whether the tractor driver got any special reward for his work, but we thought he deserved one.

CUPID IN RAGS.

German visitors to London seeking signs of the destruction wrought by war would not find much satisfaction. The scars of peace are, on the other hand, very much in evidence. Nelson's Column braved the years of war unscathed, but the Armistice revels left their mark on the granite of the plinth, while the column itself is still under the care of the official steeple-jack. It is swathed in ropes and crowned with scaffolding. Something seems to have happened also to the Crimea Memorial in Waterloo-place, for it is surrounded with scaffolding. Queen Victoria's statue at Temple Bar was damaged during the removal of the Peace decorations. Another Queen Victoria memorial, the obelisk in front of Kensington Town Hall, is disfigured with the brightly-coloured appeals of the Air Force. But saddest and most disreputable of all is the winged cupid in Piccadilly-circus. He was a jolly fellow enough when he emerged from his retirement and presided once more over the flower-sellers round the fountain. But peace time has been too much for him. His bow is broken and twisted, while, to complete his air of rakish decrepitude, a girdle of flapping rags encircles his middle, sorry remnants of the brighter moments of the Peace celebrations.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

"NO CHILDREN."

Sir:—I was astonished at the reception afforded me to-day when I entered the "Ewige Lampe" to give a tired wife and a still more tired daughter some much needed tea.

I was coolly informed by a Corporal that, "Children are not allowed," so we had to make an undignified exit and enter the rival establisment over the way, where we were received with all courtesy.

If hospitality can be shown to Belgian nurses, surely it may be offered freely to the sons and daughters of our British fighting men!

PATERFAMILIAS.

LEARNING SPANISH.

Sir,—"Let's learn Spanish" is the new cry of those up against the language problem. "Let's learn Russian" was the cry early in the war, and yet these languages are useful only in a very limited sphere.

Let the foreign representative who actually lives abroad, learn the language of the particular country, but for all other business matters Esperanto is the practical language, because it brings the world's markets and the world's buyers together, not two countries, but all countries.

But still "Let's learn Spanish", anything difficult, and mysterious, but don't do the practical thing, learn Esperanto.

W. F. M.

GERMANY AND SOUTH-AMERICA.

Sir, - It is perfectly certain that Germany is casting longing eyes on the possibility of re-establishing her enterprises in the Spanish speaking countries in the Western Hemisphere hence the despatch of a man-of-war manned, presumably, by commercial agents.

It is up to us to get there first and to get there with a knowledge of the language in use there.

The moral is "Learn Spanish and learn it quickly." Italian would be another valuable asset.

MIENWAS.

PRICES TO SOLDIERS.

Sir,—Last month I bought an alarm clock in Hohestrasse, for 15 marks, and to-day I went to get a similar thing for my pal and they charged me 25.50.

Another instance is when I bought two furriers knives for 13 marks, and this week I got another two and they charged me 20.50 marks and I could mention a score of other things.

I think our authorities ought to compel these profiteers to put the price on all articles, and make the same price for soldiers and civilians, as at present a soldier has only to walk into a shop and ask for an article and he generally finds no price attached and therefore they charge what they like.

I think this is a matter that ought to be seen into straight away. What do others say, who have been had in a similar way?

FAIRPLAY.

THE APPEAL OF WAGNER.

Sir, — Opportunities of hearing good opera are rarer in England than here in Cologne, yet perhaps many soldiers return to England with regret that they were unable to hear more opera while in Cologne.

Indeed our chances of hearing Wagner are restricted by the shortness of our stay here and by the scarcity of seating accommodation. Soldiers who wish to get the best out of their visit to Germany should put in as many attendances at Wagner's operas played in Germany as they can manage.

I wonder if Bachelor would agree with my wife, who considers that the English in Cologne who are not on duty there should deny themselves the pleasure of visiting the opera house on crowded nights so that they may not deprive those on duty of their right in this matter.

MARITO MA NON TROPPO.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir,—The reason for the wives of officers and men coming out to Rhineland was to cheer up the hubbies a bit, but now I want to know what about letting the N.A.C.B.'s the W.A.A.C.'s and the W.R.A.F.'s have their husbands out here too?

N.A.C.B.

Sir,—Having followed the correspondence regarding "Wives and efficiency" pretty closely may I as another of the bachelor tribe be allowed to take up the cudgels.

"V.A.D." with the peculiar perverseness associated with the other sex comes forth with a vitriolic outburst against "Bachelor" and promptly retires behind her sandbags, but she does not help us in any way to solve the question as to whether the presence of wives in the Rhineland tends to decreased efficiency.

"War Gunner" and others with a lofty wave of the hand bring forth the argument of "Sour Grapes"

I consider the whole thing viewed with a cold impartial eye to be summed up in the answer "Yes". The presence of wives naturally tends to decreased efficiency in the fortunate ones who have their wives out here. It follows most naturally that hubby wants time off here and there to do the honours to wifey.

I cannot agree with "Bachelor" however in bringing his grievance to publicity. Personally, as a bachelor, I should be only too pleased to oblige a pal who was lucky enough to have his better half with him in Rhineland.

The question of "Sour Grapes" is quite beside the point.

"HAWKEYE."

TRAVELLING ON FRENCH RAILWAYS.

Sir,—I understand that the wives and families of officers travelling from stations in France to the occupied area are to be allowed to travel at half-rate fares.

Why is not a similar concession available over the Belgian railways? Much of the rolling stock is German, yet the full fare is demanded over the much used route Ostend to Cologne.

My own experience is that it is a route to be avoided; but since this is impossible, the Belgian State railways should, for reasons which will readily come to mind, fall into line.

BRAIN v. BRAIN.

The Only Solution of the Offside Problem.

Once again the offside topic is arousing a great controversy and we have the "Daily Mail" suggesting that a new rule be introduced which should read that a forward cannot be played offside until he has passed a line halfway between the present half-way line and the goal-line. This would greatly hamper the one back game and prevent opposing players being played offside during the initial movements of an attack. An alternative suggestion is that no player be given offside when he has two rival players between him and the goal-line. The present rule reads three. This suggestion is favoured by the Rules Revision Committee of the F.A. who have discussed the subject.

Again we have "Charlie" Buchan the popular Sunderland skipper saying:—"I would give the referee the right to disregard a claim for offside when, in his opinion, a back instead of tackling a man preferred to throw his opponent offside."

The above proposed alterations to Law 6 of the soccer code have all a great deal to commend them, but, despite all the football writers' and scribes' statements, one is apt if one thinks deeply, to come to the conclusion that no change will be made. Most of our writers forget that the football laws are made as much for the player as for the spectator and think what would happen in junior circles if the first proposed alteration was put into force. How many clubs can afford to mark off their lines for every match, as their wealthier brethren do, and how often does one see the lines nearly obliterated, and especially so in wet weather? Would it not reduce football to a farce, and what about the poor referee? This hard worked official is also forgotten.

Coventry's New Back.

Coventry City have signed on Copeland, a full back, who used to play for Leeds City. As Coventry's goals against record is one of the worst in the three competitions it is obvious that the defence needs improvement.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Wednesday, September 24th, 1919.

Wind westerly 10 to 15 m.p.h., Squally changing to North-west or North. Weather cloudy, some showers, probably improving. Cold, Visibility bad.

TORCHLIGHT TATTOO.

13th K. R. R. C's. Impressive Spectacle at Solingen.

The 13th Bn. K. R. R. C. (commanded by Major F. W. Parish D.S.O.) on Friday evening last held a very successful Torchlight Tattoo on the Battalion parade ground at Solingen. Brig. Gen. G. V. Hordern, C. B., C. M. G., was present, and gave the signal for commencement by firing a Verey light from a balcony overlooking the Schutzenburg, and commanding an excellent view of the proceedings.

In response to the signal, concealed buglers sounded the "Assembly", following which the attention of all present was immediately fixed by a weird and clever surprise effect. This was obtained by the sudden illumination of a number of red flares outlining a rectangle within which the subsequent manoeuvres were performed. In answer to a spirited rendering of "First Post" Verey lights were fired, accompanied by a really enthusiastic "mad minute" from a small battery of merciless Lewis Guns. There now emerged from cover one hundred torch bearers, who advanced at first in single file, but very soon commenced to assume other formations, during which time the flaring lights offered a very picturesque spectacle.

The men moved in twos, fours, eights, and sixteens; they showed us two files crossing diagonally; they marched in narrowing or widening circles and at one moment they formed four and eight spokes moving round on a counter-revolving central ring. During the period of the march the Battalion band and buglers alternated with some excellent music; and the movements were invisibly but effectively controlled by the Adjt., Capt. S. S. Scott, assisted by 2/Lt. J. B. Buck, M. M. Bn. Signals Officer.

In the concluding stages, the men suddenly formed a semi-circle "Last Post" was sounded, and two verses of the hymn "Abide with me" were sung.

EFFECTIVE SPECTACLE.

After an effective pause the torch-light bearers again suddenly placed themselves into groups which together made up the description "13th K.R.R.C." While the men stood in this formation the band played "God bless the Prince of Wales" and concluded with the National Anthem, torches meanwhile being held high. On the sounding of "Lights Out" the place was once more thrown into darkness but the crowd when they dispersed went away extremely satisfied.

A word of credit is due to the band and buglers who under Bandmaster Wilkins, worked hard, but congratulations for a successful show are principally due to Major Parish, the C.O., who originated the whole affair, selected and designed the movements, and himself personally trained the men. The latter, be it said, showed great keenness in a very successful enterprise.

OLD BOYS' RALLY.

At Durham House Y.M.C.A., The Boys Brigade Hut, on Saturday last was held the Rally of ex-and present members of the Boys' Organizations. The afternoon was given to sport. Tennis and quoits were indulged in and a basket ball match was played, Brigades v. Scouts, the former being victorious by 14 points to 0. Tea was done justice to, and later in the evening a conference took place under the presidency of Rev. A.H.H. Organ (representing the Boys Brigade) when a good discussion took place on the future of the Boys' Organization.

So keen were those present that the conference was adjourned to Sunday evening when a still keener discussion took place. Among the topics discussed were unity between the various organizations, discipline, esprit de corps, financial aid, future workers, sex problems and their teaching, boy welfare etc. Before closing it was resolved to meet again on Sunday next at 8. p. m. at Durham House. All other old members of Brigades or Scouts will be welcome.

Shelton Accepts.

Will the sports officer on behalf of Rfn. Jackson (51st Bn. Rifle Bde.) kindly communicate with Young Shelton 715th Labour Coy. Rhine Army as soon as possible, with regard to the arranging of a match, place and date, also the number of rounds with Rfn. Jackson.

THE B. A. R. WELTER TITLE.

R.Q.M.S. J. French, H. Q. 2nd London Infantry Bde. wires as follows:— Will you please spare me space in your valuable paper to issue a challenge to the B. A. of the R. I have already challenged twice without result, and feel justified in claiming the welter-weight boxing title. I am prepared to meet anyone at your offices by appointment to arrange a match.

STILL THEY COME.

Entries Rolling in for our Football Competition.

HAVE WE HAD YOURS?

Still they come! By every post our pile of "Football Competition" entries is considerably increased and the larger the number of coupons the greater will be the prize for the fortunate competitor or competitors. Don't leave it too late. Remember that to-morrow is the last day for the receipt of coupons and any received later are by our rules disqualified. All you have to do is to cross out the teams you think will lose, or, if you anticipate a draw, leave both teams untouched, and forward the coupon, together with one mark entrance fee, to "Football Competition No 1, Cologne Post, Cologne". The whole of the money received in entrance fees will go to the winner, or winners, of the competition. As stated in the rules published in Saturday's and Sunday's editions there is no limit to the number of entries which may be sent in by any one competitor, providing each coupon is accompanied by one Mark.

FOOTBALL JOTTINGS.

Rising Stars In The "Soccer" World: By W. Le C.

Williamson, the Middlesboro international custodian, declares that Albert Shepherd and Billy Hibbert, were the most dangerous forwards he ever faced. Shepherd's rocket drives and Hibbert's ability to put "screw" on a ball always earned his appreciation. Shepherd is now out of first league football, but Hibbert is still with Newcastle United.

* * *

What would Dumbarton give for Andrew Wilson, the Teeside player whose case is causing such comment in "footer" circles? But he won't go to Boghead.

* * *

Harry Chambers the Liverpool's inside right is a Tynesider who comes from the same school, produced "Jacky" Rutherford the Arsenal's idol.

* * *

Edmonds who opened the English Leagues "hat trick" records for 1919—20 against the Palace is one of Watford's pre-war finds.

* * *

Crisp, Morris and Gregory, the three youngsters of the Throstle's forward line are stars in the making; they are shining examples of "first time" shooting.

* * *

Derby Villa, whose undefeated championship victory in the Northern Junior Combination League 1911—12 created such a record, have surely another unbeatable record. All their players joined the colours and but two survive, 14 paying the great price. The last to fall was A. Chapman, their centre forward, who was booked for first-class circles. Killed on Oct. 1918, his passing robbed the North of a budding international.

* * *

Tottenham are playing like prospective champions and thus supporters are jubilant, but there's many a slip, and its a long road to next May.

* * *

Cooper, who broke his leg when "keeping" for Barnsley, is now displaying brilliant form for Newport.

TURF TOPICS.

By "Jerry M".

After Doncaster the racing both at Warwick and Yarmouth was very tame. Not until Gatwick and Newbury this week shall we be able to work up to any enthusiasm. However the Newbury Cup will be watched with great interest as, in this event, there are several horses that are engaged also in the Cesarewitch and many are hoping to get a line from the Newbury running, to assist in solving the greater problem next month.

* * *

Now that "Keysoe" has been withdrawn, "Silver Bullet" has been seized on, and is now a pronounced favourite for the "Cesarewitch" I cannot profess to be highly pleased at this happening, for the Manton wizard does not shine with favourites in the big events, and I for one shall keep a watchful eye on the other candidate Taylor has, viz "Queens Square." Events before the day of the race may give us a definite lead as to which is to carry the stable's chief hopes.

* * *

G. Colling, like his father, is a keen hunting enthusiast and hopes to put in a lot of time with the Newmarket and Thurlow hounds this winter. He had quite an unrehearsed experience the other day when "Dots Surprise" jumped the road on the Warwick course and caused George to "sit back some." Which happening in Colling's opinion caused the filly to lose by half a length instead of winning somewhat easily.

* * *

It is indeed difficult to please everyone. This was again demonstrated the day after "Keysoe" was scratched from the Cesarewitch. One half of the sporting press commended the Lambton for his promptitude in so quickly striking the filly out, when it had been decided not to expose her to the necessary rigorous preparations for the big race. Having in view some "easy" weight for age engagements and also eye on the cups next year.

* * *

Surely a very reasonable precaution to take with such a valuable horse. But many papers heaped coals of fire on the "luckless" (?) Trainer's head. "Why?" said these "experts" was not the decision arrived at immediately "Keysoe" had won the St. Leger and before the poor punters had backed her down to favourite?" I doubt very much that it was public money that made "Keysoe" favourite, the layers never offered more than 10 to 1 from the moment he passed the post at Doncaster.

* * *

And one cannot expect an owner to scratch a horse with a favourite's chance from a big race without due consideration. And after all is said and done owners and trainers would have something to do if they ran their horses solely as the public dictated.

* * *

The "layers" have up to now had a very lean time, favourites coming up with as one put it "monotonous regularity." Many have taken the knock," especially new comers, who are quickly seized on by the "Job workers" who are otherwise held pretty firmly in hand by the old school of "Bookies."

COBLENZ CARNIVAL.

Gigantic Programme: Success Of British Competitors.

TENNIS RESULTS.

The athletic carnival and sports under the auspices of the American forces in Germany started in Coblenz on Saturday, when the Tennis Tournament opened with about fifty entries, among which were six entries from the British Forces on the Rhine. This gigantic athletic tournament, which is the first as well as the largest sporting event since the gigantic third Army atletic carnival held in March of this year, is the work of Capt. A. P. Withers athletic officer of the A.F.G. and Earl Brannon, head of the athletic department of the Y.M.C.A. These two men, assisted by the company, regimental, and Y.M.C.A. athletic director hope to make this athletic week a memorable one in the minds of the soldiers along the Rhine.

The Tennis Tournament secured a good start and how well the British competitors shaped in the opening show can be ascertained from the results below. Of the players from the B.A.O.R. only one, Saulfield lost. He was defeated by Pinkerton 6—3, 6—3. Showing excellent form six British players defeated their American rivals.

Results.

Sherman, American, won from Allen, American, 6—3, 6—3. Kelly, British, won from Tate, American, 6—0, 6—1; Boyd, American, won from Vaugelas, French, by default: Saul, British, won from Avery, American, 6—0, 6—3; Pinkerton, American, won from Saulfield, British, 6—3, 6—3. Steel, American, won from Valmrage, French, by default; Saulstead, British, won from Heard, American, by default; Kearns, British, won from Butler, American, by default; Price, British, won from Burel, American, 6—0, 6—1; McLeod, British, won from Wood, American, 6—1, 6—0.

Boxing started on Monday and wrestling yesterday and these two sports will go through their process of elimination until the finals are staged on Friday and Saturday. Several Britishers are entered in these sports, and from reports ought to go good.

Baseball will start to-day and will continue until the finals are staged, like all other sports, on Friday and Saturday.

Track and field will occupy most of the final two days, and Capt. Withers and Mr. Brannon are hard at work on this gigantic programme. Already the different organizations have held their preliminaries to pick their best men and on Friday and Saturday only the select will appear. Close on two hundred entries have been received, and the British have their share of entries. Besides the above mentioned sport, there will be racing and hurdle events and the wild and woolly horse show in which the American from the Western States takes so much delight.

GERMANY'S FOOTBALL QUEST

Attempt to Persuade British Coaches to Return.

A determined attempt is being made by German football authorities to persuade British players to resume their services as coaches in Germany.

Mr. Bensemann, who professes to be seriously perturbed as to the future outlook for Germany in international football, is the principal agent in this attempt to get our men to continue the jobs they were forced to relinquish in 1914, but his task, as it should be, is a difficult one.

Pentland is one of the players who has been approached, and he forwarded the correspondence in connection with the matter to the secretary of the Football Association.

In his first reply to Mr. Bensemann. Pentland asked if the German football authorities proposed to compensate him and his colleagues for broken contracts, their long incarceration in Germany, and four years' loss of income. Mr. Bensemann replied that, while he could not advise the Germans to recognise any legal reponsibility, he assured Pentland that should the players return everything possible would be done to make their positions remunerative and comfortable.

Pentland wrote Mr. Bensemann to the effect that unless the German football authorities were prepared to make some offer of compensation for the past there was little prospect of any British players returning to Germany.

KALK FOOTBALL SHIELD.

In the first round of the Kalk Y.M.C.A. Football Shield Competition the 9th D.L.I. met and defeated the 23rd Middlesex on the former's ground by two goals to nil, after a keen game. The Middlesex captain won the toss and elected to play the first session with wind and sun in their favour. For the first ten minutes play was fairly even, then the D.L.I. settled down and had the greater part of the game. Half time came with no score.

In the second half the visitors had the misfortune to lose their centre forward who fell and broke a thumb. The homesters continued to have the best of matters and were rewarded by two goals, the first by Conway the inside right while the second was netted by Capt. Gibson after a fine solo effort.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Good-Bye "Rascals."

"The Rascals," the Cavalry Division M.T. Coy. Concert Party, has ceased to exist. Owing to demobilization they find continuance impossible. The presenters of a bright little show, running successfully for the past few months in Rhineland, they leave a void in the entertainment world. I wish the members of the party every success.

Leave Club Programme.

There will be an impromptu concert at the Leave Club to-day from 5 to 6 p.m. followed by a dance in the Theatre at which the band of the 9th Durham Light Infantry will play. To-morrow there will be an impromptu concert by Miss Ada Moore from 5 to 6 p.m. followed by a whist drive at 6.30 p.m. A Dancing Class will take place on Friday, from 5 to 6 and the cinema will be continuous throughout the afternoon and evening. On Saturday there will be another important concert from 5 to 6 followed by a dance in the Theatre at 6.30 p.m.

"The Jesters."

Can you conceive a concert party, an English civilian party who can present a show equally bright and topical as a first-class army party? You can't? Then you haven't seen "The Jesters" at the Palace Theatre, Cologne. This talented London company comprises Joe Morley, the most famous of banjoists Chass Lewis, a ventriloquist, Harry King and Frank Hook, comedians, and two delightful ladies, Misses Jessie Mountjoy and Mabel Martin. Mr. Alfred Hurley, a well-known figure in English theatrical circles, is in charge of the party.

A Melange.

Variety besides being the spice of life is also the essential element in a concert party performance. In Mr. Alfred Hurley's party you have a melange of melody. Is there a banjoist in England with a bigger reputation than Joe Morley? I doubt it. Also, one would go far to find a more fascinating entertainer at the piano than Miss Jessie Mountjoy. And picture the personification of cuteness, neatness, perfect artistry, and a pleasing voice and you have Miss Mabel Martin.

Comedians Three.

The number three is curiously associative with comedy, and Harry King, Frank Hook and Chass Lewis are no exception to the rule. Harry King, is, of course, an artiste of repute and is as funny as ever. I remember Frank Hook in the old days when he played with Miss Mona Vivian, Fred Allandale, and J.H. Scott and. Decidedly he is a man that knows his business. Then there is Chass Lewis, a ventriloquist with a distinct style and refreshingly free from the hackneyed dialogue that so bores in a performance of this kind. Incidently his paper-tearing stunt is both unusual and clever. "The Jesters" change their programme on Thursday: this is a good idea and such a party are undoubtedly worthy of a second visit.

JACQUES.

MID-WEEK MATCHES.

The following League matches are down for decision before Saturday next:—

Wednesday.
LEAGUE.—DIVISION I.
Newcastle United v. Derby County.
SOUTHERN LEAGUE.
Brighton v. Portsmouth
Exeter v. Brentford.

Thursday.
SOUTHERN LEAGUE.
Queen's Park Rangers v. Southend United.

A FOUR-NIL VICTORY.

D.O.S. (G.H.Q.) F.C., v. D. of S. & T. (G.H.Q.).

A match between the above teams was played on the Klettenberger Sports Ground on Saturday, and resulted in an easy victory for the D.O.S., team by 4 goals to nil.

From the commencement of the game it was apparent that the D.O.S., were the better team, and Pte Watty scored the only goal in the first half.

In the second half the "Ordnance" continued to have the best of the game, their opponents seldom crossing the half-way line. Pte. Watty added other two for the "Ordnance" and Pte. Barton put in the last by a fast drive from the left.

DO SALMON FEED ON EELS?

English Fisherman Witnesses Remarkable Sight.

A correspondent to "The Field" makes the following remarkable statement:—

"On June 12, 1919, I was, after fishing the river Dee, leaning over Dinnet Bridge with my fellow-fishermen watching the salmon. Suddenly one jumped on to the ledge of rock just below the manse and slid along it some feet into the pool. There were four of us, and we thought it was hunted by an otter, and went down to the sandy bank to look for pads. Finding none, we returned to the bridge, and while talking it over, saw the salmon, about 12lb., floating down the pool with a large eel protruding quite a foot out of its mouth. The eel was tail end out, and apparently the salmon was being choked and was evidently in difficulties. Several eels, quite a dozen, were worrying at it, and pushed it both up and down stream for quite half an hour, and finally over the ledge below the bridge into the deep black water.

"The question is was the salmon trying to swallow the eel for food? The water was quite clear, and a bright sun shining, and we could watch every move of the game."

An American Record.

Gaston Chevrolet has won a 150-mile motor-car race at Sheepshead Bay in 42min 54 1-5sec, which is an American record.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

A. Lane.

To Reconstruct.

The Divisional Committee of the L.F.A. intend to reconstruct some of the junior leagues and mid-week competitions which ceased during the war.

La Hogue.

La Hogue is a trifle narrow in her girth, and when last she ran her saddle slipped back. To safeguard against a repetition of this in the Gorleston Nursery at Yarmouth she ran in a surcingle breast plate.

Serpentine Swimming.

The final swimming race in the Serpentine for the Duke of Westminster's trophy was won by A. Middleton 100secs. start, who finished the 110 yards course half a yard in front of F. Dalla (55secs.), with E. J. Richards (38secs.) a foot behind the second.

Twelve Amateur Entries.

Twelve clubs have so far entered for the Lancashire Amateur Football Cup. They include Liverpool University, Manchester University, Old Xaverians, and Whalley Range. Entries close October 1, the draw will be made on October 3, and the first round played on October 11.

Football Tax.

Every followed of football who pays a shilling to see a League match pays threepence to the national Exchequer.

Affleck Returns to Leeds.

G. Affleck, who has been demobilized, has been again signed on by Leeds City, for whom he played as full back before the war.

N.Z's in Africa.

The New Zealand Service Rugby football team, winners of the King's Cup at Twickenham in April, finished a highly successful tour in South Africa last week.

A Dundee Signatury.

Dundee F.O. has signed on A. Rawlings, who has previously played for Barnsley, Shirebrook, Northampton, and Rochdale Rawlings has not yet been demobilized.

For Charities.

As the result of the practice games by West Ham United £201 has been given to local charities, while charities benefited to the extent of £202 as the outcome of Clapton Orient's games.

Ash Defeats Bishop.

Frank Ash, of Plymouth, and Arthur Bishop, of Caerphilly, met in a fifteen three-minute-rounds contest at the Cosmopolitan Gymnasium, Plymouth, and Ash proved the winner on points by a comfortable margin.

Frank Forman.

Frank Forman, who played for England in the three internationals in 1889, has again joined the Nottingham Forest directorate.

Young Players Prices.

Belfast United are asking £300 for Toner's transfer, and £100 for that of Hopkins. Both are young players who have had trials with the Arsenal.

Seven Times Not out.

Dipper, the Gloucestershire cricket professional, has done wonderful work for the Gloucester City Club this season, having scored 915 runs in thirteen innings. As he was seven times not out, his average is the extraordinary one of 152.5.

Railway Fares.

The Welsh Football Association have decided to take steps to press the Government to grant reduced railway fares to football clubs. An effort is being made to arrange victory internationals between Wales and Ireland.

W.A. Hill Fails.

The special 250 yards handicap, in which it was hoped that W. A. Hill (Surrey A. C.) might beat E. H. Pelling's long-standing record of 24 4-5secs. was duly won by the amateur champion, but he could accomplish no better time than 25 2-5secs. over this most difficult distance.

Boxing in Paris.

McGoldrick, the Scotch boxer, beat Journet (France) at the Nouveau Cirque. The Frenchman was knocked out in the fourth round.

F.A. to play Universities.

The Football Association will play Cambridge University at Cambridge on November 20, and it is intended to send down a strong team. A match will also be played with Oxford University.

Beckett at Scarborough.

Scarborough will have an opportunity this week of seeing Joe Beckett, the aspirant for the world's championship boxing honours. The Southampton man is billed to take part in a sparring competition with a Navy champion at the Floral Hall to-day.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

No Marriages.

A report appeared recently in "The Times," stating that a number of British soldiers had been married to German girls at the Dom, Cologne. On enquiry we are informed by the Ecclesiastical authorities that not a single marriage of the kind has been celebrated in Cologne Cathedral.

The cold spell.

The change of temperature has given to Cologne a quite different aspect. Straw hats and light summer dresses have disappeared. Furs and winter clothes are to be seen instead. On Sunday last the Strandbad at Rodenkirchen which was overcrowded the Sunday before, was empty. Fires were burning in many houses. Cafés and cinemas were "sold out."

A swing door joke.

Five schoolboys were playing with the revolving door of one of the big restaurants in Cologne, when two French ladies arrived. One of the boys invited the ladies to join him in one of the partitions. His four comrades in the next partition then pushed the door so forcibly that the ladies landed in the Restaurant in a rather indignified manner. The door continued to turn and three empty partitions appeared successively. Then one saw the five boys coming out from the fourth and running away as fast as they could. Out rushed the Oberkellner, looking very cross. But the urchins had flown. The whole thing had lasted only half a minute but everybody in the street roared with laughter at the scene which was intensely comic.

Travelling on French Railways.

Officers wives and families, travelling from stations in France to the occupied area, may obtain half-rate fares on the French railway systems. Application must be made at the booking office of the station of departure. But means of identification of the applicant as belonging to the family of an officer actually resident in occupied territory must be available for production, if required.

No Queues.

Judging by the amount of khaki to be seen in Hohe Strasse of an evening one would think the Cologne garrison was as strong as ever. It is in the cigarette queues one notices the difference. There is practically no queuing to-day for cigarettes. The majority of the soldiers parading Hohe Strasse at night are from the Demobilization Camp and are having their last look round the Cathedral city.

Machine Gunners Magazine.

The August number of the 3rd Bn. M.G.C. Magazine is well up to the high standard of excellence achieved in the previous three issues. The hon. editor, Lt.-Col. W. J. Cranston, D.S.O. contributes another bright, sound article, while the event of the month, the Battalion sports, is happily treated. The chronicles of the Battalion are continued recording activities during August 1918. Numerous short, crisp articles included in the magazine cover a very wide range of subjects and their selection and arrangement reflect considerable credit upon the acting editor, Lieut. H. V. Wallace King.

A Deserted Town.

One cannot walk through a town like Brühl wit out being struck by its deserted appearance. Where Divisional staff officers were to be seen going to and fro all is now quiet; no longer do lorries roll through the streets in the direction of the Divisional park; a branch of the Y.M.C.A. remains as a sole survival of occupation of the Schloss; piles of beds speak of occupation and now one is able to walk through the streets without so much as seeing a single uniformed Tommy. We cannot imagine that the tradesmen are very happy about it, neither, should we imagine, is the atmosphere of quietness and the deserted nature of the place palatable to residents who appreciate life and movement. Formerly a busy military centre, Brühl now suffers by the contrast. Only the derelict military signs and direction posts remain as evidence of occupation.

Some Howlers.

Even marking examination papers has its lighter moments, and some of the following naive remarks by candidates for the 2nd Class Army Certificate exam, deserve to be recorded. The subjects for writing the essay were "Rhineland" and "The uses of Photography in Warfare." — Here are some of the opinions on these subjects by the men of the 'nth Battn. Blankshire Rifles. "The chief use of photography in modern warfare is to find deserters." "Rhineland is situated on the S. E. of England and the N. E. of France." "Photographs have been taken of war scenes and then sent to England and put in the newspapors." "The Dom is built in Goethe architectural style, and is very prepossessing in its looks." "The Germans take sheep into their houses to rear lambs."

Leave and Demobilization.

In future no officer, N.C.O. or man who is eligible for demobilization will be given leave of absence. In cases where the presence of such may be urgently required in the U.K., as in cases of illness of near relatives, etc., they will be sent for dispersal.

High Prices for Papers.

In transactions involving five pfennigs or ten pfennigs Tommy is not particular about his change. He is not struck on the German "Klein geld," but that is no reason why he should be mulcted in sixty or seventy pfennigs for an English penny paper, which at Cologne Main Station he can get for forty pfennigs. The street-hawkers are adepts at profiteering in pfennigs, but the one paper they can't diddle you on is "The Cologne Post." Moral—well, the moral is obvious.

Re-echoes.

What has the Permit officer to say as to the idea of two English ladies who were in Cologne on Monday and were carrying their armlets fastened in some way to their hand bags?

A dinner for Old Cliftonians on the Rhine is suggested, on the lines of those held for Old Etonians, Old Harrovians and others.

All ranks are strictly forbidden to travel in the brake vans of trains.

Two Germans in Cologne who offered to accompany two British ladies without being introduced, have been fined 200 marks each.

The manager of the Cologne Opera House hopes and expects that performances will begin regularly again before the end of next week.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Pte. G. Pollard Dental Section 44.h C.C.S. Rhine Army and Cpl. E. Fisher, D of S & T, G.H.Q. Rhine Army.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

ROYAL ACCEPTANCES.

The presentation to the Prince of Wales of an address engrossed on vellum and sewed on the purple silk lining of a yellow-furred coyote skin by the people of Edmonton, is a reminder of the other queer presents made to royalty. There was the silver oar, weighing nearly 74ozs., which was presented to his father though he returned it for safe custody to the Dartmouth Corporation just before his Coronation. Then there was the cricket bat made specially for the late Duke of Clarence. It was constructed entirely of walnut, mounted in silver, and was valued at £50. And who has not heard of the late King's unique collection of white hats? This is the sort of gift the Americans love, for the hat presented to the Secretary of State in Lincoln's Cabinet, was valued at £200, while General Grant received an even more expensive hat in 1882. It was a splendid panama, worth at least £300.

THE EAGLE UP-TO-DATE.

The revision of the German eagle marks yet another change in a long heraldic tradition. Persia was probably the earliest nation to adopt this symbol of power, but the German bird is of direct Roman descent. It began with Tarquin, to whom an eagle heralded royal power, and later became the Imperial standard. Frederick II.'s grant of the Imperial eagle to the Teutonic Knights as a special mark of honour was the origin of the Prussian eagle now erased from the shield borne by the Imperial German eagle. The shield also disappears. The double-headed eagle of the Holy Roman Empire and of Austria appeared occasionally towards the end of the Thirteenth Century, and is first definitely found in 1325 on the coins of Ludwig the Bavarian. Charlemagne's eagle was one-headed. There is no evidence that the Romans themselves symbolised the Eastern and Western Empires by a double eagle.

CAT'S EYES TELL THE TIME.

In various parts of Turkey the watch and the clock are extremely rare, but the natives have an exceedingly ingenious way of approximating the time, and some of them hit it with considerable accuracy. They locate two cardinal points of the compass, and then folding their hands together in such a manner that the fore-fingers point upward and in opposite directions, they observe the shadow cast. In the morning or the evening at certain known hours one finger or the other will point directly at the sun. A comparison of the two shadows will determine the hours between. Another system followed in Turkey and some other countries of the Orient is to observe the eyes of a cat. Early in the morning and evening the pupils are round. At 9 and 3 o'clock they are oval, and at noon they consist of a narrow slit.

A PETRIFIED FOREST.

Within the stretch of Arizona's painted desert of brilliant hues lies one of the marvels of the land, the sixty square miles of petrified forest. There lie preserved for all time fallen tree monarchs, millions of years old, turned to rocks. Mammoth trunks, sometimes five feet in diameter and fifty feet in length, or cracked smoothly into blocks, are transformed into everlasting stone, beautiful in quality and colouring—quartz, agate, chalcedony, jasper and exquisite opal, infinite in the variety of delicate tint and rich shading. The method of petrification, by which the giant trees became rock, was one of the strange alchemies of nature. Probably the wash of water from hot mineral springs rich in silica was the cause. The chemical, permeating the tissues of the plant, acted as a hardening agent, preserving the original structure and detail of the tree with astonishing perfection of detail.

OLDEST LONDON HOUSES.

There is a tablet at the corner of Great Peter-street and Marsham-street, Westminster but near the other end of Great Peter-street there is one older by 64 years inscribed: "Ths is Sant Peter Street, Anno, 1624," with the initial sR. W. and a heart between. The front of the house to which the tablet is affixed seems to be more modern by a century or so. The names of many of the surrounding alleys are marked on a map of about the year 1700: Laundry Yard, for instance, and Perkins Rents. Few houses of antiquity remain in the street; and he would be a hardened antiquary who would watch the destruction of the survivors dry-eyed.

SPIDER WEBS AS FISH NETS.

In some of the forests of New Guinea there is to be found a spider which, although itself possessed of no great dimensions, spins a web about six feet in diameter, and the natives have for generations been making use of them as fish nets. At first they laboriously transferred these webs from the supports upon which they had been placed by the insects and attached them to bamboo sticks which had been looped, but latterly they conceived the idea of taking their loops down into the forests and inveigling the spider to make his web in the loop of bamboo, after which they had only to take the stick from the ground and go after the fish. The native uses this net with great dexterity to catch fish of about one pound in weight, neither the fish nor the water being sufficient to break the mesh. The usual practice is for the fisherman to stand on a rock at a favourable point and when the fish appears within reach they quickly dip it up and throw it on the shore.

WHY MAC SIGNED ON!

I entered the Mess last night and found Mac executing a hornpipe.

"What's the game, Mac," I enquired, "Irish Elegance anything to do with it?

"Noa, leddie, ma peppers are thro'!!"

"Fine," I exclaimed, "come to the Café Bauer and I'll drink your health in Rhenish wine!

"But tha cost, mon — —."

"Never mind the cost, Mac; look who we shall be missing!"

At this doubtful compliment, he agreed and that same evening we drank many toasts, and the bill ran into many marks, but Mac forgot his Scottish descent, and forked out without a murmur.

Presently, the wine, combined with the strains of "Let the Great Red Dawn keep Shining" played in wedding march time, began to tell on Mac, and he grew talkative.

"Mon," said he, "I'll no' be heppy till a'm in Aberrrdeen. Jeannnie maun hev been verra lonely wi'out me these past two years exceptin on leave, ye ken. Leddie, t'will be fine, jus'fine."

It was very late when we left the Café Bauer, and I had a never-to-be-forgotten experience in getting him back to the billet.

Twice in the Aachener Strasse he flung his arms around my neck, and between the hiccoughs he murmured "Jeannie, ma'sweetie, your hair is like to sunset o'er Loch Lomon'!"

Finally I saw him safely tucked in, and left him.

* * *

'T was a very sad Mac I saw at dinner next day, and it fairly chilled my blood to find my usually cheerful pal in such a state of depression.

"Why, Mac," I exclaimed, "What on earth's the matter?"

"A've signed on," was the laconic reply."

"Signed on!" I echoed, "but your papers —demob—"

"Read this!" he interrupted.

"This," was a telegram, characteristically Scottish in its briefness, yet one which conveyed a world of meaning. It ran:—"Twins— Jeannie."

I grasped Mac's hand. Words failed me.

S. T. G.

THE INITIAL VENTURE.

A camera — Yes! That is what Abe ached for and to gratify his desire he only waited a mere six months before the magnate of his company threw 400 marks into his patriotic countenance, at the same time informing him that if pay were to be measured by the amount of work done he would be sadly in debt.

Our hero did not in the least mind the slur cast on his industrial capacity — he was only in need of an afternoon pass and then his long cherished ambition would be realised. Yea, verily, it was good to live — more so when 400 marks, money for dirt, is reposing in one's zwei mark note case.

He duly obtained the necessary pass and proceeded to Cologne walking on air, his head held high in the heavens, only becoming prosaic when a military policeman sharply told him to walk straight.

However, to come to the point, he, after much "sprechening", purchased "Cameras Mk. IV, Soldiers, for the use of one" and almost ran back to the billet, there to be surrounded by the admiring fräuleins aud budding meinherrs, only extricating himself from the crush which threatened to engulf him, by promising to photograph the ten members of the family separately the following day.

Accordingly, when another day dawned, he paraded "the animals one by one" in the garden, and although his previous experience of photography had only run to printing ha'penny plates in his childhood's day of Steve Bloomer, General Buller etc etc, he managed to impress the Fraus, Fräuleins and members so much at the time of taking, that they were so grievously disappointed a few days later when he held up for inspection, ten films of ten strong soupy London fogs that the good people at once changed their opinions of "der Englisch Sohldat". — and that is why Abe nightly goes without a buckshee supper.

Moral to the beginner: Always direct your lens on the clouds and then the result won't disappoint you. A. D.

THE LIGHTER SIDE.

"My dear, we can't take such a dark house as this." "Why not?" "Aren't we going to do light housekeeping?"

Mistress: Does this hat make me appear younger, Mary? Maid: Yes, mum. When you went into town yesterday they took you for my daughter.

Mrs. Hockins: I'm going down town this morning. Mr. H.: Shopping, my dear? Mrs. H.: No, I haven't time for that. Just to buy a few things that I need!

Mudleigh: I trust Miss Emily, that I am not taking up too much of your valuable time. Miss Emily: Oh, I assure you that the time I spend with you is of no value whatever!

Edith had been to the church for the first time. "And what do you think of it?" asked her mother. "I didn't like the organ very well." "Why not?" "'Cause there wasn't any monkey with it."

Old Lady (with swollen jaw): It 'urt me something cruel, dearie. The dentist wanted to give me gas, but my old man wouldn't 'ear of it. Yer see, 'e's been gassed 'isself out in France.

"Tommy," said the teacher, "can you tell me the meaning of 'repentant'?" "Yes, ma'am," answered Tommy. "It's how a fellow feels when he gets caught."

He: If you could have two wishes come true, what would you wish for? She (frankly): Well, I'd wish for a husband. He: That's only one. She: I'd save the other wish until I saw how he turned out.

The grocer observed that his best customer was a bit ruffled. "I think." he said, blandly, "living is getting cheaper. For instance, a year ago, those eggs would have cost you twopence more." "A year ago," replied the customer, "when these eggs were fresh, they would have been worth more."

BOYS ON THE RHINE.

The skies are blazing overhead
In London, where I toil for bread.
O, how I long to be instead
At Bingen on the Rhine!

I pine when pacing to and fro
Where no refreshing breezes blow
To be a soldier boy and go
To Bingen on the Rhine.

I see again through Memory's haze
The dear old happy autumn days
When I would roam the pleasaut ways
Of Bingen on the Rhine.

Roll back, O, Time, and leave me young,
A rifle on my shoulder slung,
That I may be the boys among,
At Bingen on the Rhine.

DAGONET.

Ceratopogon Pulicaris!

You may not recognise his name—but you know him quite well. He's the little stinging fly which is biting everyone who tries to enjoy the evening outdoors. He will not bite you, however, if you always use. . . .

BROTHERHOOD OF THE SEA.

"WE HAVE LIVED GREAT DAYS TOGETHER" SAYS BEATTY TO HIS LOWER DECK COMRADES

MARSHAL JOFFRE'S VISIT TO COLOGNE.

COMRADES ALL.

ADMIRAL BEATTY THE GUEST OF HIS MEN.

Admiral of the Fleet, Earl Beatty, and a great number of his Admirals and other officers were on Monday night the guests at Portsmouth of their comrades of the Lower Deck. It was a dinner given in celebration of peace and it was a magnificent indication of that superb efficiency and discipline, characteristic of the British Navy, which have been attained without loss of mutual esteem and affection among those whose duty it is to give orders and those who must obey.

Never before had the Lower Deck played host to the Quarter Deck, and the Lower Deck, imbued with the Navy's principle that if a thing be done at all it should be well done, took care that the event was carried through in a manner worthy of its importance. As one of the stewards said "When you're rejoicing, rejoice; when you're fighting, fight; and see that you're well munitioned for both occasions."

There were no distinctions of rank at the tables. A bluejacket and a Petty Officer sat next to Admiral Beatty, and guests and hosts took alternate seats, one Able Seaman, for example, being placed between an Admiral and a General. Admiral Beatty was of course received with tremendous enthusiasm. His automobile was dragged at the trot to the Town Hall (where the dinner took place) by a gun team of H.M.S. Excellent. He was there greeted with great cheering and an Admiral's salute was fired with rockets from the roof. The guests included all ranks of the Navy, from Admirals to second-class boy and buglers.

For the first time in the Navy's history the toast of "Squadron Commanders" was proposed by an engineroom rating. Another toast, the first of its kind, was "The boys of the Navy" and a boy now serving in the King's yacht responded with a neat speech.

A most picturesque incident occurred on the stroke of midnight. Just before midnight on the 31st of December it is the usual custom in the Navy to announce the birth of the new year by striking sixteen bells—a double watch. The chairman announced that sixteen bells would be struck to announce the new era in the Navy. This was done and as the bells ceased, the company joined hands and sang "For Auld Lang Syne."

It was a remarkable sight to see Lord Beatty reaching over the table with about a dozen bluejackets shaking him by one hand and a number of petty officers shaking the other. Famous Admirals could be seen on all sides singing heartily and shaking hands with sailors and Petty Officers.

The chairman, Chief Writer Lane, made a presentation of a silver cigar box to Admiral Lord Beatty, the gift bearing the inscription "A tribute of loyalty and affection from all ratings of the Lower Deck of the Royal Navy." In making the presentation Mr. Lane said the gathering was a positive proof of the perfect unity which existed among all grades of the Navy.

Lord Beatty, in his speech, referred to the Navy's share in the war. Never, he said, did a great navy have a task to perform that was so difficult and that gave it so little opportunity for achieving honour and glory, but when opportunity did occur the navy acted up to its glorious tradition. At Coronel: in the incident of the Cap Trafalgar, in which their brothers of the merchant service showed what British seaman could do: in the sinking the Shark, when her crew displayed the spirit of the Revenge in a glorious page written in letters of gold: at Zeebrugge: in the performance of the submarine, the full story of which had not yet been told; and in the battle of Jutland, when the remnants of the British vessels which sank cheered their comrades as they sailed by—courage which was utterly invincible. Beatty said the fleet was never more efficient than it was to-day and it offered opportunities for a boy joining in the humblest capacity to reach the highest rank.

"We have lived great days together," he added reminiscently," and it will be a proud reflection for all of us that the British Navy has never stood higher in the estimation of the civilised world than it has during the great world war."

ARMY OF THE RHINE.

STRENGTH TO BE INCREASED.

According to the "Morning Post" a decision has been made to maintain a British Division in the occupied area in addition to the mixed brigade as originally determined.

Certain German goods recently imported to Australia via America have been seized by the customs authorities at Melbourne and will be destroyed.

MARSHAL JOFFRE.

COLOGNE WELCOMES FAMOUS SOLDIER.

Dense crowds thronged the Cathedral square, Cologne, yesterday afternoon to extend a welcome to Marshal Joffre, who is paying a brief visit to the town as a guest of the Commander-in-Chief.

When the distinguished visitor alighted from his car in front of the Excelsior Hotel, a dull, wet day had given place to a short spell of bright sunshine. His arrival was the signal for the clicking of dozens of cameras.

Paraded on the square were the 20th Bn. of the Durham Light Infantry and two troops of the 6th (inniskilling) Dragoons who performed the various drill evolutions with exceptional smartness and finish. The band of the former unit played the French and British National Anthems as Marshal Joffre proceeded on the square to inspect the troops. Considerable interest was displayed in the four tanks which formed part of the parade and circled round at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Numerous English ladies were present at the reception.

BOLSHEVIST TERROR.

REVELATIONS OF MURDER AND OUTRAGE.

Stories of Bolshevist atrocities continue to reach England from Russia.

Following a strike at the Putiloff and other works at Petrograd, which the Bolshevist authorities suppressed, several hundred men were arrested and 60 of the ringleaders shot.

A woman named Bertoloff, the mother of five children, heard that her husband was among those executed, and applied to a commissary for permission to have possession of her husband's body, to give it Christian burial. The commissary said he regretted that he could do nothing, as the body had been sent the day before to the Zoological Gardens. The widow stammered, "What for?" The laconic reply was, "To feed the animals." She rushed to the Zoo and found that the commissary had spoken the truth; her husband's body had been devoured. The shock caused the woman to lose her reason, and she had to be removed to an asylum.

Professor Guido Schneider, who has arrived at Stockholm from Riga, and who had been a victim and eye-witness of the Bolshevist terror in Riga, in a public lecture which he gave disclosed many terrible details of the occupation. He said that within a short period 13,632 persons, men, women, and children, were shot in Riga. The victims were stripped of their clothes and dragged out with bare feet into the snow-covered, blood-soaked prison yard. The Bolshevist executioners, intoxicated and unable to aim, hit the legs and stomachs of the unfortunate victims, laughing at their agonies, which sometimes lasted a whole day and night. Young girls, elegantly dressed, volunteered as executioners, and coquettishly promenading up and down with rifles, fired at the unfortunate prisoners.

NEW MINISTRY FORECAST.

In a forecast of Mr. Lloyd George's reconstruction of the Ministry "The Sunday Times" says that probably the changes will be few, for Labour has refused overtures to co-operate. Lord Rothermere, who is a zealous economist, will probably become Minister for War and Mr. Winston Churchill may be appointed to the Colonial Office as Lord Milner is anxious to retire. Mr. A. J. Balfour will probably retire and be succeeded by Lord Curzon. It is doubtful whether Mr. Balfour will accept the peerage which it is expected will be offered him. Sir William Sutherland may be appointed Chief Whip. Captain Guest will be elevated to the peerage and will receive a Colonial Governorship.

The paper also states that Mr. Lloyd George has decided to offer another olive branch to Ireland.

SHOT BY STEP-DAUGHTER.

A terrible family tragedy has occurred at the Chateau of Varenne, France. As the result of a domestic quarrel, Mlle. Marthe Maglari killed her stepfather, Monsieur Bosquillon, the proprietor of the chateau, with a revolver.

The dead man had decided to separate from his wife, who is the mother of the girl assassin. This enraged the latter, and after pleading in vain for a reconciliation, she picked up a revolver and fired five times. All the shots took effect, and Bosquillon fell dead with his cigarette still in his lips.

Before her departure for America Madame Tetrazzini will give a farewell concert at the Albert Hall on the 6th of November.

MONARCHIST PLOT.

SCHEMING TO RESTORE THE HOHENZOLLERNS.

The alleged monarchist plot to set up the Hohenzollerns in power again in Germany is said to be passing from rumour to definite shape.

There are a number of speculations about the mysterious visit to Amerongen last week-end of the German agent Trebich Lincoln, the former M.P. for Darlington, who was released from prison in England five weeks ago.

With him is a certain "Herr Anderson," said to be prominent among the German monarchists.

The ex-Kaiser's agent had a long conference with Lincoln before the latter departed for Berlin.

It is said that the Kaiser's advisers do not think the time is yet ripe for the supporters of restored monarchy to show their cards too openly.

There seems no doubt, however, that the Monarchist movement is gaining ground. Its leaders say that its main object is to crush Bolshevism in Germany by establishing a constitutional monarchy on the English plan, with a Hohenzollern—perhaps the Crown Prince or Prince Henry of Prussia—on the throne.

Noske, the present German Minister of Defence, is said to favour the movement, and the ring-leaders of the movement believe that the Allies will consent with a view to breaking Bolshevism.

Meanwhile, it is reported that the demand by the Allies to Holland for the extradition of the ex-Kaiser is to be made during the next fortnight.

RUSSIA AND PEACE.

OVERTURES ON ALLIES' TERMS.

A Helsingfors message says it is reported from Petrograd that the Soviet there has authorised a Commission to open peace negotiations with the Entente on the base of the conditions already made by the Allied Powers.

A report from Moscow states that the Workmen's and Red Guard's Council of the Government of Tver has resolved to proclaim a Government independent of the Moscow Soviet.

The "Helsingin Sanomat," in a message from Reval, states that the Esthonian Peace Delegation returned to Reval on September 19.

The paper says that the negotiations, which were of a purely deliverative character, were broken off on account of the demand of the Esthonian Delegation that the negotiations should be carried on at the same time with the neighbouring States, and consequently the Esthonian Delegation regarded itself as unable to take the peace offer into positive consideration until an answer from the other Baltic States had been received.

Fighting between the Poles and the Tithuanians has momentarily been suspended while negotiations are proceeding for the settlement of the territorial dispute.

SHIP CAPSIZES.

Nine lives have been lost through the foundering of the Norwegian steamer Hortense Lea off the Tyne.

She was carrying wood pulp from Norway to the Tyne, and had on board a crew of 19 and two women passengers. Heavy seas breaking over the vessel burst open the hatches. She shipped large quantities of water and began to sink, eventually turning turtle. Her signals of distress were answered by the steamship Wargon, a Swedish vessel, which picked up all those who could be seen, but six of the crew, firemen and enginemen, are missing.

The rescued were taken to Sunderland, but three of them—two members of the crew and a woman passenger—have died from the effects of exposure.

FIUME SUSPICIOUS.

The newspaper Tempo says that before the arrival of D'Annunzio at Fiume some Yugo-Slav contingents were ready to enter the city if necessary, in support of the British police. The entire population had taken oath that no policemen of foreign nationality should be allowed in the streets of the city. In this there was no resentment against the British but a suspicion that the Croats were trying to strike at Italy through the British police.

It is notified from Trieste that a liner, formerly the "Prinz of Hohenlohe," carrying five hundred volunteers for D'Annunzio's force at Fiume, has been stopped by an Italian destroyer.

LANSBURY'S S.O.S.

This S.O.S. message speaks for itself: "Following for Letvinoff, Moscow, from George Lansbury. Please say where is Keling at present. Wife, children and friends all anxious as to whereabouts. Have assured them no harm will come to him but a wire from you will put matters straight."

MARRIED WHILE IN THE CLINK.

An Army deserter detained in prison at Sunderland awaiting an escort was married in the local church. He was accompanied by two constables in plain clothes. After the ceremony he returned to the cells.

GREAT STRIKE.

STEEL INDUSTRY PARALYSED IN AMERICA.

Both sides profess confidence in the result of the nation-wide strike in the steel industry which has started in the United States. The number of employees in the Steel Corporation and subsidiary industries affected, directly and indirectly, is estimated at 600,000, in addition to which there are a thousand working independent plants, some of which are reported to be already making terms with the unionists. The demands of the men include the right of collective bargaining, an eight-hour day, a six-day week, the abolition of twenty-four-hour shifts, a standard wage scale, increased wages, double payment for overtime, the abolition of company unions, the abolition of physical examinations, and the adoption of seniority principles already 284,000 men are out.

It is reported from Pennsylvania, which is the headquarters of the industry, that thousands of deputy-sheriffs (i.e., special constables) are being sworn in, particularly in the Pittsburg district. For the first time in the history of the trade the majority of these guards are composed of loyal employees. This element of stability in the mills is expected to have an influence on the officials of the steel companies generally, It is expected that the shops will be opened, or that work may be given to all employees who present themselves. The Labour leaders predict that the number of outgoing men, both members of the unions and sympathisers, will be sufficient to tie up practically the entire industry.

President Wilson has made every effort to prevent the strike, but he has had no success. Also, after using every argument against a strike Mr. Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labour, is reported to have been forced to guarantee the support of his organisation. The great danger to the country, therefore, would be the calling of a strike in the allied trades affecting 2,000,000 men.

HAMPSTEAD CELLAR MYSTERY.

As a result of an unexplained happening at the Sir Richard Steele public-house. Haverstock-hill, Hampstead, Ena Pyke, aged 21, a domestic servant, died two hours after her admission to Hampstead General Hospital.

Screams were heard coming from the cellars, and immediately afterwards the girl rushed upstairs with her chemise and hair in flames. Blankets were thrown round her, the flames were extinguished, and medical assistance summoned. Pyke, whose home is at Streatham, is said to have had no business in the cellars, and it is declared that before going there she had taken off nearly all her clothing.

PRAGUE'S TERRIBLE PLIGHT.

A letter received from Colonel Larsson, of the Salvation Army, who is stationed in Prague (Bohemia) gives a dreadful picture of the conditions there. He says it is sad to see how everybody—grown-ups and children—steal. This year alone 913 children have been arrested for thieving, some of whom have already been convicted over twenty times. Five thousand friendless girls are roaming the streets of Prague and three hundred families are living in one large house containing a hundred rooms and are sleeping on straw like cattle.

PRINCE AS INDIAN CHIEF.

A strikingly picturesque ceremony took place at Banff, Alberta, when the Prince of Wales was proclaimed Chief of the Stoney Indian tribe. He was presented with a suit of buckskin clothing and the full regalia of an Indian chief. The Indian chief Young Thunder proclaimed the Prince head of the tribe, under the name of Chief "Morning Star."

MILLIONAIRE AND CHORUS GIRL ELOPE.

Miss Shirley Bennett, a member of the chorus of the "Bon Ton Girls," has been married at Cincinnati to Herbert Strasser, the twenty-year old son of a millionaire soap king. Young Strasser, fearing the wrath of his father, is travelling with the company,

CUNARD GETS IMPERATOR.

It is announced in New York, that the Cunard Company has secured the huge liner Imperator, formerly belonging to the Hamburg-America line, for its Atlantic service. The Imperator, which took refuge in New York Harbour at the outbreak of war, is a vessel of 51,969 tons. She is exceeded in size only by the Leviathan (ex-Vaterland), of 54,282 tons.

HAVE YOU HEARD THIS ONE?

The district council of Nenagh, County Tipperary, has accepted the War Office offer of two German field guns, as war trophies on condition that they are in good order and that a supply of shells is included.

The general workers in South Lancashire are asking for an immediate advance of ten shillings per week, while lamplighters want seventy shillings per week with fourteen days holiday and free uniforms.

WALLFLOWERS.

PRINCE'S GALLANTRY AT A DANCE.

Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, junior, who recently became a "cub" (or untried) reporter on the staff of the New York Herald, describes in that paper his impressions of the Prince of Wales, whom he met at a dance at Calgary (Canada).

"The Prince," writes Mr. Vanderbilt, "distinguished himself by his gallantry. Noticing girls who were not getting many dances, he went over and asked the pleasure of dancing with them. His preference appeared to be for younger girls, especially small brunettes."

"At a glance you can tell that he is most likeable," adds Mr. Vanderbilt. "He carries himself very erect, and is shorter than expected, but much better looking."

Referring to the Prince's fondness for outdoor sports, Mr. Vanderbilt describes two of the Prince's days in Calgary, when he rode 30 miles "punching cattle, taking a 12-mile walk, and dancing in Calgary armoury till three in the morning."

Next day he played golf all the afternoon, took a swim before dinner, danced till one in the morning, and went swimming again in an outdoor pool with a large party of dancers. "The Prince enjoys aquatic stunts," says Mr. Vanderbilt, "and is an excellent swimmer and a fair diver."

RASH YOUNG PRO-BOLSHEVIST.

There was an exciting scene at Clapham Common by way of a sequel to the disturbance at the Majestic Picture Palace last week. The National Federation of Discharged and Demobilized Soldiers and Sailors, who defend the film showing the methods of Bolshevists, held their customary meeting on the Common. Their supporters were present in strong force.

It is alleged that the leader of the pro-Bolshevists was challenged. He did not personally answer the challenge, but a young man, said to be his son, was roughly handled and an attempt was made to duck him in the pond. This was frustrated by a large force of police. The youth eventually escaped on an omnibus amid a chorus of groans.

PLACING THE DISABLED.

The King's Proclamation, in which he appeals to employers on behalf of disabled ex-Service men, 100,000 of whom have still to be found permanent means of livelihood, was read in places of worship throughout Great Britain on Sunday.

Interesting placings in the West Midlands include those of a man with valvular disease of the heart as a hall porter; a man who has lost his left leg and two fingers of each hand as a telephone operator; and in the art metal work trade of a man who has lost both legs.

CHRISTMAS BEEF SAFE.

In the opinion of Mr. H. Adams, the president of the Union of London Retail Meat Traders, the winter meat shortage will not be felt until the New Year, and the public have no occasion to worry for the present. The long spells of hot weather has lessened the demand for meat, and has thus improved stocks, but apart from that there is no real shortage, and will not be this side of Christmas.

WORK OF THE TRANSPORTS.

An Official Return just issued shows that 92,640 officers and other ranks were conveyed in transports on long sea routes from 1st to 31st August. Of this number 11,791 were conveyed from Egypt to the United Kingdom; 3,372 directly or indirectly from Mesopotamia to the United Kingdom. 10,780 officers and other ranks were repatriated to Canada and 10,368 to Australia.

SYNTHETIC CAST IRON.

Synthetic cast iron formed the subject of a paper read by Mr. C. A. Keller at the meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute. It had been employed to a very great extent during the war, he said, and he believed there was now a very wide field for its application, while from a commercial point of view it could compete with Swedish iron.

FIRE AT MILITARY HOSPITAL.

A serious fire broke out shortly after midday on Sunday at the Shaughnessy military hospital (Vancouver). All the patients were removed in safety and all hospital equipment saved. The east wing was completely destroyed.

KING INVITES POINCARÉ.

His Majesty the King has officially invited President Poincaré and Madame Poincaré to visit England in October. Many festivites are being arranged in connection with the visit, including a reception by the City of London.

ROYAL WARRANT.

OFFICERS' APPOINTMENTS (CONTINUED).

NINTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

7. Temporary rank held in the Great War, followed by substantive promotion to that rank will count as service in the rank towards retired pay. Service in the temporary rank of Brigadier-General, or higher rank, will count as service in the rank of substantive Colonel or lower substantive rank held by the officer on retirement.

8. Any officer now serving who would receive on retirement, for the rank he now holds, higher retired pay or gratuity under the Warrants hitherto in force, may elect to draw such retired pay or gratuity in lieu of the rates now provided.

Army Council's Instructions on the foregoing Warrant.

1. Allowances for officer hitherto on consolidatad rates will be drawn as laid down in paragraph 18. Allowance Regulations, expect that officers serving at the War Office in staff appointments will draw their allowances through the Command Paymaster, Eastern Command.

2. In cases where an increased rate of pay is given for length of service, the officers interested will be responsible for submitting to the Army Agent or Paymaster concerned an application for the higher rate. The onus will rest with the officer himself, and not with the Army Agent or Paymaster.

3. When an officer is temporarily in a staff appointment or attached to another arm and is eligible, under the conditions laid down in this Warrant, for increased pay in virtue of such appointment or attachment, the difference in pay, or the Engineer or Corps pay, will be issued by the Command Paymaster concerned.

4. First issues of lodging and fuel and light allowances at the higher rate and of furniture allowance will be supported by the officer's marriage certificate, and, when required, where the date of the officer's birth cannot be determined by reference to the quarterly Army List, by his birth certificate. These certificates will be returned after notation, but no charge in connection with their provision will be allowed against Army funds. No birth certificate need be furnished by officers who are married on the date of this Warrant.

On change of station involving a fresh paymaster, the claimant will attach to his claim a last allowance certificate from the paymaster from whom he last drew these allowances.

Claimants will certify on Army Form P 1934:—

That in all cases in which furniture allowance or the higher rate of lodging and fuel and light allowance is claimed the claimant is married and is 30 years of age, or was married on or before 13th September, 1919.

The officer in charge of barracks will certify that where furniture allowance is drawn the officer was not provided with furnished quarters.

5. With reference to paragraph 9 of Table XIV, the areas or stations to which the conditions apply to all married officers will be notified by the Army Council. Individual cases at other stations will be determined by the General Officer Commanding concerned. Claims for furniture, lodging, and fuel and light allowances at the married rate will be supported by a reference to the authority of the Army Council or General Officer Commanding for the issue.

6. Income-tax.—It is notified for information that the following emoluments of officers are subject to income-tax:—

In all cases: pay; corps pay; engineer pay; additional pay and extra-duty pay; children's allowance; furniture allowance.

In addition in the case of officers serving on the Staff or otherwise holding appointments for a fixed or practically fixed term: Lodging allowance or, if Government quarters are provided, the annual value there of as assessed by the local Surveyor of Taxes.

Income-tax on service emoluments will continue to be charged at service rates for the current Income-tax year. After that date the rates will be those applicable to the rest of the community, in the absence of special legislation to the contrary.

7. Special Reserve and Territorial Force.—In the absence of special instructions the present rules as to the counting of service towards increases of pay continue to apply (see Army Order 286 of 1914, which provides that only mobilized service counts).

8. Servant allowance.—From 1st October, 1919, servant allowance will be issued in all cases by the Command Paymaster. Arrears of the increased rate payable to officers who where in receipt of the allowance for the period 1st July, 1919, to 30th September, 1919, will be claimed from the Army Agent or Paymaster by whom the issue of the lower rate was made. In the case of officers whose pay is provided in Table IV, of this Warrant and who will draw servant allowance by virtue of their reversion from consolidated rates of pay the allowance will be issued by the Command Paymaster as from 1st July, 1919.

9. Retired Pay.—Officers retired before the Great War and claiming re-assessment of retired pay under paragraph 5 of Table XVI. must apply in writing to "Secretary, War Office (F. 3) S. W. 1."

(To be Continued.)

DEARER CHRISTMAS PUDDING.

Our Christmas pudding is to cost us more. The new price list for dried fruits to be issued in a few days will show increases. The view in market circles is that there will be a shortage of these fruits, but at the Food Ministry it is held that there ought not to be, although nothing definite is known yet.

THE GERM OF CONFLICT.

The former Württemberg Minister, von Weizsäcker, has recently been publishing some interesting notes on the attempts which were made by the British Government in 1912 to limit the race in armaments between Great Britain and Germany.

In May of 1912 Lord Haldane had been dispatched to Berlin in order to endeavour to arrive at an understanding with the Berlin Government with a view to a reduction in ship-building programmes. From the drift of von Weizsäcker's remarks it is evident that von Bethmann Hollweg played a double game over these negotiations. In his recently published Memoirs he states that an assurance was furnished to Great Britain that the rate of construction would be retarded and three Dreadnoughts would not be laid down according to the original programme. This assurance, it is stated, satisfied Lord Haldane, but not the British Admiralty.

We can understand this the better, as von Weizsäcker never states than von Bethmann Hollweg did not meet with that measure of support from Admiral von Tirpitz which he desired. At the same time Count Wolff Metternich, the German Ambassador at the Court of St. James, who had endeavoured to bring about an understanding between the two countries, sent in his resignation.

As early as 1908 King Edward had, in a conversation with the Kaiser, asked whether an agreement on the basis of a mutual reduction of naval armaments was not possible, but met with no response.

In 1908 Spahn, a Reichstag deputy, put a question in the House concerning the incident, and urged that concrete proposals should be accepted. He repeated this in March 1911. Lord Haldane's mission showed plainly how greatly the British Government was interested in the question. Mr. Asquith's Ministry had promised the electors a reduction in the naval estimates, and this was rendered impossible by the heavy German shipbuilding programme. Bethmann-Hollweg was therefore correct in assuming that Sir E. Grey was in earnest in making an offer for reduction of programmes.

The failure of these attempts created a feeling of depression in England. Lord Haldane could only lay stress on the necessity for maintaining our naval supremacy. The Belgian Minister at Berlin in a memorandum to his Government drew attention to the fact, pointing out the fatal error made by the German Government in not seeing how the continuous increases of the German Navy estimates threatened the peace of the world, thus making a conflict inevitable by compelling Great Britain to adopt counter measures.

Here lay the germ of the coming world conflict. Our record is clear in the matter. It is to be hoped that when the German Government proceed to carry out their promise of publishing the documents lying in the archives of the Foreign Office, they will find confirmation of these interesting revelations as to the responsibility for the race in armaments which brought about the Great War.

GERMAN RAILWAYS.

RANDOM NOTES BY A RAILWAY ENGINEER.

Passing over what everybody who has travelled on these lines cannot help having noticed — that the trains run on the right hand line of double lines and loops in place of the left, as in Belgium, France and with us; that the semaphore signal arms work upwards in place of downwards etc. etc., the first things one sees are some of the direct results of State control.

One of these is that the stations, and often the bridges, are usually very creditable, handsome buildings which are very well planned indeed. The chief stations are usually right in the important parts of the towns through which the railways run. Another result is that the rolling stock is very "standard." There are very large quantities of each pattern and comparatively few patterns.

The advantages of this standardism are obvious. Where there are large quantities of exactly the same kinds of stock; where the same nut or bolt or screw or other component will do for any of thousands, the saving of expense in upkeep is very large.

The permanent way is very good. The rails are heavy, but of a flat bottomed pattern resting in "sole plates," usually on steel sleepers and on all important sections a good quantity of broken stone ballast is used.

HANDLING LUGGAGE.

The high passenger and low baggage platforms, one at either side of the carriages in the Cologne station strike one as an excellent idea. The high platform like ours is much more convenient for passengers, and saves the climbing up and down one has to do in other countries. All the big baggage, parcels, mails etc. are dealt with at the other side of the same train by the other platform to which passengers have no access; thus one is not being constantly impeded by barrows full of luggage etc. getting in one's way as at home.

One notices all the older six-wheeled rolling stock and some of the earlier bogies have a hand brake worked from a little covered cabin at the end of each carriage, with a window overlooking the roof for the brakesman. Thus, seemingly, they could get the effect we obtained by the introduction of the continuous brake (before that we depended on the hand brakes on the tender and in the guards' vans) namely, a brake which would act on every wheel of the train, if they cared to employ a man per vehicle. And Government forced labour was probably very cheap in Germany. Thus any proportion of brake power could be got according to the number of men used.

All the German stock has now the Westinghouse brake. This was probably added to the rolling stock long after it was built, but I think there is a hand-brake still on every German carriage. Some at least of the newer ones with end platforms have hand brakes on them.

SAFETY DEVICES.

Another very excellent idea making for safety, always carried out in Germany, is this. As in England every carriage has a screw coupling at each end, but whereas in our case only one is used between every two coupled carriages, in Germany after one screw coupling has been fastened to the next carriage and screwed up tight, as with us, the other one at that end of the carriage to which the first carriage has just been coupled is joined slackly under the one screwed tight, to a hook in the first carriage provided for the purpose.

Thus if the screwed tight coupling breaks, the other will still hold the coaches together; but being slack, will stretch out, and therefore probably not prevent the break pipe being torn asunder and the break going on.

Signal boxes, like the stations, are solid and often ornamental structures. The block system, or a form of it, appears to be used. There seem to be no "pulls" for points as we have.

These are either operated by electricity or pneumatic power, or the point pulls are underground.

The remarks above about standarism apply very much to the locomotives. Most of the express work is done in Rhineland by 4.6.0 engines with bogie tenders of two types the second type having a larger boiler.

GERMAN LOCOMOTIVES.

I think everyone knows this way of describing locomotives nowadays by the wheel-grouping, 4.6.0 meaning a six-wheeled coupled engine with a leading bogie, 0.8.0. an eight wheel coupled with nothing but driving wheels (none before or behind.

There are 4.4.0. engines used on passenger trains which probably were originally express engines. Goods and mixed traffic engines are 0.6.0., 2.6.0., 0.6.2., 2.8.0. and 0.10.0., the latter ten-wheel coupled type seemingly being the latest standard goods. They are remarkably fine specimens.

There are several classes of tank engines and also "Atlantic" type (4.4.2.) express passenger engines. There seem to be a large number of each type. All the stock bore (and most of it still bears) the Prussian arms with the letters K.P.E.V. (King of Prussia's Railway Union). It was on a plate at the side of the cab in the case of the engines. This is slowly disappearing and being replaced by the letters P.St.E.V. meaning Prussian State Railway Union.

Some of the worn-out carriage cushions have been replaced during the war by various coverings of "substitute" cloth, in some cases made, I believe, of woven paper! The difference in colour and appearance of these substitute coverings and the original ones in the same carriages gives the latter a vary patchy appearance.

But everyone here knows, little or no effort seems to be made to keep up anything but the essentials of the railways. Matters such as cleanliness of carriages, smartness and painting seem, at any rate at present, to receive no attention at all.

Germany is well supplied with branch lines and feeder light railways of standard, narrow and "mixed" guages and at the large centres as well as other places there are many loops and such connections which would greatly facilitate the handling of large amounts of through and other traffic with as little shunting, reversing and delay as possible. FITZ.

ACTING RANK.

Here, at length, mused Pte. Audrey Hamilton, was the long sought for opportunity. The Rhine Army Dramatic Company required Actors.

Audrey had lived for some months prior to the war with only two things to sustain him. The first was a deep conviction of the exceptional quality of his histrionic powers; the second, an allowance from a relative.

Lucky in possessing this accommodating relative, his conception of his theatrical importance, though mistaken, was comparatively harmless. True, it had brought him into touch with obscure theatrical agents into whose pockets a goodly portion of his allowance had disappeared, without his procuring any engagement.

Having failed to make good in what are, somewhat erroneously, generally known as the humdrum occupations, he decided that his general inefficiency proved that he was pre-eminently fitted for the Stage—a decision highly flattering to, but scarcely shared by, the profession.

Yet, Audrey was not altogether to blame for the hallucination from which he suffered. The trouble had started very early in his life. At the age of six he had recited to two fond parents the perilous adventures of Jack and Jill and had filled them with amazed pride that they should have conceived such a prodigy.

True, a slightly elder brother who was present, cold-watered, as only brothers can, the performance, but Criticism was sent prematurely to bed with smarting ears.

At school, Audrey's rendering of Mark Anthony's famous funeral oration was regarded by a prematurely worn out Council teacher as unique, which, indeed, it was, in a class composed mainly of boys whose early morning occupations provided them with no better practice in elocution than is obtainable by the constant repetition of "Melko!" and "Pi-er!" Most of them found, after their early morning jobs, that they were far too tired to concentrate, and quite incapable of memorising more than four consecutive lines of Caesar.

These youthful adventures, with sundry others of a like nature at Sunday School and Temperance Anniversaries, represented all Audrey's credentials for entry to the Theatre by the stage door.

When, therefore, he read the invitation in the "Cologne Post" he decided to attend at the Deutsches' Theatre.

Fortified by some very ancient notices from his local paper, referring to his rendering of "The Fireman's Wedding," "Paul Revere's Ride" and "The Wreck of the Hesperus" he reached the theatre one evening a few minutes before six and in due course was admitted into the presence of the Rhine Army Dramatic Company's producer. He explained his business, and waited.

"Any experience of acting?" he was asked.

Audrey's reply was cinematographic. Silently, but proudly, he passed the ancient press-cuttings.

"Um! I'm afraid these don't help much. Haven't by chance done any amateur acting, I suppose?"

"Amateur acting!" Thank heaven, no; he had not fallen so low as that, Audrey reflected . . . But doubtless the Producer shared his opinion of amateur actors, and wanted no recruits from such quarters. Accordingly, it was with a thrill of pride that Audrey responded:

"Never!"

The other's response surprised him.

"Pity!" . . . "However," he added, "it can't be helped." He paused a few moments; then continued.

"By the way, suppose you've never by chance been in a public meeting when the temper of the crowd starts to get ugly, and the speaker begins to think of his wife and family."

"You see," he continued explanatorily, "in the play we're staging next week, there's a big strike meeting scene, and we want a crowd. Not the ordinary good humoured crowd you see in London—but a crowd composed of men at war with their employers and suspicious of their leaders—a crowd threatening, angry, and difficult to handle."

"You want Me to be one of the crowd?" gasped Audrey.

"That's the idea; it's quite easy: all you have to do is to make sounds, at various stages of the meeting, indicating anger and distrust. Think you can manage it?"

"Ugh-r-r-r-rrrr!" growled Audrey.

"Splendid" commented the Producer. "Here's your part . . ."

"Damn the part," exclaimed Audrey, "can't you tell the difference between real and simulated wrath?"

Snatching his hat and his press cuttings he made an angry exit.

"Bet he's never done anything in the acting line to beat that," muttered the Producer. E. J. TELLUM.

THE MYSTIC VEIL.

Thou didst call me to the valleys, and I went Through silent places where the mornings shine
Thou gav'st me the red vintage of Thy vine
Crowned wert Thou with vine and rose leaves blent.
O Love, I followed Thee in wonderment
And drank the cup filled with Thy maddening wine.
Thy breath was like unto the rose's scent
The day time and the night time I was Thine,
Thine from red morning till the night far spent
When stars grow white like roses fading in the firmament!

Thou didst call me to the mountains, far beguiled
I followed Thee although my heart had bled;
Thou drewst the dawn about Thee for Thy bed
And Thou did'st shake the golden vineyards of the Wild!
Pressing the grapes of passion to thy lips morn red —
And yet wert sighing when Thou might'st have smiled.
I only gloried that my will was dead
And that Desire and Fear were reconciled
But when the last rampart of my Reason fled
Love's mystic veil lay rent between us shred on shred.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

WIVES AND EFFICIENCY.

Sir, — I am surprised to see another correspondent, "Martini," who agrees with "Bachelor". I should like to meet both of them, because really I cannot imagine what kind of a pair they are. Anyhow they will be a different type from any I have had the pleasure of knowing since 1914.

I am very thankful to the powers that be who have made it possible for wives to be here. I also think we have earned the right to it. "Bachelor" and "Martini" ought to remember what the wives have suffered and what the women of England have done in the Great War.

Let them remember there were wives in France during the war, and they willingly took part in the serious work that was on foot. If "Martini" never needed woman's aid in those terrible times, he has a lot to be thankful for.

As for married men suffering in efficiency, it is too absurd to think about. A man with principles won't neglect his duties at any time. It is ridiculous for "Bachelor" to judge the married men in the Army of Occupation by a few he personally knows. My advice is for him to get married, thus making himself more efficient. OFFICER'S WIFE.

Sir,—I should like to point out one or two facts which appear to have escaped your contributors' notice.

In the first place sufficient stress has not been laid upon the rush for pleasure and amusement here in Cologne, which is at the bottom of the trouble. It is not the wives who are to blame for this.

We live in a constant whirl of gadding about — theatres, opera, concerts, dances not to mention music halls, variety concerts etc. All these must be visited, and the consequence is that we all arrive at the office in a snappy frame of mind, engendered by over indulgence in pleasure.

In England the happy husband would come to his smiling wife, and dig contentedly in his garden or allotment, thus gaining health and recreation.

An occasional visit to a theatre or restaurant would be regarded as a real treat and enjoyed accordingly.

Now we are suffering from a surfeit of pleasure, and Nature is making us pay the penalty accordingly.

Let us return to the sane and healthy pre-war habits which we practised in England and there will be no complaints from Benedickts or Bachelors.

VERITATIS VOX.

(This correspondence is now closed. Ed.)

THE NEW PAY.

Sir,—In your issue of 21st inst. the correspondent writing under the nom de plume "Gift horse examiner" has apparently not been thorough in his examination of the said "Gift horse."

For such cases as the one he quotes a proviso is made in the Army Order which promulgates the new rates of pay; I refer to Army Order 325 of 1919. The Army Council's Instructions in this Order are that where the new rates of pay are not more advantageous than the old, the soldier will remain on the old rates until the new ones equal or exceed the old. OLD BILL.

WHY RAISE THE HAT.

Sir,—I see it suggested in some quarters that the idea of raising hats to ladies should be washed out in favour of the plain military salute.

While scarcely so picturesque, I think the salute much more finished. In addition it saves one's hats, which lose their shape through being constantly lifted at the brim. Ladies as a general rule raise no objection to the salute. What do other readers think about it?

SKIPPER.

WAR MEDALS FOR ALL.

Sir,—Who is responsible for the action of the authorities in extending the privilege of wearing the 1914—15 Star to Y.M.C.A. workers who served over-seas between August 1914 and Dec. 1915?

All honour to these individuals, who have done excellent work, a remark which may, however, be applied to two-thirds of the nation, but, oh, what a fall for the officer and man who through the dark days carried on, in or near a front line trench.

I am in complete accord with "Army Chaplain," who writing to a contemporary says:—"Can nothing be done to stop this great injustice? Tommy has risked his life in the trenches, and now his much-prized and dearly bought ribbons are to be shared with Y.M.C.A. helpers, who have worked well behind the lines for periods of six months at a time."

If serving in a canteen in a back area is of equal value to that of a man who in the trenches held up the German hosts, then the sooner Tommy allows these individuals to have a monopoly of the riband the better. AMAZED.

OFFICERS' CLUB READING ROOM.

Sir,—Until recently the Cologne Officers' Club Annexe boasted a delightful reading room adjoining the Senior Officers' dining room, where one could sit and peruse the daily newspapers and magazines in comfort and without annoying interruptions.

Recently, however, the management have apparently decided that the daily papers shall be placed in the smoke room on the left hand side of the entrance hall.

May I, as a frequenter of the Annexe, suggest that the old system of having the newspapers placed regularly in the reading room proper be reverted to? A reading room should really be a reading room, and not a bar or chatter-house.

The old reading room was ideal on account of its quiet and seclusion. In the reading room proper to-day there are only a few old illustrated weeklies, the daily newspapers being strewn about anyhow in the smoke room quite unappreciated.

In carrying out my suggestion, I feel sure, the N.A.C.B. would be meeting the wishes of the major portion of the Clubs' patrons. WELL-WISHER.

MONDAY'S FOOTBALL.

Spurs Score Six Goals Against Millwall.

BRILLIANT FORM.

Millwall were dismissed from the London Challenge Cup on Monday evening on the 'Spurs' ground, the all-conquering North Londoners winning by six goals to none, before 10,000 enthusiastic spectators. If the 'Spurs' can maintain this form against the other teams in the competition, the trophy should find a home at Tottenham.

Although the game was one-sided, it was good to watch. The 'Spurs' "reserve" backs McDonald and Goodman, justified their inclusion in the team, and the best man on the Millwall side was Grant, the right back, who proved a stumbling-block to Chipperfield.

Wilson has now scored seven goals in two matches.

The following were the results of Monday's matches:—

London Challenge Cup.

The Arsenal (Hardinge, Groves).	2	Dulwich Hamlet	0
Tottenham Hotspur (Wilson 4, Banks 2).	6	Millwall	0
Chelsea (Brittan, Dale).	2	Clapton Orient (Parker).	1
Tufnell Park	0	West Ham United (Puddefoot, Butcher).	2

Scottish League.

Aberdeen (Connor, Hulton).	2	Dundee	0
St. Mirren (Wilson, Thomson).	2	Hibernians (Williamson).	1

Crewe Alexandra	2	Blackburn Rovers	1
Stalybridge	1	Burnley	0

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

(BY NOVO).

Quite a number of professionals are pointing out that they cannot work at everyday occupations and play football of the standard required in the League at the same time. Theory is not always practical.

* * *

West Ham are not, so far, enjoying their Second League experience. Not only did they lose five points in their first four games, but no fewer than 23 players have been called upon. Hufton, Cope, McCrae, and Puddefoot alone had full attendance.

* * *

Several of the First and Second League clubs are finding it a difficult matter to discover a business-like side and up to last Saturday the only teams that had not found it necessary to make changes were West Bromwich Albion, Birmingham, Blackpool and Tottenham Hotspur.

* * *

Leicester City—they are no longer known as Leicester Fosse, although they will always be dubbed "The Fossils"—have secured the signature of George Jobey, the former Newcastle United half-back. He will have as one of his directors an old Newcastle United back in Dick Pudan.

* * *

Bentley, the Sheffield Wednesday player, has occupied no fewer than three different positions in the opening games for the Hillsborough Club. He started as an inside-left, appeared twice at left-half and then was changed to right-half.

* * *

Sheffield is a city of contrasts, for whilst the Wednesday cannot get going, their neighbours and rivals, United, are doing splendidly. Kitchen scored five goals in three games, in each of which his club found the net three times.

* * *

No wonder Blackpool are postponing their extension scheme when they have to face a bill on account of the present stand amounting to upwards of £3,000, even though their president is at the head of the contracting firm, which means as low a figure as possible. This is what improvements mean to-day.

* * *

Mention of Blackpool recalls to mind that Lane is still proving that he knows how to get goals. In pre-war days he was usually amongst the leading scorers of the league, and he has already scored six goals in four games. There are many covetous eyes Blackpool way.

* * *

The Middlesborough supporters are delighted with the fine understanding that has up to now been apparent between the halves and forwards. They certainly combine in excellent style, the wing halves, Davidson and Fox, having been particularly conspicuous in tackling and feeding. If there is a weakness in the 'Boroughs' really good team it is at back, and even the defence is by no means so weak as some critics are inclined to think. The club is also rich in goal-keepers. Tim Williamson has in George Harrison and Hewison two understudies who promise to make names for themselves.

* * *

It is only just 25 years ago since Sunderland played Derby County in an opening match at Sunderland. The referee appointed by the League was Mr. Markham who did not arrive at the match until half-time, Sunderland then leading by 3 goals to nil. Mr. Markham took charge and ordered the game to be started afresh. There was a strong protest, but the official was obdurate, and the players had to turn out for another 90 minutes. Sunderland won by 8 goals to nil. Amongst the players who took part were Doig, Campbell, and Hannah for Sunderland, and A. Goodall, Bloomer, Fletcher, and Robinson for Derby County.

Unlimited Entries to all Allied Armies Classes.

The Committee of the Horse Show which is being held by the American Forces in Germany at Coblenz on Monday 29th Sept. ask us to announce that entries to all classes open to Allied Armies are now unlimited, and not confined to two per Allied Army as originally laid down in the conditions.

The programme of the mounted portion of the Army Tournament is as follows:—

Sunday 28th Sept., 10.30 a.m. Point to Point Race (about 3 miles) 2.30 p.m. Gymkhana; 4.30 p.m. Pole finals) open to American teams only).

Monday 29th Sept. 9 a m. Horse Show.

IMPRESSION OF DEMPSEY.

Wonderful Physical Development but little Skill.

INDIAN-LIKE DISPOSITION.

Dempsey, the world's heavy-weight champion is a much smaller man than reports would have the world believe. When he was training to fight Willard the publicity agents of the affair—they were innumerable—seemed to fear that it would not attract patronage unless Dempsey was made a big man. So they made him 6ft. 2in. tall and 201 lb. in weight.

His disposition is Indian-like. When he goes into the ring his face becomes rigid, he is cool, and apparently deadly in earnest. At Toledo he looked neither to the right nor to the left, while Willard, a very handsome, courtly, large man, bowed and waved graciously to greetings sent him from the crowd. His face was black and hard as anthracite coal. There can be no question of the beauty of the man's proportions, or of his hitting power. Dempsey is marvellously constructed about the chest, shoulders, arms, back, and neck.

He is not so out of proportion as Fitzsimmons, but he is quite as formidable, and of harder, tougher material, with better legs and better proportioned arms. His hitting power seems to be localised in his shoulders. He has enormous pectoral and deltoid muscles, and the muscles, over his shoulder blades bulge in small knots, as large, in places, as billiard balls. This would lead the observer to imagine that he would be muscle-bound as Sharkey was. He is, to a certain extent.

His arms are very powerful. His wrist is as thick as his forearms and his bone is big and heavy all through. He has a deadly punch in either hand, but I think that his left is more dangerous than his right. Dempsey is a beautifully built man. His limbs are long and lithe. feet, good knees like those of a mountain sheep, powerful upper thighs, and no malformation anywhere. He is like a greyhound, great economy of weight except where weight is most to be desired. His hips and waist are small, there is no apparent over-development anywhere save in the back and deltoid muscles, which are abnormal, but not offensively so. As any eye can tell that a greyhound is built for speed, so any eye can tell that Dempsey is built to battle with his hands.

As regards his skill, he has none according to established standards, or, I doubt, by any standards. He stands full face to his opponent, with feet parallel, and should therefore be easy to knock down, though it is unlikely that a knock-down would hurt him much. Willard had no trouble in hitting him, and Willard is not clever. Nor should any other fighter have any trouble in hitting him. Yet he has an uncanny way of protecting the vital point, shifting the jaw just far enough to spoil the effect of an opponent's punch, of sottening the blow. His face is quite unmarked so far, but he has not fought many rounds.

What sort of a man can beat Dempsey? A cool, resolute man, with a ripping good punch, who gets home first. Dempsey is easy to hit, but I doubt whether he is easy to hurt. Of one thing I am sure; it will not be safe for any man to let Dempsey hit him with either hand while the American is fresh and strong.

REEVE BEATS ROLPH.

Verdict On Points In 20-round Contest At The Ring.

At the Ring on Monday Harry Reeve, of Plaistow, beat Harold Rolph, of Norfolk, on points.

Reeve is the ex-"cruiser" weight champion who beat Dick Smith for the Lonsdale belt, and early in the war knocked out Joe Beckett in five rounds.

Rolph was a member of the Canadian Force, and is heavy-weight champion of Canada. He contested the light heavy-weight championship with Boy McCormick, who, after a poor fight, gained the championship on points at the National Sporting Club.

The contest was not a brilliant one, it being spoiled principally by the clinching and laying-on tactics of Rolph.

LAWN TENNIS.

Mishu Defeats the Player with the Big Racket.

Exceilent lawn tennis was seen in the opening day's play at the London Flying Club's first open tournament, at Hendon. Particularly interesting was the reappearance of the old English international, C. P. Dixon, who was drawn against the Hon. F. M. B. Fisher. Fisher won the first set easily, but Dixon then played excedingly well, and tied at 5—2. He fell away badly, however, and Fisher took the next five games.

N. Mishu, who was opposed by F. W. Donisthorpe, went off at a great pace, and won the first set with ease. Donisthorpe, whose big racket, sooner or later, always slows down the game, made it 5 all in the second set before Mishu won. M. J. G. Ritchie and S. N. Doust had easy victories.

THE AUTUMN HANDICAPS.

Gay Lord Coupled with "Cambridge" Fancies.

You must have a genuine stayer for Cesarewitch purposes and one that has been specially prepared for the race (writes "The Scout" in "The Daily Express.") I think we can safely assume that—whatever the plans with Ivanhoe—Gay Lord will see the post, and I regard him as really well handicapped.

Colling is hopeful of winding up Buckthorn, and last year's third should know his way round, but Buckthorn is not sound enough for me to stand until the day of the race. I believe that Happy Man, Mlle. Foch, and Old Bill will be found genuine candidates, and Alasnam will probably be saddled first for the Cesarewitch, but—like Brown Prince, from the same quarter—I fancy the light-weight more for the Cambridgeshire. Jutland and Splutter have been struck out of all engagements, and of the "safe" little lot I have mentioned I undoubtedly lean towards Gay Lord.

The Cambridgeshire.

Now let us have a little canter over the Cambridgeshire course. Until Barling shows his hand with Scatwell, Grand Fleet, and Dominion, it is no use butting in, but, all to remain unpenalised, I would fancy Dominion as well as anything in the race. Still, Buchan seems the main barrier between him and a £5,000 victory next week in the Jockey Club Stakes. The probability is that My Dear and Zinovia are intended for the Cambridgeshire, but the Kempton shadow intervenes, and it is the unexpected which you have to endeavour to anticipate in racing.

I know that Paper Money is undergoing a genuine preparation for the race, and I reckon nine furlongs at Newmarket about his best course. Clarion has been a sharp's tip for months. I prefer light-weights in the Cesarewitch to the Cambridgeshire, but if Clarion is half the horse that his admirers claim, he should not be stopped by 6st. 8lbs. So I am inclined to think that those who couple—

Gay Lord and Paper Money,
Gay Lord and Clarion

will be "in the market," at all events, up to the day of the Cesarewitch. Some of you have already on my advice taken 1,000 to [illegible] about Gay Lord and Zinovia, and 3,000 to 1 [illegible] and Tetrarchia. We will not get such long odds about the horses I have suggested now to be coupled, but any sort of double is lucrative enough when it materialises.

FIVE FORWARDS DIDDLED.

Amusing Incident In Newcastle United—Chelsea Match.

An amusing incident occurred during the Newcastle United—Chelsea match last Saturday. McCracken, the cause of the Chelsea players' anger the previous Saturday, had been playing a splendid game, his offside tactics being conspicuous by their absence. The Chelsea backs later on in the match adopted the one-back game, and first one and then another of the United's forwards was pulled up for offside. The home crowd were rather displeased with this because it was asking too much that McCracken would not adopt his brainy moves.

A Chelsea attack began, then the whistle; and the whole of the visitors' forward line was offside. McCracken had cleverly outwitted them and the genial Irishman signified his approval of his own action by clapping his hands. The crowd roared at this, for it is the first time United played the move and to catch the whole five forwards napping was an amusing item. It had the effect of stopping the Chelsea defenders' offside tactics and a splendid match, keenly contested, finished with good temper all round.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

VI Corps School Staff v. Students.

The above teams played a return match in the Deer Park on Saturday, when some improvement in the play was noticeable, both sides having acquired some idea of combination, but the kicking was wild and eccentric.

Some of the blame for this must be given to the ground which was hard and bumpy, so that the course of the ball was erratic, defying all calculation. The Students team had at first the best of the game but their shooting was poor, while their opponents utilised their chances to the utmost, and at half time found the score: Staff 3 goals to Students Nil.

In the second half the Students pressed vigorously but still failed over and over again to get the ball between the posts, till at last Mizza succeeded and the game ended 3 to 1, Mr. Beale, Kingston, and Burke being the scorers for the Staff.

It would be a good thing for the School football if a good coach could be found. The material is there but it wants shaping.

INTER-ALLIED REGATTA.

Racing for sailing vessels at Outer Harbour, Brussels.

PRIZE FROM KING ALBERT.

An Inter-Allied Regatta for sailing vessels will be held on Sunday, Oct. 5th, at the Outer Harbour, Brussels, by the Royal Yacht Club and Royal Motor Club of Brabant under the patronage of King Albert, King of the Belgians, the Ministers for War and Marine, and with the co-operation of the Town Council of Brussels, etc.

The following are the regulations:—

REGULATIONS FOR RACING.

1. The regatta will take place on Sunday, October 5th, 1919, in the Outer Harbour at Brussels.

2. There will be two classes, one for 6 metre boats of the "Serie Nationale de Belgique," the other for open boats, 5 metres in length, and 15 square metres sail area.

3. These races are open to soldiers and sailors or any others who took part in the war under the Allied colours. Each crew will consist of two members who will race in their war service dress.

4. Arrangements have been made for placing craft of the two categories above mentioned at the disposal of competitors without charge. All craft of the same—or approximately the same—sailing qualities which can be obtained by the Royal Yacht Club of Brussels will be allocated among competitors by ballot. If the number of entries exceeds that of craft available heats will be run off. Winners of these alone are eligible to take part in the finals.

5. Competitors will be responsible for any damage done to the craft placed at their disposal.

6. The limits of the course will be determined on October 5th one hour before the start of the first race which will take place about 10 a.m. Competitors will be able to obtain their instructions for the race from the Judging Committee from 9 o'clock onwards.

7. Entries are free. Names should be submitted to the Secrétarial General du Bruxelles Royal Yacht Club, 84 Rue des Ailes, Bruxelles, not later than October 3rd. Competitors should state:—1, Name, rank and present unit; 2, Unit in which they rendered their war service; 3, Club under which colours they intend to race; 4. whether entry is for 6 metre, or open boat class, or both.

8. The first prize for the 6 metre class has been offered by his Majesty King Albert and the 2nd prize will be a cup presented by the Belgian Minister for War. The winners of the open boat class will receive a cup presented by the Belgian Minister of Marine. If preliminary heats are run special cups or objects d'art will be presented to the winners of each heat.

9. The Judges—under the Presidency of the Brussels Royal Yacht Club—will be composed of one representative from each Belgian club belonging to the Federation, and one representative from each Allied club represented in the races.

The Judging Committee will take all steps necessary to ensure that these regulations are duly carried out in conformity with the International Racing Regulations. Further particulars can be obtained from the Military Attache, British Embassy, Brussels.

LIVELY CRICKET.

Southern And Light Divisions Play A Refreshing Game.

The Southern Division opposed the Light at cricket at Lindenthal on Sunday, the match resulting in a win for the Southern Division by 28 runs. The feature of the Southerners innings was a magnificent display of batting by Lieut. Astill, while for the Light Div. Bdr. Hope played a good innings of 35. The Light Division was very comfortable against the two county bowlers of the Southern Div. who secured five wickets apiece. For the Light Division Pte. Seal bowled well, scoring six wickets for 80. The weather was bitterly cold for cricket, but nevertheless a most enjoyable game ensued.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

The Opera House.

The trials and tribulations of the Opera Company in Cologne appear to be adjusting themselves, so that there are prospects that the walls of the Opera House will soon re-echo with wonderful music as of yore. Meanwhile arrangements for the accommodation of military devotees is likely to undergo a change. There is a proposal under consideration to open the building to the public generally and to do away with the system of alloting definite parts for military and civilians. In the earlier days of our occupation the present system may or may not have been desirable, but there seems little doubt that the adoption of the "first come, first served" principle will now be hailed with satisfaction by all patrons.

About Matinees.

I have received the following letter from the Assistant Amusements Officer:—"Some time ago you published amongst your letters one signed by 'Exile' demanding matinees. Since then I have had several communications supporting 'Exile's' plea, and I have therefore decided to give a Matinee of 'Hindle Wakes' on Saturday next, October 4th. at 2—30 p.m. This is in addition to the usual evening performance. Should this prove succesful I will continue giving matinees on Saturdays. But I would like to point out to 'Exile' and others that when 'By special request', we gave matinees of 'The New Sin' and 'General Post', the house on the former occasion was practically empty and on the latter occasion scarcely a quarter full.

Sympathetic With "Exiles."

"Fortunately the B.R.A.D.C." he continues is not purely a commercial concern and the Box Office with us is not an all-powerful despot; at the same time with economy as the order of the day, we cannot afford to produce matinees at a considerable loss for the benefit of a few unfortunate enthusiasts, to say nothing of the detrimental effects a poor house has on the sensibilities of the less hardened performers. The fact that we are giving a matinee for Saturday October 4th., is sufficient proof that we are entirely sympathetic with all 'Exiles'.

R. A. D. C. New Policy.

The B.R.A.D.C. have decided in future to devote the Mondays of each week to revivals of their repertoire, and the rest of the week for their new productions. Next Monday September 29th., "The Title" will be revived and on Tuesday September 30th. "Hindle Wakes" will be produced. Monday October 6th. "The Importance of Being Earnest" will be revived and Tuesday October 7th "Strife" will be produced. It is also the intention to give Saturday matinees if there is sufficient demand for the same.

British Empire Leave Club.

Owing to sudden demobilization, the "Jingle Johnnies," were not able to give their performance at the B.E.L.C. on Tuesday. Much gratitude is due to some members of the "Tonics" Concert Party and the Y.M.C.A. who stepped into the breach, and made the evening performance a great success. Bert Findlay danced with wonderful go and finish, Lew Hallmark played the banjo with great eclat, Edward Messiner sang most efficiently and Collinson got a very well deserved encore for his brilliant piano solo. He excelled himself in his accompanying. The G.H.Q. Jazz Band was great fun, as usual. The Y.M.C.A. party consisted of Miss Hammond, contralto, who gave great pleasure by her songs, amongst which were "There's a Long, Long, Trail" and Miss Merriman, violin, who played an air by Tenaglia, and a Scherzo by Warner with much finish and good tone.

Prelude and Allegro.

A finished artiste, Miss Nash played some of her own compositions at the piano, a concert study in F. and a prelude, and allegro, which were very attractive. The Rev. Mackenzie caused peals of laughter by such songs as "Bill the Kaiser." He accompanied himself and also showed himself a finished artiste. Altogether it was an evening of great variety. Georga Sangar, dancer and comedian, who was demobilized on the 23rd. Sept., will be greatly missed from the Tonics Concert Party and through that by countless people in the B.A.O.R. Every one will remember him in his famous part as waiter.

In a few words.

The price of admission for other ranks at the Opera House will in future be five marks.

Winter amusements in Rhineland are now under consideration and some interesting announcements may soon be expected.

Joe Morley, the famous banjoist, showed distinct signs of discomfort on Monday owing to having to appear in the "Jesters" programme in a lounge suit. Two double encores, however, were sufficient to convince him that a clever artiste in any other garb would go as well.

On Sunday, September 28th, The B.R.A.D.C. will perform "Man and Superman" at Ohligs.

JACQUES.

LADIES' GOLF.

The draw for the ladies' open championship, which takes place at Burnham on Oct. 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10, was made in London on Monday.

Besides the present holder of the title (Miss Cecil Leitch), ex-champions in Miss Grant Suttie (1910), Mrs. G. V. Hurd (Miss Dorothy Campbell) (1909 and 1911), Mrs. Dobell (Miss Gladys Ravenscroft) (1912), and Mrs. Allan Macbeth (Miss Muriel Dodd) (1913), are among the 95 entries.

There will be no international matches this year, as England is the only country which can raise a representative team.

Andy Ducat.

Aston Villa have an unwritten law that "No player shall keep a public-house or engage in the trade," but Andy Ducat, famous alike as a half-back or cricketer, is the exception. He is landlord of the Holte Hotel adjoining the Villa's ground; and is also a teetotaller.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

15-Rounds Contest.

Billy Fry defeated George Poole on points in a 15-rounds contest at Bargoed.

Brilliant Display.

Wilson is to be congratuled on a brilliant display at Shields. As a deputy for Cantrell he performed the hat-trick in sure style.

Unlike Lancashire.

Lancashire, though represented by three clubs in the first six places in the League chart, has four in the last half-dozen—not quite Lancashire form.

Fine War Record.

Lieut. J. Bailey, who reappeared in the Reading team on Saturday, possesses a fine war record, and has been decorated for bravery on three occasions.

Fatal Accident.

H. B. Winfield, the Welsh Rugby international full-back, died on Saturday evening as the result of a motor-cycle accident. He played in 13 international matches and in 1906 was in the Cardiff team which defeated the New Zealanders.

Training Fulham.

James Sharp, probably the most stylish Scots full back ever seen in London football, is now training Fulham. He was wounded and captured by the Germans, and while a prisoner lost a lot of weight. He is getting it back now.

Golf Foursomes.

In four-ball and ordinary foursomes at Totteridge Vardon and Ray beat Braid and Abe Mitchell 2 and 1.

No Undefeated Team.

With Derby County beaten by Bradford City, there is now no undefeated team in the First Division of the League, and West Bromwich head the table.

Pompey's Attack.

Armstrong, who has has displaced Turner in the Portsmouth attack, has made good. He scored two clever points against Merthyr.

Barling's Representative.

Few of Cesarewitch horses have been doing stronger work at home lately than Royal Welsh. He is Barling's only representative in the race.

Bristol City Elated.

The early successes of Bristol City have sent many of their supporters into the seventh heaven of delight. In fact, some of them are so elated that they regard promotion as assured.

Ten Failures.

Double Dew must have cost her two owners—she originally belonged to an Irishman—a small fortune this year. Time and again she has been backed with confidence, and there are now ten failures to go to her name.

S. League Captain.

Mitchell, Queen's Park Rangers' centre half, will captain the Southern League side against the Irish League on October 4.

Newbury Cup Problem.

Taylor has left three in the Newbury Autumn Cup, which will be run on Friday, and Silver Bullet is one of them. The others are Haki and Queen's Square.

Goal Finder.

Broad's goal for Millwall on Saturday was his fifth in six days. Of the 11 goals scored by Millwall to date 9 stand to his credit.

Badly Wanted.

The Chelsea F.C. manager tried very hard to get Buchan for Chelsea, but other voices prevailed. They could do with the Sunderland genius at Stamford Bridge just now.

Moral Support.

All the moral support boxers require can be given between the rounds. They are then in the hands of their seconds, and it is at such a time that applause comes very sweet to them.

Provincial Programmes.

Boxing is another sport which is on the crest of a wave of success, and outside London the best programmes in the country are staged at Liverpool and Manchester.

Hard to Beat.

Slade is riding in fine form. Like most riders with Continental experience, he is quick from the gate, and is hard to beat at any part of a race.

"Offside" Expert.

McCracken waited until the closing stages of the Newcastle-Chelsea match to exploit his "off-side" tactics. He did it so successfully that the Chelsea forwards were caught every time.

Turned Down.

Albert Jenkins, the Llanelly centre three-quarter, who is regarded as one of the finest centres that Wales has produced for many seasons, was offered £375 to join the Wigan Northern Union Club. He turned it down.

Sadly Missed.

At Highbury, Sunderland sadly missed Cuggy, who was taken ill in the train on the way to London. Without him Mordue seemed lost, and apart from Buchan and Martin, Sunderland's forwards were disappointing.

Goddard's Ambition.

Frank Goddard is anxious to get back to the boxing game. He would rather box Beckett than anyone else, but it will be difficult to find a promoter to stage such a match owing to the swiftness of the big fellow's defeat.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

A Good Samaritan.

The entente between Tommy and the Indian soldiers on the Rhine seems to be an excellent one. The other night for instance this incident was noticed. An Indian soldier in a suit of hospital blue was standing in the Hohestrasse looking very miserable and puzzled. A Tommy went up to him and asked what was the matter, but failed to make him understand. Suddenly Tommy remembered the only words of Hindustani he had ever learnt, and soon was able to grasp the situation. It seems that the Indian who had never been in Cologne before had left the hospital for a stroll with some of his compatriots and had lost them. He was bewildered in a strange town and wanted to reach the hospital again. So Tommy lost no time in endeavouring to see him safely there. After two or three futile tramrides to different hospitals he landed him at last at the right one. The Indian soldier was exuberant in his expression of thanks.

What caused it.

Apropos a recent paragraph a reader says:—Not only in Germany but all over the world there is a period in the year when a great number of caterpillars climb up walls. If we observe these caterpillars we notice that some of them who have reached a certain height are dead and surrounded by yellow particles. Usually these small bodies are taken for caterpillar eggs but these so called eggs give birth in the spring to small black wasps called microgaster glomeratus, the caterpillar eater. The wasp's mother had a few weeks before stung the caterpillar with a sort of hollow tube through which a certain number of eggs were laid. These eggs gave birth to larvae which fed on the humours of the caterpillar's body; they cut through the skin of this body and having got outside form a cocoon. This feeling of having such a strange family of larvae in their own body is the reason why these caterpillars had no more interest in the succulent cabbage leaves.

Tommy's Honesty.

In the local paper of Bruhl appeared last week an announcement stating that a gold wrist-watch had been lost by a German lady. A few days later an English soldier came to the printer, Mr. Becker, and, referring to the above mentioned announcement, the soldier gave him the lost gold watch. A good reward offered to the finder was declined and as soon as he came Tommy disappeared. We regret not to be able to give Tommy's name.

Animal Keenness.

The antics of a retriever who every time the pistol was fired at the Army Championship went in search of game calls to mind the keenness of animals as a general rule. The writer has in mind the watchfulness of a collie who, at the approach of meal time exhibited a certain restlessness and led the way to the mess; of the pack ponies who broke into a canter at a given point on the way to the line where shells fell uncomfortably close on one occasion; of the rider who would persist in keeping close on the heels of another because he had as a groom's mount been accustomed to it; of the hound who could not be kept off the platform of a tram; of the pet who would not take heed of civilians but who resented their presence near the camp and many others, all of which go to prove the sagacity of our four footed friends. These are always interesting to the lover of animals.

Opera Seats.

We are officially notified that from 29th inst. the system of allotting seats reserved for officers and other ranks of the Rhine Army will be cancelled. Seats can be booked by application to the Opera House which is open daily between 9.30 hours to 13 hours, and 14 hours till one hour after the performance commences, Tel. 658. Not more than two seats may be booked by any one individual. Bookings will open four days prior to each performance. Seats booked by telephone must be claimed four hours before the performance commences, by personal application or by letter containing money for tickets. Boxes will be allotted as previously.

They work.

Barbers the world over put in fairly long hours. My barber, writes a reader, begins at eight in the morning and closes at eight in the evening. "Long hours," complained the assistant the other day. Of course, he has two hours off for his midday meal, but I was surprised to learn that before the war his working hours were from 7 a.m. to 9 or 9.30 p.m., and there was no dinner hour interval!

New German Arms.

The German Government has decided that the armorial bearings of the new German Empire shall be a one-headed black eagle, represented in a simple heraldic form without any accessory. The new Republican eagle differs from the old Imperial eagle in that it has no crown over its head, that it has no shield on its breast showing the Prussian eagle and the Hohenzollern coat of arms, that the chain of the order of the Black Eagle no longer hangs from its neck, and that its wings are not outspread. The beak, tongue, and claws of the new eagle however, are red, and the tone of the shield on which the eagle appears is a golden yellow.

A Pedlars' Paradise.

Apparently the Mecca of all German pedlers in Cologne is the N.A.C.B. Beer Garden in the Kaiser Friedrich Ufer. These "travelling trades-people" range from small children to old men and women, and offer Tommy a weird assortment of goods from matches to braces. But easily the most enterprising are the urchins who peddle newspapers; as these budding capitalists are not content with selling you one, but await a favourable opportunity of filching the paper back and reselling it. Lately the crowd has been reinforced by our old friend the Armenian vendor of shawls, who starting at 100 marks a shawl will eventually, with many protests, accept 25 marks.

Drinking Customs.

In the restaurant when you leave your empty beer glass open it means that you want another one. If you shut the lid, the Oberkellner will leave you alone, but if you leave the lid open when the glass is still full, or contains still some liquid, your friends on the same table may force you to pay for drinks for them all. That is a well-known German custom.

Boot shop Queues.

We have heard of milk shop queues, and watched with some amazement folk queue for tobacco and chocolate, not that is is extraordinary to queue, for we have advocated the system in and out of season as the only fair means of supply. But a boot queue strikes one as extraordinary. This was to be seen in a Cologne thoroughfare on Saturday. It was not a large congregation of prospective buyers yet they were admitted in twos and threes into the shop. Evidently there is a big demand for boots and shoes these days or was it that there was a drop in prices brought about by a more liberal supply?

Something to read.

Have you noticed in barbers' shops, cafés and other places, the number of weekly publications, including Germany's principal comic papers, available for the perusal of customers? Each is bound in a substantial brown paper cover and the supply is changed twice weekly. These papers are supplied by what is known as a Reading Circle adopted by an enterprising newsagent, and for less than two marks weekly, the barber or café proprietor has always something fresh for his customers to read, and it may be pointed out that most of the papers are priced at half a mark or over. This reading matter, especially the comic papers, seems to keep in circulation for several weeks, finishing up, the older the papers get, in the more remote establishments. The pigeon fancier, the gardener, and others with hobbies are all catered for, and the comic papers in the central districts at any rate always include one of the current issue.

Re-Echoes.

When the German prisoners return to Cologne by train they wave from the carriages decked with evergreens, red handkerchiefs and Union Jacks.

Two Tommies were discussing boxing on a Cologne tramcar the other day. One said to the other, "I would fight any man under nine or over ninety and I'm going to send a challenge to the Cologne Post; see!"

How is it Tommy can get a cup of tea for ten pfennigs in one club in Cologne, whereas in other institutions he has to pay anything up to half a mark, and at one place as much as sixty pfennigs for a cup of coffee?

The daily variation of the mark and the fact that no two banks seem to agree as to the real value of the English pound is causing a great deal of dissatisfaction.

Although the Brühl Schloss no longer houses the Midland Divisional caterers it is pleasing to find the Y.M.C.A. now in possession.

Some curious wines are being sold at exorbitant prices in many of the cabarets, cafés at present. Dope would be a better description instead of wines. The only thing attractive about these purchases is the label bearing a high sounding name.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Cpl. J. P. Quinlisk, York & Lancs Rgt. Rhine Army, and. Pte. J. Holton, R.A.S.C. (MT) 2nd Corps H.Q. Rhine Army.

THE A.B.C. OF A C.C.S.

A is the Anaesthetic, which saves me from pain,
You think that I like it, well, just think again.
B is for Breakfast, the meal I hate most.
I think I should faint if they brought buttered toast.
C for the Chart, which my past history shows,
In the drawing of graph Sister's skill daily grows.
D is the Dorothy bag, beloved of Tommy.
They fill them with sand to balance this Johnny.
E for the Excuse I always have ready
To offer to Nurse when her temper's unsteady.
F is the Fruit the Boche sells on a stall
You call this an apple; more like wormwood and gall.
G's the Geranium, with tobacco ash grey,
"Please, Sir, remember, we've provided a tray."
H is the horrible, horrible sound,
Of the five a.m. tea man buzzin' around.
I is the Interest we can't help but display
When Doctor first murmurs, "Might send him away."
J is the Journey I had on a stretcher,
Don't want another I'm willing to betyer.
K is for K-Katy, that amorous song.
It's ramped and it's whistled here all the day long.
L for the drink of Lemon and Lime,
The bettin it's "ersatz" is "odds on" each time.
M is for Matron, so stately of mien,
I think her deportment excels any queen.
N for the Nightshift, about whom I once wrote.
That day's "Cologne Post" was rammed down my throat.
O is for Orderly, on night or day shift,
Of the gab, the young scoundrels have more than a gift.
P is the Push bell, you can push it all day,
But never an orderly saunters your way.
Q is the question you'd like to ask Doc.
But his manner deters you, it's too like a rock.
R is the Rub on your back with the aid
Of Meth. and of powder, thus soreness is stayed.
S is for Sister, who in tennis excels,
Proper praise of her work is beyond H. G. Wells.
T for Thermometer, twice daily you're worried,
Read your own temperature and Sister get's flurried.
U is the Untruth, we'll tell it again,
If the result, for our lunch, is a glass of Champagne.
V for the Visit of Matron each day,
All tidy the rooms, till she's passed on her way.
W's the Wash which I get at the dawning
And the taste of the soap suds makes me stop yawning.
X is the X ray, whose expert once cried
When a photo of femur showed his watch left inside.
Y for the Yawns of the C.C.S. Staff
At this feeble attempt for raising a laugh.
Z is the Zeal with which I contend
That every good thing must come to an end.

GIVENCHY.

OPINIONS OF THE MOMENT.

CAN THE STAGE TEACH RELIGION?

Miss Lillah McCarthy says: "I wish someone would give me a church! In the theatre people don't care for religion treated seriously. They like it sugary—with frost and pretty angels, like a Christmas card." Her idea would be to revive the old morality plays, to have new ones written, and to give them in a church, as was done in olden times. The scheme has great possibilities; it would probably bring many people to church who seldom or never go there now, and it would be especially attractive to children, to whom the average church service is often extremely tiresome. "How many people really know their Bible?" asks Miss McCarthy. "It is taken for granted that everyone has read it, but I think you would find very few people who could pass any sort of an examination on it. Perhaps it is partly the way it is printed. I believe if it were printed just like a modern novel, people would find it much easier to read."

THE DRINK DRUG.

Judge Henry Neil says:—I think it is practically impossible to have improved home conditions for the working classes in Britain until the drugging and stupefying of the working people by drink is discontinued. Henry Ford, the world-famous manufacturer of the Ford cars, has, I think, discovered the secret of industrial efficiency and happiness. Some years ago he raised wages to a guinea a day (they have lately been increased to 30s. per day) for "clean" men, and he found that this paid in increased product. Ford told me that men who spent their evenings in public-houses instead of in a decent home could not come to work the next morning with a clear brain and steady hands. Instead, such men came with trembling hands and muddled brains, and the result was lessened production.

A SELF-SUPPORTING EMPIRE.

Sir Charles G. Wade, K.C., Agent-General for New South Wales says:—One of the great lessons taught by the war has been the necessity for closer and more effective organisation in order to conserve the raw materials of the Empire for the benefit of its people, and that we may be no longer dependent upon foreign countries for manufactures and products which are vital to our daily sustenance and to our existence as a great nation. We did not know in 1914 how close we were to starvation. Our reserves of food supplies were estimated at a few weeks' duration; for the continuance of our supplies we were dependent on the good will of foreign nations, and even the necessaries of war were in the hands of our enemies. This must never occur again. However great may be the disarming power of the League of Nations, I cannot close my eyes to the possibility of another world-wide conflagration and the risk of our supplies being cut off. In our own interests and for the purposes of national defence this country must be self-supporting.

TRIPPER DESECRATION.

Mr. Philip Page, touching on tripper desecration of battlefields says:— In America they call them "rubber-necks," and we know them well enough in England too. They stand in groups, and gaze at anything or nothing—a motor-car with engine trouble, a dog-fight, a man painting railings, or juiciest tit-bit of all, a street accident, increasing in value according to the amount of gord visible. And now the "rubber-necks" are in France, morbidly joyful, having the super-trip of their lives. That groune sanctified by the blood of heroes should be the resort for blatant trippers is surely a scandal. Yet it is a scandal impossible to check because of the difficulty of drawing any line of distinction between those who are paying a visit to these hallowed places in a spirit of decent reverence, and those who make the journey not a pilgrimage, but a holiday jaunt. The former include those whose primary aim is to seek out the last resting-place of some loved one. The latter think the Vimy Ridge or Sanctuary Wood a pleasant change from the sands of Margate, and "so thrilling, my dear. I simply adored it!"

AUGEAN STABLE OF SOCIETY.

Dr. John Clifford, President of the International Brotherhood Congress at the City Temple, said: The inhumanity of man to man fills me with horror. I cannot endure it. I feel like Jeremiah, and wish that my head were a fountain of waters that I may weep day and night. And then, like the same prophet, I find hot indignation burning like a fire in my bones, and I dash away my tears and would fain start out like Hercules to cleanse the Augean stable of society from floor to roof from all the accursed evils that infest it. To cleanse the habits and customs of all countries, to destroy the diabolical factors in some of the oldest institutions in the world; to get rid of the remaining tyrannies of aristocratic fendalism, to recover lost liberties, and to introduce freedom where it does not exist; to reconstruct the Governments of the world; to make democracy a reality in spirit and in form, such was the work of the brotherhood. Surely for this they would need the heroic temper that stood by principles and suffered anything rather than sell them.

NATIONAL RAILWAY CRISIS.

PROBABILITY OF COMPLETE SUSPENSION OF ENGLISH TRAIN SERVICES.

HIGH SEAS FREE FROM MINES.

RAILWAY CRISIS.

PROBABILITY OF NATIONAL STRIKE.

A grave crisis, out of which it is feared a national strike may develop in the immediate future, has arisen on the railways.

It was expected by the men that the new standard wage agreement to be negotiated would tend to a higher scale, but in proposals submitted by the Government for all grades except locomotive men the opposite is the case.

In a statement issued yesterday Mr. J. H. Thomas said the proposals would mean a reduction of varying amounts up to 14s. a week in some grades.

The Railwaymen's secretary warned the nation of the gravity of the situation, but while expressing the opinion that a rupture seemed inevitable, declared his intention of avoiding a strike if it were humanly possible.

The Ministry of Transport has issued a statement saying that the action of the Executive Committee of the National Union of Railwaymen in sending an ultimatum on the very day of the transference of powers nitherto held by the Board of Trade to the Ministry of Transport appears to be quite unjustified. The advance of wages, if applied to the whole of the railway staffs, would involve the Companies in a ditional expenditure estimated at over forty-five million pounds annually, as compared with pre-war costs. This took no account of any proportion of war wages which might have to be continued under the agreement of last March, Other concessions already granted were estimated to cost another twenty millions annually, making an estimated total permanent increase of over sixty millions per annum on the pre-war paybill of about forty-seven millions. To meet this, goods rates probably by more than fifty percent, and all passenger fares might have to be raised.

Mr. J.H. Thomas stated yesterday afternoon that unless a satisfactory reply is received from the Government by noon to-day a railway strike will begin at noon on Friday.

The Cabinet met during the afternoon and had a prolonged discussion on the railway situation. It is understood that the Government is prepared further to discuss the position and it is possible that further negotiations will take place which may remove the strike menace.

After the Cabinet discussion a communication was sent to the National Union of Railwaymen pointing out that a misunderstanding seems to exist in regard to a continuation of the war wage. Sir William Marwood, representing the Ministry of Transport told a press representative at the conclusion of the Cabinet meeting, that this communication would provide a basis for re-opening the negotiations, if the Union Executive were willing. The outlook is therefore rather more hopeful.

VON DER GOLTZ OBDURATE.

The Supreme Council in Paris has discussed the question of the evacuation by the Germans of the Baltic Provinces. Von der Goltz, whose army now numbers 100,000 men, refuses to withdraw.

At the end of July General Gough, accompanied by Major Wilson, handed Marshal Foch's third ultimatum to von der Goltz, ordering total evacuation by the end of August and the abandonment of all material to the Allies. This visit exasperated the German chief, who got into a violent temper.

General Gough remained impassive and simply repeated his demands. Von der Goltz finished by accepting an agreement, the last clause of which he has not yet fulfilled, while his army continues to grow.

AMERICAN STEEL STRIKE.

Reports from New York indicate little change in the steel strike situation. The industry in the Ohio region is completely paralysed. Conflicting claims regarding the great strategic sectors are radiating from Pittsburg and Chicago, where company officials allege an improvement although the Labourites deny any defections. Spasmodic rioting and disorders continue. At Clevelands four men were stabbed, two fatally, in a battle between strikers and non-strikers.

CZECHO-SLAVS IN SIBERIA.

The Peace Council has decided that the Teschen plebiscite should take place within a maximum period of three months. The council is also of the opinion that the time has come for the repatriation of the 50,000 Czecho-Slovaks still in Siberia. It is hoped that Great Britain, France and America will be able to collect sufficient tonnage to ship them from Vladivostok to Europe.

ALL CLEAR.

SEA ROUTES PRACTICALLY FREE FROM MINES.

The mine clearance services cease at the end of November. This official announcement gives little indication of the immense and dangerous labour involved in sweeping away the minefields in the neighbourhood of the British Isles within one year of the armistice. All that now remains to be accomplished is the removal of the remnants of the huge minefields between the Shetlands and Norway and the remaining German mines off the Heligoland Bight.

Although the entire clearance of all mines laid is not claimed, it is sufficient to enable the routes for normal sea traffic to be guaranteed. The task involved the close search of forty thousand square miles. A large proportion of the areas had to be covered twice and some times thrice. To the end of August 19,000 German mines were accounted for in home waters and 3,500 in the Mediterranean. Of 33,000 British mines laid in Southern waters only a very small proportion remain.

The fine spirit shown by officers and men in this dangerous and monotonous work has been phenomenal. One crew were twice mined but still continued working on other vessels. In one ship the men were known to cheer whenever they went over shallow mines which they could plainly see under water and where there was little clearance for their ship. During the progress of the work three minesweeping vessels have been lost at home and two in the Mediterranean. The great value of their work is indicated by the fact that only six merchant vessels have been lost through striking mines since November 1918. Three of these did not comply with instructions and the other three struck waterlogged drifting mines.

and by 30th November for the Mediterranean Great Britain will have finished her task.

MISSION TO EGYPT.

The Constitution is officially announced of the special mission under the presidency of Lord Milner which will proceed to Egypt shortly. It will inquire into the causes of the late disorders and report on the existing situation in that country; the form of constitution which under the protectorate will be best calculated to promote its peace and prosperity; the progressive development of self-governing institutions and the protection of Foreign interests.

Lord Milner's colleagues will be: General Sir J. G. Maxwell, who served in the Egyptian War of 1882; Sir J. Rennell Rodd, formerly Acting Agent and Consul-General at Cairo; Brigadier-General Sir Owen Thomas, M.P.; Mr. J. A. Spender, (Editor, "Westminster Gazette"); and Mr. C. J. B. Hurst (Foreign Office).

BUDAPEST CHEERS BRITISH.

The news that trans-Danubian Hungary will be occupied by British troops has been received with much enthusiasm in Budapest and in the country generally.

At a performance in the Opera House there was a great demonstration in favour of Great Britain. When General Corton appeared in the Royal box the whole house rang with cheers, and the orchestra played the British national anthem. The Prime Minister (M. Friederich), who was present, was hissed.

U-BOAT TREATY EVASION.

Although the German Government agreed under the Peace Treaty to hand over all seaworthy submarines and to break up the remainder and it was specifically laid down that no material arising from the breaking up of submarines should be sold to foreign countries, Scott's shipbuilding company at Greenock have received an offer from a German firm to sell U-boats in sections which can be assembled there.

POLICEMAN WHIPPED.

Drunk while in charge of a horse and cart at Dalston. John Davis, dealer, of Hamilton road, Highbury was pulled up by a constable. He urged on the horse and lashed the constable with his whip. The cart collided with a lamp-post and Davis was thrown out and badly bruised. The horse ran away. At North London Police Court Davis, who denied the assault, was sent to 14 days' hard labour.

BEAUTIFUL BUT DESTRUCTIVE.

Farmers in the Barmouth district of North Wales have caught a Pine Marten, a very rare animal. It was preying on lambs, rabbits and poultry and was run to earth by dogs after a hunt lasting several hours.

HIDDEN PLAGUE.

VIEWS OF FAMOUS PUBLIC MORALIST.

Our racial destruction is threatened by venereal disease, writes Dr. C. W. Saleeby, the vice-chairman of the National Council of Public Morals, in the "Daily Telegraph." He points out that a committee on prophylaxis has rejected the official application of a packet system to the civil community, and that the scheme of "Early treatment centres," well-thought out and comprehensive as it was, is "hopelessly, widely, tragically impracticable. The London County Council for instance, has rejected its application to London. There are no means, nor skilled doctors, nor locomotor resources to make it possible . . . . We are being beaten." What are the remedies? First and most important, continence, secondly the application of disinfectant knowledge.

The Royal Commission, reporting in 1916, clearly foresaw the importance of future data and the possible need for further inquiry. That need now exists. I heard enough in the United States this summer to convince me that we should inquire again into compulsory notification and treatment, in view of the American experience. I suggest that the political and moral warrant for such a bold policy is incalculably strengthened if we make available for all persons for a few pence at a chemist's shop the means and the knowledge of venereal disinfection. But to-day the best means at our disposal is forbidden by law.

PUSSYFOOT SCARE.

KEEPING THEM OUT OF HARM'S WAY.

The U.S. State Department, or Foreign Office, has, it is understood, taken certain action in regard to the "Pussyfoot" prohibition campaign in this country.

Recently two agents of the Anti-Saloon League sought to obtain passport facilities in Paris for visiting England. They were unable to obtain the necessary visa, and it now appears that this was not the result of any casual ban but of diplomatic action.

The American State Department is fully alive to the detrimental effects which an extension of the Anti-Saloon League's energies to Europe might have on international relations, especially at the present time, possibly misunderstanding to avoid any

In this connection an objection registered by the Italian Government last year may be cited. When it became clear that the U.S. was "going dry" the Italian Ambassador at Washington protested that this would seriously affect Italian commerce as much Italian wine was exported to the United States. The State Department sent the objection to Congress, which overruled it.

It is now considered unlikely that many more Pussyfoot campaigners will be allowed to embark for England—at least for the present. About a dozen were expected, including Mr. Cherrington, the virtual chief of the "dry" organisation.

DENIKEN LIBERATES ONE FOURTH OF RUSSIA.

It was announced yesterday that Deniken's army had captured Kursk, an important city and railway centre 333 miles South West of Moscow. A Bolshevist wireless report now announces that the Red forces have abandoned Logff, forty miles West of Kursk. The importance of Deniken's effort and of his front continues to grow day by day. Great Britain has hitherto supported Deniken with munitions, uniforms and other equipment such as tanks, and will continue to do so.

The amount of territory in South Russia won by Denikin's armies from the Bolshevists amounts to about one fourth of European Russia and contains a population calculated at thirty millions. The third, fourth and fifth of the greatest cities of Russia are in his hands and his armies at the present time number from three hundred to four hundred thousand. It is a matter of supreme importance that trade should be revived in the liberated territories and the re-opening should offer great opportunities to British commerce. The part played by British forces in Denikin's successes is very small. Only one British officer has been wounded in nine months operations.

ROYAL ECONOMY.

The King held a Privy Council at Balmoral on Monday. Formerly it was the custom for at least some of the councillors and the clerk to go to councils at Balmoral, but, in view of the formal character of the business and of the high cost of travelling, it was arranged that the Duke of Connaught, the Lord Chamberlain, and Lord Stamfordham should act and so obviate the cost to the State of special journeys to Scotland.

LONDON SCOTTISH ANNIVERSARY.

About three hundred members of the original first battalion of the London Scottish, who took part in the charge at Messines on the 29th October 1914, will be present at a great reunion to be held at Olympia on the anniversary of that day. It is expected that Field Marshal Earl Haig and Lord Allenby will be present.

OH! O'SULLIVAN!

THREATENED TO THROW COLONEL OUT OF WINDOW.

The report of the Court of Inquiry ordered by the Air Council to deal with matters raised by Miss Eileen O'Sullivan, Assistant Commandant and Clothing Contractor to the W.R.A.F., was issued yesterday as a Bluebook.

Miss O'Sullivan was associated with Miss Douglas Pennant, whose allegations against the Air Council will be shortly considered by the House of Lords Committee.

The report on the whole exonerates the officers concerned at the same time saying that the only charge against Miss O'Sullivan that could fairly be made was that she was not easy to get on with and entertained an exaggerated idea of the importance of her position.

In their general observations the Court states that Miss O'Sullivan did her best in circumstances of considerable difficulty. She was not inefficient but the state of friction between herself and Colonel Gadsby was acute. The Court found that Colonel Latimer's unfavourable opinion of her was not justified but was honestly entertained and honestly acted upon by General Fletcher. The opinion was based partly on a stormy interview with Miss O'Sullivan, in which she threatened to throw Colonel Latimer out of the window.

NOTTS NOT BUILDING.

£2,000,000 HOUSING SCHEME REJECTED.

After six hours' heated debate the Nottingham City Council have reversed their previous decision to proceed with two instalments of a £2,000,000 garden city housing scheme, and rejected the entire proposal. An invitation was extended to the Housing Committee alternatively to prepare a new proposal for tenement dwellings. The original scheme was agreed to some days ago by the Council. Owing to the excessive cost, however, a requisition was made by six members for a special meeting, which resulted as stated.

Alderman Huntsman declared that each house let at £25 would cost the ratepayers or taxpayers £50 annually, or a quarter of a million a year for 4,000 houses.

FLAX CAMOUFLAST.

HIDING CARGO OF LITERATURE.

The Bolshevist ship Eskilstuna from Petrograd has been captured by a British destroyer. The cargo was described as flax, but the real cargo was suspected to be Bolshevist literature. The Eskilstuna recently was stopped by a Finnish patrol and under a top layer of flax was found a mass of Bolshevist literature printed in English, French and German, also a valuable collection of art objects and Bolshevist films. The crew were Bolshevist agents disguised as sailors and the cargo was consigned to the American legation at Stockholm ostensibly for American museums.

TEN THOUSAND W.R.A.F'S. TO GO.

Orders have been issued to the Royal Air Force for the immediate demobilization of 10,047 W.R.A.F'S. The remaining 3,298 must leave by the 1st April next.

This sweeping reduction has been brought about by the reduction of the estimates from sixty-six and a half millions to twenty-five millions. It is probable that a strong effort will be made to retain the women cooks, who have not only served better meals but have effected great economies.

"MY LITTLE WOODEN HUT."

Support for the scheme of providing wooden houses in order to overcome the house famine is accumulating. Something must be done and done quickly to supply the demand for dwelling places. Frame buildings can be erected in one month, whereas brick or stone takes at least four, the cost being about three hundred and eighty against seven hundred and fifty pounds. No architect or contractor is required. The owner can put his up house by himself with a hammer and nails. The immediate difficulties are lack of cargo space to import the sections and local by-laws which forbid the erection of wooden houses.

JUNGLE DEMOCRACY.

"Bad as autocracy is, Bolshevism is a thousand times worse, and England will have none of it." Sailors and firemen at a conference loudly cheered this statement by Colonel John Ward, M.P.

What existed in Russia to-day, Colonel Ward proceded, was democracy as understood by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald and his friends. Russia to-day was a country reduced to the state of a jungle. Bolshevism was national suicide, and those who advocated it ought to be treated as insane.

DEVON MOTOR BANDITS.

An attempt to steal a motor-car is reported from East Devon. Two men asked the proprietor of a Yeovil garage to drive them to Weymouth, and while he was putting on his overalls made off with the car in the opposite direction. The missing car was discovered unattended near Honiton the next morning.

CROPS AND STOCK.

UNDER PRODUCTION IN STAPLE FOODS.

Interesting returns of land under cultivation are published by the Board of Agriculture. There are falls in the acreage under wheat, which amounts to 2,221,000 acres—a decrease of 335 000 acres; and in oats. Potatoes have fallen heavily; the total acreage, 47,000, is only three-fourths that of last year, and is little greater than the pre-war average. Barley, rye, beans, peas, turnips and swedes show increases.

There are about 10,000 more horses on the farms. Cows in milk are more numerous than in 1918 by 85,000, or 4½ per cent.; the total. 1,944,000, is the largest on record. Cows and heifers in calf show, however, a material decline, but the total of cows and heifers, in milk or in calf, amounts to 2,554,000, or only 25,000 less than last year's record. The total of all cattle, 6,195,000, is just 6,000 below last year's figure. Sheep show a decline of 1,350,000, or 8 per cent., the total number being 15,123,000, which is the lowest on record. The total of all pigs was just 1,800,000, or 6 per cent. more than last year.

EXIT FROM FIUME.

TROOPS RUSHED AWAY.

Rear Admiral Hope, on board the light cruiser Cardiff, accompanied by the Ceres after disembarking some five hundred men of the York and Lancaster Regiment has left Malta and returned to Fiume. Apparently the Yorks and Lancs were rushed away unexpectedly as large quantities of stores were left behind. Besides Italian, British and French warships at Fiume there is also the American cruiser Pittsburg, while the American cruiser Olympia has been ordered to proceed there.

A letter from Fiume received at Malta states that D'Annunzio's photograph has been distributed broadcast among the inhabitants together with a warning that any action taken against the poet will be strongly resisted. Many thousands of demobilized Italian soldiers at Fiume have made common cause with the insurgents. Reports say that the British, French and American troops are not allowed to carry arms and are even deprived of bayonets when on patrol duty in Fiume.

VICTIMS OF EXPLOSION.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL IN RHINELAND.

The funeral has taken place at Cologne of the victims of the accident which occurred some days ago at Wermelskirchen and which resulted in the deaths of Sgt. S. Chipling and Cpl. I. Howe, 2/4 Bn. Hampshire Regiment, Ptes. F. Pitwell, C. Jones, H. Habgood and F. Bridle, 3rd Southern L.T.M.B. Quite a hundred of the dead soldiers' comrades were present, and among the many officers who attended were Brig.-Gen. Caley, C.B., C.M.G., commanding the 3rd Southern Infantry Brigade and Lt.-Col. T. D. Sidney, D.S.O., commanding the 2/4 Bn. Hampshire Regiment. The service was very impressive. The Dead March in Saul was rendered by the combined bands of the 51st. Bn. and the 2/4 Bn. Hampshire Regt. At the graveside the Rev. Grindon, C. F. officiated. A volley was fired over the graves and the Last Post was sounded by the buglers of the 2/4 Bn. Hampshire Regt. Many flowers were sent by the dead soldiers' comrades.

MASKED BANDITS TO BE RE-TRIED.

The jury being unable to agree, Peter Albert Vincent, 20, mechanic, and Natalo Auda, 18, waiter, charged with armed robbery at the Elysée Restaurant, with an attack on Mr. Curry, clerk to the governors of Guy's Hospital and with robbery with violence at Hampstead, were discharged for re-trial at the next sessions. Bail was allowed.

While Auda was in the witness-box a mask found at Guy's Hospital was handed to him, and he was asked to put it on. Made of brown linen with a white patch in the centre, and slits for the eyes, it completely covered the face of the wearer.

Both men denied the charge.

LUXURIOUS TAXIS FOR LONDON.

The first of the new taxicabs, which will be the last word in luxury, should be on the London streets within a fortnight. Members of the owner-drivers' branch of the Cabmen's Union are acquiring one thousand of these new taxicabs of a special type from Messrs. Beardmore of Glasgow. This new cab costs £650 and 250 are contracted for by the end of December. They are being made to the drivers' specification and will embody many improvements suggested by practical experience. At present London is about four thousand short of the pre-war number of taxis.

VERY EXPENSIVE BREAD.

At Highgate yesterday Messrs. Gyles, of Muswell Hill, were fined one hundred pounds for exposing for sale thirty-four loaves of bread short in weight. Previous convictions were proved.

The Bishop of Carlisle (Dr. Diggle) will shortly resign his see. He has been in ill-health for some time.

ROYAL WARRANT.

PAY AND PENSIONS OF SOLDIERS.

TENTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

10. With reference to paragraph 2 of the General Conditions, in cases where the rates of pay provided in this Warrant equal or exceed the existing rates of pay plus Army of Occupation bonus it will be assumed that it is to the advantage of officers to draw the new rates of pay and allowances. Army Agents and Command Paymasters will proceed to issue these rates and to adjust arrears unless officers notify at once that they wish to remain on the existing rates until, owing to promotion, increase of pay or cessation of any special emolument, the new rates of pay and allowances equal or exceed the old. In making the notification, officers should state clearly the command in which they are serving. Army Agents will at once notify to Command Paymasters the names of any officers electing to continue on the old rates. When the new rates become more advantageous Army Agents will notify Command Paymasters concerned the date from which the new rates have been issued.

In the case of temporary officers of the Royal Army Ordnance Corps under the rank of Captain who, by virtue of the existing rates of additional pay, benefit by a continuance of the rate of pay, &c., at present in force the rates provided in this Warrant will not be issued until promotion or the cessation of any special emolument cancels the existing advantage.

11. Every endeavour will be made to expedite adjustments of pay due under this Warrant, but it must be borne in mind that considerable administrative complications arise and some delay is unavoidable. The pay for October, 1919, will be issued at the new rates in every case, but the adjustment of arrears from 1st July, 1919, will take some time. Officers in the payment of Army Agents above the rank of subaltern will be notified by the Army Agents directly the arrears have been credited to their accounts. Pending this notification officers should not draw on their accounts in anticipation of the credits for arrears.

Officers who were serving on 1st July, 1919, but had ceased to serve on the date of this Warrant, are not entitled to receive the new rates of pay and allowances.

With the exception of normal tables showing in a concise form how to calculate one's full pay and emoluments, and a short appendix of definitions [both of which we shall publish at an early date] the Officers' Warrant ends here.

The following is the Royal Authority for Increase of Pay and Pensions to Soldiers, which will appear in daily instalments:

INCREASE OF PAY AND PENSIONS OF SOLDIERS.

GEORGE R.I.

Whereas We deem it expedient to revise the general scheme of emoluments of British warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men laid down in Our Warrant for the Pay, Appointment, Promotion and Non-Effective Pay of Our Army, dated December 1, 1914, and in such other Warrants granted since that date as are still in force, and in the Regulations governing the Allowances of Our Army, issued by Our Warrant of September 28, 1914, as modified by such other warrants granted since that date as are still in force:

Our Will and Pleasure is that as from July 1, 1919, the pay and allowances of all British warrant officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, serving on the date of this Our Warrant, the depôts, of whose units are situated in the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, or the Isle of Man, with such exceptions and additions as may be authorized by Our Army Council, shall be modified as laid down in Tables 1 to 4 attached to this Our Warrant; and that as from April 1, 1919, the pensions of warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the above classes—

(a) Who are granted service pensions on or after the date of this Our Warrant,

(b) Who have been granted service pensions during the Great War, or.

(c) Who were service pensioners before the war and have given satisfactory re-enlisted service during that war, shall be as laid down in Table 5 attached to this Our Warrant.

In any case where transfer from the rates of pay or pension hitherto in force to the new rates involves a loss of emoluments, the soldier may continue in receipt of the rates hitherto in force until such time as on change of appointment or on account of increment or promotion, or abolition of special war emoluments, the new rates are equal to or exceed the old. Warrant officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who on the date of this Our Warrant are already demobilized or who are already on furlough after dispersal pending demobilization shall not be eligible for the new rates of pay and allowances.

And Whereas it is now desirable to fix a limit to the period during which service may count for the earning of war pay approved by Our Warrant of December 3, 1917:

Our Further Will and Pleasure is that no service rendered subsequent to the date of this Our Warrant shall count for such war pay.

Given at Our Court at St. James's, this 13th day of September, 1919, in the 10th year of Our Reign.

By His Majesty's Command.

WINSTON S. CHURCHILL.

THE LIES THEY TOLD US.

This is the title of a little book by a German, for Germans, about Germans. It is an account of how German public opinion was misinformed, deceived and misled by their own authorities during the war, buoying then up with false hopes, stifling truths that would have called forth protest from a large number, and raising ambitions which were from the first impossible of attainment against humanity, and, as a consequence, finally bringing upon Germany, after awful and utterly useless loss, the disaster towards which she doggedly persisted in travelling.

To all who can read German we suggest that they should read this book themselves. It is illuminating. The title is "Wie wir belogen wurden" by Dr. Kurt Muhsan and the book is obtainable of many booksellers in Cologne: it costs 4 marks,

It shows how the authorities realised how strenuous an effort was neccessary, in spite of many years' steady preparation for war and the national cult of "Might justifies all," to carry with them the whole nation in such an unjustifiable adventure, and to excuse inexcusable methods.

"Qui s'excuse s'accuse" and the laboured attempts to justify the invasion of Belgium, the atrocities committed there, the introduction of new horrors into warfare, the unbridled piracy of the U-boats, the failures of the General Staff to achieve their promised results,—all show how strongly was felt the necessity for such explanation and excuse even to a people trained in credulity and mechanical discipline.

It is only now that the Germans are beginning, here and there, to recognise some of the real truth about the war, though a good deal of what was said in their discussion over the Peace Treaty before signing, and a number of books such as Lichnowsky's, Ludendorff's and others are gradually opening their eyes to the untruths with which they have been deluged and which doped them all along the road to catastrophe.

But even now the great majority are uninformed, and this little book will do its part in leading to that recognition of facts which alone can form the basis for future good understanding, peace and development.

But, deceived though they were, the nation as a whole cannot take shelter behind the lies of its rulers. For a nation chooses its system of government which can only exist as long as the people tacitly acquiesce therein and in the policy adopted.

The arrogant materialism and adoration of might which for years past has as a cult suffocated the higher qualities of the German people were for them to accept or reject—with the results.

One can but hope that wiser views and a return to the best that was in Germany of old may come as a result of hard experience and of an impartial desire for enlightment as to the real truth of the past.

THE BATTLEFIELDS TO-DAY.

After the Armistice was signed the battle-area was for a long time deserted. The troops moved forward or backward, and traffic grew less and less until the noise and bustle of war were replaced by a haunting silence and desolation that it would be hard to surpass even among those great belts of waste that girdle the world.

There is no more awful companion than silence and no more pitiable sight than a once fertile and prosperous country side turned into a wilderness and purged of all life save the very lowest.

Troops and traffic had lent some colour to that area and relieved it of much of its sadness, but to-day it is a heart-rending sight and to pass over the original front into the miles and miles of tortured country is to be overcome by a depression that it is impossible to resist.

Thousands of tourists are daily making a pilgrimage to the more famous districts that they may see for themselves those places they have read so much about, while others come to visit the cemeteries that dot the area and are a grim reminder of the price of Victory.

The scene in the forward area of the old line is quite an animated one. Trains, trams, motors, bicycles, and horse-vehicles bring hundreds of people hourly, and pedestrians tell of fabulous distances they have walked by stages.

The hundreds of people who catered for the troops during the war have refused to see their prosperity ended by the withdrawal of their customers. They find that a lucrative trade is still ensured to them for several years at the hands of the sight-seers who are only too glad to have their meals there and buy up all kinds of souvenirs and post-cards as mementoes of their visit.

The front is studded with the well-known wooden houses, and there, under well-known war names, the tourist is able to find all he wants.

The troops who after Christmas began salvage work spend their spare time acting as guides and making souvenirs.

As guides they excel themselves and give lengthy descriptions of everything of interest in a manner worthy of the professional guide who never allows fact to play too big a part in his narrative.

Pride of place however, falls to the Chinese labourers in the making and fashioning of souvenirs. They exhibit great skill and ingenuity and apparently seem very satisfied with the results of their trade.

Their method of sale however is rather disconcerting to the more nervous tourists as the sound of a motor brings a number of them rushing out wreathed in smiles and brandishing shell-cases and other articles. They also appear to have been smitten by the disease of profiteering but as a rule accept the assessment of their customers.

Out of this area the tourist moves into the battle-fields proper. There he finds much to interest and much to sadden. There in the cock-pit of the world he can picture for himself the terrors that reigned both day and night and try to imagine the intensity of the war that blotted out almost every feature and created from Switzerland to the sea a devasted area unparalleled in the history

The only bright feature to him is the care and attention that have been given to the graves and so he returns home deeply moved but always with the memory that the last resting-places of the Great Dead stand gloriously majestic on the earth they have made their own.

A FALLEN IDOL.

It was in a cafe in the Hohestrasse that I came across him.

I had dropped into the only vacant seat available, and had noticed that he was one of a party seated at an adjacent table.

The loudness of his conversation gave one no choice in the matter of not overhearing him.

Instinctively I thought of those words of Shakespeare's in "Henry VIII."

"In peace theres's nothing so becomes a man as modest humility."

It was quite apparent that he was not acquainted with the wisdom of Shakespeare.

With some slight assistance from Foch and one or two others he had won the war, at least his conversation impressed one that way.

Calling for a glass of beer I settled down in my chair to enjoy the music of the orchestra.

My luck was in. For once the charms of Texas and Dixie were not being interpreted in music.

But it was not to be.

A furtive glance at my tunic by the loquacious one apparently gave him courage, he edged nearer to me and soon I became a polite but unwilling listener to his tales of the horrors of war.

He was as full of them as an orange is of juice.

Deeds of daring simply oozed from him, in many of which I gathered, he had taken no mean part.

Names that are now household words he mentioned.

Ypres, Cambrai, Arras and others.

My interest was aroused. I became enraptured.

The orchestra vanished in a haze. (Perhaps it was the tobacco smoke.)

I was wafted to open spaces where the Very light played, and where the orange flash of the guns and the scream and whine of high explosive played a prominent part.

The orchestra supplied the side effects of shell bursts, the drummer figuring largely.

I saw again the shattered villages, heard the metallic rattle of the machine guns, followed the fortunes of ration and working parties.

He was certainly adept at describing the thrills of modern war. His "local colour" was perfect.

In the midst of a hair raising account of a wiring party my idol was shattered.

Stretching forth his right arm to have another pull at his glass I noticed a solitary blue chevron adorning it.

It had a most forlorn look on his otherwise undecorated tunic.

My thoughts came to earth with a rush.

For once I was unthankful to the Quartermaster for issuing me a new tunic on which I had had no time to sew my chevrons. "HAWKEYE."

CLUBLAND IN COLOGNE.

BRITISH ARMY INSTITUTE N.A.C.B.

It is an imposing building with turrets and battlements, fronting the Rhine near the Hohenzollern Bridge. Gargoyles and numerous shields bearing coats of arms, with the German eagle in the centre are the most striking of exterior decorations.

The memorial stones bear the names and dates: Erbaut 1558-69. Erneut 1900-01.

In front of it are trees and to the right a beer garden with numerous little ables and chairs and an ornamente verandah. There is a band stand in the centre.

It is delightfully cool here and the outlook upon the busy Rhine and wonderful bridge is exceedingly plea ant. There is no wonder that it is a favou ite spot with our men for it is restful and quickens the imagination.

Like all other public buildings it has a number — 33 — and it is known by the name of Stapelhaus. It has three stories; the lower one is the Club and the two upper ones are used as a Natural History museum.

After the boys have enjoyed a quiet rest and refreshment they can proceed to contemplate a really wonderful collection of stuffed animals above.

A fine specimen of a lion guards the entrance and the arrangement of the subjects in the various rooms is perfect. Here you will see groups of animals amongst artificial grass and rocks—wolves, reindeer, wild bears, zebras, elephants, hippotamii and gorillas climbing trees.

The Club proper, is perhaps the most unique of its kind in Cologne. When you enter you are impressed with two things — the great crowd of men and the magnificent rooms.

The huge tea room is like the grand hall of some ancient castle. The windows are of stained glass, the walls are painted with views of Cologne and other subjects.

At one end is a well stocked canteen which equals any display to be found in a huge London store. It pleases the eyes and gives one a thrill of anticipation to see the tiers of tins and fancy boxes. In the centre is a platform for the orchestra and piano.

The writing and reading rooms have vaulted roofs and are decorated in gold and other colours. There is also an excellent room for games with many attractions.

The most ancient part of the building is the housekeeper's room. This dates back over 400 years and is a perfect gem of architecture. Leading from this is an old fashioned staircase which, if you ascend, brings you to a little room previously used by a famous artist.

Here are one or two fine examples of antique furniture and two priceless engravings. The room is not in use and it is a privilege to be allowed to have a peep into it.

The Club is served by an efficient staff of girls whose uniform is a now a familiar sight in the streets of Cologne. When engaged in their duties they wear a most becoming blue overall. They are under the capable management of Mrs McTavish, from bonnie Scottland. The also two men orderlies and four military police engaged on the premises.

A peep into the kitchen is a revelation of how well things are done. Here many dainty dishes are prepared.

The whole club is a busy hive of industry and is spotlessly clean. All the arrangements for the comfort and happiness of the men are well planned and carefully carried out.

That the men are grateful and appreciative is beyond question. The proof is to be seen in the constant crowds ever coming and going. G. K.

A CHANCE FOR BRAINS.

To what exteat the war was won by sport and sporting instincts it is impossible to estimate with an exactness that would satisfy a mathematician, but no one can gainsay the fact that numerous lessons inculcated on the playing fields of Britain, and the fine physique derived from healthy, vigorous out-door games and pastimes contributed very largely to our success in the clash of arms.

An opportunity now presents itself for sport taking a leaf from the Army's book. In England for the moment a wordy warfare ensues over the old and embarrassing problem of "off side" play, the high-priest of which, McCracken, the Newcastle United full-back and Captain, with the commendable use of his brains has raised his troublesome but perfectly justifiable tactics to a fine art. He does not always employ them but can do so very effectively with or without provocation.

As a result two hostile camps have been created. On the one hand there are the football enthusiasts who condemn McCracken and his methods, and who suggest the adoption of a three-quarter line, on his own side of which a forward cannot be "off side," or some other alteration of the law. On the other hand there are those who merely recommend present-day forwards to use their brains sufficiently to thwart the high-priest and his followers, there being in their opinion no need for an alteration of the law.

Herein lies the opportunity for a quietly dispassionate study of characteristic Army methods when the enemy sprang upon us some disagreeable innovation. When the gas peril appeared on the Ypres front, there was no hurried meeting of protest in a forward shell-hole. Brains set to work in England as well as in the battle-zone. Gas masks were evolved which in time became one of the most serviceable articles in the British soldier's equipment. The soccer forwards on the playing fields of England must bestir themselves mentally.

It was Aristotle's view that the life of contemplation is higher and more desirable than the life of action. The tactics of McCracken, who seems to combine the two in a very skilful and spirited manner, are surely not so formidable as to defeat the combined brain power of the country's leading football club committees and players. If the one-back professor continues to be unbeatable, room must speedily be found for him in a more exalted sphere of public activity.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

TRAVELLING ON ALLIED RAILWAYS.

Sir,—The reasons why Belgian State Railways should allow British civilians to travel at half fare are not apparent, and the fact that the French Authorities have shown their usual "galanterie" in giving special concessions to officers' wives does not make it incumbent on the Belgians to do so.

It would be bad form, to say the least, to use this French concession as the thin end of the wedge to make the Belgians fall into line.

If "English Lady" had looked about her on her journey through Belgium, she would have noticed the ruined state of that country's permanent ways and bridges and would perhaps have realised how badly the Belgian railways are in need of money.

Are any of our Allies' or even British officers' wives given special concessions on British Railways?

BOOKING SEATS.

Sir,—To change the subject for a brief spell from soldiers' wives and bachelors' grievances, I should be grateful if some kindly spirit could provide me with a specific for obtaining a respectable seat at the Deutsches Theatre.

At present, if one applies at the Amusements Office or Theatre box-office more than 48 hours before the date required, one is told that tickets are not yet issuable; and, if 47 hours before date, the result is a poor seat.

What remarkable things must happen in that one short hour. One is forced to the conclusion that either the seats are sold on the principle of "first come worst served," or else that the best seats are earmarked days a head.

I have, in common with many others, a great admiration for the Rhine Army Dramatic Society, but, if the present system of booking is the best that can be devised, I would much prefer to "queue up" and take my chance with the crowd, thus getting my deserts. H.H.T.

WHY NO CHILDREN?

Sir,—I suppose there is a reason for the refusal of the N.C.O. to allow a child to have tea at the "Ewige Lampe," although it is not apparent at first sight.

Perhaps it is that the authorities fear that as the occupation progresses we shall see babies in arms within the sacred portals of the club.

Here is a tip for the officer in charge. Why not make provisional arrangements for a creche and nursery?

Joking apart, however, I sympathise with Paterfamilias' for I presume that he with his wife desired a cup of refreshing English tea. That is where the German café falls short.

A further suggestion: why not a reading and rest room for officers' wives?

ANOTHER FATHER.

DON'T BE OVERCHARGED.

Sir,—May I make use of your letter column for the purpose of warning the troops here against being overcharged in

From one or two experiences I have had lately it seems to be becoming a practice on the part of waiters and shopkeepers to make a "mistake" to their own advantage in reckoning up, even to the extent of 25 or 30 per cent increase.

They appear to take advantage of Tommy's ignorance of German, but as one of those who knows the language pretty well, I like to know that I am not being overcharged and ask for details when I have reason to think I am, with the above mentioned result.

Tommy unfortunately encourages that sort of thing as he is only too ready to pay what they choose to ask. In dealing with Germans it is not advisable to reckon the value of the mark according to the rate of exchange, but rather as a shilling (its pre-war equivalent) which has depreciated from two to three times as much in value as our own shilling.

We do not want to spoil the Germans too much; they do not understand generous treatment. WAG.

CALL FOR ACTION.

Sir,—I notice through the columns of your American contemporary that the authorities in Coblenz are making an example of Germans who are brazen enough to wear goods of military pattern.

Similar action is called for in and around Cologne. Any observant individual will notice khaki shirts and collars of the pattern worn by officers, being worn. Two cases come to mind,—a German wearing khaki breeches with strappings and puttees, and another was to be seen wearing an American tunic without having removed the buttons.

We appreciate the desire to copy us. Instance the tendency to let the hair grow to a respectable length, but the line should be drawn when Germans wear articles of clothing of military pattern.

PROSPECTS IN JAPAN.

Sir,—Soon after I am demobilized it is my intention to go to Japan, but before doing so I should like to know something about that country.

Can any of your readers kindly inform me as to the cost of living there, and what opportunities might exist for an Englishman to obtain employment.

EMIGRANT.

TO DAGONET.

In reply to his "Boys On The Rhine."

Ah, Dagonet, you vainly pine
To be at Bingen on the Rhine.
Oh, would that I could drink the wine
In London on the Thames.

The skies at Bingen daily weep,
Guard duty mars my gentle sleep.
No vigil must a fellow keep
In London on the Thames.

By Father Rhine I hate the lyre
I used to strike ere Fortune dire
Enticed me from my blazing fire
In London on the Thames.

Roll on, dear Time, and bring me home
To view once more the misty dome
Of old St. Paul's no more to roam
From London on the Thames.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

(By Novo)

Rotherham County consider they have made a valuable discovery in Hedley, the half-back, who has distinguished himself in each of the games so far played.

* * *

R. O. Evans, the old Blackburn Rovers, Coventry City, and Welsh international goal-keeper, has so far recovered that he has taken up refereeing.

* * *

W. Spratt, the Manchester United full-back, who injured his knee while playing for Chelsea last season, and broke down in practice, has been operated upon successfully by a Manchester specialist.

* * *

Swansea Town have signed on W. G. Brown, the old Bristol City inside-right. Brown's signature is rather in the nature of a speculation, for he was very badly wounded in March of last year, and has only played in one game for Queen's Park Rangers since leaving hospital.

* * *

Although the Metropolitan teams generally made a capital start, several of the clubs have thus early struck a bad patch in respect to injuries to players, and in some cases the lack of capable reserves may prove serious.

* * *

Chelsea's troubles began when Dickie, who had been showing magnificent form at centre-half, broke a bone in his wrist. In the next match Browning developed a loose cartilage in the knee, which will probably necessitate an operation, and Halse is at present hobbling about on sticks through a severe kick on the ankle

* * *

The first representative game of the season is due to take place on October 4 at Dublin — though there is a possibil- Belfast — when the Irish League meet the Southern League. The Southern League team will be as follows:—Price (Brentford), Elvey (Luton), A. E. Knight (Portsmouth), F. Gregory (Watford), Mitchell (Queen's Park Rangers), M'Alpine (Millwall), Jefferson (Swindon), Dominy (Southampton), Weir (Swansea), West (Cardiff), and Dixon (Plymouth Argyle).

* * *

There has been much speculation in football circles in Manchester as to which club will secure the services of W. Meredith, for it is generally believed that his association with Manchester United has been definitely severed. The United in fact have practically given up hope of ever being able to persuade him to return, and he has for sometime past been on the open to transfer list. Meredith however strongly objects to any transfer fee being demanded, and I believe he has placed his case before the Football Association. I would not be surprised if he is seen again, very soon, in the colours of his old club—Manchester City.

* * *

Do the Sunderland people expect too much of Buchan? It would appear so as when he fails the whole team seems to fall to pieces. When Buchan is held the whole front line seems to be put of its game. This occurred at Chelsea and again when Sunderland played the Arsenal. The secret of Buchan's success is that the majority of defenders are inclined to back away from him as he advances. This is asking for trouble as Buchan, once on the move, is about as slippery as an eel.

* * *

As the English Press has been devoting so much space recently to McCracken, the Newcastle United full-back and off-side-specialist, perhaps I may be allowed to enlighten my readers on how he came to play the off-side game. Most people are of the opinion that the famous Irish International is the originator of these wily schemes. However I believe it was Notts County who first introduced scientific offside tactics, and Newcastle took up the same game, after having suffered severely at the hands of the County defenders. Peter M'William and Colin Veitch, Newcastle's international halves then persevered with the theory, which they perfected, and, what is more, McCracken for a considerable time took badly to the new tactics. However he is now a pastmaster of the offside game and at the present day there is'nt a back to equal the United skipper.

Two Casualties.

Tufnell Park were unlucky in their tie with West Ham United. Within 15 minutes of the start W. Hawkins, one of their forwards, sprained his knee, and 20 minutes before the close C. Hannaford sprained his ankle.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Friday, September 26th, 1919.

Surface wind between west and south west, 10 to 15 m. p. h., fair, mild day with good visibility except in the early morning.

BOXING FOR BOYS.

Amateur Association's Highly Promising Scheme.

School boxing, as apart from public school boxing, has always suffered from a certain lack of organisation, and it is good news therefore to learn that the Amateur Boxing Association has definitely taken the matter in hand, and is coming forward with what seems a highly promising scheme.

The A.B.A. will hold championships this winter open to boys at schools in England, Scotland, and Wales, at weights ranging from 6st. and under, to more than 10st. 8lbs., the contests to be over three rounds.

Eliminating competitions will take place in various districts within the jurisdiction of the local centres of the association. The winners and runners-up in these competitions will be eligible to compete for the divisional schools championships of London, South of England, Midlands, North, Scottish, and Welsh local associations.

Winners and runners-up in the divisional championships will in turn qualify for the A.B.A. schools championships, which will be held in London next January, the date and place having yet to be fixed.

FOOTBALL GROUNDS.

Arsenal Chairman Discusses Ideal Enclosure.

As already announced, arrangements have been made to publish a series of articles on the ever interesting subject of football, written by leading authorities on the great game.

The first of these, entitled "What makes a good Football Ground?" by Col. Sir Henry S. Norris, M. P., chairman of the Woolwich Arsenal Football Club and late director of Fulham, will appear on Saturday.

Those who are interested in the controversy anent the improvement of accommodation for football spectators will enjoy reading the original views on the matter which Sir Henry reveals in the course of his brightly written article.

WILSON AND MIDDLESBORO.

Reported Signature.

W. Le C. writes as follows:—

"Information reaches me from a generally well-informed source that Andrew Wilson has signed for Middlesboro. The breach would thus appear to have been healed and I believe an official statement will be issued in a few days.

"If my informant is correct Middlesboro will have three star centres, Elliot, Butler and Wilson, and the disturbing query arises as to who will be dropped. It is certain it won't be the last."

3rd. M.G.C. v. 9th D.L.I. (Pioneers.)

Gunners Score the Only Goal Just Before Time.

As neither the Gunners nor the Pioneers have a football ground, this match was played on the ground of the 20th Bn. the game was very evenly fought out. The defences of both teams being very reliable, but the D.L.I. were the hardest pressed. O'Neil, in goal, proved very steady, while Shepard was a little the better of the D.L.I. backs.

The play in the second half was very much a repetition of the first, except that the D.L.I. with the help of the slope, did most of the attacking, but the inside forwards lacked finish. The two wing men, Buckle and Reynolds both did well, while Hogg the D.L.I. centre-half played a very strong game throughout. Result:—3rd. Bn. M.G.C. 1. 9th Bn. D.L.I. 0.

On Friday afternoon next the 9th D.L.I. will be opposed to the Royal Engineers, Southern Division, in the 2nd. round of the Y.M.C.A. (Kalk) Shield at Riehl.

C 187 BDE. R.F.A. v. A/187 BDE. R.F.A.

This Inter-Battery match was played at Eil on Monday night. Right from the start to the finish the game was played at a fast pace, and the "duels" between both defences and sets of forwards was quite exciting to watch, but although the "A" Battery forwards snatched the victory by one goal through an unlucky misunderstanding on the part of the visiting team's defence it was the general opinion that on the run of the play the visiting team ("C" Battery) deserved to have won, as besides having most of the game they were superior in combination and a better balanced team. It was also good to hear the amusing "chaff" and jokes passed between both sets of supporters. The referee is to be complimented for the way in which he conducted the game.

OLYMPIC GAMES.

To Be Revived At Antwerp Next Year.

BRITISH COMPETITORS.

The Olympic Games are to be revived at Antwerp next year, and to them Belgium has extended a cordial and pressing invitation to all our athletes. This invitation was accepted on their behalf at a meeting of the British Olympic Council, of which Lord Downham was unanimously offered and accepted the position of chairman. To this meeting came representatives of the governing bodies responsible for the conduct and development of athletics, boxing, fencing, gymnastics, claybird shooting, football, lawn tennis, wrestling, and cycling. Major Clarke, Chief Inspector of Gymnastics, Royal Air Force, and an inspector of Army physical training were also present.

A special "competitions committee" was appointed, whose first duty will be to co-ordinate the criticisms of the different governing bodies of sport on the tentative programme issued in May last—and to make a report to be submitted to the Belgian Olympic Committee.

The definite programme will be communicated to the Press as soon as it is received from the Belgian Olympic Committee. The Finance Committee of the Council was instructed to draw up estimates for the current year, and to formulate a scheme for securing the necessary funds.

France, America, Italy, Holland, Denmark, and Sweden have already agreed to send competitors. Athletes from Germany, Austria, Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria will not be allowed to take part in these games.

ARMY FOOTBALL.

Revised List of Fixtures for Coming Season.

The following is the revised list of fixtures arranged by the Army Football Association through its energetic honorary secretary, Brigadier-General Kentish, C.M.G., D.S.O.:—

Mar. 3 v. Swindon, at Aldershot.

The dates of the Army F.A. Cupties are as follows:—First round, November 15; second round, December 13; third round, January 31; fourth round, February 21; fifth round, March 6; semi-finals, March 20; final, Easter Monday, April 5.

The winners will meet the winners of the Navy Cup on April 14 or April 17 on the Navy ground.

STYMIE TO REMAIN.

At the meeting of the Royal and Ancient Club of St Andrews, the Rules of Golf Committee announced that they had no intention of making the hole bigger or of removing the fun and the skill which the stymie provided.

With regard to the standardisation of the ball, the committee proposed to consult the U.S. Golf Association and other interested bodies before submitting a definite proposal.

£590 GOLF TOURNAMENT.

The Scottish section of the Professional Golfers' Association held a thirty-six-hole stroke competition on the Bruntsfield Links Club's course, near Edinburgh, the five leaders qualifying for the final stages of the £590 tournament at Walton Heath on September 29 and following days.

The first four were Tom Fernie (Turnberry) 141, W. Thomson (North Berwick) 142, L.B. Ayton (St. Andrews) 146, and J. Soutter (Edinburgh) 147, while A. Butchart (Kilmarnock) and A. Marling (Aberdeen) tied at 149 for the last place.

GOLF AT RODENKIRCHEN.

Ladies will play on the course after 3.30 p.m.

He: Let's have a two-some.
She: What do you mean?
He: I should say, a match.
She: But the stymies?
He: We'll get over them.
She: And the bunkers?
He: We'll get out of them.
She: And the rough?
He: There's a fair way, too.
She: It's a long round.
He: For all our lives.
She: All our lives?
He: Yes, if it's a match.
She: A two-some!

HENDON TOURNEY.

N. Mishu In Fine Form: 4th Round Entered.

Some interesting play was seen at Hendon in the second day's play of the London Flying Club's tournament.

Mr. N. Mishu entered the fourth round at the expense of Mr. P. F. Glover, a naval player, playing some beautiful shots.

Mrs. Larcombe and Miss Ryan had easy wins, but Miss Holman had to fight hard against Mrs. O Neill. Results:

Men's Open Singles.

Third Round: Mr. N. Mishu beat Mr. P. F. Glover, 6—0, 6—3.

Women's Open Singles.

Second Round: Mrs. Larcombe beat Miss A. L. Leete, 6—2, 6—1; Miss C. Arnholz beat Miss G. A. Gilbert, 6—1, 6—4; Hon. Mrs. Creston beat Miss N. B. Palmer, 8—6 6—2; Miss Ryan beat Miss M. Preece 6—4, 6—0.

Men's Open Doubles.

Second Round: Mr. S. P. J. Merlin and Mr. L. T. Gooding beat Mr. H. W. Peterson and Mr. J. B. Brinkley, 6—4, 6—2.

Women's Open Doubles.

Second Round: Miss K. McKane and, Miss "St. George" beat Mrs. E. M. Lushington and Miss Baynton, 6—0, 6—0.

Open Mixed Doubles.

First Round: Capt. P. O'Hara Wood and Mrs. Larcombe beat Mr. S. C. Wu and Mrs. Gordon Lowe, 6—1, 6—0; Mr. S. N. Doust and Miss Ryan beat Mr. C. Grahame White and Miss A. L. Lister, 6—2, 6—1; Mr. W. Powell and Mrs. Curgenven beat Capt. Southgate and Mrs. Southgate, 6—2, 6—3.

BRILLIANT FOOTBALL.

Former Arsenal Player in Rhineland.

A very interesting Inter-Division Football match took place at Haus Garath (H.Q. Light D.A's. Ground) on Monday, between H.Q. Light Divisional Artillery and A 246th Battery R.F.A. Much brilliant football and headwork was effected by both sides and in spite of the fact that the H.Q. team had both sun and wind against them, they managed to obtain two goals to their credit before the whistle blew for half time. During the second half, the Battery seemed to shake off their lethargy and played a very fast and furious game, battering the H.Q's goalmouth unmercifully. Eventually they managed to obtain a goal, the result of a splendid shot by Dempsey (late Woolwich Arsenal). This was quickly followed by three more. The H.Q. strived very hard to score, but unfortunately both the Staff Captain and Gr. Leader were put out of action early in the second half. The result of the match was 4-2 for the Battery.

"C" BATTERY, 187 BDE. R.F.A. v. 12th SQUADRON R.A.F.

This match was played on the Battery ground at Osthnim on Sunday last and owing to the keen rivalry which exists between these two branches of the Army a good exhilarating game resulted. It [illegible] on in the game before the all deciding goal was scored, and that was secured by Cpl. Leete with a beautiful long shot. Though the R.F.A. tried hard to score towards the end (and there were several exciting incidents) the R.F.A. retired winners of a good game by one goal to nil.

NO 3 v. NO 2 COY. LANCS. DIV. TRAIN.

Teams representing the above Companies met on the ground of the former on Tuesday. The visiting team showed marked superiority throughout and emerged winners by four goals to nothing. The home team were never allowed to become dangerous all their attacks being easily broken up by No 2 Coy.'s half backs and backs.

For No 2 Coy. C. S. M. Davies added to his reputation as a goal scoring centre forward by notching three goals, Keegan at inside left being responsible for number four with a shot which gave the home goalkeeper no chance. Thornton at centre half proved his worth for the visitors. The home goalkeeper was in good form and had no chance with any of the goals scored against his team.

Corporation Ground.

Neath Corporation has acquired, at a cost of £6,500, 11½ acres of the Gnoll Park Estate for an athletic ground and park. Part of it is now the Neath Rugby football ground.

W'HAMPTON WINNERS.

Old Chris and Device Win for Kingsclere.

DUKE OF PORTLAND'S SUCCESS.

The Wolverhampton Meeting closed in quieter style than was the case with the opening day, which was punctuated with dead-heats. A feature was two wins for Kingsclere, the winners being Old Chris (in the Nursery) and Device (in the Stanton Plate), in the Duke of Portland's colours. Considering his very fair record and his low weight, Old Chris started at an excellent price, but a shade of odds had to be betted on Device to account for a moderate opposition in a mile race.

Result:

Bunbury H'Cap.—Anisette (3-1, K. Robertson), 1; Nachdorne (11-8), 2; Red Tartan (5-2), 3

Shrewsbury Plate.—Needlecraft (4—11, Whatley), 1; Jack's Lass (1 0-6), 2; Belovar (3-1), 3.

Newport Nursery.—Old Chris (5-1, Robbins), 1; The Drummer (5 1), 2; Light Blue (6-1), 3.

Oxley H'Cap.—Miss Cheek (3-1, V. Smyth), 1; Pickny (8-11), 2; Exiorn (6 4), 3.

Stanton Plate.—Device (5-6, Piper), 1; Redouble (8-1), 2; Zized (13-8) 3.

Corinthian Plate.—Daybreak (13-8, Mr. Roberts), 1; Walton Heath (8-1), 2; Trench Warfare (13-8), 3.

IRISH ST. LEGER.

Cheap Popularity wins the Race by 12 Lengths.

The following were the results of the Irish St. Leger at the Curragh on Wednesday:—

1. Cheap Popularity (3—1);
2. Kilkerley (5—2);
3. Ballyeaston (6—4).

Cheap Popularity won by 12 lengths: half a length separated the second and third.

AMATEUR FOOTBALL.

Outstanding Elevens in the Leading Leagues.

With the amateur teams rapidly settling down, it is now possible to form a reliable estimate of their capabilities. In the Isthmian League Tufnell Park appear to have the most consistent eleven. In their first three away matches they have gained five points, and the play of the forwards against Woking was excellent. The next best side to Tufnell Park is Dulwich Hamlet, who lost unluckily to London Caledonians.

London Caledonians are rebuilding a resolute team, with weight in defence and speed in attack. Clapton, the Amateur Cup-holders, on their display against Ilford are another dangerous side.

In the Athenian League Summerstown, on their showing against Cheshunt, have a chance for the championship. Bromley, with three successive victories, are another good combination. Luton Clarence are playing fast bustling football and Hampstead Town, having won their first League victory, are carefully rebuilding a strong side with capital new defenders.

SHARPSHOOTERS.

Kitchen (Sheffield United), Lane (Blackpool), and Broad (Millwall) have each scored nine goals this season. Kitchen, who did the hat trick on Saturday against Middlesbrough, remains at the head of the First League scorers, being one in front of Joe Smith (Bolton Wanderers) and two ahead of Buchan (Sunderland), both of whom netted twice on Saturday. Smith has registered all his eight goals since September 11.

Lane, Blackpool's centre forward, strengthened his position at the head of affairs in the Second League by scoring twice on Saturday, and is followed by Cock (Fulham) with seven goals. Millard (Birmingham), Bliss (Tottenham), and McLeod (Leeds City) have each scored six times.

In the Southern League, Broad, of Millwall, is still three ahead of Boyne, of Brentford, who has now six goals to his credit. Both players scored their side's only goal on Saturday.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Boots Taboo.

It has been decided that from October 11th, no boots of any kind will be allowed on the ball-room floor of the Leave Club. Members coming to the dances must either bring their own shoes or change into those provided by the Club. Owing to the wet weather, damp and muddy boots on the floor spoil it for dancing.

Male Voice Choral Society.

This Society resumes rehearsals on Monday, at 5.45 p.m., in the Lecture Room, on the first floor of the Soldiers' Club in Antoniter Strasse. Rehearsals will take place each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Membership is open to any officer, N.C.O. or man possessing a voice of reasonable quality and ability to read simple music at sight.

Mixed Whist Drive.

"A very pleasant evening was spent on Tuesday at No. 2 G.H.Q., W.O. and Sgts. Mess. Commencing at 7 p.m. a mixed Whist Drive occupied most of the evening and during the supper interval Sgt. Jones and a piano produced some fine musical selections assisted by some "Jazz" (?) effects by S.S.M's. Early and Jarvis. Play was resumed afterwards and ended at 9.30 p.m. An prompt dance was then arranged in which all joined, the fun ending at 11 p.m.

The Prize Winners.

Ladies:—1st Mrs. Harrison, 2nd Mrs. Cook, sealed No. C.S.L. Anderson, W.R.A.F. Gents: 1st S.S.M. Crooke, 2nd S.S.M. Pelgate, sealed No. B.S.M. Watson. There were two aspirants for the booby prize, viz,—Mrs. Stockley and Sgt. Davies. In the cut Mrs. Stockley won and was rewarded with "a tin of sardines." Great credit is due to the entertainments committee under S.S.M. Carr, R.E. for a splendid turn out and it is hoped that this is only one of many happy evenings.

A Child Dancer.

In the course of an excellent concert, in the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. by Miss May Joseph's Company, several classical dances were performed by Florence Bayfield, who gave the 1500 soldiers in the Great Hall a novel entertainment which elicited hearty demonstrations of delight. The vocal and instrumental pieces were all of exceptional merit and the recitalist was one of the best that I have heard in Cologne. Miss May Joseph is to be congratulated upon her very strong Company.

Another Y.M.C.A. Venture.

Miss Dorothy Nash, who is a member of the staff of the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. is already known in Cologne as an accomplished pianist. From a notice of a concert that is to be given in the Loreley Hall, I learn that Miss Nash is also a composer, and that, assisted by a violinist and a vocalist she will gave a pianoforte recital entirely of her own music at the Central on Monday next at 7 o'clock. This will probably be the first time such a recital has been given in the Rhine Army and so unique an occasion should attract to the recital all in Cologne, who are interested in music.

Leave Club Programme.

On Sunday, September 28th, the Rev. C. E. Wheeler will hold a chat in the Writing Room from 5 to 6 p.m. and at 6.30 there will be a concert by the Band of the Inniskilling Dragoons. Major Greenlees and Sgt. Ward have kindly consented to sing. There will be an impromptu concert from 5 to 6 p.m. on Monday, September 29th followed by a practice dance in the Theatre at 6.30 p.m. A dancing class will be given on Tuesday, September 30th, from 5 to 6 p.m. in the Theatre and an impromptu concert will take place at the same hour in the Music Room. At 7 p.m. the Fragments Concert Party will give a performance in the Theatre.

In Few Words.

I hear that the Opera House re-opens tonight with a performance of "Tosca."

The members of the "Jesters" variety company, who are attracting packed houses at the Palace Theatre, Cologne, this week had an enjoyable river trip yesterday.

Sergts. Short Large and Trim (the first two are the artistes correct names) well known members of the "Pedlars" Concert Party are about to leave for England. They will be badly missed, particularly by "Bonnites."

A facetious correspondent asks if it is true that with the concluding performance of "Damaged Goods" by the R.A.D.C., Cologne will cease the reek of iodoform.

JACQUES.

OLD SCOUTS' CORNER.

On Wednesday a very pleasant evening was spent at Lindenthal Y.M.C.A. by the above circle. Demobilization has deprived us of yet another Leader, Lt. Charters having left this week for home. On Saturday we have been invited to an Amateur Art and Photographic Exhibition at the Y.M.C.A., Lindenthal, organised by Mr. E. F. Carver, Librarian, VI Corps Y.M.C.A., to be followed by tea and Folk dancing. All old scouts will be welcome and are specially invited by Mr. Carver.

There must be a number of members of the Boy Scouts Association with the Army of the Rhine, and we shall be pleased to see them along at any of our meetings and assure them a "Scouty" time.

Full particulars can be had from the Secretary 315,869 Dr. G. Butler, 573 Army Troops Coy., R. E. Cologne.

"Jock" Simpson Retiring.

The famous Blackburn Rovers' forward, John Simpson, has been ordered by his doctor to give up football. He has just returned from Harrogate Spa, where he has been undergoing medical treatment.

No Opposition.

Lady Torrington's Rich Gift, conceding 27lb, and Brigadier-General Lambton's Paliene had the Autumn Handicap at Wolverhampton very much to themselves. They were not bothered by any opposition.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

"Barracking" Sequel.

"Barracking" has been too prevalent at Upton Park recently, and the West Ham committee are taking action to stamp out the practice.

A Modest Meeting.

Wolverhampton is run upon modest lines and makes no appeal to classic horses, but even their poor relations will on occasion provide capital entertainment.

Old Order Reversed.

The sudden reversal of the old order which finds Vardon, Braid, and Taylor with their backs to the wall and the younger players attacking triumphantly seems to have given a new interest to professional golf.

Unlucky Orient.

Clapton Orient were distinctly unfortunate to lose to Chelsea at Stamford Bridge by two goals to one. Their forwards did almost as much of the attacking as the Chelsea front line, and twice as much of the shooting.

An All-Round Cricketer.

Kent relied to a very large extent on Woolley, who may fairly rank as the best all round cricketer in England, for in addition to his batting he is an extremely good field anywhere, excelling particularly in the slips and at short leg. —Correspondent in the "Times."

Heavy Toll.

Mid-Surrey Hockey Club will open their season on September 27 on their old ground at Richmond. They have lost many of their players in the war.

Off to S.A.

Australian I. F. Cricketers embarked on Tuesday for South Africa, for a short tour there on their homeward journey.

Everton Going Through It.

West Bromwich have been doing so well that their victory over Everton was not surprising. The extent of it, however, was startling; nine goals they have chalked up against the champions in eight days.

"I Can't Putt."

Mingling with famous golfers—amateur and professional—this season, one is struck by a confession in which they are unanimous. "I'm all right up to the green, but I can't putt," is their melancholy declaration.

Light Blue Rugby Prospects.

Some 6,000 men are expected to be in residence at Cambridge this term, which commences in October, and among them there are sure to be many fine Rugby players, especially as this entry will include the public school players of the past five seasons.

Dainty Passe.

White's dainty passes to Cook and McDonald brought out some of the best work of these young players at Fulham on Saturday.

Brighton's Unerring "Bullet."

A feature of Brighton football this season has been the remarkable form displayed by "Bullet" Jones at inside-right.

Haphazard Opening.

The Rugby season has begun in the usual haphazard fashion. Some of the provincial clubs have already played several matches, while the London organisations are still concerned with trial games and the selection of teams.

Wedlock Still a Power.

Bristol City's six to nil victory over Lincoln gives them a remarkable goal average. No player has had a bigger share in their success than Wedlock, their International captain, who was absolutely confounded.

Ex-Amateur Champion.

A few seasons ago Alec Lambert, the ex-amateur champion, was in the front rank of feather-weights. In fact, he competed, though unsuccessfully, for a Lonsdale belt. Lambert engaged at The Ring on Saturday night in a contest with Jack Josephs, of Pontypridd, and was defeated.

Benefit Of Hurdling.

Curiously enough, Svindune was a "soft" animal at one time, but a course of hurdling seems to have instilled more confidence into him.

Consul as Footballer.

The well-known Welsh Rugby footballer, Mr. Percy Bush, has been elected captain of the Stade Nantais Football Club. Mr. Bush is British Consul at Nantes.

Women's Golf.

The entry for the women's open golf championship, wich will be revived on the Burnham and Berrow links, Somerset on October 6 and following days, is in some respects the most interesting in the history of the event.

Sprained His Wrist.

Having sprained his wrist, Jack White (Sunningdale) was unable to take part in the Tom Ball memorial tournament at Raynes Park on Wednesday and his place was taken by Rowland Jones (Wimbledon Park).

The Autumn Handicaps.

It is rarely that we have so many doubts about prominent Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire horses at this late stage. Few people can mention with any inspiration half a dozen horses of note in either race which are sure to see the post and remain unpenalised.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Marriages with Germans.

Supplementing our recent note written after enquiry of the Cologne Cathedral clergy, the War Office has issued the following further denial of the statements, which have recently appeared in the press to the effect that it is "quite a common thing to see British soldiers marrying German girls," and a Leeds soldier in particular being said to have declared that "he went to Cologne Cathedral and there saw twenty-three British soldiers being married to German women." In response to an enquiry by the War Office as to the truth of these statements, the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Army of the Rhine, has replied as follows: "Report absolutely untrue. No marriages between British soldiers and Germans have taken place in the occupied territory as far as can be ascertained after interrogation of the German authorities. Request that steps may be taken to prevent such entirely false statements appearing in the Press, which cause great annoyance to troops here."

The Circular Route.

A Lance Corporal a day or two ago arrived in Cologne from leave and solemnly hoisted himself and his appurtenances on to a four-in-hand near the station. The vehicle "did" the sights of the town and returned, much to the amazement of the N.C.O. who, deceived by the address of the owner on the footboard, believed he was being driven to Wann.

Tramway Indicators.

Regarding a recent paragraph on the subject of tramway direction boards in Germany, a correspondent points out that at all the principal tram stopping places in the big towns these boards, in addition to indicating the routes and numbers of the trams that pass, supply information as to the times of the first and last trams running each day.

Tommy as Guardian.

Each evening you will find him there. He is not a soldier in the strict military sense of the word, although doubtless he has done his bit. One can picture him more as a father seated in a small English back garden a host to several tiny tots, enjoying their pranks. Evening after evening he now acts as host to a party of German children, yet one would not suggest that his patriotism suffers thereby. It would be a pity to locate him, although many of our readers who pass through that open space will have noticed him the centre of a merry party, seated on a stone balustrade often with a flaxen haired baby seated on his knee, Banbury cock-horse fashion. Around him are usually half a dozen youngsters. Just how they make themselves understood we do not know, but sufficient that he is foster father, friend and playmate, who revels in their fun,—just a big, warm-hearted Tommy.

Gender.

One of the greatest difficulties of the German language is the question of gender. For instance it is not very easy for the learner to grasp the fact that only marriage makes a woman a real female; das Mädchen and das Fräulein being both neuter gender and become feminine—die Frau—only when married. Of course we remember having heard that the German Minister of the Interior declared in a special order that a Fräulein may call herself Frau without being married, but perhaps this was only when she has reached a certain age.

Prosperous Newsvendors.

The great strides made in the newsvending business in the occupied area since the arrival of the British Army are apparent everywhere. The headway made by the vendor of reading matter outside the N.A.C.B. Officers' Club, for instance, is remarkable. Commencing activities on March 31st (when the "Cologne Post" made its bow to the world) with a dozen or so copies of this journal for disposal, a woman possessed of a keen eye to business has steadily added variety to her wares until her stand now resembles a Smith's bookstall. Newspapers, books and magazines of quite recent date are exhibited in large numbers and bought to the extent of several hundreds a day by officers passing in and out of the club.

The Language Bogey.

A lot of people seem to have "the wind up" about the German as a linguist. Granted that many citizens of Cologne speak good English, but when it comes to writing English or reading one of our newspapers, they are—the majority at any rate— out of action. Look at the announcements in English to be seen in the windows of so many city establishments Comparatively few are grammatically correct though the words are invariably simple enough in all conscience.

The Family List.

According to regulations there has to be a list with full particulars of the inhabitants of the house fixed on every entrance door in Cologne. Most of these lists are no longer correct as all the inhabitants have grown older since they were made, but women and girls refuse to change the age which appears on the list. Young men who call upon a family for the first time never fail to consult the list before entering.

Re-echoes.

Any British or Allied ladies wishing to use Officers' Clubs must either wear uniform or an official armlet.

No officer or other rank is allowed to belong to more than one War Savings Association operating in the Rhine Army.

A Rhineland doctor, writing in a German newspaper, says that the way a man's clothes hang from his shoulders is as sure an indication of the state of his health as that supplied by the amount of rust there is on the bunch of keys he carries.

During Marshal Joffre's inspection of the troops on Wednesday in Cologne, a German in uniform apparently anxious lest he should not do the correct thing, was observed to remain at the salute throughout the whole proceedings.

Owing to the coal shortage, it is proposed to limit the hours of cooking in Euskirchen restaurants to a very brief spell each day.

The wet state of the road at the top of Hohestrasse yesterday caused a motor cyclist to skid completely round and dash into the shop door of a jeweller's. No one was hurt.

Since May 1st War Savings Certificates to the value of over £55,000 have been sold in the Rhine Army.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Bdr. C. R. Sensier, R.G.A. c/o, I.Q.M.G., Services G.H.Q., Rhine Army, and Pte. C.W. Lee, R.M.L.I., Rhine Flotilla, Cologne.

NOTES FROM LONDON TOWN.

PACING THE DECKS OF THE TUBE.

What London people call "exercise" arouses pity, amusement, or contempt in visitors from the open country. "I met a man who was pacing up and down on a Tube platform the other day," writes a correspondent. "He told me he was taking exercise. Past the crowd in the middle of the platform he rushed until he reached a comparatively clear space at the lower end, where he raced to and fro with astonishing speed. Presently three other men and two women sought that end of the platform and joined him in his frenzied rush. 'I must get some exercise,' he said, when I expressed astonishment at his remarkable behaviour. Exercise! Good heavens! Exercise in that stuffy hole, where fresh air and sunshine can never penetrate!"

LONDON'S HILLS.

Many people, not over-observant, imagine Central London, with the exception, perhaps, of Ludgate-hill, to be a place of perfectly level streets. Any horse could undeceive them, especially during and since the war, when most vans and drays have been shamefully overladen. One is reminded of this because of the sign which the National Equine Defence League has just set up at the bottom of John-street, in the Adelphi asking all drivers of horse-drawn vehicles to avoid the streets in that neighbourhood. John-street itself, which runs down to Villiers-street, is probably the steepest short hill in Central London. But there are plenty of long and trying slopes elsewhere in the town which, when covered with traffic, are not very apparent to foot passengers.

THE LEAST VISITED MUSEUM.

There is at least one museum in London which probably has fewer visitors than the Guildhall, and that is the Geological Museum, in Jermyn-street. Most Londoners don't even know of its existence, which, perhaps, is not surprising. You may go there and often have practically the whole place to yourself, with many admirable specimens before your eyes and a mass of information at your disposal. To one class, at any rate, the Geological Museum has been of value—mining engineers.

THE LAST POST.

The mystery of a pillar-box is the latest London sensation. A hooded van pulled up in Fleet-street, and then backed up against a receptacle for letters. A minute later five hefty workmen had dismounted from the van and were surveying their prey with critical eyes. Satisfied that they could manage the job, they extracted tools from the van. In turns they delved until the base of the pillarbox was laid bare. "Heave!" shouted the foreman—and with one accord they all hove. Plonk went the pillar-box in the gutter. The hefty workmen smiled and the crowd burst forth into an encouraging cheer. It was a tedious business. Four of the men hauled and pushed; the other shovelled stone and earth beneath the base in order to retain the advantage gained. At last the job was completed, and the crimson trophy lay securely in the van. Then the van drove away. And now the question is: Has the Postmaster-General missed a pillar-box lately?

LONDON "UP"

London at the present time is in the hands of the repairers and is undergoing a kind of soleing-and-heeling operation before the winter comes. The streets everywhere are "up", and both in City and suburbs one encounters brigades of brawny men wielding picks and shovels, brewing tar, stacking pyramids of wooden blocks, or mixing mysterious compounds of sand and cement. Roads are like human beings. They cannot go on for ever. They require to be periodically overhauled, but in a city like London the process of repairing is not only costly, but it holds up and delays traffic until it becomes almost a public nuisance. Thousands of people turn up to shop or office late. Employers look angry, feel angry, but they cannot say anything.

THE PREMIER IN HOLBORN.

How many people have noticed, one wonders, that in Holborn, in full view of every passer-by, there is a life-like representation in stone of Mr. Lloyd George as he appeared some 10 or 15 years ago? Over the entrance porch of the derelict Inns of Court Hotel is a strange medley, from some mid-Victorian sculptor's studio, showing a male and female figure, half-draped, reclining against a shield, the meaning of which is not quite clear. The figures are not classical in pose, expression, or execution. But the likeness of the man to Mr. Lloyd George is so remarkable that it cannot fail to strike anyone who troubles to glance up at it in passing.

INDIANS SHOPPING.

The Indians have gone from Hampton Court, and with them goes a good deal of the picturesqueness of London shopping, for they were great patrons of the shops and very good customers, since what was bought by one was generally bought by others. Among the little fancies of the warriors was one for spectacles in gold rims, and one stalwart soldier was a good deal put out when he was told that his eyesight was still so perfect that he had no possible use for spectacles. However, he was not to be beaten, and went off happy with a pair—with plain glass for the lenses.

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

Fashions in Furs.

To delay any longer the duty of making the most of the furs in possession would be sheer foolishness as well as false economy. Peltry will be very costly again this winter, therefore all that is available already should, if necessary, be submitted to an expert for renovation and remodelling, or be dealt with at home. A big flat scarf or blanket, just large enough to cover the back and to be caught together below the chin by leather thongs or the limbs of the animal, is the barbaric fancy of the moment. An ordinary stole that has been in wear in the past, if split, can be made to simulate the shape, particularly if it be long and wide, while if it be fur on both sides the possibilities are made still brighter.

Expensive Peltry.

We are to see fur capes and mantles this autumn and winter in such peltry as sable-dyed squirrel, mole, seal musquash, Persian lamb, and mink. Mole will be highly favoured and its graceful appearance is undoubted. It tones in exquisitely with a grey frock and hat and is suitable for any occasion. It is not inexpensive—what fur is?—particularly when allied, as I have seen it, with skunk, costing for a cover-all cape over a hundred guineas, or with beaver eighty-nine guineas. But, of course, it can be used less profusely. A cape of grey satin with barrel bands of mole from collar to hem would be exquisite, and in proportion to the economy with which the fur was used the cost would decrease.

That Hat.

We all know the Cinema hat. Many of us have sat behind it. After all, it is a very real grievance. The cinema is among the most popular of modern recreations. Seats are not so cheap that the average patron of the "movies" cares to chance his luck whether he sees the screen or not. Nor are they, in these crowded times, so easily changed as to solve the difficulty that way. It is significant that the most outspoken protest against the selfishness and thoughtlessness of some women come from other women. If nothing can touch the conscience of the over-decorated sisterhood, we hope that cinema authorities themselves will do something practical and prompt for the removal of the obstructive headgear. They can bank on general support.

Paris Craze for Rings.

The smart Parisienne must possess now a ring for almost every occasion, and with the new fashion of entirely naked arms and hands a new importance attaches to the rings and bracelets worn by the smart woman. Supple gold serpents coil round supple white arms, bands of platinum encrusted with precious stones glitter on the skin, and finely-chiselled chains are greatly in vogue. If the arms are adorned the hands must be in keeping, and now more than ever are numerous rings worn on both hands. The general taste, however, among smart people is for more or less ancient rings. The eighteenth century style of wide enamelled rings with big emeralds, blood-red rubies, and long opals is much in favour. In fact, there is what is more or less a passing craze for the famous Venetian "rings of death."

New Wrap Coats.

Hints from the weather that autumn is on the wing warn us that the subject of the wrap coat must have immediate attention. Charming are the new designs in wraps. Most of them have something of a borrowed grace due to the recent popularity of the cavalier cape and thus we find sleeves that really only consist of the cleverly attached folds of a circular model, or are diminutive enough to be scarcely more than extra large cuffs on the arm slit. Even when of longer dimensions, they spring from very near the waist line. The huge collar is another marked feature. The longer waist line is distinctly noticeable where the Magyar influence is not so much in evidence, and belts and pockets seem a matter of personal liking or convenience. Two-colour schemes are much to the fore, grey and that copper tomato tint being almost tiresomely insistant.

Evening Wrap Models.

There is a decided feeling for the cavalier cape in evening wrap models, the long arm slit being noticeable, but, following otherwise in the way of their daytime prototypes, they yield to the egg or barrel shape for general outline. A lovely design seen the other day, and which possessed the attraction of being suitable for day or evening wear, was realised in bronze green duvetyn with very short, wide sleeves emerging at the waist line. Another, of rather less ample proportions, had a tracing of vivid blue and gold threads encircling its sapphire velvet folds hip high and so suggesting a greater width than it actually possessed. The collar that is really a small cape covering the line of the shoulders is well established, and ostrich feather and fringe trimmings retain a hold on the modes of the moment.

AGNES.

HOUSING EMBARRASSMENTS.

We are told that one reason why the housing problem does not solve itself quite so helpfully as most social vexations are wont to do is because there is no prospect of furnishing a house when you get one. At many of our once most popular East Coast resorts the congestion has this summer been "summat awful." And the fact that so many people found it difficult, if not impossible, to get reasonable accommodation was not sugar-coated by the other fact that there are so many houses standing empty. When the East Coast became an unhealthy area during the war, there was a general exodus. Only the veteran seaside boarding-house keeper in most cases gallantly "stuck it out." And there are now at most of the East Coast resorts big houses for which there would be a great and eager demand, but for the fact that none of the people who would gladly take them over could hope to make the investment pay at present prices for furnishing. The same applies to many big houses in the West End, which have been vacated by their former tenants, who have helped incidentally to make congestion worse congested by going into small houses in the suburbs or into a flat in town. Once we can burst the bubble of inflated prices anywhere, the rest will follow.

FROM EVERYWHERE.

Suicide?—The body of a miner has been found under a hedge on Lysdon Moor, with a silk scarf tied round the throat.

Novel Conveyance.—After a wedding at Shorewell, the parties were conveyed home in the bridegroom's own farm wagon.

A Glad Reunion.—Pte. C. Morris, Duke of Cornwall's, and his wife, were reunited by chance at Brighton. He had been reported as dead.

Coming Back.—During the next few days 120,000 German prisoners coming from Great Britain and France will pass through Düsseldorf.

"Millionaire Private".—Sir H.H. Raphael, who enlisted as a private in the 2nd Sportsman's Battalion attended a memorial service to men of the unit.

The Realist.—A Liverpool boy who gave a false alarm, told the magistrates that attending cinemas had made him want to see the fire brigade turn out.

His Successor.—Though Mr. Macpherson has not resigned the Irish Chief Secretaryship, possible successors are being discussed. One mentioned is Mr. Cecil Harmsworth.

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

RAILWAYMEN'S ULTIMATUM.

ONLY TWENTY-FOUR HOURS ALLOWED FOR THE GOVERNMENT TO MAKE A DECISION.

AUSTRIAN REVELATIONS OF DUPLICITY.

RAILWAY CRISIS.

FACTS ABOUT THE MEN'S DEMANDS.

The ultimatum sent to the Board of Trade on Tuesday by the Executive Committee of the National Union of Railwaymen took the form of the following resolution:—

That, having received further proposals from the Government laying down basic rates of wages for the various grades in the conciliation board schemes other than drivers, firemen, and cleaners, this executive committee notes the great difference between the rates suggested by this organisation and those submitted by the Government, varying in certain cases up to 16s. per week, and as this offer would ultimately mean such a serious reduction to many of our members as would not allow them to maintain a decent standard of life, we instruct the general secretary to inform the Government at once that their offer cannot be accepted by us, and that this committee is a present in session awaiting a further offer.

In the event of such further offer not being received by 12 o'clock noon on Thursday, September 25, we shall have no alternative but to instruct our members to cease work in support of our claims. We further instruct the general secretary to get into touch immediately with our branches and instruct our members to hold themselves in readiness to act on any instruction issued by this executive committee.

The Reply.

A reply to this was issued by Sir Eric Geddes on behalf of the Government. He states—

The facts are, in brief, that, apart from the concession of the eight-hour day, the principal addition to railwaymen's wages during the war has been a flat war wage of 33s. a week to all grades, which applies until the end of this year.

Under the agreement no man can be in any way worse off than he is to-day until the end of the present year, which has still more than three months to run.

The time allowed for negotiations as to revised standard rates of pay extends to the end of the year.

While in some cases the new standard rate of wages might exceed the present wage plus war wage, in other cases it might be less.

The settlement which has already been arrived at in regard to the wages of drivers, firemen, and cleaners, and the proposals relating to men in other grades recently put forward to the National Union of Railwaymen have been worked out on the basis that the standard rates of pay of the whole of the men engaged in the manipulation of traffic will be advanced by approximately 100 per cent., on the average, above pre-war rates, and a minimum rate of 40s. per week for adult male railway employees throughout Great Britain, including rural districts, will be established.

This advance of wages applied to the whole of the railway staff would involve the railway companies in an estimated additional permanent expenditure of over £45,000,000 per annum as compared with pre-war cost, to which must be added the cost of the concessions already granted to the railwaymen in the shape of shorter hours, increased pay for night duty, overtime and Sunday work, increased holidays, etc. There are estimated to cost another £20,000,000 per annum, giving an estimated total of over £65,000,000 permanent increase per annum on a pre-war pay bill of about £47,000,000.

The Agreement.

The agreement of March 27 provides that:—

"At the end of the year the whole situation will be reviewed. The war wage will have to be looked at in the light of the circumstances of the time generally, and it will be open to the men to ask for a revision of the new standard rates if they think a case can be made for it."

FRENCH PROFITEERS.

France as well as England groans under the profiteer. The evil is probably worse and the profiteer more ingenious in France. The police are campaigning against the offenders, but the public is surprised and offended by the small fines and the short terms of imprisonment imposed.

At present Parisians are anxious to fill their coal cellars, but while they are prepared to pay dearly for coal, they do not expect to pay illegal prices. One coal dealer has been fined £20 and sent to prison for three months, another has been fined £4 and a week's imprisonment. Thirteen other speculators were let off with fines ranging from £2 to £12. The police force instituted to put down frauds is now paying attention to bootshops, and pairs of shoes for which £6 and £8 were being charged have been seized. These dealers will be prosecuted.

TRUTH WILL OUT.

SECRETS OF AUSTRIAN FOREIGN OFFICE.

Revelations of the Austrian Foreign Office continue to command great attention. Once and for all the absurd pretence that both sets of belligerents shared the responsibility for the war is completely shattered. That the documents now published confirm in every particular the presentation of these matters made by Allied Governments is not surprising. What is surprising, and what the cool judgment of posterity will find so appalling, is the additional revelation of sheer wickedness, of inhuman cynicism and deliberate conspiracy against the peace of the world.

The central point of it is that both in Berlin and Vienna it was not the possibility of war being prevented by the mediation of other powers which was regarded with anxiety. Wilhelm II, and Bethmann Hollweg, Berchtold, Stuergk and the rest, all sound the same note in these plain official records. "Now" they all say, "is a favourable time."

How many times has Wilhelm II pledged his honour that he strove unremittingly for peace? In these documents we find him urging his ally to fall upon Serbia.

How often has Bethmann Hollweg declared his perfect innocence of warlike intentions? Here we find him, with the assent of his master and his colleagues, definitely recommending that Austria should disregard the British Government's attempts at pacific intervention.

They insisted on war and would not allow it to be prevented. The truth now revealed justifies up to the hilt every word that has been responsibly uttered in denunciation of the conduct of the two autocracies in 1914 and it adds new infamy to their record. It lends fresh significance to all that has been said to the effect that such crime must never again be possible. "Future generations" said M. Clemenceau, "must be saved from the abominations of the past." "There will always be criminal states" —said Mr. Lloyd George—"until the reward of international crime becomes too precarious to make it profitable and the punishment of international crime too sure to make it attractive." The German paper "Freiheit" says "If the German press, on a semi-official cue, attempts to speak of exoneration of German policy by Austria, it is a useless swindle. The lies and liars are definitely unmasked."

CAPTURE OF KIEF.

DARING RECONNAISSANCE.

The Warsaw correspondent of the "Morning Post" made a daring aeroplane trip of three hundred miles over the Ukrainian Bolshevist armies to Kieff and found that Denikin had been in secure possession of the town for a fortnight. The Bolshevist defence of the city was surprisingly stubborn. For thirty-six hours preceding its recapture the city was doubly bombarded by Petlura and by the Bolshevists, who, realising the impossibilty of holding the city, shelled it from twenty-seven monitors in the river.

Actually Petlura entered the city some five hours before Denikin. The latter issued an order recognising the Poles as Allies but refused to enter into a pact with Petlura, considering him a traitor to Russia. The correspondent says that Polish co-operation with Denikin should establish a solid anti-Bolshevist front from the Urals to the Baltic which would probably speedily terminate the chaos existing in the Ukraine. The Bolshevist occupation of Kieff was a terrible ordeal for the inhabitants. At least three thousand were executed, and one thousand bodies were found in the operating theatre at the university.

The correspondent was impressed by the bitter reaction against Bolshevism on the part of the inhabitants, combined with hatred of Germany and gratitude towards Great Britain as the saviour of Russia. Besides the tricolour of the old Russian regime no flag appears in Kieff except the Union Jack, which floats over a score of buildings.

FIUME TO BE ITALIAN BUT NEUTRAL.

American circles in Paris state that the Supreme Council may possibly agree on a settlement of the Dalmatian question by a formula making Fiume Italian but neutral. Italy would not be permitted to keep troops there and the railways and docks would be internationalised, thus safeguarding Jugo-Slav and central European interests.

This plan was submitted to President Wilson last week and awaits his decision. France and England have signified their approval and the Jugo-Slavs are reported to be favourably inclined, although awaiting the decision of President Wilson before giving a reply. The Italians meanwhile are maintaining the blockade of Fiume, while the Allied navies are merely watching the course of events.

DOM WEDDINGS.

RIDICULOUS STORY FROM YORKSHIRE.

What did the Leeds soldier—demobilised from the R.A.S.C., M.T.—see in the Dom on September 6th?

Certainly not twenty-three simultaneous marriages between English soldiers and German girls, for no such ceremony took place. No English soldier has ever been married in the Dom. This is an explicit statement, on the authority of the Dom Capitular, who has issued a certificate to that effect.

The statement about these wholesale weddings first appeared in the "Times" of September 6th and was naturally contradicted by the G.O.C. Rhine Army, whereupon the Leeds correspondent of that paper again sought his informant, who stated that "he was not a bit surprised at the denial; as a matter of fact he had expected it; yet his statement was true in every detail. He saw the marriages and he was prepared to believe his own eyes."

He then repeated his statement as follows:—

"On September 6, the day he witnessed 23 such marriages with German girls in Cologne Cathedral, he was with a friend having a look round the building. A German he spoke to said there were some weddings going on, so they went inside to see for themselves, and were very much astonished to see 23 couples standing in a half-circle round the priest. In each case the bridegroom was a British soldier. After staying there a few minutes, he and his friend left the building in disgust. He also spoke to another soldier he knew returning to Germany last Friday for the purpose of getting married to a German girl who was very well off."

What, then, did the soldier see in Cologne Cathedral, (the Dom)? Probably a party of visitors being shown round by a priest, a very common sight.

Although several betrothals of British officers and men to German girls have been announced in the German newspapers (the usual and eminently sensible German practice) the fulfilment of these pledges is another matter. It is not easy for a British soldier to marry a German girl and it is an impossibility unless written permission is produced.

Enquiries at three out of the four registration offices at Cologne reveal the fact that not a single marriage has taken place.

Before a soldier can marry a German girl he has to produce to the Registrar documentary evidence that he is free to marry, certificates of identity, and written permission from the military authorities. If these be satisfactory the civil ceremony takes place before the Burgermeister. Not until all these laws and regulations have been complied with can anybody be married at the Cathedral or any other church.

In final and emphatic contradiction of the Leeds lie can be cited the fact that marriages between British soldiers and German girls are absolutely prohibited, at least until such time as the status of the wife is determined—her right of entry into such countries where Germans are barred for instance — which status will certainly not be determined until after the Peace Treaty has been fully ratified.

But the question remains. What did the soldier see in the Dom? Or was he in the Dom at all? We doubt it.

TWO SISTERS SUFFOCATED IN A PANTRY.

The story of a brother's discovery of his two sisters dead in a gas filled pantry was told at an inquest at Liverpool on Ethel Maud Brown, aged forty-two, and Beatrice Brown, aged thirty-six, who were found suffocated in their home.

"I went to Brighton on September 6 for a holiday," said Mr. William Brown, brother of the women. "I returned on Sunday night, and found the place in darkness. I thought that my sisters had retired for the night, and I went to bed. They did not appear the next morning, and I summoned assistance. The door of the butler's pantry was forced, and Ethel was discovered sitting on a chair and Beatrice on the floor. Both were dead, and the taps of a gas stove and bracket were turned full on. My sisters were slightly eccentric." It was stated further that the women had been dead about ten days.

The coroner said that the evidence showed that the women had designed to take their lives, but there was no evidence of their state of mind.

BOMBS TO SETTLE ARGUMENTS.

In view of the dastardly and cowardly murders of police, the Irish Government have directed the constabulary authorities to provide the men with all possible modern means of defending themselves and their barracks. Amongst other measures, it was directed that in disturbed localities the police should be provided with small hand grenades for use on patrol or in defence of their barracks. These weapons are only to be used by men who receive special instruction in the method of employing them.

CHILDREN'S MEMORIAL TO CORNWELL, V.C.

Steps are at last to be taken to place a memorial stone over the grave of Jack Cornwell, the East Ham boy V.C., and hero of Jutland. The cost of the stone is being defrayed out of funds furnished by the school children in the Borough, Cornwell having been a pupil at one of the Council's local schools.

HASTY DENTIST.

EX-SOLDIER DIES FROM LOCKJAW.

Bertram Davies, a dentist, and his employer, George Chaloner Smith, a dental mechanic, trading as the West Brompton Teeth Institute, were censured by a Kensington jury at an inquest on one of their patients who died from lockjaw. A young ex-soldier, named Sidney Clark, had four teeth extracted by Davies, and as the bleeding was excessive, cotton wool plugs were inserted. Later Clark was fitted with four artificial teeth, and nine days afterwards he complained of great pain, his jaw became fixed, and he was removed to the infirmary, where he died.

Dr. Hobbs attributed the death to lockjaw, and stated that he found four plugs of cotton wool still in the jaw.

Dr. H. B. Spilsbury said he traced the tetanus bacilli to the jaw at the place where the teeth were extracted, but he could not say that the bacilli were introduced by the cotton wool.

A verdict of "Death from tetanus" was returned, the jury adding that the dentist's work had been inefficiently and hastily performed.

GIFTS FROM KINGS.

AMERICAN ANGER WITH PRESIDENT'S PARTY.

Senator Penrose, in the course of a speech in the American Senate, charged the members of Mr. Wilson's peace party attending the Paris conference with having returned with "millions of dollars" worth of presents from European rulers. The charge has caused a sensation because of the long-established American feeling against any members of the Government accepting gifts from the rulers of other nations.

Mr. Penrose declared, "I am told that the President returned to America laden and overburdened with presents from crowned heads and foreign Governments. Even the women in the Executive party brought back jewellery worth hundreds of thousands. An official of the Custom House, I am informed, stated that jewellery amounting in value to £200,000 has been brought back."

Mr. Ashurst, a Democratic senator, declared: "When officials accept presents of great value they dissolve the pearl of independence in the vinegar of obligation." Mr. Ashurst nevertheless accused Mr. Penrose of attacking women.

Mr. Penrose replied: "I am simply stating the fact that the Presidential party, including women, brought back presents from crowned heads and foreign Governments aggregating several millions of dollars."

GERMAN METAL-WORKERS STRIKE.

Representatives of the German metal-workers have unanimously resolved to recommend a general strike. The decision requires the endorsement of a two-thirds majority. The German Government's wireless report states that about 5,000 workmen are already out, whilst 7,000 workmen have been dismissed by the employers.

HOUSE HUNTER'S SUICIDE.

Despair at being unable to find a house caused Frederick James Taylor, aged fifty-three, chauffeur, of College-road, Kensal Rise, to commit suicide. He was found by a policeman on Wormwood Scrubs with his throat cut and a blood-stained razor in his hand. It was stated at the inquest at Hammersmith that Taylor had been depressed and worried because he was separated from his wife, as they were unable to find a house or rooms. He had often suggested taking his own life.

A verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind" was returned.

STEEL STRIKE SPREADING.

Both sides in the American steel strike are claiming that they are winning, but from a mass of conflicting accounts it would appear that the strikers have gained some more supporters. There has been further rioting, resulting in numerous injuries and one death. The Senate has ordered an investigation into the strike and proposes calling the leaders of the employers and employees to Washington in an effort to determine the cause of the strike and decide whether federal action could be taken. Mr. Foster, Secretary of the Steelworkers Union, announces that 327,000 workers are now participating in the strike.

LONDON—BRUSSELS AIR SERVICE.

A Handley-Page twin engined passenger aeroplane, for the London — Brussels service, made a special trial flight on Wednesday. She left Hounslow at 8.5 and reached Brussels at 10.15. After a stay of four and a half hours she left again at 2.45 and was back in London at 6.55. The combined flight there and back thus occupied six hours and twenty minutes. The flight homeward was made in the teeth of a thirty mile wind. The service between London and Brussels was officially inaugurated yesterday by a similar type of aeroplane which left London with nine passengers.

IRISH TURMOIL.

EXTRAORDINARY RAID ON A DISTILLERY.

According to a report from Cahircaneevan, West Clare, three police-constables on patrol were attacked by a band of men armed with guns and revolvers. The police returned their fire and the assailants fled, abandoning among other things 11 overcoats, some firearms, and a blood-soaked handkerchief. None of the policemen was hurt. No arrests have been made.

Another extraordinary robbery is reported from Cork City. It is stated that six or seven men rowed down the river in a boat to the Cork Distillery's premises at night, and, having hidden their boat under some trees, crept towards the watchman's box. Before he could raise the alarm they dashed upon him, closed the doors of his box, and locked them. His cries were not heard, for there was no one in the vicinity at that hour. The burglars next broke open the door of the bond house, and rolled several casks of whisky down to the boat, after which they rowed off, and have not yet been traced. The value of the missing whisky is set down at £300.

Three Limerick tri-weekly Nationalist newspapers have been suppressed. A force of military and police visited the offices of the Limerick Leader, and under a warrant dismantled the machinery and stopped the issue. The machinery of the Munster News and the Limerick Echo was also dismantled, the vital portions being taken away. It is stated that the suppression of the journals is due to the publication of the prospectus of the Sinn Fein loan.

"POLICE DISCREDITED".

CONSTABULARY INSPECTOR'S STRAIGHT TALK.

Addressing members of the Southampton Police Force at the conclusion of the anual inspection, Sir Leonard Dunning, his Majesty's Inspector of Constabulary, in a straight talk to the men on parade, said that the last year or two had been a very critical period in the history of the police force of the country, for recent events had to some extent deprived the force of the public confidence they had enjoyed for so long. It was because in the past the public had been able to look upon the police as trustworthy that their strength had been so great; but in the eyes of the public now the police stood discredited, and the reason was not far to seek. Every man on parade had been before the magistrates and had made a declaration which in the eyes of the law amounted to an oath, and on the keeping of that oath very often depended the liberty and sometimes the life of a fellow-citizen. The reason why public confidence had been shaken was because some misguided comrades of theirs had broken their oath, and had consequently been declared unfit to do their duty. It was up to every one of them to do their share in the reinstatement of the police force in the public confidence.

HANGED BY KIT BAG CORD.

A jury at Wandsworth Prison returned a verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind" in the case of Private Cyril Fiveash, aged nineteen, R.A.S.C., who was found hanging by a piece of cord taken from his kit-bag in his room in the Military Detention Barracks, where he was undergoing confinement for being an absentee.

The coroner said that, under the Army Act, 1906, soldiers who had committed military offences, instead of being sent to prison, could be put in a detention barracks. They did not perform ordinary prison work, but were trained, among other things, in musketry.

Evidence showed that Fiveash served in France, where he was wounded in the head and arm. He was admitted to Wandsworth on Thursday night, and was found dead on Friday morning.

PENSIONS CONCESSIONS.

The "Comrades of the Great War" announce that they have secured from the Pensions Minister a statement that important pensions concessions are in prospect.

Regarding men who received injuries other than on active service or widows of men who were so killed, who at present do not profit under the new pensions warrant, the Pensions Minister states that it is proposed to represent special cases to the Treasury for an award under the dispensing warrant, at such rates as the men might have received had they been injured in the course of the war.

RATS' £110 MEAL.

Mr. Edward Carter, an East Upton farmer and a magistrate, was fined £110 at Ryde for permitting wheat to be damaged. It was stated that he had five 1918 wheat ricks which were infested with rats and mice, and the wheat was not threshed until last August, when the tailings (the straw and husks of the grain) were enormously in excess of the average owing to the mischief caused by the vermin. Seven ricks on another of Mr. Carter's farms were stated to be in a deplorable state.

According to the Brussels Soir, the Belgian Minister of Railways has bought from the British Government 8,750 trucks, formerly used by the British Army, which are still in France.
